Part 1 (ss 1-36) Gas importation and storage

Chapter 1 (s 1) Gas importation and storage zones

Section 1 provides for ownership of the rights under the United Nations Convention on the Law of the Sea 1982 in the exclusive economic zone outside the United Kingdom's territorial sea, in relation to the unloading and storage of gas, to be vested in the Crown and allows Her Majesty to designate an area within which those rights are exercisable.

Chapter 2 (ss 2-16) Gas importation and storage zones

Section 2 prohibits specified activities relating to the recovery, unloading and storage of gas from being carried on except in accordance with a licence. However, such a licence is not required for certain activities which relate to developments which are liable to be subject to planning control: s 3. Under s 4, the Secretary of State may grant licences in respect of the specified activities referred to in s 2. The Secretary of State may, under s 5, make regulations relating to the making of applications for licences. Section 6 enables the Secretary of State to determine the terms and conditions of a licence and s 7 provides for the Secretary of State to make regulations prescribing model clauses for licences. By virtue of s 8, it is an offence to carry on any of the activities listed in s 2 and not excepted by s 3 without an appropriate licence. Section 9 provides that it is an offence for a licence holder to breach certain of provisions of the licence. Where there has been a breach of a licence, the Secretary of State may direct that the licence holder takes appropriate steps to remedy the breach: s 10. Failure to comply with such a direction is an offence: s 11. Section 12 allows the Secretary of State to apply to the High Court for an injunction to restrain the carrying on of activities other than in accordance with a licence. The Secretary of State may appoint inspectors to assist in carrying out the Secretary of State's functions and provide for their remuneration: s 13. By virtue of s 14, offences may be prosecuted in any part of the United Kingdom, irrespective of where they were committed. In respect of a licence for the recovery of gas in a controlled place, s 15 makes provision to allow the Secretary of State give a direction, where satisfied that the amount of petroleum present is insignificant, to the effect that the holder of a gas storage licence does not also need a petroleum licence. Section 16 provides for interpretation.

Chapter 3 (ss 17-35) Storage of carbon dioxide

Section 17 prohibits specified activities relating to the storage of carbon dioxide with a view to its permanent disposal from being carried on except in accordance with a licence. Under s 18, the Secretary of State may grant licences in respect of the specified activities referred to in s 17. The Secretary of State is empowered by s 19 to make regulations prescribing the conditions that the applicant may be required to meet in order to obtain a licence and other requirements which must be met before a licence is granted. Subject to regulations on the terms and conditions of licence, the Secretary of State may grant licences on such terms and conditions as are considered appropriate: ss 20, 21. By s 22, it is an offence for a person to carry on any of the activities listed in s 17 without an appropriate licence, and by 23, it is an offence for a licence holder to breach certain of provisions of the licence. Where there has been a breach of a licence, the Secretary of State may direct that the licence holder takes appropriate steps to remedy the breach (s 24), and failure to comply with such a direction is an offence (s 25). Section 26 allows the Secretary of State to apply to the High Court for an injunction to restrain the carrying on of activities other than in accordance with a licence. The Secretary of State may appoint inspectors to assist in carrying out the Secretary of State's functions and provide for their remuneration: s 27. By virtue of s 28, offences may be prosecuted in any part of the United Kingdom, irrespective of where they were committed. Section 29 requires the Secretary of State to maintain a register containing prescribed information relating to licences, and allows the Secretary of State to prescribe the information that must be included in the register. The operators of offshore installations installed for the purposes of carbon dioxide storage activities are required by s 30 to decommission them in a timely manner after operations have permanently ceased. Regulations may be made which set out the circumstances under which a licence may be terminated: s 31. Section 32 extends provisions relating to safety zones around oil and gas installations to carbon storage installations. Section 33 ensures that the use of carbon dioxide in the recovery of petroleum is not subject to the provisions on the licensing of carbon dioxide storage requirements, unless the Secretary of State makes an order so extending those provisions. The Secretary of State may transfer any of his functions relating to the storage of carbon dioxide to a public body: s 34. Section 35 provides for interpretation.

Chapter 4 (s 36) General provisions about gas importation and storage

Section 36 introduces Sch 1, which makes amendments to legislation in connection with licensing of gas importation and storage.

Part 2 (ss 37-44) Electricity from renewable sources

Section 37 makes provision relating to the operation of the renewables obligation and empowers the Secretary of State to make a renewables obligation order, and (1) enables such an order to specify how the level of the obligation is to be set; (2) provides for the issue of renewables obligation certificates by the Gas and Electricity Markets Authority ('GEMA'); (4) allows the exclusion of specified renewable sources or descriptions of generating stations from eligibility for renewables obligation certificates or to the confinement of such eligibility to a proportion of electricity from specified sources; (5) allows the Secretary of State to provide different levels of support to different technologies; (6) allows electricity suppliers to make a payment to GEMA as an alternative to complying with its renewables obligation; (7) enables GEMA to be empowered to require electricity suppliers to provide certain information in relation to their participation in the renewables obligation; (8) makes provision in relation to consultation. Section 38 makes supplementary provision in relation to the consultation requirement. By virtue of s 39, the Secretary of State may modify, preserve, replace or otherwise deal with arrangements made pursuant to non fossil fuel obligation orders. Section 40 makes provision in relation to the Northern Ireland renewables obligation. The Secretary of State may modify electricity supply and distribution licences to introduce a scheme to encourage small-scale low-carbon generation of electricity: s 41. In the exercise of that power, the Secretary of State must comply with the procedural requirements set out in s 42. Section 43 makes supplemental provisions in relation to the modification power conferred by s 41. Section 44 and Sch 2 makes provision relating to electricity transmission licences, in particular by conferring on GEMA power to recover costs related to competitive tenders for determining to whom offshore electricity transmission licences are to be granted, and power to make property schemes to transfer property, rights and liabilities from the existing owner to the successful bidder.

Part 3 (ss 45-75) Decommissioning of energy installations

Chapter 1 (ss 45-68) Nuclear sites: decommissioning and clean-up

Section 45 requires a person applying for a nuclear site licence for a site where they intend to construct or operate a nuclear power station to notify the Secretary of State and submit a funded decommissioning programme for approval. Section 46 gives the Secretary of State the power to approve or reject a funded decommissioning programme, which must be exercised with the aim of securing that prudent provision is made for defined technical matters. It is an offence for a person required to submit a programme under s 45 by reason of an application for a nuclear site licence to use the site by virtue of the licence without an approved funded decommissioning programme in place: s 47. Section 48 provides that a funded decommissioning programme, and any condition attached to it, may be modified once it has been approved, in accordance with the procedure specified by s 49 and from the time determined in accordance with s 51. The Secretary of State may make regulations to disapply s 49 in relation to modifications proposed by a person other than the Secretary of State: s 50. Section 52 gives the Secretary of State powers to obtain information from the site operator and other persons with obligations under a funded decommissioning programme, and in certain circumstances, from bodies corporate associated with the site operator. The Secretary of State may review an approved funded programme and request information about the programme from the site operator or any other person who has obligations under the programme: s 53. Section 54 empowers the Secretary of State to make regulations about the preparation, content and implementation of a funded decommissioning programme and about the modification of such programmes. Such regulations may allow the Secretary of State to rely on verification of financial matters by an independent third party: s 55. Provision is made by s 56 to protect monies set aside for the performance of designated technical matters under an approved funded decommissioning programme, in particular by disapplying insolvency legislation. Section 57 makes it an offence for a site operator or persons associated with the operator to fail to comply with their obligations under an approved decommissioning programme. Under s 58, the Secretary of State may direct a person with obligations under an approved funded decommissioning programme to take specified action where the person has failed to comply with any obligations imposed by the programme or has been engaged in unlawful conduct that may affect the programme. Section 59 makes it an offence to disclose certain information relating to an approved funded decommissioning programme and s 60 makes it an offence to knowingly or recklessly supply information which is false or misleading in a material respect. No proceeding for an offence under Ch 1 (ss 45-68), including an offence created by regulations under s 54, may be instituted except by the Secretary of State or the Director of Public Prosecutions: s 61. Under s 62, the Secretary of State may modify s 45 so that it applies to persons who apply for a nuclear site licence of a specified description. The Secretary of State may require the Health and Safety Executive or the Environment Agency to assist him in discharging his duties under Ch 1: s 63. Section 64 provides that the obligations on an operator or former operator under a decommissioning programme remain until the Secretary of State explicitly releases it from its obligations, even if it no longer holds a site licence. Section 65 makes it an offence to install or operate a nuclear installation without a site licence issued by Health and Safety Executive. Where the Secretary of State enters into an agreement for the disposal of relevant hazardous material which is the subject of a funded decommissioning programme, the agreement may provide for a fee to be paid to the Secretary of State: s 66. Provision is made by s 67 for determining whether one body corporate is associated with another. Section 68 provides for interpretation.

Chapter 2 (ss 69-71) Offshore renewables installations

Section 69 allows the Secretary of State to serve a decommissioning notice on an associate of a developer requiring the associate to submit a decommissioning programme, where the Secretary of State is not satisfied that adequate arrangements have been made by the developer. Provision is made by s 70 to protect funds set aside for carrying out of approved decommissioning programmes or for compliance with the conditions of their approval, in particular by disapplying insolvency legislation, and to enable the Secretary of State to direct the publication of specified information regarding that protection. Section 71 empowers the Secretary of State to require persons who are, or may in future be, subject to decommissioning obligations to provide certain information or documents to assist the Secretary of State in exercising functions relating to offshore renewables installations.

Chapter 3 (ss 72-74) Oil and gas installations

Section 72 extends the range of persons who may be given a notice to submit a programme relating to the abandonment of an offshore installation or submarine pipeline, and ensuring that persons who have not been entitled to derive benefits from a certain particular installation are not subject to a decommissioning obligation. Section 73 clarifies the information which may be required to satisfy the Secretary of State of a person's ability to fund its abandonment obligations, or potential obligations. Provision is made by s 74 to protect funds set aside for the purposes of abandonment programme, in particular by disapplying insolvency legislation, and to enable the Secretary of State to direct the publication of specified information regarding that protection.

Chapter 4 (s 75) Wells

Section 75 empowers the Secretary of State to require a person who has drilled or started drilling a well pursuant to a petroleum licence or a gas storage and unloading licence to provide information about that person's financial affairs within a specified period of time, allows the Secretary of State to require the person to take specified action, and provides for offences for non-compliance.

Part 4 (ss 76-82) Petroleum licensing

Section 76 provides that the Secretary of State may direct that the right or benefit in a petroleum licence which has been transferred without the Secretary of State's consent must revert back to the transferor and allows the Commissioners for Her Majesty's Revenue and Customs to disclose to the Secretary of State information relating to the transfer of rights granted under petroleum licences. Model clauses of petroleum licences are amended by s 77 and Sch 3. Section 78 makes provision to extend the scope of the regulatory regime by which third parties may obtain access to existing oil and gas transporting and processing infrastructure. Section 79 provides for compulsory modifications to the oil and gas transporting and processing infrastructure by way of notice and enforcement of such a notice. Provision is made by s 80 for a process of dispute resolution for third party access to oil processing facilities. The terms of the directions for third party access that may be made by the Secretary of State are dealt with by s 81 and, in relation to such third party access, provision for determining whether one body corporate is associated with another is made by s 82.

Part 5 (ss 83-102) Miscellaneous

Section 83 extends the primary objective of the Secretary of State and GEMA in their functions relating to the supply of gas through pipes from the interests of existing consumers to the interests of both existing and future consumers, and require the Secretary of State and GEMA to have regard to the need to contribute to the achievement of sustainable development. Section 84 empowers the Secretary of State, for the purpose of facilitating access to and/or efficient use of a transmission system in Great Britain or offshore waters, to modify a particular electricity generation, transmission, distribution or supply licence, standard licence conditions of those types of electricity licence, and documents maintained under the licence conditions of relevant electricity licences. Procedural provisions relating to the exercise those modification powers are set out in s 85 and supplementary provisions are set out in s 86. Section 87 makes provision relating to the Secretary of State's annual reports on progress towards sustainable energy aims. Section 88 empowers the Secretary of State to make specified modifications to gas and electricity licences so as to require licence holders to provide or install, or facilitate the provision, installation or operation of, a particular kind of meter. Procedural provisions relating to the exercise those modification powers are set out in s 89 and supplementary provisions are set out in s 90. Section 91 introduces Sch 4, which makes provision relating to the licensing of activities connected with the provision, installation or operation of prescribed types of gas or electricity meters. Section 92 transfers the functions of GEMA under specified gas meter legislation to the Secretary of State and s 93 makes consequential amendments. Section 94 empowers the Secretary of State, after consultation with licence holders, GEMA and any other appropriate persons, to modify the conditions of gas transporter licences. Section 95 transfers the functions of GEMA under specified gas meter legislation to the Secretary of State and s 96 makes consequential amendments. Section 97 empowers the Secretary of State, after consultation with licence holders, GEMA and any other appropriate persons, to modify the conditions of electricity transmission and distribution licences. Section 98 allows regulations to entitle an electricity distributor required to connect a person to the electricity distribution network to charge that person reasonable connection offer expenses. Provision is made by s 99 transferring responsibility for electricity safety standards, including inspection and enforcement, from the Secretary of State to the Health and Safety Executive. The Secretary of State may establish a scheme to facilitate and encourage renewable generation of heat: s 100. Section 101 deems places where equipment, software or information relating to the enrichment of uranium is held as 'prohibited places', so as to extend to those places offences and penalties under official secrets legislation. The Secretary of State's principal objectives and general duties set out in the Gas Act 1986 ss 4AA-4B and the Electricity Act 1989 ss 3A-3D apply when the Secretary of State is exercising his modification powers under the 2008 Act ss 41-43, 84-86, 88-90, 94 and 97: s 102.

Part 6 (ss 103-113) General

Section 103 provides that where an offence has been committed under the Act by a body corporate with the consent or connivance of an officer of that body corporate, that officer is also guilty of the offence. Section 104 provides for the making of Orders in Council, orders or regulations and s 105 provides for the Parliamentary annulment and approval of such instruments. Section 106 deals with interpretation, and ss 107, 108, Schs 5, 6 provide for amendments and repeals. Section 109 makes provision for transitional or savings provisions.

Section 110 deals with commencement, s 111 with financial provision, s 112 with extent and s 113 with short title.

1. INTRODUCTION

(1) GENERAL FUNCTIONS OF THE SECRETARY OF STATE

(i) In general

601. Powers, duties and functions within the scope of the title.

The powers, duties and functions of the Secretary of State¹ with which this title is concerned are his powers, duties and functions under the domestic legislation relating to:

- 1 (1) energy conservation and control²;
- 2 (2) climate change and sustainable energy³;
- 3 (3) the regulation of the gas and electricity industries, both generally⁴ and in relation to each of those industries in particular⁵;
- 4 (4) the offshore production of renewable energy⁶;
- 5 (5) the imposition of renewable transport fuel obligations⁷;
- 6 (6) nuclear energy and radioactive substances⁸; and
- 7 (7) petroleum production⁹.

With some exceptions¹⁰, functions relating to fuel and energy are not transferred so as to be exercisable in relation to Wales by the Welsh Ministers.

The Secretary of State is also the competent authority¹¹ for the purpose of making regulations implementing European Directives relating to fuel and energy¹².

Certain functions previously carried out by the Secretary of State with regard to energy and technology innovation have been transferred to the Technology Strategy Board, which was established as a research council on 1 April 2007¹³.

1 In any enactment, 'Secretary of State' means one of Her Majesty's principal secretaries of state: see the Interpretation Act 1978 s 5, Sch 1. In this title, unless the context otherwise requires, the Secretary of State referred to is generally to be taken to be the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform (formerly the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry). At the date at which this title states the law, however, certain functions relating to climate change, radioactive materials and waste and the control of pollution were the responsibility of the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs; health and safety matters in the workplace were the responsibility of the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions; certain planning matters were the responsibility of the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government; and the Treasury had certain responsibilities in connection with public procurement under the Utilities Contracts Regulations 2006/6, and in connection with information regarding licences under the Petroleum Act 1998. As to the office of Secretary of State see CONSTITUTIONAL LAW AND HUMAN RIGHTS vol 8(2) (Reissue) PARA 355; and for current ministerial responsibilities see the websites of the government departments concerned and the Civil Service Yearbook.

Pursuant to the establishment of the Welsh Assembly Government under the Government of Wales Act 2006 Pt 2 (ss 45-92) (see CONSTITUTIONAL LAW AND HUMAN RIGHTS), certain statutory functions relating to fuel and energy, including functions under subordinate legislation, so far as exercisable in relation to Wales, are now the responsibility of Welsh Ministers (ie the First Minister and the Welsh Ministers established under ss 46, 48: see s 45(2); and CONSTITUTIONAL LAW AND HUMAN RIGHTS). These functions were previously transferred to the National Assembly for Wales by Order in Council under the Government of Wales Act 1998 s 22 (now repealed) (see the National Assembly for Wales (Transfer of Functions) Order 1999, SI 1999/672, arts 2, 3, Sch 1 (as amended); the National Assembly for Wales (Transfer of Functions) Order 2005, SI 2005/1958); or, in the case of functions conferred under enactments subsequent to the Government of Wales Act 1998, by virtue of particular provision made under those enactments: see the Government of Wales Act 2006 s 162(1), Sch 11 para 30; and CONSTITUTIONAL LAW AND HUMAN RIGHTS. Further transfers of Ministerial functions to the Welsh Ministers may be effected by Order in Council pursuant to s 58, Sch 3 paras 1-8. As to the exercise of transferred functions and the bringing of subordinate legislation made by the Welsh Ministers before the National Assembly for Wales see Sch 11 paras 33-35 (in the case of functions transferred to the Assembly by Order in Council under the Government of Wales Act 1998 s 22 (now repealed)) or the Government of Wales Act 2006 Sch 3 para 9 (in the case of functions transferred to the Welsh Ministers by Order in Council under s 58); and CONSTITUTIONAL LAW AND HUMAN RIGHTS. By virtue of these transfers functions under the following enactments (to the extent that they are recorded in this title) are conferred on the Welsh Ministers in so far as they are exercisable in relation to Wales, subject (where applicable) to the limitations noted: (1) the Official Secrets Act 1989 in respect of the power to prescribe persons or classes of member or employee for the purposes of s 12(1)(f) (see PARA 1574 post) so far as exercisable in respect of bodies in relation to which the Assembly exercises or the Welsh Ministers exercise functions; (2) the Radioactive Substances Act 1993 (see PARA 1439 et seq post) except s 1(5) (see PARA 1439 post), s 8(6) (see PARA 1440 post), s 11(1) (see PARA 1446 post), s 15 (as amended) (see PARA 1450 post) and s 25 (as amended) (see PARA 1572 post); (3) the Gas Act 1995 Sch 5 para 12 (power to modify certain provisions with regard to rating); (4) the Pollution Prevention and Control Act 1999 s 2, except in relation to offshore oil and gas exploration and exploitation (see PARA 1694 post; and ENVIRONMENTAL QUALITY AND PUBLIC HEALTH vol 45 (2010) PARA 186 note 2). Additionally: (a) the functions of the Secretary of State under the Radioactive Substances Act 1993 ss 25, 39 (as amended) (see PARAS 1567, 1572 post) are exercisable by the Welsh Ministers concurrently with the Secretary of State; (b) where the power to prescribe persons or classes of member or employee for the purposes of the Official Secrets Act 1989 s 12(1)(f) is exercisable in respect of bodies or offices in relation to which both the Assembly or the Welsh Ministers and a Minister of the Crown exercise functions, that prescribing function is exercisable concurrently with the Secretary of State; (c) certain functions with regard to certificates in respect of planning permission and licences to abstract water which are required under the Gas Act 1965 are exercisable either by the Welsh Ministers or by those ministers and the appropriate Secretary of State jointly (see PARAS 1011-1012 post).

Fuel and energy law does not generally fall within the legislative competence of the Assembly; but an Act of the Assembly may make provision with regard to the encouragement of energy efficiency otherwise than by prohibition or regulation, only so far as relating to Wales: see the Government of Wales Act 2006 s 108, Sch 7 Pt 1 para 4 (amended by the National Assembly for Wales (Legislative Competence) (Amendment of Schedule 7 to the Government of Wales Act 2006) Order 2007, SI 2007/2143, art 4).

UPDATE

601 Powers, duties and functions within the scope of the title

NOTE 1--The functions of the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform have been transferred to the Secretary of State for Business, Innovation and Skills: see the Secretary of State for Business, Innovation and Skills Order 2009, SI 2009/2748.

Halsbury's Laws of England/FUEL AND ENERGY (VOLUME 19(1) (2007 REISSUE) PARAS 601-775; VOLUME 19(2) (2007 REISSUE) PARAS 776-1328); VOLUME 19(3) (2007 REISSUE) PARAS 1329-1927)/1. INTRODUCTION/(1) GENERAL FUNCTIONS OF THE SECRETARY OF STATE/(i) In general/602. Power to impose charges to fund energy functions.

602. Power to impose charges to fund energy functions.

The Secretary of State¹ may by regulations² make provision requiring the payment to him of charges in respect of any of the following:

- 8 (1) services or facilities provided or made available by him in the carrying out of his relevant energy functions³;
- 9 (2) the consideration or supervision⁴ by him, for purposes connected with the carrying out of any of those functions, of any matter;
- 10 (3) the issue by him, in the carrying out of those functions, of a licence⁵;
- 11 (4) the doing of anything else which is done by him in the carrying out of any of those functions or for purposes which are incidental to, or otherwise connected with, the carrying out of any of those functions⁶.

The matters in respect of which charges may be imposed under these provisions include:

- 12 (a) the performance of a duty imposed on the Secretary of State; and
- 13 (b) things done in relation to, or to activities carried on in, the territorial sea adjacent to the United Kingdom⁷ or a designated⁸ area⁹; and the persons who may be made liable for charges imposed by such regulations are:

- 14 (i) any of the persons to whom, or on whose application¹⁰, the service or facility in question is provided or made available;
- 15 (ii) any of the persons on whose application the matter in question is considered, or to whom that matter relates;
- 16 (iii) any of the persons whose activities are supervised;
- 17 (iv) any of the persons to whom, or on whose application, the licence in question is issued;
- 18 (v) any of the persons on whose application the other thing is done¹¹.

In exercising his powers under these provisions to fix the amount of the charge to be paid by a person of a particular description, the Secretary of State may fix any amount that appears to him to be appropriate having regard to the costs that the Secretary of State is likely to incur in the carrying out in relation to persons of that description, or in a manner that benefits persons of that description, of the relevant energy functions in respect of which the charge is imposed¹².

The provision that may be made by such regulations includes provision:

- 19 (A) specifying the times at which charges imposed under such regulations become due;
- 20 (B) specifying the manner in which they are to be paid; and
- 21 (C) for charges that must be paid periodically in respect of any matter¹³.

The power to make regulations under the above provisions is in addition to every other power to impose charges in connection with the carrying out by the Secretary of State of his relevant energy functions and is to be disregarded in construing those other powers¹⁴.

The Secretary of State must pay sums received by him by virtue of such regulations into the Consolidated Fund¹⁵.

1 As to the Secretary of State see PARA 601 note 1 ante.

2 Regulations so made are subject to the negative resolution procedure: Energy Act 2004 s 188(6). Every power conferred by the Energy Act 2004 on the Secretary of State or the Treasury to make an order or regulations is a power exercisable by statutory instrument: s 192(1). Where (1) that Act provides for an Order in Council, order or regulations to be subject to the negative resolution procedure; and (2) a draft of the Order in Council, order or regulations has not been required, in accordance with s 192(3) (see PARA 754 note 17 post) or any other enactment, to be laid before Parliament and approved by a resolution of each House, or by a resolution of the House of Commons, the statutory instrument containing the Order in Council, order or regulations is subject to annulment in pursuance of a resolution of either House of Parliament: ss 192(2), 196(1). Subject to s 192(5), every power under that Act to make an Order in Council and every power conferred by that Act on the Secretary of State or the Treasury to make an order or regulations includes power (a) to make different provision for different cases (including different provision in respect of different areas); (b) to make provision subject to such exemptions and exceptions as the person exercising the power thinks fit; and (c) to make such incidental, supplemental, consequential and transitional provision as that person thinks fit: s 192(4). Section 192(4) does not apply to (i) the Secretary of State's power to make an order under s 39(3) (see PARA 1414 post); (ii) the power to make an Order in Council under s 84(4) (see PARA 1310 post); or (iii) so much of the Secretary of State's power to make an order under s 198 (power to make commencement orders) as is exercisable otherwise than by virtue of s 179(4), (5) (commencement orders for certain amendments to the Electricity Act 1989): Energy Act 2004 s 192(5).

3 The references in ibid s 188 to the Secretary of State's relevant energy functions are references to the powers and duties of the Secretary of State by or under any of the following: (1) the Pipe-lines Act 1962; (2) so much of the Prevention of Oil Pollution Act 1971 as has effect in connection with anything specified in the Energy Act 2004 s 188(8); (3) the Energy Act 1976 (see PARAS 603 et seq, 1216-1218 post); (4) so much of the Food and Environment Protection Act 1985 Pt II (ss 5-15) (as amended) (deposits in the sea: see SHIPPING AND MARITIME LAW) as has effect in connection with anything so specified; (5) the Gas Act 1986 (see PARA 789 et seq post); (6) the Electricity Act 1989 (see PARA 1041 et seq post); (7) the Gas Act 1995 (see PARAS 805, 834 post); (8) the Petroleum Act 1998 (see PARA 1626 et seq post); (9) so much of the Pollution Prevention and Control Act 1999 (see PARA 1694 post) as has effect in connection with anything specified in the Energy Act 2004 s 188(8); (9) Pt 2 Schs 2, 3 (ss 84-114) (see PARA 1310 et seq post); (10) Pt 3 Chs 2-4 (ss 145-187) (see PARAS 706, 733 et seq, 743 et seq, 806, 810, 1065 note 9, 1069 post); (11) so much of any Community instrument as has effect in connection with anything specified in s 188(8): s 188(7).

INTRODUCTION/(1) GENERAL FUNCTIONS OF THE SECRETARY OF STATE/(ii) Energy Conservation and Control Powers under the Energy Act 1976/A. PERMANENT AND RESERVE POWERS FOR ENERGY CONSERVATION AND CONTROL/603. General control by order; general duty.

(ii) Energy Conservation and Control Powers under the Energy Act 1976

A. PERMANENT AND RESERVE POWERS FOR ENERGY CONSERVATION AND CONTROL

603. General control by order; general duty.

The Secretary of State¹ may by order² provide for regulating or prohibiting the production, supply, acquisition or use of:

- 22 (1) crude liquid petroleum, natural gas³ and petroleum products⁴;
- 23 (2) any substance, whether solid, liquid or gaseous, not falling within head (1) above but used as fuel, whether for the propulsion of vehicles or for any other purposes; and
- 24 (3) electricity⁵.

Such orders regulating or prohibiting the use of any of those substances, or of electricity, may be made at any time but only where it appears to the Secretary of State to be desirable for the purpose of conserving energy⁶. Before so making an order, the Secretary of State must consult with organisations in the United Kingdom⁷ appearing to him to represent those who will be affected by the order, including both consumers and suppliers of energy, and such other organisations as he thinks appropriate⁸.

Orders regulating or prohibiting the production, supply or acquisition of any of those substances, or of electricity, may only be made when an Order in Council⁹ is in force declaring those powers exercisable to their fullest extent¹⁰. Where such an Order in Council is in force, orders for regulating or prohibiting the use of those substances, or the use of electricity, may be made without consultation¹¹.

The Secretary of State may also by order provide for regulating the price at which crude liquid petroleum, natural gas or petroleum products may be supplied¹². This power is exercisable at any time in the case of petroleum products, but otherwise is exercisable only when such an Order in Council is in force¹³.

A power under the above provisions may be exercised in relation to anything which is wholly or partly situated in, or to activity wholly or partly in, the United Kingdom, the territorial sea¹⁴ of the United Kingdom, or a designated¹⁵ area¹⁶.

The Secretary of State is also charged with the general duty of securing the effective and co-ordinated development of coal, petroleum¹⁷ and other minerals and sources of fuel and power in Great Britain¹⁸, and of promoting economy and efficiency in the supply, distribution, use and consumption of fuel and power, whether produced in Great Britain or not¹⁹.

1 As to the Secretary of State see PARA 601 note 1 ante.

2 Orders under the Energy Act 1976 must be made by statutory instrument and (except in the case of Orders in Council under s 3 (see PARA 605 post) and orders under s 9 (as substituted and amended: see PARA 981 post) or s 23(2) (commencement)) are subject to annulment in pursuance of a resolution of either House of Parliament: s 17(1) (amended by the Oil and Gas (Enterprise) Act 1982 s 37, Sch 3 para 37(2)). Powers to make an order, including such an Order in Council, include power to revoke or vary the order and to make any incidental, supplementary or transitional provision which appears to the Secretary of State or, as the case may be, to Her Majesty in Council, to be appropriate: Energy Act 1976 s 17(2), (3). Any such order may (1) apply to persons, premises or undertakings generally, or to classes of persons, premises or undertakings, or to particular persons, premises, or undertakings, and may so apply either in all areas or in specified areas; and (2) provide for exempting persons, premises or undertakings, or any class of any of them, from the requirements of the order, either unconditionally or subject to conditions and with or without a limit in time, and for any such exemption to be varied or revoked: s 17(4). For these purposes, 'undertaking' includes a business, and also any activity carried on by a body of persons, whether corporate or unincorporate: s 21. Prima facie evidence of any such exemption relating to a class of persons, premises or undertakings, or of the variation or revocation of such an exemption, may be given in any legal proceedings, including arbitrations, by the production of a copy of the London, Edinburgh or Belfast Gazette purporting to contain such an exemption, variation or revocation: s 18(1), Sch 2 para 8(3)(b), (c).

3 'Natural gas' means any gas derived from natural strata: ibid s 21.

4 'Petroleum products' means the following substances produced directly or indirectly from crude, that is to say, fuels, lubricants, bitumen, wax, industrial spirits and any wide-range substance (ie a substance whose final boiling point at normal atmospheric pressure is more than 50°C higher than its initial boiling point): ibid s 21.

5 Ibid s 1(1). The Liquid and Gaseous Fuel (Designated Filling Stations and Fuel Depots) (No 5) (Revocation) Order 2000, SI 2000/2676, which revokes the Liquid and Gaseous Fuel (Designated Filling Stations and Fuel Depots) (No 5) Order 2000, SI 2000/2535, was made under the Energy Act 1976 s 1(1). In addition, by virtue of s 22, Sch 4 Pt III, the following orders have effect as if so made: (1) the Fuel and Electricity (Heating) (Control) Order 1974, SI 1974/2160 (amended by SI 1980/1013); and (2) the Fuel and Electricity (Heating) (Control) (Northern Ireland) Order 1975, SI 1975/62 (amended by SI 1980/1253). As to administration and enforcement see PARA 609 et seq post.

Unless any enactment requires the heating of any premises or any part of them to be maintained at a specific temperature or at a specific minimum temperature, no electricity or fuel may be used for the purpose of heating premises so as to cause their temperature to exceed 19°C: see the Fuel and Electricity (Heating) (Control) Order 1974, SI 1974/2160, art 3(1) (amended by SI 1980/1013). This does not, however, apply to the use of electricity or fuel for the purpose of heating any part of any premises (1) used as living accommodation, unless the heating of that part cannot be controlled separately from the heating of those parts which are not so used; (2) used as a sauna bath, turkish bath or swimming pool; (3) to the extent that such heating is necessary (a) for the maintenance of the health or well being of any person on the premises who is ill, disabled, infirm, pregnant, under the age of five or over the age of 60 years; (b) in the course of any industrial process, in the preparation of food, for purposes of research or for agricultural purposes; (c) to prevent damage or deterioration to food, goods, material or growing crops or to prevent damage to or impairment of the functioning of any apparatus or equipment on the premises which is sensitive to changes of temperature or humidity; or (d) for preserving the health of any animal or bird on the premises; or (4) in respect of which a licence has been granted by the Secretary of State: Fuel and Electricity (Heating) (Control) Order 1974, SI 1974/2160, art 3(2). A licence so granted may be subject to conditions and may be revoked without prior notice: art 4. It is a defence for a person who contravenes or fails to comply with any of these provisions to prove that he used all due diligence to secure compliance with that provision: art 5. 'Fuel' means any substance, whether solid, liquid or gaseous, used as a fuel: art 2(1).

7 For the meaning of 'United Kingdom' see PARA 602 note 7 ante.

8 See the Energy Act 1976 s 1(3). Any administrative expenses incurred by a government department in consequence of the Energy Act 1976 must be paid out of money provided by Parliament: s 20(1).

9 Ie under ibid s 3: see PARA 605 post.

10 Ibid s 1(2).

11 See ibid s 1(2).

12 Ibid s 1(4).

13 Ibid s 1(4). At the date at which this title states the law, no such order had been made and none had effect as if so made. As to enforcement of such orders see PARA 611 post.

14 As to the territorial sea of the United Kingdom see WATER AND WATERWAYS vol 100 (2009) PARA 31 note 3.

15 Is an area designated under the Continental Shelf Act 1964 s 1(7) (as amended): see PARA 1636 post.

16 Energy Act 1976 s 5(1) (added by the Civil Contingencies Act 2004 s 32(1), Sch 2 Pt 3 para 14). This is without prejudice to the Energy Act 1976 s 2(2)(b) (see PARA 604 the text and notes 14-15 post): s 5(2) (as so added). Section 5 (as originally enacted) was repealed by the Competition Act 1998 s 74(1), (3), Sch 12 para 2, Sch 14 Pt I.

17 For these purposes, 'coal' and 'petroleum' respectively include products of coal and products of petroleum: Ministry of Fuel and Power Act 1945 s 6(1).

18 The general duty of securing the effective and co-ordinated development of such resources in Great Britain extends to any such resources outside Great Britain with respect to which rights are exercisable by the United Kingdom outside territorial waters with respect to the sea bed and subsoil and their natural resources: see the Continental Shelf Act 1964 s 1(1), (6).

19 Ministry of Fuel and Power Act 1945 s 1(1) (amended by the Ministry of Fuel and Power Act 1945 (Repeal) Regulations 1974, SI 1974/2012, reg 2).

PERMANENT AND RESERVE POWERS FOR ENERGY CONSERVATION AND CONTROL/604. Reserve power to control by government directions.

604. Reserve power to control by government directions.

When an Order in Council is in force¹ declaring the following powers exercisable to their fullest extent, the Secretary of State² may give directions³ to any person⁴ carrying on an undertaking⁵:

- 25 (1) in the course of which he produces any crude liquid petroleum, natural gas⁶, petroleum products⁷ or other substance used as fuel⁸, as to the production and use of that substance⁹;
- 26 (2) in the course of which he supplies any such substance, as to the supply by him of that substance¹⁰; and
- 27 (3) which involves the use of any such substance, as to the use by him of that substance for the purposes of the undertaking¹¹.

In particular, and without prejudice to the generality of heads (1) to (3) above, a direction:

- 28 (a) under head (1) above may prohibit or restrict the use of any material for the production of any relevant substance¹² and may extend to the disposal of stocks of such a substance or of any such material¹³;
- 29 (b) under head (2) above may:
 - 1 (i) prohibit or restrict the supply anywhere in the world of any such substance to specified¹⁴ persons; and

- 30 (c) under head (3) above may prohibit or restrict the use of any such substance for specified purposes or during specified periods¹⁶.

These provisions, except head (b)(ii) above so far as it relates to requirements as to price, apply in relation to electricity as they apply in relation to the relevant substances¹⁷.

Without prejudice to head (b) in the text, a power under the above provisions may be exercised in relation to anything which is wholly or partly situated in, or to activity wholly or partly in, the United Kingdom, the territorial sea¹⁸ of the United Kingdom, or a designated¹⁹ area²⁰.

PERMANENT AND RESERVE POWERS FOR ENERGY CONSERVATION AND CONTROL/605. Implementation of reserve powers.

605. Implementation of reserve powers.

Her Majesty may by Order in Council declare the powers of control by order¹ and government directions² exercisable to their full extent because either:

- 31 (1) they are required for the implementation of certain European Union or international obligations of the United Kingdom³; or
- 32 (2) there exists or is imminent in the United Kingdom an actual or threatened emergency affecting fuel or electricity supplies which makes it necessary in Her Majesty's opinion that the government should temporarily have at its disposal exceptional powers for controlling the sources and availability of energy⁴.

Any such Order in Council must be laid before Parliament after it is made⁵.

If it is made by virtue of head (2) above, any such Order in Council ceases to be in force on the expiration of the period of 28 days⁶ beginning on the date on which it was made, unless before the end of that period it is approved by resolution of each House of Parliament⁷; and it ceases to be in force at the end of the 12 months beginning with the date on which it was made, unless before then both Houses of Parliament have resolved that it be continued for a further period of 12 months⁸. It may be continued in force more than once⁹.

An Order in Council made under head (1) or head (2) above may in any case be revoked by a subsequent Order in Council declaring Her Majesty's opinion that the circumstances which led to the making of the earlier Order no longer obtain¹⁰.

A power under the above provisions may be exercised in relation to anything which is wholly or partly situated in, or to activity wholly or partly in, the United Kingdom, the territorial sea¹¹ of the United Kingdom, or a designated¹² area¹³.

1 Ie the powers of the Energy Act 1976 s 1: see PARA 603 ante.

An Order in Council made in these circumstances must be laid before Parliament but is not subject to any form of parliamentary procedure: see the text to note 5 infra. See also PARA 603 note 2 ante. 'International Energy Agency' and 'International Energy Agreement' mean, respectively, the body established by the Decision of the Council of the Organisation for Economic Co-operation and Development on 15 November 1974 and the Agreement on an International Energy Program signed at Paris on 18 November 1974 (TS 111 (1976); Cmnds 5826, 6697) (see PARA 1632 post): Energy Act 1976 s 21. Where an Order in Council under s 3 ceases to be in force by virtue of any provision of s 3, the Interpretation Act 1978 s 16(1) (effect of repeals) applies as if the provisions of the Energy Act 1976 which then cease to have effect or become limited in their effect had been repealed, or repealed pro tanto, by another Act; and the cesser does not prejudice the making of a new Order in Council under s 3: s 17(6); Interpretation Act 1978 s 17(2)(a).

9 Energy Act 1976 s 3(5). On each occasion after the first, s 3(4) applies with the substitution for the period of 12 months there specified of a period of 12 months beginning with the date on which, but for the resolutions of Parliament, the Order in Council would have ceased to be in force: s 3(5).

606. Other powers of control.

A person¹ supplying or using any crude liquid petroleum, natural gas², petroleum products³ or other substance used as fuel⁴, if authorised to do so by the Secretary of State⁵ by any general or special authority granted for the purpose, and while acting in accordance with that authority, may disregard or fall short in discharging any obligation imposed by or under an enactment⁶, or any contractual obligation, relating to or involving the supply or use of that substance⁷. This provision has effect, however, only when an Order in Council is in force⁸ declaring the powers of control by order⁹ and government directions¹⁰ exercisable to their full extent¹¹.

At any time when such an Order in Council is in force, the Secretary of State may grant, or enable any person to grant on his behalf, a general or special authority relaxing road traffic and transport law¹².

Her Majesty may by Order in Council make provision for modifying or excluding any obligation or restriction imposed, or extending any power conferred, by or under an enactment which directly or indirectly affects the use of a substance mentioned above¹³. If the powers of control by order and government directions have been declared¹⁴ exercisable to their full extent, then this power also extends to the supply of those substances¹⁵.

These provisions also apply in relation to electricity¹⁶.

B. MAINTENANCE OF FUEL RESERVES; PROMOTING FUEL ECONOMY

607. Bulk stocks of petroleum etc.

Directions¹ may be given to any person² who in the course of an undertaking³ carried on by him produces, supplies or uses crude liquid petroleum or petroleum products⁴. The Secretary of State⁵ may direct any such person to make such arrangements with respect to his United Kingdom⁶ stocks of crude liquid petroleum or of petroleum products as will enable those stocks to be brought within a specified⁷ time to, and thereafter maintained at, a specified level and ensure that they do not fall below that level, except as may be permitted by the terms of the direction or by authority of the Secretary of State⁸. In the case of any such person who is a substantial supplier to the United Kingdom market, the Secretary of State may direct him to create such stocks and make such arrangements with respect to them⁹.

Before giving such a direction the Secretary of State must notify the substance of it to the person to whom he proposes to give it and must afford him a reasonable opportunity to make representations¹⁰. In giving such directions, the Secretary of State must have regard in particular to:

- 33 (1) the quantities of crude liquid petroleum, or of petroleum products, which have been supplied by the undertaking to the United Kingdom market in past periods; and
- 34 (2) the extent to which crude liquid petroleum and petroleum products produced or supplied by the undertaking are, or will be, indigenous¹¹.

Proceedings for an offence of contravening or failing to comply with any such direction may be instituted only by, or with the consent of, the Secretary of State or the Director of Public Prosecutions¹².

1 As to the giving of directions generally see PARA 604 note 3 ante.

2 As to the meaning of 'person' see PARA 604 note 4 ante.

3 For the meaning of 'undertaking' see PARA 603 note 2 ante.

5 As to the Secretary of State see PARA 601 note 1 ante.

6 For the meaning of 'United Kingdom' see PARA 602 note 7 ante.

7 'Specified' means specified by the Secretary of State's direction; and the Secretary of State may by order prescribe, as respects the effect of, and compliance with, such directions: (1) the cases and circumstances in which stocks (in the United Kingdom or elsewhere) are to be treated, in relation to any person, as his United Kingdom stocks, and those in which a person is to be treated as a substantial supplier to the United Kingdom market; (2) the extent to which stocks of a particular kind are to count towards compliance with a direction specifying stocks of another kind; and (3) the method by which quantities are to be measured for different purposes: Energy Act 1976 s 6(6). As to the making of orders generally see PARA 603 note 2 ante. In exercise of the power so conferred, the Secretary of State has made the Petroleum Stocks Order 1976, SI 1976/2162

(amended by SI 1982/968; SI 1983/909). Stocks of crude liquid petroleum and petroleum products (in the United Kingdom or elsewhere) are to be treated in relation to any person to whom a direction under the Energy Act 1976 s 6 is given as his United Kingdom stocks in the following circumstances, that is to say where they are held for his use or disposal and are (a) within the United Kingdom but are not (i) kept for sale to the general public by delivery into the fuel tanks of vehicles; (ii) in ships (except qualified cargoes) or in other vehicles, pipelines or refinery plant; or (b) outside the United Kingdom in the territory of another member state under an agreement made between the United Kingdom and that member state for the purpose of implementing EEC Council Directive 68/414 (OJ L308, 22.12.68, p 14) imposing an obligation on member states to maintain minimum stocks of crude oil and/or petroleum products (repealed: see now EC Council Directive 2006/67 (OJ L217, 8.8.2006, p 8); and PARA 1631 post): Petroleum Stocks Order 1976, SI 1976/2162, art 2(1). For these purposes, 'qualified cargo' means any cargo of crude liquid petroleum or petroleum products in a ship (A) within the limits of a port appointed by the Commissioners for Revenue and Customs under the Customs and Excise Management Act 1979 s 19 which may immediately be lawfully landed; (B) engaged in the trade of carrying goods within the United Kingdom; or which is a coasting ship within the meaning of s 69 (as amended); and 'ship' includes any boat or other vessel whatsoever: Petroleum Stocks Order 1976, SI 1976/2162, art 2(2); Interpretation Act 1978 s 17(2).

8 Energy Act 1976 s 6(2)(a). A direction so given may require a specified portion of a person's stocks to be held in Northern Ireland: s 6(4).

9 Ibid s 6(2)(b). See also note 8 supra. A person who in the course of an undertaking carried on by him supplies petroleum products to persons for use by them as finished products is to be treated as a substantial supplier to the United Kingdom market for these purposes if he has, during any period of 12 months ending not earlier than three months before the giving of a direction to him under s 6(2)(b), supplied to persons (other than companies associated with the supplier in the same group) in the United Kingdom for such use there a total quantity of petroleum products which, together with the total quantity so used in that period by him, or if the supplier is a company by that company and any company associated with it in the same group, exceeds 50,000 tonnes: Petroleum Stocks Order 1976, SI 1976/2612, art 3(1) (amended by SI 1983/909). For these purposes, companies are associated together in the same group if one is a subsidiary of the other or both are subsidiaries of a third ('subsidiary' having the same meaning as in the Companies Act 1985 (see s 736 (as substituted; prospectively repealed by the Companies Act 2006 s 1295, Sch 16, and replaced by s 1159, as from a day to be appointed under s 1300(2); at the date at which this title states the law, no such day had been appointed); and COMPANIES vol 14 (2009) PARA 25): Petroleum Stocks Order 1976, SI 1976/2612, art 3(2); Interpretation Act 1978 s 17(2).

10 Energy Act 1976 s 6(5).

11 Ibid s 6(3). 'Indigenous' in relation to crude liquid petroleum, means won under the authority of licences granted under United Kingdom legislation, and in relation to petroleum products means produced in the United Kingdom from indigenous crude: s 6(3). 'United Kingdom legislation' includes any enactment for the time being in force in any part of the United Kingdom: s 21. As to petroleum production generally see PARA 1625 et seq post.

This power is discussed elsewhere in this work³.

C. ADMINISTRATION AND ENFORCEMENT

609. Power to obtain information and call for documents.

The Secretary of State¹ may direct² any person³ carrying on an undertaking⁴ to keep such books, accounts and records relating to crude liquid petroleum, natural gas⁵, petroleum products⁶ or other substance used as fuel⁷, or to electricity, as may be specified⁸. He may also direct any such person to furnish, as and when specified, (1) estimates, forecasts, returns and information relating to such a substance, or to electricity; and (2) information and forecasts relating to the undertaking itself or to its activities, including the way in which the undertaking is organised and administered and the character and extent of its operation⁹. All these powers are exercisable by the Secretary of State where it appears to him expedient for the purpose of implementing certain international obligations of the United Kingdom¹⁰. The powers to direct the keeping of books, accounts and records¹¹ and the furnishing of estimates, forecasts and returns¹² are also exercisable where it appears to him expedient for any purpose connected with the operation of the Energy Act 1976 or the effective performance by him of his functions thereunder¹³.

For the purpose of securing compliance with any statutory provision¹⁴ and of checking estimates and forecasts or verifying returns and information provided in response to such directions, a person authorised by or on behalf of the Secretary of State has power, on production, if so required, of his authorisation, to require¹⁵:

- 35 (a) any person to produce for inspection, or to deliver up, any document in his possession or control which has been issued by or on the authority of the Secretary of State in connection with the administration and enforcement of the relevant statutory provisions¹⁶;
- 36 (b) any person with executive functions in an undertaking, or the person carrying it on, to produce documents relating to the undertaking or its operations, and allow copies or extracts to be made from them¹⁷;
- 37 (c) any such person, or one who has in the preceding five years exercised such functions, to provide further particulars as to the whereabouts, contents or subject matter of such documents¹⁸.

These provisions also have effect, with modifications, in relation to the administration and enforcement of the provisions of the Electricity Act 1989¹⁹ relating to fuel stocks at generating stations²⁰. 610. Access to premises etc; entry with warrant.

A person authorised by or on behalf of the Secretary of State¹ may, for the purpose of securing compliance with orders made and directions given by the Secretary of State² and of checking estimates and forecasts or verifying returns and information provided in response to directions³, go to any premises⁴ at all reasonable hours and on production, if so required, of his authorisation, and there make such inquiries and inspections, and purchase or take such samples of any substance, as are allowed by the terms of his authorisation or he thinks necessary for those purposes⁵. These powers are not, however, exercisable only for the purpose of securing compliance (1) with orders relating to passenger car fuel consumption⁶; or (2) with orders regulating or prohibiting the production, supply, acquisition or use of any crude liquid petroleum, natural gas⁷, petroleum products⁸ or other substance used as fuel⁹ or electricity¹⁰, unless in the latter case an Order in Council is in force¹¹ declaring those powers exercisable to their fullest extent¹².

If a justice of the peace is satisfied, on sworn information in writing submitted on behalf of the Secretary of State, that admission to premises is reasonably required for the above purposes, and that the specified circumstances¹³ are present, he may issue a warrant naming a person authorised by the Secretary of State and authorising that person to enter the premises, by force if necessary¹⁴. No such warrant may, however, be issued authorising entry for the purpose of complying with the orders mentioned in heads (1) and (2) above, unless in the latter case such an Order in Council is in force¹⁵.

A warrant continues in force until the end of one month beginning with the date on which it was issued¹⁶. A person entering premises under its authority may search them and take possession of any documents which he finds there and which appear to him to be relevant to the purposes for which the warrant was obtained¹⁷. The Secretary of State¹ may designate a local weights and measures authority for the purposes of the enforcement within its area of price controls² in relation to supplies to the general public of crude liquid petroleum, natural gas, petroleum products and certain other substances used as fuel³. If a justice of the peace is satisfied, on sworn information in writing submitted on behalf of a designated local weights and measures authority, that admission to premises⁴ is reasonably required for that purpose, and that the specified circumstances⁵ are present, he may issue a warrant authorising a duly authorised officer of the authority (naming him) to enter the premises, by force if necessary⁶. 612-613 Restrictions on disclosure of information ... Offences and penalties

Certain persons or indorsements mentioned in these paragraphs are specified for the purposes of Regulatory Enforcement and Sanctions Act 2008 s 37, Schs 5, 6 (meaning of 'regulator' for the purposes of imposing civil sanctions): see ADMINISTRATIVE LAW vol 1(1) (2001 Reissue) PARA 196A.

INTRODUCTION/(1) GENERAL FUNCTIONS OF THE SECRETARY OF STATE/(ii) Energy Conservation and Control Powers under the Energy Act 1976/C. ADMINISTRATION AND ENFORCEMENT/613. Offences and penalties.

613. Offences and penalties.

A person¹ commits an offence if:

- 43 (1) without reasonable excuse he contravenes or fails to comply with any provision made by the Energy Act 1976, or made under it by order, direction or otherwise²; or
- 44 (2) he wilfully obstructs any person exercising a power conferred, or performing a duty imposed, thereby or thereunder³; or
- 45 (3) he contravenes or fails to comply with any specified⁴ directly applicable Community obligation⁵; or
- 46 (4) in furnishing any information in purported compliance with such an obligation or for the statutory purposes⁶, or in a notice given for any of those purposes, he makes or causes to be made on his behalf a statement which he knows to be false or does not believe to be true⁷; or
- 47 (5) he has in his possession without lawful excuse a document purporting to be one issued for the statutory purposes, or for the purposes of an order made or direction given⁸, which is not such a document but so closely resembles it as to be calculated to deceive⁹.

Where such an offence committed by a body corporate is proved to have been committed with the consent or connivance of, or to be attributable to any neglect on the part of, any director, manager, secretary or other similar officer of a body corporate, or any person who was purporting to act in any such capacity, he as well as the body corporate is guilty of that offence and liable to be proceeded against and punished accordingly¹⁰.

A person guilty of any such offence is in general liable on summary conviction to a fine not exceeding level 5 on the standard scale¹¹. In certain cases¹², however, such a person may alternatively be liable on conviction on indictment to a fine¹³. Where a person contravenes, or fails to comply with (a) a direction given under the reserve power to control¹⁴; or (b) a provision of an order regulating or prohibiting the production, supply, acquisition or use of any crude liquid petroleum, natural gas¹⁵, petroleum products¹⁶ or other substance used as fuel¹⁷, or electricity¹⁸, when the order was made at a time when an Order in Council was in force¹⁹ declaring those powers exercisable to their fullest extent, he is liable on summary conviction to imprisonment for a term of not more than three months, or a fine of not more than the prescribed sum, or to both, or on conviction on indictment to imprisonment for a term of not more than two years or a fine, or to both²⁰. A person guilty of an offence under head (4) or head (5) above is also liable to such a penalty²¹.

(iii) General Functions with regard to Sustainable Energy and Reduction in Greenhouse Gas Emissions

614. Annual reports on progress towards sustainable energy aims.

The Secretary of State¹ must in each calendar year, beginning with 2004, publish a report ('a sustainable energy report') on the progress made in the reporting period² towards:

- 48 (1) cutting the United Kingdom's³ carbon emissions;
- 49 (2) maintaining the reliability of the United Kingdom's energy supplies;
- 50 (3) promoting competitive energy markets in the United Kingdom;
- 51 (4) reducing the number of people living in fuel poverty⁴ in the United Kingdom;
- and
- 52 (5) achieving the statutory target⁵ for the energy efficiency of residential accommodation in England⁶.

The report must include, in particular, all such information as the Secretary of State considers appropriate about:

- 53 (a) things done during the reporting period⁷ for the purposes of the development or the bringing into use of any of the specified energy sources or technologies⁸;
- 54 (b) things done during that period for the purpose of ensuring the maintenance of the scientific and engineering expertise available in the United Kingdom that is necessary for the development of potential energy sources, including sources of nuclear energy;
- 55 (c) things done during that period⁹ for the purpose of promoting community energy projects;
- 56 (d) things done during that period¹⁰ for the purpose of promoting the use of heat produced from renewable sources;
- 57 (e) things done during that period for the purpose of achieving the designated energy efficiency aims¹¹; and
- 58 (f) things done during that period for the purpose of implementing the published strategy¹² for the promotion of microgeneration in Great Britain¹³.

The report must also include estimates of the effect of the progress made in the reporting period towards achieving the statutory target mentioned in head (5) above on emissions of carbon dioxide in England and the number of households in which one or more persons are living in fuel poverty¹⁴.

A sustainable energy report must be based on such information as is available to the Secretary of State when the report is completed, except that if it is published in parts, each of those parts must be based on such information as is so available when that part is completed¹⁵. It must be published in the calendar year in question within the period beginning with 24 February and ending with 31 December ('the publication period')¹⁶. A sustainable energy report may either be published as a single report or published in a number of parts during the publication period, and any such report or part may be contained in a document containing other material¹⁷.

If a national target for microgeneration is designated¹⁸, then the above provisions apply in relation to every relevant sustainable energy report¹⁹ with the modification that the report must also include such information as the Secretary of State considers appropriate about things done during the reporting period for the purpose of meeting any target so designated²⁰.

1 As to the Secretary of State see PARA 601 note 1 ante.

2 'The reporting period', for the purposes of the Sustainable Energy Act 2003 s 1(1)-(1C) (as amended), means the year ending with 23 February in the calendar year in question: s 1(2) (amended by the Energy Act 2004 s 81(1), (3)).

3 For the meaning of 'United Kingdom' see PARA 602 note 7 ante.

The principal purpose of the Climate Change and Sustainable Energy Act 2006, by which the above duty is imposed, is to enhance the United Kingdom's contribution to combating climate change⁵; and in performing functions under that Act, the relevant persons and bodies⁶ must have regard to:

- 61 (a) that principal purpose;

INTRODUCTION/(1) GENERAL FUNCTIONS OF THE SECRETARY OF STATE/ (iii) General Functions with regard to Sustainable Energy and Reduction in Greenhouse Gas Emissions/615A. Carbon target and budgeting.

615A. Carbon target and budgeting.

1. The target for 2050

It is the duty of the Secretary of State to ensure that the net United Kingdom carbon account for the year 2050 is at least 80 per cent lower than the 1990 baseline: Climate Change Act 2008 s 1(1). The 1990 baseline means the aggregate amount of net United Kingdom emissions of carbon dioxide for that year and net United Kingdom emissions of each of the other targeted greenhouse gases for the year that is the base year for that gas: s 1(2). 'United Kingdom emissions', in relation to a greenhouse gas, means emissions of that gas from sources in the United Kingdom: Climate Change Act 2008 s 29(1)(a). 'Net United Kingdom emissions for a period', in relation to a greenhouse gas, means the amount of United Kingdom emissions of that gas for the period reduced by the amount for the period of United Kingdom removals of that gas: s 29(1)(c). 'United Kingdom removals', in relation to a greenhouse gas, means removals of that gas from the atmosphere due to land use, land-use change or forestry activities in the United Kingdom: s 29(1)(b). 'Emissions' in relation to a greenhouse gas, means emissions of that gas into the atmosphere that are attributable to human activity: s 97. The amount of United Kingdom emissions and United Kingdom removals of a greenhouse gas for a period must be determined consistently with international carbon reporting practice: s 29(2). See the Carbon Accounting Regulations 2009, SI 2009/1257 (amended by SI 2009/3146), which set the units that count as carbon units for the purposes of carbon accounting (reg 3); place a duty on the Secretary of State to open a credit account in the United Kingdom registry in which carbon units that are to be credited to the net United Kingdom carbon account can be held (reg 4); provide a power to credit carbon units to the net United Kingdom carbon account (reg 5); set out the circumstances in which carbon units are to be credited to and debited from the net United Kingdom carbon account during the 2008-2012 budgetary period as a result of the operation of the European Union Emissions Trading Scheme (reg 6); make provision for carbon units to be debited from the net United Kingdom carbon account during the 2008-2012 budgetary period where carbon units have been disposed of in the course of a given year (reg 7); place a duty on the Secretary of State to cancel carbon units at the end of the 2008-2012 budgetary period (reg 8); and place a duty on the Secretary of State to maintain a register of transactions (reg 9). The limit on the net amount of carbon units that may be credited to the net United Kingdom carbon account for the 2008-2012 budgetary period is zero carbon units: Climate Change Act 2008 (2020 Target, Credit Limit and Definitions) Order 2009, SI 2009/1258, art 3(1). The following carbon units do not count towards the limit in art 3(1): carbon units credited to or debited from the net United Kingdom carbon account in accordance with SI 2009/1257 reg 6; and European Union allowances which are both acquired by the administrator of a trading scheme established in accordance with the Climate Change Act 2008 Pt 3 (ss 44-55) (see ENVIRONMENTAL QUALITY AND PUBLIC HEALTH vol 45 (2010) PARAS 264-267) and credited to the net United Kingdom carbon account in accordance with SI 2009/1257 reg 5: SI 2009/1258 art 3(2). Article 3(3) provides that 'European Union allowance' has the meaning given by SI 2009/1257 reg 2; 'European Union allowance' means an assigned amount unit converted into an allowance for the purposes of the European Union Emissions Trading Scheme established under EC Council and European Parliament Directive 2003/87 as implemented by the Greenhouse Gas Emissions Trading Scheme Regulations 2005, SI 2005/925 in accordance with EC Commission Regulation 2216/2004 art 45 (see ENVIRONMENTAL QUALITY AND PUBLIC HEALTH vol 45 (2010) PARAS 15, 260): SI 2009/1257 reg 2. In the Climate Change Act 2008 Pt 1 (ss 1-31) a targeted greenhouse gas means carbon dioxide, methane, nitrous oxide, hydrofluorocarbons, perfluorocarbons, sulphur hexafluoride and any other greenhouse gas designated as a targeted greenhouse gas by order made by the Secretary of State: see s 24. 'Greenhouse gas' means any of the following (1) carbon dioxide (CO₂); (2) methane (CH₄); (3) nitrous oxide (N₂O); (4) hydrofluorocarbons (HFCs); (5) perfluorocarbons (PFCs); and (6) sulphur hexafluoride (SF₆): see s 92. For the purposes of the Climate Change Act 2008 greenhouse gas emissions, reductions of such emissions and removals of greenhouse gas from the atmosphere are to be measured or calculated in tonnes of carbon dioxide equivalent; a 'tonne of carbon dioxide equivalent' means one metric tonne of carbon dioxide or an amount of any other greenhouse gas with an equivalent global warming potential, calculated consistently with international carbon reporting practice: s 93. The Secretary of State may by order (1) amend the percentage specified in s 1(1); and (2) amend s 1 to provide for a different year to be the baseline year; the power in head (1) may only be exercised if it appears to the Secretary of State that there have been significant developments in scientific knowledge about climate change, or European or international law or policy, that make it appropriate to do so, or in connection with the making of an order under s 24 or regulations under s 30 (see PARA 615A.6): see s 2. Before laying before Parliament a draft of a statutory instrument containing an order under s 2, the Secretary of State must obtain, and take into account, the advice of the Committee on Climate Change (see Pt 2 (ss 32-43); and PARA 615B) and take into account any representations made by the other national authorities: see s 3.

The base years for the purposes of the Climate Change Act 2008 for targeted greenhouse gases other than carbon dioxide are 1990 for methane and nitrous oxide and 1995 for hydrofluorocarbons, perfluorocarbons and sulphur hexafluoride: see Climate Change Act 2008 s 25. In Pt 1 (ss 1-31) a carbon unit means a unit of a kind specified in regulations made by the Secretary of State and representing a reduction in an amount of greenhouse gas emissions, the removal of an amount of greenhouse gas from the atmosphere, or an amount of greenhouse gas emissions allowed under a scheme or arrangement imposing a limit on such emissions; the Secretary of State may make provision by regulations for a scheme for registering or otherwise keeping track of carbon units, or for establishing and maintaining accounts in which carbon units may be held, and between which they may be transferred by the Secretary of State, and further, the regulations may, in particular, provide for an existing scheme to be adapted for these purposes: see s 26. 'International carbon reporting practice' means accepted practice in relation to reporting for the purposes of the protocols to the United Nations Framework Convention on Climate Change or such other agreements or arrangements at European or international level as the Secretary of State may specify by order: see s 94. In Pt 1 (ss 1-31) the net United Kingdom carbon account for a period means the amount of net United Kingdom emissions of targeted greenhouse gases for the period (a) reduced by the amount of carbon units credited to the net United Kingdom carbon account for the period in accordance with regulations under s 27, and (b) increased by the amount of carbon units that in accordance with such regulations are to be debited from the net United Kingdom carbon account for the period; the net amount of carbon units credited to the net United Kingdom carbon account for a budgetary period must not exceed the limit set under s 11 (see PARA 615A.3) for the period: see s 27. As to the procedure for regulations under s 26 or s 27 see s 28. Any minister of the Crown or government department or the Welsh Ministers may acquire and dispose of units or interests in units representing a reduction in an amount of greenhouse gas emissions, the removal of an amount of greenhouse gas from the atmosphere, or an amount of greenhouse gas emissions allowed under a scheme or arrangement imposing a limit on such emissions: see s 87.

2. Carbon budgeting

It is the duty of the Secretary of State to set for each succeeding period of five years beginning with the period 2008-2012 ('budgetary periods') an amount for the net United Kingdom carbon account ('the carbon budget') and to ensure that the net United Kingdom carbon account for a budgetary period does not exceed the carbon budget: see the Climate Change Act 2008 s 4. The carbon budget (1) for the budgetary period including the year 2020, must be such that the annual equivalent of the carbon budget for the period is at least 34 per cent lower than the 1990 baseline; (2) for the budgetary period including the year 2050, must be such that the annual equivalent of the carbon budget for the period is lower than the 1990 baseline by at least the percentage specified in s 1 (see PARA 615A.1); (3) for the budgetary period including any later year specified by order of the Secretary of State, must be such that the annual equivalent of the carbon budget for the period is lower than the 1990 baseline by at least the percentage so specified, or at least the minimum percentage so specified, and not more than the maximum percentage so specified, lower than the 1990 baseline: s 5(1) (amended by SI 2009/1258). The 'annual equivalent', in relation to the carbon budget for a period, means the amount of the carbon budget for the period divided by the number of years in the period: Climate Change Act 2008 s 5(2). An order under s 5 is subject to affirmative resolution procedure: s 5(3). The Secretary of State may by order amend the percentage specified in head (1) or any percentage specified under head (3): see s 6. Before laying before Parliament a draft of a statutory instrument containing an order under head (3) or s 6 the Secretary of State must obtain, and take into account, the advice of the Committee on Climate Change, and take into account any representations made by the other national authorities: see s 7. The Secretary of State must set the carbon budget for a budgetary period by order: see s 8. The carbon budgets for the 2008-2012, 2013-2017 and 2018-2022 budgetary periods are as follows: (a) the carbon budget for the 2008-2012 budgetary period is 3,018,000,000 tonnes of carbon dioxide equivalent; (b) the carbon budget for the 2013-2017 budgetary period is 2,782,000,000 tonnes of carbon dioxide equivalent; and (c) the carbon budget for the 2018-2022 budgetary period is 2,544,000,000 tonnes of carbon dioxide equivalent: Carbon Budgets Order 2009, SI 2009/1259.

Before laying before Parliament a draft of a statutory instrument containing an order under the Climate Change Act 2008 s 8 the Secretary of State must take into account the advice of the Committee on Climate Change under s 34 (see PARA 615B) and take into account any representations made by the other national authorities: see s 9. Matters to be taken into account in connection with carbon budgets are (i) scientific knowledge about climate change; (ii) technology relevant to climate change; (iii) economic circumstances, and in particular the likely impact of the decision on the economy and the competitiveness of particular sectors of the economy; (iv) fiscal circumstances, and in particular the likely impact of the decision on taxation, public spending and public borrowing; (v) social circumstances, and in particular the likely impact of the decision on fuel poverty; (vi) energy policy, and in particular the likely impact of the decision on energy supplies and the carbon and energy intensity of the economy; (vii) differences in circumstances between England, Wales, Scotland and Northern Ireland; (viii) circumstances at European and international level; (ix) the estimated amount of reportable emissions from international aviation and international shipping for the budgetary period or periods in question: see s 10(1), (2). For the purposes of head (ix), the estimated amount of reportable emissions from international aviation and international shipping, in relation to a budgetary period, means the aggregate of the amounts relating to emissions of targeted greenhouse gases from international aviation and international shipping that the Secretary or State or, as the case may be, the Committee estimates the United Kingdom will be required to report for that period in accordance with international carbon reporting practice; such amounts may be estimated using such reasonable method or methods as the Secretary of State or, as the case may be, the Committee considers appropriate: see s 10(3), (4).

3. Limit on use of carbon units; proposals and policies for meeting carbon budgets

It is the duty of the Secretary of State to set a limit on the net amount of carbon units that may be credited to the net United Kingdom carbon account for each budgetary period; the net amount of carbon units means the amount of carbon units credited to the net United Kingdom carbon account for the period in accordance with regulations under the Climate Change Act 2008 s 27 (see PARA 615A.6), less the amount of carbon units debited from the net United Kingdom carbon account for the period in accordance with such regulations: see s 11. In Pt 1 (ss 1-31) a carbon unit means a unit of a kind specified in regulations made by the Secretary of State and representing a reduction in an amount of greenhouse gas emissions, the removal of an amount of greenhouse gas from the atmosphere, or an amount of greenhouse gas emissions allowed under a scheme or arrangement imposing a limit on such emissions; the Secretary of State may make provision by regulations for a scheme for registering or otherwise keeping track of carbon units, or for establishing and maintaining accounts in which carbon units may be held, and between which they may be transferred by the Secretary of State, and further, the regulations may, in particular, provide for an existing scheme to be adapted for these purposes: see s 26. As soon as is reasonably practicable after making an order setting the carbon budget for a budgetary period, the Secretary of State must lay before Parliament a report setting out an indicative annual range for the net United Kingdom carbon account for each year within the period; indicative annual range, in relation to a year, is a range within which the Secretary of State expects the amount of the net United Kingdom carbon account for the year to fall: see s 12. The Secretary of State must prepare such proposals and policies as he considers will enable the carbon budgets that have been set under the Climate Change Act 2008 to be met: see s 13. As soon as is reasonably practicable after making an order setting the carbon budget for a budgetary period, the Secretary of State must lay before Parliament a report setting out proposals and policies for meeting the carbon budgets for the current and future budgetary periods up to and including that period: see s 14. In exercising functions under the Climate Change Act 2008 Pt 1 involving consideration of how to meet the target for 2050, or the carbon budget for any period, the Secretary of State must have regard to the need for United Kingdom domestic action on climate change: see s 15.

4. Determination whether objectives met

It is the duty of the Secretary of State to lay before Parliament in respect of each year, beginning with the year 2008, a statement containing the following information (Climate Change Act 2008 s 16(1)): (1) in respect of each greenhouse gas, whether or not a targeted greenhouse gas, it must state the amount for the year of United Kingdom emissions (for the meaning of 'United Kingdom emissions' see PARA 614A.1), United Kingdom removals and net United Kingdom emissions of that gas, identify the methods used to measure or calculate those amounts, and state whether any of those amounts represents an increase or decrease compared to the equivalent amount for the previous year (s 16(2)); for the meaning of 'United Kingdom removals', see PARA 615A.1; (2) it must state the aggregate amount for the year of United Kingdom emissions, United Kingdom removals and net United Kingdom emissions of all greenhouse gases (s 16(3)); (3) if in accordance with international carbon reporting practice a change of method is such as to require adjustment of an amount for an earlier year in the same budgetary period, it must specify the adjustment required and state the adjusted amount (s 16(4)); (4) if emissions of a greenhouse gas from international aviation or international shipping are not required to be included in the statement by virtue of s 16(2), it must state any amounts relating to such emissions that the United Kingdom is required to report for the year in accordance with international carbon reporting practice (s 16(5)); (5) it must state the total amount of carbon units that have been credited to or debited from the net United Kingdom carbon account for the year and give details of the number and type of those carbon units (s 16(6)); (6) it must state the amount of the net United Kingdom carbon account for the year; (7) it must state (a) the amount of net United Kingdom emissions of carbon dioxide for the year 1990, (b) the amount of net United Kingdom emissions of each targeted greenhouse gas other than carbon dioxide for the year that is the base year for that gas, and (c) a baseline amount for each greenhouse gas that is not a targeted greenhouse gas, determined on such basis as the Secretary of State considers appropriate (s 16(8)); (8) the amount referred to in head (c) above, may be the amount of net United Kingdom emissions of the gas for the year 1990 or a different year, or the average amount of net United Kingdom emissions of the gas for a number of years (s 16(9)); (9) the statement required by s 16 must be laid before Parliament not later than 31 March in the second year following that to which it relates (s 16(10)); (10) the Secretary of State must send a copy of the statement to the other national authorities (s 16(11)). The Secretary of State may decide to carry back part of the carbon budget for a budgetary period to the preceding budgetary period: see s 17.

It is the duty of the Secretary of State to lay before Parliament, in respect of each budgetary period, a statement containing the following information (s 18(1)): (a) in respect of each targeted greenhouse gas, it must state the final amount for the period of United Kingdom emissions, United Kingdom removals and net United Kingdom emissions of that gas; that is the total amount of the amounts, or adjusted amounts, stated under s 16 in respect of that gas for the years included in the period (s 18(2)); (b) it must state the final amount of carbon units that have been credited to or debited from the net United Kingdom carbon account for the period, and give details of the number and type of those carbon units (s 18(3)); (c) it must state the final amount of the net United Kingdom carbon account for the period (s 18(4)); (d) it must state whether the Secretary of State has decided to carry an amount back under s 17(1) and if so what amount (s 18(5)); (e) it must state the amount of the carbon budget for the period; that is the amount originally set, subject to any exercise of the powers conferred by s 17 and any alteration of the budget under s 21 (s 18(6)); (f) whether the carbon budget for a period has been met must be determined by reference to the figures given in the statement laid before Parliament under s 18 in respect of that period (s 18(7)); (g) if the carbon budget for the period has not been met, the statement must explain why it has not been met (s 18(8)); (h) the statement required by s 18 must be laid before Parliament not later than 31 May in the second year following the end of the period to which it relates (s 18(9)); (i) the Secretary of State must send a copy of the statement to the other national authorities (s 18(10)). As soon as is reasonably practicable after laying a statement before Parliament under s 18 in respect of a period for which the net United Kingdom carbon account exceeds the carbon budget, the Secretary of State must lay before Parliament a report setting out proposals and policies to compensate in future periods for the excess emissions: see s 19. It is the duty of the Secretary of State to lay before Parliament in respect of the year 2050 a statement containing the following information: (i) in respect of each targeted greenhouse gas, it must state the amount for that year of United Kingdom emissions, United Kingdom removals and net United Kingdom emissions of that gas; that is the amount stated for that year in respect of that gas under s 16; (ii) it must state the amount of carbon units that have been credited to or debited from the net United Kingdom carbon account for the year and give details of the number and type of those carbon units; (iii) it must state the amount of the net United Kingdom carbon account for that year: s 20(1)-(4). Whether the target for 2050 has been met is to be determined by reference to the figures given in the statement laid before Parliament under s 20: s 20(5). If the target has not been met, the statement must explain why it has not been met: s 20(6). The statement required by s 20 must be laid before Parliament not later than 31 March 2052: s 20(7). The Secretary of State must send a copy of the statement to the other national authorities: s 20(8).

5. Alteration of budgets or budgetary periods

An order setting the carbon budget (see PARA 615A) for a period may not be revoked after the date by which a budget for the period was required to be set, and may be amended after the date by which a budget for the period was required to be set only if it appears to the Secretary of State that, since the budget was originally set, or previously altered, there have been significant changes affecting the basis on which the previous decision was made: see Climate Change Act 2008 s 21. Before laying before Parliament a draft of a statutory instrument containing an order under s 21, the Secretary of State must obtain, and take into account, the advice of the Committee on Climate Change (see PARA 615B), and take into account any representations made by the other national authorities: see s 22. The Secretary of State may by order alter the length of the budgetary periods (see s 4(1)(a); and PARA 615A.2), or the dates in the calendar year on which the budgetary periods begin and end: see s 23.

6. Emissions from aviation or international shipping; territorial scope

Emissions of greenhouse gases from international aviation or international shipping do not count as emissions from sources in the United Kingdom for the purposes of the Climate Change Act 2008 Pt 1 (ss 1-31), except as provided by regulations made by the Secretary of State: see s 30. As to the procedure for regulations under s 30, see s 31. For the purposes of s 30 international aviation consists of (1) the whole of any flight which begins at an aerodrome in the United Kingdom and ends at an aerodrome outside the United Kingdom, or begins at an aerodrome outside the United Kingdom and ends at an aerodrome in the United Kingdom, regardless of whether the flight includes one or more interim stops at aerodromes in the United Kingdom; and (2) the whole of any flight which begins and ends at aerodromes outside the United Kingdom: Climate Change Act 2008 (2020 Target, Credit Limit and Definitions) Order 2009, SI 2009/1258, art 4(1), (2). 'Aerodrome' means any area of land or water designed, equipped, set apart or commonly used for affording facilities for the landing and departure of aircraft and includes any area or space, whether on the ground, on the roof of a building or elsewhere, which is designed, equipped or set apart for affording facilities for the landing and departure of aircraft capable of descending or climbing vertically: art 4(4).

See the Aviation Greenhouse Gas Emissions Trading Scheme Regulations 2009, SI 2009/2301, which (1) define aircraft operator, regulator and authority (regs 3-7); (2) apply where a United Kingdom operator wishes to apply for a free allocation of allowances (regs 8-13); (3) require aircraft operators to submit an application to the regulator for an emissions plan, to monitor emissions in accordance with a plan approved by the regulator in each calendar year from 1 January 2010 and to submit a verified report to the regulator of the monitored emissions by 31 March in the following year (regs 14-17); (4) make provision for requiring aircraft operators to retain information and address non-conformities and misstatements identified by an independent verifier (reg 18); (5) give the regulator the power to determine the emissions of an aircraft operator where the aircraft operator has failed to comply with its obligations to submit a report containing its verified emissions to the regulator (reg 19); (6) make provision for the regulator to serve notices on aircraft operators requiring information to enable the regulator to discharge its functions under SI 2009/2301 (reg 20); (7) provide that where an aircraft operator or United Kingdom operator do not comply with their obligations they will be liable to a civil penalty (regs 21-29); (8) make provision for the detention and sale of aircraft by the regulator where a United Kingdom operator has not paid a civil penalty imposed on it and sets out the steps that the regulator must take before applying to the court for leave to sell an aircraft (regs 30-35, Sch 1); (9) make provision to allow United Kingdom operators and aircraft operators to appeal various notices or deemed refusals of the regulator and relate to the procedure for appeals and for delegating appellate functions under SI 2009/2301 (regs 36, 37, Schs 2-4); (10) give the authority the power to issue directions and guidance to the regulator relating to the discharge of the regulator's functions under SI 2009/2301 (regs 38, 39); (11) make provision for the service of documents under SI 2009/2301 (reg 40, Sch 5); (12) make provision relating to the submission of plans and reports (reg 41); and (13) require the Civil Aviation Authority to provide assistance and advice to the regulator where requested (reg 43).

For the purposes of the Climate Change Act 2008 s 30, international shipping consists of the whole of any navigation by ship which (a) begins at a harbour in the United Kingdom and ends at a harbour outside the United Kingdom; (b) begins at a harbour outside the United Kingdom and ends at a harbour in the United Kingdom; or (c) begins and ends at harbours outside the United Kingdom: SI 2009/1258 art 4(1), (3). 'Harbour' includes estuaries, navigable rivers, piers, jetties and other works in or at which ships can obtain shelter or ship and unship goods or passengers; and 'ship' includes every description of vessel used in navigation: art 4(4).

The provisions of the Climate Change Act 2008 relating to emissions of greenhouse gases apply to emissions from sources or other matters occurring in, above or below United Kingdom coastal waters, or the United Kingdom sector of the continental shelf, as they apply to emissions from sources or matters occurring in the United Kingdom: s 89(1). 'United Kingdom coastal waters' means areas landward of the seaward limit of the territorial sea adjacent to the United Kingdom; 'United Kingdom sector of the continental shelf' means the areas designated under the Continental Shelf Act 1964 s 1(7) (see PARA 1636): Climate Change Act 2008 s 89(2). Section 89 is subject to s 30: s 89(3). Orders and regulations under the Climate Change Act 2008 must be made by statutory instrument: see s 90. As to affirmative and negative resolution procedure under the Climate Change Act 2008 see s 91.

INTRODUCTION/(1) GENERAL FUNCTIONS OF THE SECRETARY OF STATE/ (iii) General Functions with regard to Sustainable Energy and Reduction in Greenhouse Gas Emissions/615B. The Committee on Climate Change.

615B. The Committee on Climate Change.

The Climate Change Act 2008 s 32 establishes the Committee on Climate Change. It is the duty of the Committee to advise the Secretary of State on whether the target for 2050 (see PARA 615A.1) should be amended, and if so, what the amended percentage should be: Climate Change Act 2008 s 33(1). Advice given by the Committee under s 33 must also contain the reasons for that advice: s 33(2). The Committee must give its advice under s 33 not later than 1 December 2008: s 33(3). The Committee must, at the time it gives its advice under s 33 to the Secretary of State, send a copy to the other national authorities: s 33(4). As soon as is reasonably practicable after giving its advice to the Secretary of State, the Committee must publish that advice in such manner as it considers appropriate: s 33(5). It is the duty of the Committee to advise the Secretary of State, in relation to each budgetary period (see PARA 615A.2), on (1) the level of the carbon budget (see PARA 615A.2) for the period; (2) the extent to which the carbon budget for the period should be met by reducing the amount of net United Kingdom emissions of targeted greenhouse gases (see PARA 615A.1), or by the use of carbon units that in accordance with regulations under s 26 or 27 (see PARA 615A.1) may be credited to the net United Kingdom carbon account (see PARA 615A.1) for the period; (3) the respective contributions towards meeting the carbon budget for the period that should be made by (a) the sectors of the economy covered by trading schemes (see ENVIRONMENTAL QUALITY AND PUBLIC HEALTH VOL 45 (2010) PARAS 264-267), (taken as a whole); and (b) the sectors of the economy not so covered (taken as a whole); (4) the sectors of the economy in which there are particular opportunities for contributions to be made towards meeting the carbon budget for the period through reductions in emissions of targeted greenhouse gases: see s 34. It is the duty of the Committee to advise the Secretary of State on the consequences of treating emissions of targeted greenhouse gases from international aviation and international shipping, as emissions from sources in the United Kingdom for the purposes of Pt 1 (ss 1-31): see s 35. It is the duty of the Committee to lay before Parliament and each of the devolved legislatures each year, beginning with the year 2009, a report setting out the Committee's views on the progress that has been made towards meeting the carbon budgets that have been set under Pt 1 (ss 1-31) and the target for 2050, the further progress that is needed to meet those budgets and that target, and whether those budgets and that target are likely to be met: see s 36. 'Devolved legislature' means the National Assembly for Wales: s 97(b). The Secretary of State must lay before Parliament a response to the points raised by each report of the Committee under s 36: see s 37. The Committee must, at the request of a national authority, provide advice, analysis, information or other assistance to the authority in connection with the authority's functions under the Climate Change Act 2008, the progress made towards meeting the objectives set by or under the Climate Change Act 2008, adaptation to climate change, or any other matter relating to climate change: see s 38. 'National authority' means either the Secretary of State or the Welsh Ministers: see s 95.

Further provision is made as to the general ancillary powers of the Committee (s 39); grants to the Committee (s 40); the national authorities' power to give the Committee guidance (s 41); and the national authorities' power to give the Committee directions (s 42). Schedule 1 contains further provisions about the Committee including details about membership (Sch 1 paras 1, 2); term of office (Sch 1 paras 3-7); remuneration and pensions (Sch 1 paras 8-10); staff (Sch 1 paras 11-14); sub-committees (Sch 1 para 15); the Adaptation Sub-Committee (Sch

1 para 16); proceedings (Sch 1 paras 17-19); discharge of functions (Sch 1 para 20); application of seal and proof of documents (Sch 1 para 21); report and accounts (Sch 1 paras 22-24); information (Sch 1 para 25); publication of advice (Sch 1 para 26); and status (Sch 1 para 27).

INTRODUCTION/(1) GENERAL FUNCTIONS OF THE SECRETARY OF STATE/ (iii) General Functions with regard to Sustainable Energy and Reduction in Greenhouse Gas Emissions/615C. Impact of and adaptation to climate change.

615C. Impact of and adaptation to climate change.

1. National reports and programmes

It is the duty of the Secretary of State to lay reports before Parliament containing an assessment of the risks for the United Kingdom of the current and predicted impact of climate change: Climate Change Act 2008 s 56(1). The first report under s 56 must be laid before Parliament no later than three years after s 56 comes into force: s 56(2). Subsequent reports must be laid before Parliament no later than five years after the previous report was so laid: s 56(3). The Secretary of State may extend the period for laying any such report, but must publish a statement setting out the reasons for the delay and specifying when the report will be laid before Parliament: s 56(4). Before laying such a report under before Parliament, the Secretary of State must take into account the advice of the Committee on Climate Change (see PARA 615B) under s 57: s 56(5). The Secretary of State must send a copy of each report under s 56 to the other national authorities: s 56(6). It is the duty of the Committee on Climate Change to advise the Secretary of State on the preparation of each of the Secretary of State's reports under s 56: see s 57. It is the duty of the Secretary of State to lay programmes before Parliament setting out (1) the objectives of Her Majesty's Government in the United Kingdom in relation to adaptation to climate change; (2) the Government's proposals and policies for meeting those objectives; and (3) the time-scales for introducing those proposals and policies, addressing the risks identified in the most recent report under s 56. The objectives, proposals and policies must be such as to contribute to sustainable development: see s 58. Each report of the Committee on Climate Change under s 36 (see PARA 615B) to which s 59 applies must contain an assessment of the progress made towards implementing the objectives, proposals and policies set out in the programmes laid before Parliament under s 58; s 59(1). Section 59 applies to the report in the second year after that in which the Secretary of State lays the first programme under s 58 before Parliament: s 59(2). After that, s 59 applies to the report under s 36 in every second year after that in which the Committee last made a report to which s 59 applies, subject to any order under s 59(4): see s 59(3). The Secretary of State may by order provide that s 59 will apply to the report under s 36 in the year specified in the order and in every subsequent year: s 59(4). An order under s 59(4) is subject to negative resolution procedure: s 59(5).

2. Reporting authorities: non-devolved functions

The Secretary of State may issue guidance to reporting authorities about (1) assessing the current and predicted impact of climate change in relation to the authority's functions; (2) preparing proposals and policies for adapting to climate change in the exercise of their functions; and (3) co-operating with other reporting authorities for that purpose: see the Climate Change Act 2008 s 61. In ss 61-70 'reporting authority' means (a) a person or body with functions of a public nature; (b) a person who is or is deemed to be a statutory undertaker for the purposes of any provision of the Town and Country Planning Act 1990 Pt XI (ss 262-283) (see TOWN AND COUNTRY PLANNING vol 46(3) (Reissue) PARA 1009 et seq): see Climate Change Act 2008 s 70(1). Neither a minister of the Crown, nor either House of Parliament, a devolved authority or a devolved legislature are reporting authorities for the purposes of ss 61-70: s

70(2). 'Devolved authority' means the Welsh Ministers, the First Minister or the Counsel General: see s 70(3). The Secretary of State may direct a reporting authority to prepare a report containing any of the following (i) an assessment of the current and predicted impact of climate change in relation to the authority's functions; (ii) a statement of the authority's proposals and policies for adapting to climate change in the exercise of its functions and the time-scales for introducing those proposals and policies; (iii) an assessment of the progress made by the authority towards implementing the proposals and policies set out in its previous reports: see s 62. A reporting authority must comply with any directions under s 62: see s 63. As to the duty of the Secretary of State to obtain the consent of, and consult with, devolved authorities, see s 64. It is the duty of the Secretary of State to lay reports before Parliament setting out how the Secretary of State intends to exercise the power under s 62 to give directions to reporting authorities: see s 65.

3. Reporting authorities: devolved Welsh functions

The Welsh Ministers may issue guidance to reporting authorities about (1) assessing the current and predicted impact of climate change in relation to the authorities' devolved Welsh functions; (2) preparing proposals and policies for adapting to climate change in the exercise of those functions; and (3) co-operating with other reporting authorities for that purpose: Climate Change Act 2008 s 66. References to a reporting authority's devolved functions are to functions conferred or imposed by or under a Measure or Act of the National Assembly for Wales, exercisable in or as regards Wales and relating to matters within the legislative competence of the National Assembly for Wales, or in relation to which functions are exercisable by a devolved authority, and in relation to which no functions are exercisable by a Minister of the Crown: see s 70(4). As to functions not being regarded as exercisable by a Minister of the Crown in relation to a reporting authority's functions, see s 70(5). References to a reporting authority's devolved Welsh functions are to functions (a) conferred or imposed by or under a Measure or Act of the National Assembly for Wales; (b) exercisable in or as regards Wales and relating to matters within the legislative competence of the National Assembly for Wales, or (c) in relation to which functions are exercisable by the Welsh Ministers, the First Minister or the Counsel General: s 70(6). For this purpose functions are not to be regarded as exercisable by the Welsh Ministers, the First Minister or the Counsel General in relation to a reporting authority's functions merely because the agreement of the Welsh Ministers, the First Minister or the Counsel General is required to the exercise of a function by a minister of the Crown in relation to the reporting authority's functions, or the Welsh Ministers, the First Minister or the Counsel General must be consulted by a minister of the Crown about the exercise of a function in relation to the reporting authority's functions: s 70(7). In ss 61-70 'Counsel General' and 'Wales' have the same meanings as in the Government of Wales Act 2006 (see STATUTES) and minister of the Crown includes a government department: s 70(8). The Welsh Ministers may direct a reporting authority to prepare a report containing any of the following (i) an assessment of the current and predicted impact of climate change in relation to the authority's devolved Welsh functions; (ii) a statement of the authority's proposals and policies for adapting to climate change in the exercise of those functions and the time-scales for introducing those proposals and policies; (iii) an assessment of the progress made by the authority towards implementing the proposals and policies set out in its previous reports: see 67. A reporting authority must comply with any directions under s 67: see s 68. As to the duty of the Welsh Ministers to obtain the consent of, and consult with, the Secretary of State, see s 69.

4. Report on climate change: Wales

It is the duty of the Welsh Ministers to lay before the National Assembly for Wales from time to time a report on (1) the objectives of the Welsh Ministers in relation to greenhouse gas emissions and the impact of climate change in Wales; (2) the action that has been taken by the Welsh Ministers and others to deal with such emissions and that impact; and (3) the future priorities for the Welsh Ministers and others for dealing with such emissions and that impact: Climate Change Act 2008 s 80(1). The report must, in particular, set out how the Welsh Ministers intend to exercise the power to give directions under s 67: s 80(2). Nothing in a report under s 80 affects the exercise of the Welsh Ministers' power under s 67: s 80(3). The second and each subsequent report under s 80 must contain an assessment of the progress made towards implementing the objectives mentioned in the earlier reports: s 80(4). In s 80 Wales has the same meaning as in the Government of Wales Act 2006: Climate Change Act 2008 s 80(5).

5. Guidance on reporting

The Secretary of State must publish guidance on the measurement or calculation of greenhouse gas emissions to assist the reporting by persons on such emissions from activities for which they are responsible and the guidance must be published not later than 1 October 2009: see Climate Change Act 2008 s 83. The Secretary of State must review the contribution that reporting on greenhouse gas emissions may make to the achievement of the objectives of Her Majesty's Government in the United Kingdom in relation to climate change, and lay a report before Parliament setting out the conclusions of that review, which must be laid before Parliament not later than 1 December 2010: see s 84. The Secretary of State must, not later than 6 April 2012 make regulations under the Companies Act 2006 s 416(4) (see COMPANIES vol 15 (2009) PARA 816) requiring the directors' report of a company to contain such information as may be specified in the regulations about emissions of greenhouse gases from activities for which the company is responsible, or lay before Parliament a report explaining why no such regulations have been made: see Climate Change Act 2008 s 85. It is the duty of the Treasury to lay before Parliament in respect of each year, beginning with the year 2008, a report containing an assessment of the progress made in the year towards improving the efficiency and contribution to sustainability of buildings that are part of the civil estate: see s 86.

The Secretary of State¹ was under a duty to publish, not later than 12 months after 21 August 2006², a report on the contribution that is capable of being made by dynamic demand technologies³ to reducing emissions of greenhouse gases⁴ in Great Britain⁵. The report must state the view of the Secretary of State as to whether it is appropriate to take any steps to promote the use of such technologies, and, if it is, what those steps are⁶. In forming that view the Secretary of State must have regard, in particular, to any matters which would prohibit or inhibit the use of any dynamic demand technology in any circumstance in which its use could be expected to make a contribution to reducing emissions of greenhouse gases in Great Britain; and the report must state the matters to which he has had regard⁷.

INTRODUCTION/(1) GENERAL FUNCTIONS OF THE SECRETARY OF STATE/(iv) Promotion of Microgeneration/618. Strategy for microgeneration.

(iv) Promotion of Microgeneration

618. Strategy for microgeneration.

The Secretary of State¹ must prepare a strategy for the promotion of microgeneration² in Great Britain³ and may from time to time revise it⁴. He was to publish the strategy within 18 months after 5 October 2004⁵. If he revises the strategy, he must publish the revised strategy⁶.

In preparing or revising the strategy, the Secretary of State must consider the contribution that is capable of being made by microgeneration to:

- 68 (1) cutting emissions of greenhouse gases⁷ in Great Britain;
- 69 (2) reducing the number of people living in fuel poverty⁸ in Great Britain;
- 70 (3) reducing the demands on transmission systems⁹ and distribution systems¹⁰ situated in Great Britain;
- 71 (4) reducing the need for those systems to be modified;
- 72 (5) enhancing the availability of electricity and heat for consumers¹¹ in Great Britain¹².

Before preparing or revising the strategy, the Secretary of State must consult such persons appearing to him to represent the producers and suppliers of plant used for microgeneration, and such other persons, as he considers appropriate¹³.

The Secretary of State must take reasonable steps to secure the implementation of the strategy in the form in which it has most recently been published¹⁴.

1 As to the Secretary of State see PARA 601 note 1 ante.

2 For these purposes, 'microgeneration' means the use for the generation of electricity or the production of heat of any plant (1) which in generating electricity or (as the case may be) producing heat, relies wholly or mainly on a source of energy or a technology mentioned in the Energy Act 2004 s 82(7); and (2) the capacity of which to generate electricity or (as the case may be) to produce heat does not exceed the capacity mentioned in s 82(8): s 82(6). Those sources of energy and technologies are: (a) biomass; (b) biofuels; (c) fuel cells; (d) photovoltaics; (e) water (including waves and tides); (f) wind; (g) solar power; (h) geothermal sources; (i) combined heat and power systems; and (j) other sources of energy and technologies for the generation of electricity or the production of heat, the use of which would, in the opinion of the Secretary of State, cut emissions of greenhouse gases in Great Britain (s 82(7)); and that capacity is (i) in relation to the generation of electricity, 50 kilowatts; (ii) in relation to the production of heat, 45 kilowatts thermal (s 82(8)). 'Plant' includes any equipment, apparatus or appliance: s 82(9). For the meaning of 'greenhouse gases' see note 7 infra; and for the meaning of 'Great Britain' see PARA 602 note 7 ante.

At the date at which this title states the law, that strategy was accessible at www.berr.gov.uk.

6 Energy Act 2004 s 82(2)(b).

7 For these purposes, 'greenhouse gases' means (1) carbon dioxide; (2) methane; (3) nitrous oxide; (4) hydrofluorocarbons; (5) perfluorocarbons; and (6) sulphur hexafluoride: ibid s 82(9).

8 For these purposes, 'fuel poverty' has the same meaning as in the Sustainable Energy Act 2003 s 1 (as amended) (see PARA 614 note 4 ante); Energy Act 2004 s 82(9).

9 For the meaning of 'transmission system' see PARA 1041 note 6 post (definition applied by ibid s 82(9)).

INTRODUCTION/(1) GENERAL FUNCTIONS OF THE SECRETARY OF STATE/(iv) Promotion of Microgeneration/619. National targets for microgeneration.

619. National targets for microgeneration.

The Secretary of State¹ must, during the period beginning with 1 November 2008 and ending with 31 March 2009:

- 73 (1) designate one or more national microgeneration² targets; and
- 74 (2) publish a statement of that fact together with a copy of the target or targets³;

but this does not apply unless on 1 November 2008 the Secretary of State considers that it would be appropriate to designate one or more such targets⁴. For these purposes, a national microgeneration target is a target in respect of:

- 75 (a) the number of microgeneration systems⁵ installed in England and Wales; and
- 76 (b) the number of electricity microgenerating systems⁶ installed in Scotland, as at a date specified in the target ('the target date')⁷.

The matters to which the Secretary of State must have regard in determining whether the duty under heads (1) and (2) above applies include, in particular:

- 77 (i) the number of microgeneration systems installed in England and Wales;
- 78 (ii) the number of electricity microgenerating systems installed in Scotland;
- 79 (iii) the strategy for microgeneration published under the relevant provision of the Energy Act 2004⁸; and
- 80 (iv) the results of any research carried out into the effect that designating a target under those heads could be expected to have on the number of microgeneration systems that are installed in England and Wales, and the number of electricity microgenerating systems that are installed in Scotland, by the target date⁹.

If a target is designated under heads (1) and (2) above, the Secretary of State must take reasonable steps to secure that the target is met¹⁰. If the Secretary of State does not so designate a target, he must publish forthwith a statement of his reasons¹¹.

At any time before the target date, the Secretary of State may review a target and, if he considers it appropriate to do so, revise the target¹². If the Secretary of State so revises a target:

- 81 (A) he must publish a statement of that fact together with a copy of the revised target; and
- 82 (B) the revised target is treated for the statutory purposes¹³ as a target designated under heads (1) and (2) above in place of the target which has been revised¹⁴.

If a target is designated under the above provisions, then the Secretary of State's statutory duty to make annual reports on progress towards sustainable energy aims¹⁵ applies in relation to every relevant sustainable energy report¹⁶ with the modification that the report must also include such information as the Secretary of State considers appropriate about things done during the reporting period¹⁷ for the purpose of meeting any target so designated¹⁸.

1 As to the Secretary of State see PARA 601 note 1 ante.

2 For these purposes, 'microgeneration' means the use for the generation of electricity or the production of heat of any plant (which, for this purpose, includes any equipment, apparatus or appliance): (1) which, in generating electricity or (as the case may be) producing heat, relies wholly or mainly on a source of energy or a technology mentioned in the Climate Change and Sustainable Energy Act 2006 s 26(2); and (2) the capacity of which to generate electricity or (as the case may be) to produce heat does not exceed the capacity mentioned in s 26(3): s 26(1). Those sources of energy and technologies are: (a) biomass; (b) biofuels; (c) fuel cells; (d) photovoltaics; (e) water (including waves and tides); (f) wind; (g) solar power; (h) geothermal sources; (i) combined heat and power systems (s 26(2)); and that capacity is (i) in relation to the generation of electricity, 50 kilowatts; (ii) in relation to the production of heat, 45 kilowatts thermal (s 26(3)). The Secretary of State may by order amend s 26(2) by adding to the sources of energy and technologies for the time being listed any other source of energy or technology for the generation of electricity or production of heat if he considers that the use of that source of energy or technology would cut emissions of greenhouse gases in Great Britain: s 26(4). The power to make such an order is exercisable by statutory instrument, and includes power to make such supplemental or consequential provision (including provision modifying s 26) and such transitional or saving provision as the Secretary of State thinks fit: s 26(5). No such order may be made unless a draft of the order has been laid before Parliament, and has been approved by a resolution of each House: s 26(6). At the date at which this title states the law, no such order had been made.

For the meaning of 'greenhouse gas' see PARA 615 note 2 ante.

3 Ibid s 4(1). As to the matters to which the Secretary of State must have regard in exercising his functions under s 4 see s 1(1)-(3)(a); and PARA 615 ante.

4 Ibid s 4(2).

5 For these purposes, 'microgeneration system' means any plant or system of plant for generating electricity or producing heat (1) which, in generating electricity or (as the case may be) producing heat, relies wholly or mainly on a source of energy or a technology mentioned in the Energy Act 2004 s 82(7) (see PARA 618 note 2 ante); and (2) whose capacity to generate electricity or (as the case may be) to produce heat does not exceed the capacity mentioned in s 82(8) (see PARA 618 note 2 ante); and 'plant' includes any equipment, apparatus or appliance: Climate Change and Sustainable Energy Act 2006 s 4(9).

6 For these purposes, 'electricity microgenerating system' means a microgeneration system for generating electricity: ibid s 4(9).

14 Ibid s 4(8).

15 Ie the Sustainable Energy Act 2003 s 1 (as amended): see PARA 614 ante.

16 For these purposes, 'sustainable energy report' means a sustainable energy report which is required to be published under ibid s 1 (as amended); and a sustainable energy report is a relevant sustainable energy report in relation to a target designated under the Climate Change and Sustainable Energy Act 2006 s 4(1) if the reporting period to which the report relates includes the period, or any part of the period, to which the target relates: s 5(3)(a), (d). A target designated under s 4(1) relates to the period beginning when it is designated and ending with the target date (within the meaning of s 4); and 'reporting period', in relation to a sustainable energy report, has the meaning given by the Sustainable Energy Act 2003 s 1 (as amended) (see PARA 614 note 2 ante): Climate Change and Sustainable Energy Act 2006 s 5(3)(b), (c).

620. Review of permitted development orders.

For the purpose of enabling the Secretary of State¹ to form a view as to what provision, or further provision, permitted development orders made under the Town and Country Planning Act 1990² should make to facilitate development in England consisting of the installation, within the curtilage of a dwelling house³, of equipment, apparatus or appliances for microgeneration⁴, he must carry out a review of the effect in England of such development orders⁵. As soon as reasonably practicable after he has carried out the review, the Secretary of State must lay before Parliament a report of the review, including his view as mentioned above and the reasons for it⁶. The report must also set out what provision, or further provision, if any, he proposes to make in development orders⁷ in consequence of the review⁸.

Where the Secretary of State proposes to make provision, or further provision, in development orders in consequence of the review, he must:

- 83 (1) exercise his statutory powers⁹ so as to provide that development orders made by virtue of the relevant provision of the Town and Country Planning Act 1990¹⁰ make such provision in consequence of the review as he considers appropriate; and
- 84 (2) exercise those powers as soon as reasonably practicable after laying the report before Parliament¹¹.

(v) Promotion of Community Energy Projects and Renewable Heat

621. Promotion of community energy projects.

It is the duty of the Secretary of State¹ to take such steps as he considers appropriate to promote community energy projects², namely:

- 85 (1) the use of relevant plant³ for a community purpose⁴;
- 86 (2) the installation of relevant plant for use for a community purpose; or
- 87 (3) the adaptation of any plant for use as relevant plant for a community purpose⁵.

In the exercise of this duty, the Secretary of State must have regard to the desirability of promoting:

- 88 (a) schemes whose purpose or effect is the promotion of community energy projects;
- 89 (b) investment by others in such schemes and community energy projects; and
- 90 (c) the provision of advice and assistance, whether by public authorities⁶ or any other persons, to persons establishing and operating, or proposing to establish and operate, community energy projects⁷.

3 For these purposes, 'plant' includes any equipment, apparatus or appliance; and 'relevant plant' means any plant which (1) in generating electricity or (as the case may be) producing heat, relies wholly or mainly on a source of energy or a technology mentioned in the Energy Act 2004 s 82(7) (microgeneration: see PARA 618 note 2 ante); and (2) satisfies the condition in the Climate Change and Sustainable Energy Act 2006 s 19(4): s 19(3). Plant satisfies the condition in s 19(4) if its capacity does not exceed (a) in the case of plant for the generation of electricity, 20 megawatts; and (b) in the case of plant for the production of heat, 100 megawatts thermal: s 19(4).

4 'Community purpose' means the purpose of (1) generating electricity for consumption wholly or mainly in qualifying premises; or (2) producing heat for use wholly or mainly for heating qualifying premises; 'premises' means any building or buildings (and for this purpose 'building' includes part of a building); and 'qualifying premises' means premises which (a) are used wholly or mainly for purposes other than carrying on a trade, business or profession; and (b) in the case of premises which consist wholly or mainly of a dwelling or dwellings, contain at least five dwellings: ibid s 19(3).

622. Promotion of renewable heat.

It is the duty of the Secretary of State¹ to take such steps as he considers appropriate to promote the use of heat produced from renewable sources²; and for these purposes, heat produced by any plant³ is produced from renewable sources to the extent that the plant is fuelled by renewable sources⁴.

The steps which the Secretary of State may take for these purposes include, in particular, steps for the purpose of promoting:

- 91 (1) the installation of plant which is or may be fuelled by renewable sources;
- 92 (2) the adaptation of plant so as to enable it to be fuelled by renewable sources;
- or
- 93 (3) the production of heat by plant which is fuelled partly by renewable sources and partly by other sources⁵.

INTRODUCTION/(1) GENERAL FUNCTIONS OF THE SECRETARY OF STATE/(vi) Functions and Duties regarding Combined Heat and Power/A. COMBINED HEAT AND POWER TARGETS/623. Combined heat and power targets.

(vi) Functions and Duties regarding Combined Heat and Power

A. COMBINED HEAT AND POWER TARGETS

623. Combined heat and power targets.

Before the end of 2003, the Secretary of State¹ was to make a statement specifying one or more CHP targets and specifying the period² that each CHP target is for³. A CHP target is the percentage of the amount of electricity for government use in the period the target is for⁴ that the Secretary of State considers will be capable, at a reasonable cost to the government, of being supplied from CHP electricity⁵. At any time after making that statement, the Secretary of State may make a further statement doing either or both of the following:

- 94 (1) specifying one or more CHP targets and specifying the period that each CHP target is for⁶;
- 95 (2) revoking a CHP target contained in an earlier statement under these provisions⁷.

The Secretary of State must lay any statement so made before Parliament⁸.

The Secretary of State may by order⁹:

- 96 (a) specify the departments and other bodies which, taken together, are to constitute 'the government' for these purposes¹⁰;
- 97 (b) provide for the exclusion from any estimation of the amount of electricity that the government will use in a period of:
 - 3. (i) the use of electricity for purposes specified in the order or in circumstances so specified;
 - 4. (ii) the use of electricity by any part of the government specified in the order¹¹.

No proceedings may be brought to enforce any CHP target contained in a statement made under these provisions or otherwise to review any act done, or any failure to act, in relation to any such CHP target¹².

2 One of the periods specified must begin with 1 January 2010 and end with 31 December 2010: Sustainable Energy Act 2003 s 5(6).

3 Ibid s 5(1). In December 2003 the government set a target for the government estate to source at least 15% of electricity from good quality CHP by 2010: see 415 HC Official Report (6th series) 18 December 2003, written statements col 153. See also the Government's Strategy for Combined Heat and Power to 2010 (Department for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs, April 2004, PB 9539). At the date at which this title states the law, that strategy was accessible at www.defra.gov.uk.

4 For these purposes, 'amount of electricity for government use in the period the target is for' means the amount of electricity that the Secretary of State estimates that the government will use in that period: Sustainable Energy Act 2003 s 5(4). As to 'government use' see further the text and note 10 infra.

5 Ibid s 5(3). 'CHP electricity' means electricity that (1) is generated by a generating station which is operated for the purposes of producing heat, or a cooling effect, in association with electricity; and (2) satisfies any other requirements specified in an order made by the Secretary of State: s 5(4). Any power to make an order under s 5 is exercisable by statutory instrument subject to annulment in pursuance of a resolution of either House of Parliament: s 5(8). At the date at which this title states the law, no order had been made for the purposes of head (2) supra.

6 Ie specifying as mentioned in ibid s 5(1).

7 Ibid s 5(2).

8 Ibid s 5(7).

9 As to the power to make such orders see ibid s 5(8), cited in note 5 supra.

10 Ibid s 5(5)(a). In the exercise of this power, the Secretary of State has made the Sustainable Energy (CHP Provisions) Order 2003, SI 2003/2987, which came into force on 15 December 2003: art 1(1). For the government departments and other bodies which together constitute 'the government' for these purposes see art 2, Schedule.

11 Sustainable Energy Act 2003 s 5(5)(b). For the purposes of any CHP target specified by the Secretary of State in a statement made pursuant to s 5(1), there is to be excluded in the period specified in relation to that target from the estimation of the amount of electricity that the government will use, electricity used: (1) in circumstances where the premises in which it is used are outside England and Wales; or (2) by the following parts of the government: (a) the Office of the Judge Advocate General of the Forces; (b) the Vehicle and Operator Services Agency; (c) the Information Technology Services Agency; (d) the National Insurance Contributions Office; (e) the Invest in Britain Bureau; (f) the National Savings; (g) the Probation Service; (h) the Farming and Rural Conservation Agency; (i) the NHS Estates: Sustainable Energy (CHP Provisions) Order 2003, SI 2003/2987, art 3.

INTRODUCTION/(1) GENERAL FUNCTIONS OF THE SECRETARY OF STATE/(vi) Functions and Duties regarding Combined Heat and Power/B. GUARANTEES OF ORIGIN OF ELECTRICITY PRODUCED FROM HIGH-EFFICIENCY COGENERATION/624. Issue of CHPGOs.

B. GUARANTEES OF ORIGIN OF ELECTRICITY PRODUCED FROM HIGH-EFFICIENCY COGENERATION

624. Issue of CHPGOs.

Guarantees of origin¹ of electricity produced from high-efficiency cogeneration² ('CHPGOs') are to be issued by the Secretary of State³ as the competent authority in accordance with the following provisions⁴.

A producer of electricity may request a CHPGO from the competent authority⁵; but no such request may be made for a CHPGO where the electricity is produced outside Great Britain⁶. A request is not to be considered duly made until the competent authority is provided with:

- 98 (1) all the specified information⁷;
- 99 (2) the required statement⁸; and
- 100 (3) any charge⁹ payable¹⁰.

Where the competent authority receives a request made in accordance with the above provisions, and is satisfied that the electricity to which the request relates is produced from high-efficiency cogeneration, the authority must issue a CHPGO in respect of that electricity¹¹. A CHPGO must be issued to the person making the request or such other person as that person may request¹². It must contain the specified matters¹³ and may contain such other matters as the competent authority considers appropriate¹⁴.

Where a CHPGO has been issued but not revoked¹⁵, no further CHPGO in respect of the electricity to which the CHPGO relates is to be issued by the competent authority¹⁶.

1 'Guarantee of origin' means, except in relation to the Guarantees of Origin of Electricity Produced from High-efficiency Cogeneration Regulations 2007, SI 2007/292, reg 10(3)-(5) (see PARA 628 post), a certificate issued by the competent authority certifying that the electricity in respect of which the certificate is issued is electricity produced from high-efficiency cogeneration: reg 2(2). 'The competent authority' is the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs: reg 2(1).

2 'High-efficiency cogeneration' means cogeneration of electricity that meets the criteria of European Parliament and EC Council Directive 2004/8 (OJ L52, 21.2.2004, p 50) on the promotion of cogeneration based on a useful heat demand in the internal energy market, Annex III: Guarantees of Origin of Electricity Produced from High-efficiency Cogeneration Regulations 2007, SI 2007/292, reg 2(1), (2).

3 See note 1 supra. As to the Secretary of State see generally para 601 note 1 ante.

The person making the request must provide a statement that in respect of the electricity which is the subject of the request (1) he is entitled to the issue of a CHPGO under the 2007 Regulations; and (2) he has not made and does not intend to make a request for the issue of a CHPGO to any person outside Great Britain: reg 4(4).

9 Ie any charge payable under ibid reg 9. The competent authority may require the payment of a charge from a producer of electricity who requests a CHPGO under reg 4: reg 9(1)(a). A charge so payable must not exceed the costs of the competent authority in complying with the request: reg 9(2). The competent authority is not required to issue a CHPGO until the charge is paid: reg 9(3).

10 Ibid reg 4(3).

625. Replacement CHPGOs.

The CHPGO holder¹ may request the Secretary of State as the competent authority² to issue a replacement CHPGO if:

- 101 (1) the CHPGO holder believes that the CHPGO is inaccurate; and
- 102 (2) the request is made in writing to the competent authority within 21 days of the issue of the CHPGO³.

A request must:

- 103 (a) state the particulars of the CHPGO that the CHPGO holder believes are inaccurate; and
- 104 (b) provide all necessary information in support of that request⁴; and the competent authority must acknowledge to the CHPGO holder the receipt of the request within seven days of receipt⁵.

The competent authority must, on the basis of the information provided in the request:

- 105 (i) decide whether or not to revoke the CHPGO and to issue a replacement CHPGO; and
- 106 (ii) make that decision within 40 days⁶ of the receipt of the request⁷.

If the competent authority decides:

- 107 (A) to revoke the CHPGO, it must give written notice⁸;
- 108 (B) not to revoke the CHPGO, it must as soon as possible give written notice to the CHPGO holder, with reasons for that decision;
- 109 (C) to issue a replacement CHPGO, it must do so as soon as possible⁹.

1 'The CHPGO holder' means the person to whom the CHPGO is issued or transferred: Guarantees of Origin of Electricity Produced from High-efficiency Cogeneration Regulations 2007, SI 2007/292, reg 2(2). For the meaning of 'CHPGO' see PARA 624 ante.

GUARANTEES OF ORIGIN OF ELECTRICITY PRODUCED FROM HIGH-EFFICIENCY COGENERATION/626. Transfer of CHPGOs.

626. Transfer of CHPGOs.

If a CHPGO holder¹ no longer operates the plant to which the CHPGO relates, he may request the Secretary of State as the competent authority² to transfer the CHPGO to the person who does operate that plant³. If the competent authority receives:

- 110 (1) a written request for such a transfer;
- 111 (2) satisfactory evidence of the matters referred to above; and
- 112 (3) any charge payable⁴, it must effect the transfer of the CHPGO⁵.

A charge so payable must not exceed the costs of the competent authority in complying with the request: reg 9(2). The competent authority is not required to transfer a CHPGO until the charge is paid: reg 9(3).

The competent authority¹ must revoke a CHPGO² where:

- 113 (1) it decides the CHPGO is inaccurate;
- 114 (2) it is satisfied that the information provided when the request to issue it was made³ is incorrect in a material particular; or
- 115 (3) it is otherwise satisfied that the CHPGO should not have been issued, is inaccurate or was issued to the wrong person⁴.

Where the competent authority revokes a CHPGO, it must as soon as possible give written notice to the CHPGO holder⁵. A CHPGO that is revoked under head (1) above is to be treated as if it had not been issued⁶; and a CHPGO that is revoked under head (2) or head (3) above ceases to have effect from the date that such notice is given⁷.

GUARANTEES OF ORIGIN OF ELECTRICITY PRODUCED FROM HIGH-EFFICIENCY COGENERATION/628. Recognition of CHPGOs.

628. Recognition of CHPGOs.

A public authority¹ must recognise a CHPGO² issued by the Secretary of State as the competent authority³ as proof of the specified⁴ matters⁵. A public authority must also recognise, as proof of certain matters⁶, a CHPGO which has been issued⁷ outside Great Britain⁸; but it is not so required to recognise to that extent a CHPGO issued outside Great Britain if:

- 116 (1) it has been requested to refuse or withdraw such recognition by the authority which issued or supervised the issue of the CHPGO; or
- 117 (2) on the basis of objective, transparent and non-discriminatory criteria, it is satisfied that the CHPGO should not have been issued or that refusal of recognition is necessary for the prevention of fraud⁹.

Where a public authority has refused to recognise a CHPGO issued in another member state, it must recognise that CHPGO where the European Commission requires¹⁰ such recognition¹¹.

Nothing in the above provisions requires a public authority to satisfy itself that a CHPGO issued outside Great Britain has been properly issued¹².

1 For these purposes, a public authority means any minister, government department, public body of any description or any person holding public office: Guarantees of Origin of Electricity Produced from High-efficiency Cogeneration Regulations 2007, SI 2007/292, reg 10(2).

INTRODUCTION/(2) RELEVANT FUNCTIONS OF LOCAL AUTHORITIES/629. Parish councils and community councils; powers in relation to local energy saving measures.

(2) RELEVANT FUNCTIONS OF LOCAL AUTHORITIES

629. Parish councils and community councils; powers in relation to local energy saving measures.

A parish council or community council may encourage or promote any of the following¹:

- 118 (1) microgeneration² within its area;
- 119 (2) the use within its area of electricity generated, or heat produced, by microgeneration;
- 120 (3) efficiency in the use, by persons in its area, of electricity, heat, gas, fuel and other descriptions or sources of energy;
- 121 (4) reductions in the amounts of such energy, or sources of energy, used by persons in its area;
- 122 (5) production in its area of biomass, or any fuel derived from biomass;
- 123 (6) use in its area of, or of electricity generated or heat produced from, biomass or any such fuel³.

The power so conferred includes, in particular, power:

- 124 (a) on application, to provide information about goods or services available within its area, whether offered or provided by public authorities or by any other persons; or
- 125 (b) to provide advice or assistance⁴, for the purpose of encouraging or facilitating any of the matters mentioned in heads (1) to (6) above⁵.

In exercising these functions, a parish or community council must have regard to the most recently published energy measures report⁶, if any⁷.

1 The appropriate person may by order amend the list of matters mentioned in the Climate Change and Sustainable Energy Act 2006 s 20(1) (see heads (1)-(6) in the text) by (1) adding any other matter whose addition would in the opinion of the person making the order be likely to contribute to reduction of greenhouse gases in England and Wales; (2) omitting any matter for the time being included in the list: s 20(6). For these purposes, 'the appropriate person' means (1) in relation to England, the Secretary of State; and (2) in relation to Wales, the National Assembly for Wales or the Welsh Ministers: s 20(7). As to the Secretary or State, the Assembly and the Welsh Ministers see PARA 601 note 1 ante; and for the meaning of 'greenhouse gas' see PARA 615 note 2 ante.

The power conferred by s 20(6) includes (a) power to make different provision for different cases; and (b) power to make such supplemental or consequential provision (including provision modifying s 20) and such transitional or saving provision as the person making the order thinks fit: s 20(8). The power of the Secretary of State to make such an order is exercisable by statutory instrument (s 20(9)); and no such order may be made by him unless a draft of the order has been laid before Parliament, and approved by a resolution of each House (s 20(10)).

2 For the meaning of 'microgeneration' see PARA 619 note 2 ante.

3 Climate Change and Sustainable Energy Act 2006 s 20(1). As to the matters to which public authorities must have regard in exercising their functions under s 20 see s 1(1), (2), (3)(b); and PARA 615 ante.

4 Assistance provided under ibid s 20(1) may, if the council giving the assistance thinks appropriate, be made subject to conditions, or otherwise be provided on such terms as the council thinks appropriate: s 20(3).

5 Ibid s 20(2). For the purposes of the Local Government Act 1972 s 137(4)-(7B) (as amended) (power of local authorities to incur expenditure for certain purposes not otherwise authorised: see LOCAL GOVERNMENT vol 29(1) (Reissue) PARA 519): (1) any expenditure incurred by a parish council or community council under the Climate Change and Sustainable Energy Act 2006 s 20 is to be treated as having been incurred under the Local Government Act 1972 s 137 (as amended); and (2) any purpose for which expenditure may be incurred under the Climate Change and Sustainable Energy Act 2006 s 20 is to be treated as a purpose for which such a council is authorised by the Local Government Act 1972 s 137 (as amended) to incur expenditure: Climate Change and Sustainable Energy Act 2006 s 20(4). Section 20(4) applies to expenditure incurred by a parish council or community council under the Local Government Act 1972 s 142 (as amended) (see LOCAL GOVERNMENT vol 69 (2009) PARA 545) on information as to the services provided by it under the Climate Change and Sustainable Energy Act 2006 s 20, or otherwise relating to its functions under s 20, as it applies to expenditure incurred under s 20: s 20(5).

INTRODUCTION/(2) RELEVANT FUNCTIONS OF LOCAL AUTHORITIES/630. Other relevant powers, duties and functions of local authorities.

630. Other relevant powers, duties and functions of local authorities.

District councils, London borough councils, the Common Council of the City of London and county and county borough councils in Wales have statutory powers to ensure the restoration of a domestic gas or electricity supply in certain circumstances¹. Local authorities have the right to be served with notice of certain matters² and to have certain documents deposited with them³. Documents so deposited must be made available for public inspection⁴.

Local authorities have power to establish combined heat and power schemes⁵. They are subject to statutory restrictions on the keeping and use of radioactive materials on their premises⁶ and have a statutory right to be consulted before certain authorisations relating to radioactive waste are granted⁷ or before facilities for the disposal or accumulation of radioactive waste are provided⁸. They may be required to accept radioactive waste and deal with it if the terms of an authorisation so provide⁹. They must prepare, and keep up to date, arrangements to give information to members of the public in their area in the case of a radiation emergency¹⁰. These, and other relevant matters relating to local authorities, are discussed in more detail below.

Every local authority must, in exercising any of its functions, have regard to the most recently published energy measures report¹¹, if any¹².

15. (c) projects⁴ of common interest⁵.

The information must be communicated to the Commission before 15 April of each year in relation to such projects on which work is scheduled to start within three years, in the case of projects in the petroleum and natural gas sectors, or within five years, in the case of projects in the electricity sector; and such communication must take account of the latest developments in the situation⁶. In order to fulfil that obligation, the persons and undertakings concerned must, before 15 March of each year, communicate details of such investment projects to the member states in whose territory they are planning to carry them out; but this does not apply where the member state concerned decides to use other means of supplying the Commission with information on those investment projects⁷. The communication so provided for must also indicate the volume of capacities in commission or under construction or which are scheduled to be taken out of commission within three years⁸ and investment projects of which the major features⁹ may, in whole or in part, be subject to further review or to final authorisation by a competent authority¹⁰. With regard to investment projects which are planned or in progress, any such communication must indicate the following:

- 133 (i) the precise purpose and nature of such investments;
- 134 (ii) the planned capacity or power;
- 135 (iii) the probable date of commissioning;
- 136 (iv) the type of raw materials used;

and as regards any proposed withdrawal from service, communications must indicate the character and the capacity or power of the installations concerned and the probable date when the installations will be withdrawn from service¹¹.

The Commission must place before the EC Council a summary of the information obtained pursuant to these provisions¹². Information forwarded pursuant to these provisions is to be treated as confidential, but this does not prevent the publication of general information or of summaries not containing particulars concerning individual undertakings¹³.

A person who contravenes or fails to comply with any obligation under these provisions, or who in furnishing any information in purported compliance with such an obligation makes or causes to be made on his behalf a statement which he knows to be false or does not believe to be true, is guilty of an offence under domestic law¹⁴.

Under the Euratom Treaty¹⁵, persons and undertakings engaged in certain industrial activities must communicate to the European Commission investment projects relating to new installations and also to replacements or conversions which fulfil certain criteria as to type and size¹⁶. Those activities are:

- 137 (A) mining of uranium and thorium ore;
- 138 (B) concentration of such ores;
- 139 (C) chemical processing and refining of uranium and thorium concentrates;
- 140 (D) preparation of nuclear fuels, in any form;
- 141 (E) fabrication of nuclear fuel elements;
- 142 (F) production of uranium hexafluoride;
- 143 (G) production of enriched uranium;
- 144 (H) processing of irradiated fuels for the purpose of separating some or all of the elements contained therein;
- 145 (I) production of reactor moderators;
- 146 (J) production of hafnium free zirconium or compounds thereof;
- 147 (K) nuclear reactors of all types and for all purposes;

- 148 (L) facilities for the industrial processing of radioactive waste, set up in conjunction with one or more of the facilities specified in heads (A) to (K) above or head (M) below;
- 149 (M) semi-industrial installations intended to prepare the way for the construction of plants involved in any of the activities listed in heads (C) to (J) above¹⁷.

Those projects must be communicated to the Commission and, for information purposes, to the member state concerned not later than three months before the first contracts are concluded with the suppliers or, if the work is to be carried out by the undertaking with its own resources, three months¹⁸ before the work begins¹⁹. The Commission must discuss with the persons or undertakings all aspects of investment projects which relate to the objectives of the Euratom Treaty and must communicate its views to the member state concerned²⁰. It may, with the consent of the member states, persons and undertakings concerned, publish any investment projects communicated to it²¹.

INTRODUCTION/(3) EUROPEAN UNION LEGISLATION/(i) Information Requirements; Security/632. Information concerning crude oil imports.

632. Information concerning crude oil imports.

Any person or undertaking importing crude oil from third countries or receiving a crude oil delivery from another member state is obliged to provide information to the member state in which he is established concerning the characteristics¹ of the imports or deliveries². The relevant information must be forwarded to the member state concerned in respect of each period not exceeding one month³.

On the basis of that information, member states must, at regular intervals, forward to the European Commission such information as will enable a true picture to be obtained of the developments in the conditions under which the imports or deliveries have taken place; and this information must be circulated to the member states⁴. The information so collected and forwarded is confidential; but this does not prevent the publication of general information or information in summary form which does not contain details relating to individual undertakings⁵. The information which member states are so obliged to communicate to the Commission must be forwarded within one month of the end of each relevant month⁶ and must consist, for each type of crude oil, of an aggregation of the data which the member states receive from persons and undertakings. For each type of crude oil, the information must comprise:

- 150 (1) the designation of the crude oil, including the average API gravity;
- 151 (2) the quantity in barrels;
- 152 (3) the average cif price;
- 153 (4) the number of companies reporting; and
- 154 (5) the percentage sulphur content⁷.

The Commission must analyse the information gathered by it pursuant to this provision and communicate it to the member states each month⁸. The member states and the Commission must consult each other at regular intervals at the request of a member state or on the initiative of the Commission⁹. Consultations may be organised with international organisations and third countries which have set up similar information systems¹⁰.

The information communicated pursuant to¹¹, and information provided for in¹², these provisions is confidential; but this does not prevent the distribution of information in a form which does not disclose details relating to individual undertakings, that is, information which refers to at least three undertakings¹³.

If the Commission discovers, in the information communicated to it by the member states, the existence of anomalies or inconsistencies which prevent it from obtaining a true picture of developments in the conditions under which imports and deliveries have taken place, it may ask the member states to allow it access to the relevant unaggregated information provided by the undertakings and the calculation and assessment procedures used to arrive at the aggregated information¹⁴.

1 For these purposes, the characteristics of each import or delivery of crude oil into a member state include: (1) the designation of the crude oil, including the API gravity; (2) the quantity in barrels; (3) the cif price paid per barrel; (4) the percentage sulphur content: EC Council Regulation 2964/95 (OJ L310, 22.12.95, p 5) introducing registration for crude oil imports and deliveries in the Community, art 5.

2 Ibid art 1. The information which persons or undertakings are obliged to communicate to the member state in which they are established relates to each import or delivery of crude oil at a specific price: art 4(1). 'Import' means each quantity of crude oil which enters the customs territory of the Community for purposes other than transit; and 'delivery' means each quantity of crude oil coming from another member state for purposes other than transit. Imports or deliveries carried out on behalf of companies situated outside the importing country and intended for refining under contract and subsequent export in their entirety in the form of refined products are excluded: art 4(2). However, oil extracted from the sea bed over which a member state exercises exclusive rights for the purposes of exploitation is not to be considered, when it enters the customs territory of the Community, as being an import within the meaning of art 4(2): art 4(3).

10 Ibid art 8(2). The information forwarded to the Commission on the basis of art 7 (see the text and notes 6-7 supra) and the communications referred to in art 8(1) (see the text and note 8 supra) can only be used for the purposes of art 8(2): art 9(2).

INTRODUCTION/(3) EUROPEAN UNION LEGISLATION/(i) Information Requirements; Security/633. Information relating to prices of crude oil and petroleum products.

633. Information relating to prices of crude oil and petroleum products.

Member states must communicate to the European Commission information relating to the crude oil supply cost¹ cif and the consumer prices² of petroleum products³. The information must be obtained by aggregating the data received and must be presented in such a way as to give as representative a picture as possible of each member state's oil market⁴. On the basis of the information collected pursuant to this requirement, the Commission must publish in an appropriate form:

- 155 (1) each month, the crude oil supply cost cif and the consumer prices of petroleum products net of duties and taxes and inclusive of duties and taxes charged on the fifteenth day of each month;
- 156 (2) each week, the consumer prices of petroleum products net of duties and taxes charged on Monday⁵.

All information so communicated is confidential; but this does not prevent the distribution of general or summary information in terms which do not disclose details relating to individual undertakings, that is in terms which refer to at least three undertakings. Member states may refrain from submitting details which relate to such individual undertakings⁶. If the Commission finds that there are anomalies or inconsistencies in the information communicated to it by the member states, it may ask the member states to permit it to acquaint itself with the calculation and assessment procedures used to arrive at the aggregated information⁷.

1 For these purposes, 'supply cost' means the cost of all crude oil imports and deliveries, as well as crude oil produced in a member state; 'crude oil imports' means all quantities of crude oil entering into the Community for purposes other than transit which are intended to cover the needs of a member state; 'crude oil deliveries' means all quantities of crude oil entering into the territory of a member state from another member state for purposes other than transit which are intended to cover the needs of the former member state; 'crude oil produced in a member state' means all crude oil produced and refined in a member state, where such production represents more than 15% on an annual basis of the total crude oil supply of that member state: EC Council Decision 1999/280 (OJ L110, 28.4.99, p 8) regarding a Community procedure for information and consultation on crude oil supply costs and the consumer prices of petroleum products, art 2(1)-(4).

2 'Consumer prices' means the most representative price levels actually charged to consumers in a given category: ibid art 2(5).

INTRODUCTION/(3) EUROPEAN UNION LEGISLATION/(i) Information Requirements; Security/634. Supplies and stocks of crude oil and petroleum products.

634. Supplies and stocks of crude oil and petroleum products.

A European Directive imposes an obligation on member states to maintain minimum stocks of crude oil and/or petroleum products¹. The provisions of that Directive are discussed in a later part of this title².

An earlier Directive requires member states to take all necessary measures to provide the competent authorities with the necessary powers in the event of difficulties arising in the supply of crude oil and petroleum products which might appreciably reduce the supply of these products and cause severe disruption. Those powers are to enable the authorities to draw on emergency stocks, to impose specific or broad restrictions on consumption, depending on the estimated shortages, to give priority to supplies of petroleum products to certain groups of users, and to regulate prices in order to prevent abnormal price rises³. The member states must appoint the bodies to be responsible for implementing the measures to be taken in execution of those powers⁴ and must draw up intervention plans for use in the event of difficulties arising with regard to the supply of crude oil and petroleum products⁵. If difficulties arise with regard to the supply of crude oil and petroleum products in the Community or one of the member states, the European Commission must convene as soon as possible, at the request of one of the member states or on its own initiative, a group of delegates from the member states whose names must be made known beforehand, under the chairmanship of the Commission⁶. This group must carry out the necessary consultations in order to ensure co-ordination of the measures taken or proposed under the powers provided for in the Directive⁷.

INTRODUCTION/(3) EUROPEAN UNION LEGISLATION/(i) Information Requirements; Security/635. Measures to safeguard security of electricity supply and infrastructure investment.

635. Measures to safeguard security of electricity supply and infrastructure investment.

By 24 February 2008, member states are required to bring into force the laws, regulations and administrative provisions necessary to comply with a 2005 European Directive concerning measures to safeguard the security of electricity supply and infrastructure investment¹. That Directive establishes measures aimed at safeguarding the security of electricity supply² so as to ensure the proper functioning of the internal market for electricity³ and to ensure an adequate level of generation capacity, an adequate balance between supply and demand⁴ and an appropriate level of interconnection between member states⁵ for the development of the internal market⁶. Member states must ensure a high level of security of electricity supply by taking the necessary measures to facilitate a stable investment climate and by defining the roles and responsibilities of competent authorities, including regulatory authorities⁷ where relevant, and all relevant market actors⁸ and publishing information thereon⁹. In implementing the measures aimed at safeguarding the security of electricity supply, member states must take account of:

- 157 (1) the importance of ensuring continuity of electricity supplies;
- 158 (2) the importance of a transparent and stable regulatory framework;
- 159 (3) the internal market and the possibilities for cross-border co-operation in relation to security of electricity supply;
- 160 (4) the need for regular maintenance and, where necessary, renewal of the transmission and distribution networks to maintain the performance of the network;
- 161 (5) the importance of ensuring proper implementation of the European Directive on the promotion of electricity produced from renewable energy sources in the internal electricity market¹⁰ and of the European Directive on the promotion of cogeneration based on a useful heat demand in the internal energy market¹¹, in so far as their provisions are related to security of electricity supply;
- 162 (6) the need to ensure sufficient transmission and generation reserve capacity for stable operation; and
- 163 (7) the importance of encouraging the establishment of liquid wholesale markets¹².

In implementing those measures, member states may also take account of:

- 164 (a) the degree of diversity in electricity generation at national or relevant regional level;
- 165 (b) the importance of reducing the long-term effects of the growth of electricity demand;
- 166 (c) the importance of encouraging energy efficiency and the adoption of new technologies, in particular demand management technologies, renewable energy technologies and distributed generation; and
- 167 (d) the importance of removing administrative barriers to investments in infrastructure and generation capacity¹³.

Member states must ensure that any measures adopted in accordance with the Directive are non-discriminatory and do not place an unreasonable burden on the market actors, including market entrants and companies with small market shares; and they must also take into account, before their adoption, the impact of the measures on the cost of electricity to final customers¹⁴.

Member states or the competent authorities must ensure that transmission system operators set the minimum operational rules and obligations on network security¹⁵. Member states must ensure that transmission and, where appropriate, distribution system operators comply with the minimum operational rules and obligations on network security¹⁶ and must require transmission system operators to maintain an appropriate level of operational network security¹⁷. In particular, member states must ensure that interconnected transmission and, where appropriate, distribution system operators exchange information relating to the operation of networks in a timely and effective fashion in line with the minimum operational requirements. The same requirements are to apply, where appropriate, to transmission and distribution system operators that are interconnected with system operators outside the Community¹⁸. Member states or the competent authorities must ensure that transmission and, where appropriate, distribution system operators set and meet quality of supply and network security performance objectives¹⁹. Member states must ensure that curtailment of supply in emergency situations is to be based on predefined criteria relating to the management of imbalances by transmission system operators. Any safeguard measures must be taken in close consultation with other relevant transmission system operators, respecting relevant bilateral agreements, including agreements on the exchange of information²⁰.

Member states must take appropriate measures to maintain a balance between the demand for electricity and the availability of generation capacity. In particular, they must, without prejudice to the particular requirements of small isolated systems, encourage the establishment of a wholesale market framework that provides suitable price signals for generation and consumption and must require transmission system operators to ensure that an appropriate level of generation reserve capacity is available for balancing purposes and/or to adopt equivalent market based measures²¹. Member states may²² also take additional measures, including but not limited to the following:

- 168 (i) provisions facilitating new generation capacity and the entry of new generation companies to the market;
- 169 (ii) removal of barriers that prevent the use of interruptible contracts;
- 170 (iii) removal of barriers that prevent the conclusion of contracts of varying lengths for both producers and customers;
- 171 (iv) encouragement of the adoption of real-time demand management technologies such as advanced metering systems;
- 172 (v) encouragement of energy conservation measures;
- 173 (vi) tendering procedures or any procedure equivalent²³ in terms of transparency and non-discrimination²⁴.

They must publish the measures to be taken pursuant to this provision and must ensure the widest possible dissemination of them²⁵.

Member states must establish a regulatory framework that provides investment signals for both the transmission and distribution system network operators to develop their networks in order to meet foreseeable demand from the market and facilitates maintenance and, where necessary, renewal of their networks²⁶. They may²⁷ allow for merchant investments in interconnection and must ensure that decisions on investments in interconnection are taken in close co-operation between relevant transmission system operators²⁸.

Member states must ensure that the report referred to in the specified provision of the European Directive concerning common rules for the internal market in electricity²⁹ covers the overall adequacy of the electricity system to supply current and projected demands for electricity, comprising:

- 174 (A) operational network security;
- 175 (B) the projected balance of supply and demand for the next five-year period;
- 176 (C) the prospects for security of electricity supply for the period between five and 15 years from the date of the report; and
- 177 (D) the investment intentions, for the next five or more calendar years, of transmission system operators and those of any other party of which they are aware, as regards the provision of cross-border interconnection capacity³⁰.

Member states or the competent authorities must prepare the report in close co-operation with transmission system operators; and transmission system operators must, if appropriate, consult with neighbouring transmission system operators³¹.

1 See European Parliament and EC Council Directive 2005/89 (OJ L33, 4.2.2006, p 22) concerning measures to safeguard security of electricity supply and infrastructure investment, art 8(1).

2 For these purposes, 'security of electricity supply' means the ability of an electricity system to supply final customers with electricity, as provided for under European Parliament and EC Council Directive 2005/89 (OJ L33, 4.2.2006, p 22): art 2(b).

3 As to the internal market for electricity see PARA 653 post.

4 For these purposes, 'balance between supply and demand' means the satisfaction of foreseeable demands of consumers to use electricity without the need to enforce measures to reduce consumption: European Parliament and EC Council Directive 2005/89 (OJ L33, 4.2.2006, p 22) art 2(d).

5 In ensuring an appropriate level of interconnection between member states, special consideration must be given to: (1) each member state's specific geographical situation; (2) maintaining a reasonable balance between the costs of building new interconnectors and the benefit to final customers; and (3) ensuring that existing interconnectors are used as efficiently as possible: ibid art 3(5).

6 Ibid art 1(1). The Directive establishes a framework within which member states are to define transparent, stable and non-discriminatory policies on security of electricity supply compatible with the requirements of a competitive internal market for electricity: art 1(2).

7 For these purposes, 'regulatory authority' means the regulatory authorities in member states, as designated in accordance with European Parliament and EC Council Directive 2003/54 (OJ L176, 15.7.2003, p 37) art 23 (see PARA 653 post): European Parliament and EC Council Directive 2005/89 (OJ L33, 4.2.2006, p 22) art 2(a).

8 The relevant market actors include, inter alia, transmission and distribution system operators, electricity generators, suppliers and final customers: ibid art 3(1).

16 Ibid art 4(1)(c).

17 Ibid art 4(1)(d). To that effect, transmission system operators must maintain an appropriate level of technical transmission reserve capacity for operational network security and co-operate with the transmission system operators concerned to which they are interconnected; and the level of foreseeable circumstances in which security must be maintained is defined in the operational network security rules: art 4(1)(d). 'Operational network security' means the continuous operation of the transmission and, where appropriate, the distribution network under foreseeable circumstances: art 2(c).

18 Ibid art 4(1)(e).

19 Ibid art 4(2). These objectives must be subject to approval by the member states or competent authorities and their implementation must be monitored by them. They must be objective, transparent and non-discriminatory and must be published: art 4(2).

In taking the measures referred to in European Parliament and EC Council Directive 2003/54 (OJ L176, 15.7.2003, p 37) art 24 (see PARA 653 post) and in EC Council Regulation 1228/2003 (OJ L176, 15.7.2003, p 1) art 6 (see PARA 653 post), member states must not discriminate between cross-border contracts and national contracts: European Parliament and EC Council Directive 2005/89 (OJ L33, 4.2.2006, p 22) art 4(3).

The section of the report relating to interconnection investment intentions, referred to in art 7(1)(d) (see head (d) in the text), must take account of: (1) the principles of congestion management, as set out in EC Council Regulation 1228/2003 (OJ L176, 15.7.2003, p 1) (see PARA 653 post); (2) existing and planned transmission lines; (3) expected patterns of generation, supply, cross-border exchanges and consumption, allowing for demand management measures; and (4) regional, national and European sustainable development objectives, including those projects forming part of the Axes for priority projects set out in European Parliament and EC Council Decision 1229/2003 (OJ L176, 15.7.2003, p 11) Annex I (now repealed and replaced by European Parliament and EC Council Decision 1364/2006 (OJ L262, 22.9.2006, p 1): see PARA 653 post). Member states must ensure that transmission system operators provide information on their investment intentions or those of any other party of which they are aware as regards the provision of cross-border interconnection capacity. They may also require transmission system operators to provide information on investments related to the building of internal lines that materially affect the provision of cross-border interconnection: European Parliament and EC Council Directive 2005/89 (OJ L33, 4.2.2006, p 22) art 7(3). Member states or the competent authorities must ensure that the necessary means for access to the relevant data are facilitated to the transmission system operators and/or to the competent authorities where relevant in the development of this task; and the non-disclosure of confidential information must be ensured: art 7(4). On the basis of the information referred to in art 7(1)(d), received from the competent authorities, the Commission must report to the member states, the competent authorities and the European Regulators Group on Electricity and Gas established by EC Commission Decision 2003/796 (OJ L296, 14.11.2003, p 34) (see PARA 653 post) on the investments planned and their contribution to the objectives set out in European Parliament and EC Council Directive 2005/89 (OJ L33, 4.2.2006, p 22) art 1(1) (see the text and notes 1-6 supra): art 7(5). 636. Nuclear security.

The Euratom Treaty¹ makes provision relating to nuclear security. Information which the Community acquires as a result of carrying out its research programme, and the disclosure of which is liable to harm the defence interests of one or more member states, is subject to a security system under regulations laying down security gradings². Where, as a result of their communication to the Commission, unpublished applications for patents or utility models, or patents or utility models classified for defence reasons, are improperly used or come to the knowledge of an unauthorised person, the Community must make good the damage suffered by the party concerned. Without prejudice to its own rights against the person responsible for the damage, the Community is, to the extent that it has made good such damage, to acquire any rights of action enjoyed by those concerned against third parties; but this does not affect the right of the Community to take action against the person responsible for the damage in accordance with the general provisions in force³. Where an agreement or contract for the exchange of scientific or industrial information in the nuclear field between a member state, a person or an undertaking on the one hand, and a third state, an international organisation or a national of a third state on the other, requires, on either part, the signature of a state acting in its sovereign capacity, it must be concluded by the Commission; but the Commission may⁴, on such conditions as it considers appropriate, authorise a member state, a person or an undertaking to conclude such agreements⁵.

INTRODUCTION/(3) EUROPEAN UNION LEGISLATION/(iii) Co-ordination of Procedures for the Award of Supply and Works Contracts/643. The Utilities Directive and its implementation; in general.

(iii) Co-ordination of Procedures for the Award of Supply and Works Contracts

643. The Utilities Directive and its implementation; in general.

Member states of the European Community are required to co-ordinate procedures for the award of supply, works and service contracts by certain entities operating, inter alia, in the energy sector¹. As from 8 March 2006, however, the Utilities Directive² does not apply to contracts awarded by contracting entities and intended to enable them to carry out electricity generation in England, Scotland and Wales, on the basis that the activity in question is directly exposed to competition on markets to which access is not restricted³.

The Utilities Directive is implemented in domestic law by the Utilities Contracts Regulations 2006⁴, which do not extend to Scotland⁵. Those regulations apply whenever a utility⁶ seeks offers in relation to a proposed supply contract⁷, works contract⁸ or a certain type of services contract⁹ or a dynamic purchasing system¹⁰, other than a contract or dynamic purchasing system which is excluded¹¹ from their operation¹². Specified provisions of those regulations¹³ apply whenever a utility seeks offers in relation to a proposed contract for certain other services¹⁴, other than one excluded¹⁵ from their operation¹⁶.

A utility must not enter into separate contracts with the intention of avoiding the application of the Utilities Contracts Regulations 2006 or the Public Contracts Regulations 2006¹⁷, where applicable¹⁸.

When the Utilities Contracts Regulations 2006 apply, a utility must not treat a person who is not a national of a relevant state¹⁹ and established in a relevant state more favourably than one who is²⁰.

A utility may reserve the right to participate in a contract award procedure or dynamic purchasing system to economic operators which operate supported factories²¹, supported businesses²² or supported employment programmes²³. Where a utility has so reserved that right, it must follow the contract award procedures set out in the Utilities Contracts Regulations 2006²⁴ and must, when seeking offers in relation to a contract or dynamic purchasing system, specify in the contract notice²⁵ if it is using that approach²⁶.

1 See European Parliament and EC Council Directive 2004/17 (OJ L134, 30.4.2004, p 1) co-ordinating the procurement procedures of entities operating in the water, energy, transport and postal services sectors ('the Utilities Directive') (amended by EC Commission Regulation 1874/2004 (OJ L326, 29.10.2004, p 17; EC Commission Directive 2005/51 (OJ L257, 1.10.2005, p 127); EC Commission Regulation 2083/2005, (OJ L333, 20.12.2005, p 28); and EC Council Directive 2006/97 (OJ L363, 20.12.2006, p 107)). See also EEC Council Directive 92/13 (OJ L76, 23.3.92, p 14) co-ordinating the laws, regulations and administrative provisions relating to the application of Community rules on the procurement procedures of entities operating in the water, energy, transport and telecommunications sectors ('the Utilities Remedies Directive'). 5 Ibid reg 1(2).

6 For these purposes, a utility is a relevant person specified in one of the Parts of ibid Sch 1 carrying out an activity in that Part: regs 2(1), 3(1). 'Relevant person' means a person who is a contracting authority, a public undertaking, or not a contracting authority or a public undertaking, but whose activities include an activity specified in Sch 1 col 2 (paras 1-21) and who carries out that activity on the basis of a special or exclusive right; 'public undertaking' means a person over whom one or more contracting authorities are able to exercise directly or indirectly a dominant influence by virtue of their ownership of that person, their financial participation in that person or the rights accorded to them by the rules which govern that person; and 'special or exclusive rights' means rights granted by a competent authority by way of any legislative, regulatory or administrative provision, the effect of which is to limit the exercise of activities specified in Sch 1 col 2 to one or more entities, and which substantially affects the ability of other entities to carry out such activities: reg 3(2). For the purposes of the definition of 'public undertaking' a contracting authority is considered to be able to exercise a dominant influence over a person when it directly or indirectly (1) possesses the majority of the issued share capital of that person or controls the majority of the voting power attached to the issued share capital of that person; or (2) may appoint (a) more than half of the individuals who are ultimately responsible for managing that person's affairs; (b) more than half of its members; or (c) in the case of a group of individuals, more than half of those individuals: reg 3(2). For these purposes, 'contracting authority' has the meaning given to it by the Public Contracts Regulations 2006, SI 2006/5, reg 3 (ie a Minister of the Crown; a government department; the House of Commons; the House of Lords; the Northern Ireland Assembly Commission; the Scottish Ministers; the Scottish Parliamentary Corporate Body; the National Assembly for Wales; a local authority and certain other public bodies: see LOCAL GOVERNMENT vol 69 (2009) PARA 418): Utilities Contracts Regulations 2006, SI 2006/6, reg 3(2).

In relation to the energy sector, the following are relevant persons and the activities specified in relation to them (Sch 1 Pts D-M), ie:

1 (i) with regard to electricity:

2 (ii) with regard to gas:

4. (A) a gas transporter as defined in the Gas Act 1986 s 7(1) (as substituted and amended) (see PARA 805 post) or a person declared to be an undertaker for the supply of gas under the relevant Northern Ireland legislation, in relation to the provision or operation of a fixed network which provides or will provide a service to the public in connection with the production, transport or distribution of gas;
5. (B) a relevant person not specified in the Utilities Contracts Regulations 2006, SI 2006/6, Sch 1 Pt I (see head (ii)(c) infra), in relation to the supply of gas to a network referred to in Sch 1 col 2 para 9 (see head (ii)(A) supra);
6. (C) a relevant person other than a contracting authority who produces gas only as the unavoidable consequence of carrying out an activity not specified in Sch 1 col 2 and who supplies gas for the sole purpose of the economic exploitation of the production to a network referred to in Sch 1 col 2 para 9 (see head (ii)(A) supra), in relation to the supply of gas to a network referred to in Sch 1 col 2 para 9 but only if the total consideration payable in the period of 36 months ending at the relevant time as defined in reg 11(19) on account of such supply has exceeded 20% of the total turnover of the utility in that period;

3 (iii) with regard to heat:

7. (A) a local authority, a person licensed under the Electricity Act 1989 s 6(1)(a) (as substituted) the whose licence includes the provisions referred to in s 10(3) (as amended) see PARA 1286 post), or the Northern Ireland Housing Executive, in relation to the provision or operation of a fixed network which provides or will provide a service to the public in connection with the production, transport or distribution of heat;
 8. (B) a relevant person not specified in the Utilities Contracts Regulations 2006, SI 2006/6, Sch 1 Pt L (see head (iii)(C) infra), in relation to the supply of heat to a network referred to in Sch 1 col 2 para 12 (see head (iii)(A) supra);
 9. (C) a relevant person other than a contracting authority who produces heat as the unavoidable consequence of carrying out an activity not specified in Sch 1 col 2 and who supplies heat for the sole purpose of the economic exploitation of the production to a network referred to in Sch 1 col 2 para 12 (see head (iii)(A) supra, in relation to the supply of heat to a network referred to in Sch 1 col 2 para 12 but only if the total consideration payable in the 36 months ending at the relevant time as defined in reg 11(19) on account of such supply has exceeded 20% of the total turnover of the utility in that period;

For these purposes, 'local authority' means, in relation to a local authority in England, an authority referred to in the Public Contracts Regulations 2006, SI 2006/5, reg 3(2); and in relation to a local authority in Wales, an authority referred to in reg 3(3) (see LOCAL GOVERNMENT vol 69 (2009) PARA 418): Utilities Contracts Regulations 2006, SI 2006/6, reg 3(2).

7 'Supply contract' means a contract, in writing, for consideration (whatever the nature of the consideration) (1) for the purchase of goods by a utility (whether or not the consideration is given in instalments and whether or not the purchase is conditional upon the occurrence of a particular event); or (2) for the hire of goods by a utility (both where the utility becomes the owner of the goods after the end of the period of hire and where it does not); and for any siting and installation of those goods, but where, under such a contract, services are also to be provided, the contract is only a supply contract where the value of the consideration attributable to the goods and any siting or installation of the goods, is equal to or greater than the value attributable to the services: ibid reg 2(1). 'Written' or 'in writing' means any expression consisting of words or figures that can be read, reproduced and subsequently communicated and may include information transmitted and stored by electronic means; and 'goods' includes electricity, substances, growing crops and things attached to or forming part of the land which are agreed to be severed before the purchase or hire under a supply contract and any ship, aircraft or vehicle: reg 2(1). 'Ship' includes any boat and other description of a vessel used in navigation; and 'substance' means any natural or artificial substance, whether in solid, liquid or gaseous form or in the form of vapour: reg 2(1). Subject to ibid reg 2(3) (see note 14 infra), 'a Part A services contract' is a contract under which services specified in Sch 3 Pt A are to be provided: reg 2(2)(a). 'Services contract' means a contract, in writing, for consideration (whatever the nature of the consideration) under which a utility engages a person to provide services but does not include (1) a works contract; or (2) a supply contract; but a contract for both goods and services is to be considered to be a services contract if the value of the consideration attributable to those services exceeds that of the goods covered by the contract and a contract for services which includes activities specified in Sch 2 that are only incidental to the principal object of the contract is to be considered to be a services contract: reg 2(1).

10 'Dynamic purchasing system' means a completely electronic system of limited duration which is (1) established by a utility to purchase commonly used goods, work, works or services; and (2) open throughout its duration for the admission of economic operators which (a) satisfy the selection criteria specified by the utility; and (b) submit an indicative tender to the utility or person operating the system on its behalf which complies with the specification required by that utility or person: ibid reg 2(1). As to design contests see PARA 647 post. A relevant state is a member state or a state listed Sch 4 col 1; the agreements with the European Union by which the provisions in relation to public procurement are extended to those states are specified in Sch 4 col 2 and the statutory provision designating them as European Treaties under the European Communities Act 1972 s 1(3) is specified in the Utilities Contracts Regulations 2006, SI 2006/6, Sch 4 col 3: regs 2(2), 4(4).

A utility must treat economic operators equally and in a non-discriminatory way and act in a transparent way: see reg 4(3).

14 Ie a proposed Part B services contract. Subject to ibid reg 2(3), 'a Part B services contract' is a contract under which services specified in Sch 3 Pt B are to be provided: reg 2(2)(b). Where services specified in both Sch 3 Pt A and Sch 3 Pt B are to be provided under a single contract, then the contract is to be treated as (1) a Part A services contract if the value of the consideration attributable to the services specified in Sch 3 Pt A is greater than that attributable to those specified in Sch 3 Pt B; and (2) a Part B services contract if the value of the consideration attributable to the services specified in Sch 3 Pt B is equal to or greater than that attributable to those specified in Sch 3 Pt A: reg 2(3).

Where a utility seeks offers in relation to a contract for the purpose of carrying out (a) one or more activities specified in Sch 1 col 2; and (b) one or more activities not specified therein nor subject to the Public Contracts Regulations 2006, SI 2006/5, and it is impossible, on objective grounds, to determine the activity for which the contract is principally intended, the utility must award the contract in accordance with the Utilities Contracts Regulations 2006, SI 2006/6: reg 5(5).

19 'National of a relevant state' means, in the case of a person who is not an individual, a person formed in accordance with the laws of a relevant state and which has its registered office, central administration or

20 Ibid reg 4(2).

21 'Supported factory' means an establishment where more than 50% of the workers are disabled persons who by reason of the nature or severity of their disability are unable to take up work in the open labour market and 'supported factories' is to be interpreted accordingly: ibid reg 10(1). 'Disabled person' means any person recognised as disabled within the meaning of the Disability Discrimination Act 1995 and 'disabled persons' is to be interpreted accordingly; and 'disability' has the same meaning as in that Act: Utilities Contracts Regulations 2006, SI 2006/6, reg 2(1). 23 Ibid reg 10(2). 'Supported employment programme' means a scheme under which work is provided for disabled persons and where more than 50% of the workers so supported are disabled persons who by reason of the nature or severity of their disability are unable to take up work in the open labour market and 'supported employment programmes' is to be interpreted accordingly: reg 10(1).

24 Ibid reg 10(3). As to procedures leading to the award of a contract see PARA 647 post.

25 'Contract notice' means, except in ibid reg 48 (savings and transitional provisions), a contract notice sent to the Official Journal in accordance with reg 16(2)(b) (see PARA 647 post): reg 2(1).

26 Ibid reg 10(4).

INTRODUCTION/(3) EUROPEAN UNION LEGISLATION/(iii) Co-ordination of Procedures for the Award of Supply and Works Contracts/644. General exclusions and exemptions.

644. General exclusions and exemptions.

The Utilities Contracts Regulations 2006¹ do not apply to the seeking of offers in relation to a proposed contract² or dynamic purchasing system³:

- 178 (1) other than for the purpose of carrying out a specified activity⁴ or in respect of certain other proposed contracts⁵;
 - 179 (2) for the purpose of carrying out any activity outside the territory of the European Communities but only if the carrying out of that activity does not involve the physical use of a network or geographical area within the Communities;
 - 180 (3) for the purpose of acquiring goods⁶, works⁷ or services in order to sell, hire or provide them to another person unless the utility has a special or exclusive right to sell, hire or provide such goods, works or services or other persons are not free to sell, hire or provide them under the same conditions;
 - 181 (4) which is classified as secret or where the performance of the contract must be accompanied by special security measures in accordance with the laws, regulations or administrative provisions of any part of the United Kingdom⁸ or when the protection of the essential interests of the security of the United Kingdom requires it;
 - 182 (5) where different rules govern the procedures leading to the award of the contract and it is to be entered into in accordance with:
- 16. (a) an international agreement concluded in conformity with the EC Treaty to which the United Kingdom and a state which is not a relevant state⁹ are parties and it relates to goods or the carrying out of a work¹⁰ or works or the provision of services intended for the joint implementation or exploitation of a project related to that agreement;
 - 17. (b) an international agreement relating to the stationing of troops; or
 - 18. (c) the contract award procedures of an organisation of which only states are members (an 'international organisation') or of which only states or international organisations are members;
- 14
- 183 (6) by a utility operating in the water sector¹¹ for the purchase of water;
 - 184 (7) by a utility operating in the energy sector¹² for the purchase of energy or of fuel for the production of energy;
 - 185 (8) by certain utilities operating in the transport sector¹³ for the purpose of engaging in a specified activity¹⁴ where that activity is provided in a geographical area in which other persons are free to provide the service under the same conditions as the utility;
 - 186 (9) under which services are to be provided by a contracting authority¹⁵, or by a person which is a contracting authority in another relevant state because that contracting authority or person has an exclusive right either to provide the services or which is necessary for the provision of the services, in accordance with any published law, regulation or administrative provision which is compatible with the EC Treaty;

- 187 (10) for the acquisition of land, including existing buildings and other structures, land covered with water, and any estate, interest, easement, servitude or right in or over land;
- 188 (11) for arbitration or conciliation services;
- 189 (12) for financial services in connection with the issue, purchase, sale or transfer of securities or other financial instruments, in particular transactions by the utility to raise money or capital;
- 190 (13) for employment and other contracts of service;
- 191 (14) for research and development services unless the benefits are to accrue exclusively to the utility for its use in the conduct of its own affairs and the services are to be wholly paid for by the utility; or
- 192 (15) which is a works concession contract¹⁶ or a services concession contract¹⁷ which is awarded by a utility carrying out a specified activity¹⁸, where the concession contract is awarded for carrying out or providing that activity¹⁹.

Contracts awarded to affiliated undertakings or joint ventures are also excluded²⁰; and there is an exemption for contracts where the activity in question is directly exposed to competition²¹. Further, the 2006 Regulations do not apply to the seeking of offers in relation to a proposed contract, dynamic purchasing system or framework agreement where the estimated value of the contract, dynamic purchasing system or framework agreement²² (net of value added tax) at the relevant time²³ is less than the relevant threshold²⁴. A utility must not, however, enter into separate contracts nor exercise a choice under a valuation method with the intention of avoiding the application of the 2006 Regulations to those contracts²⁵.

22 'Framework agreement' means an agreement or other arrangement, which is not in itself a supply contract, a works contract or a services contract, between one or more utilities and one or more economic operators which establishes the terms (in particular the terms as to price and, where appropriate, quantity) under which the economic operator will enter into one or more contracts with a utility in the period during which the framework agreement applies: ibid reg 2(1).

23 For these purposes, 'the relevant time' means (1) if the utility selects economic operators to tender for or to negotiate the contract in accordance with a qualification system established in accordance with ibid reg 25 (see PARA 648 post), the date on which the selection commences; (2) if the utility satisfies the requirement that there be a call for competition by indicating the intention to award the contract in a periodic indicative notice in accordance with reg 16(2)(a)(i) (see PARA 647 post), the date on which the notice is sent to the Official Journal; or (3) in any other case, the date on which a contract notice would be sent to the Official Journal if the requirement that there be a call for competition applied and the utility decided to satisfy that requirement by sending such a notice: reg 11(19).

24 See ibid reg 11(1). Except where reg 11(17) applies, for these purposes the relevant threshold is (1) 422,000 euros for a supply contract or a services contract; and (2) 5,278,000 euros for a works contract: reg 11(2). The relevant threshold for the purposes of reg 11(1) for a dynamic purchasing system or a framework agreement is the threshold for (a) a works contract, where that framework agreement or dynamic purchasing system relates to the carrying out of work or works; (b) a services contract where that framework agreement or dynamic purchasing system relates to the provision of services; or (c) a supply contract where that framework agreement or dynamic purchasing system relates to the purchase or hire of goods: reg 11(17). INTRODUCTION/(3) EUROPEAN UNION LEGISLATION/(iii) Co-ordination of Procedures for the Award of Supply and Works Contracts/645. Exemption in respect of certain utilities operating in the energy sector.

645. Exemption in respect of certain utilities operating in the energy sector.

In addition to the general exclusions and exemptions¹, a utility² carrying out one or more of the following activities³, namely the exploitation of geographical areas for the purpose of exploring for or extracting oil or gas⁴, is excluded from having to comply with the provisions of the Utilities Contracts Regulations 2006⁵ regarding:

- 193 (1) technical specifications⁶;
- 194 (2) procedures leading to the award of a contract⁷;
- 195 (3) the qualification and selection of economic operators⁸;
- 196 (4) the award of a contract⁹;
- 197 (5) design contests for specialised contracts¹⁰;
- 198 (6) obligations relating to taxes, environmental protection, employment protection and working conditions¹¹;
- 199 (7) the preservation of records¹²;
- 200 (8) statistical and other reports¹³ (but this is subject to an exception¹⁴);
- 201 (9) the publication of notices¹⁵; and
- 202 (10) sub-contracting¹⁶, in seeking offers in relation to a contract¹⁷ to be awarded for the purpose of carrying out one or more such activities¹⁸.

A utility which relies on the exemption set out above must observe the principles of non-discrimination and competitive procurement, and in particular must hold a competition unless it can objectively justify not doing so, and must make decisions objectively on the basis of relevant criteria in:

- 203 (a) making information about its procurement intentions available to economic operators;
- 204 (b) specifying its requirements to them;
- 205 (c) establishing and using a qualification system;
- 206 (d) selecting economic operators to tender for or to negotiate the contract;
- 207 (e) holding any design contest; and
- 208 (f) awarding the contract¹⁹.

It must, in respect of a contract awarded by it the value of which²⁰ exceeds 5 million euros, send to the European Commission not later than 48 days²¹ after the award the following information:

- 209 (i) the name and address of the utility;
- 210 (ii) the nature of the contract, namely whether it is a supply contract, a services contract or a works contract and whether it is a framework agreement²²;
- 211 (iii) a clear indication of the nature²³ of the goods to be purchased or hired under the contract, the work or works to be carried out under the contract or the services to be provided under the contract;

- 212 (iv) whether the contract was advertised and, if so, in which publication and, if not, the procedure or method used to decide to whom the contract should be awarded;
- 213 (v) the number of offers received;
- 214 (vi) the date of the award of the contract;
- 215 (vii) the name and address of the person to whom the contract was awarded;
- 216 (viii) the value of the contract²⁴;
- 217 (ix) the expected duration of the contract;
- 218 (x) any share of the contract which has been, or may be, sub-contracted, to which over 10 per cent of the value of the consideration to be given under the contract is attributable;
- 219 (xi) in the case of a supply contract, the country of origin of the goods and in the case of a works contract or a services contract, the principal country from which the contract is to be performed;
- 220 (xii) where the contract was awarded on the basis of the offer which was the most economically advantageous, the main criteria on which the decision was based; and
- 221 (xiii) whether the contract was awarded to an economic operator which offered a variant on the requirements specified in the contract documents²⁵.

In respect of a supply contract or a services contract awarded by it the value of which²⁶ equals or exceeds 400,000 euros but does not exceed 5 million euros, a utility relying on that exemption must retain the information specified in heads (i) to (ix) above for not less than four years after the award²⁷. If the Commission requests that information in relation to any such contract, the utility must forthwith send it to the minister²⁸. Where no such request has been made, the utility must send that information to the European Commission not later than 48 days after the end of the period of three months ending on the last day of March, June, September or December in which the contract was awarded²⁹.

Contracts awarded by contracting entities and intended to enable them to carry out electricity generation are exempted by virtue of the general exemption of contracts where the activity in question is directly exposed to competition³⁰.

'Office of Government Commerce' means the office of the Treasury having that title: reg 2(1).

Any reference to the minister in the 2006 Regulations is deemed to be a reference to the minister responsible for that utility; and the minister responsible for a utility is the Minister of the Crown whose areas of responsibility are most closely connected with the functions of the utility: regs 2(1), 39(1), (2). 'Minister of the Crown' means the holder of an office in Her Majesty's Government in the United Kingdom, and includes the Treasury: reg 2(1). INTRODUCTION/(3) EUROPEAN UNION LEGISLATION/(iii) Co-ordination of Procedures for the Award of Supply and Works Contracts/646. Technical specifications.

646. Technical specifications.

Where a utility¹ wishes to lay down technical specifications² which must be met by:

- 222 (1) the services to be provided under a services contract and the materials and goods used in or for it;
- 223 (2) the goods to be purchased or hired under a supply contract; or
- 224 (3) the work or works to be carried out³ under a works contract and the materials and goods used in or for it, it must specify those technical specifications in the contract documents⁴. When laying down technical specifications in accordance with this requirement, a utility must wherever possible take into account accessibility criteria for disabled persons or the suitability of the design for all users⁵.

A utility must ensure that technical specifications afford equal access to economic operators⁶ and do not have the effect of creating unjustified obstacles to the opening up of public procurement to competition⁷. It must not⁸ lay down technical specifications in the contract documents which refer to materials or goods of a specific make or source or to a particular process, or to trademarks, patents, types, origin or means of production, which have the effect of favouring or eliminating particular economic operators⁹.

A utility may indicate in the contract documents that the materials, goods or services bearing the eco-label are presumed to comply with the technical specifications laid down in the contract documents and must accept any other appropriate means¹⁰ of proof that the materials, goods or services comply with those technical specifications¹¹.

A utility must¹² provide to any economic operator which is interested in obtaining a contract¹³, and which makes a request, a copy of the technical specifications which are regularly laid down as terms of the contracts which that utility awards or which it intends to lay down as terms of a contract which has been indicated in a periodic indicative notice¹⁴ sent¹⁵ to the Official Journal¹⁶. Where, however, those technical specifications are based on documents which are separately available to economic operators, that obligation is satisfied by informing any economic operator which makes a request of the documents which include those technical specifications¹⁷.

Where a utility intends to award¹⁸ a contract on the basis of the offer which is the most economically advantageous¹⁹, it must indicate in the contract notice²⁰ whether or not it authorises economic operators to submit offers which contain variants on the requirements specified in the contract documents and a utility must not accept an offer which contains a variant without that indication²¹. Where a utility so authorises a variation, it must state in the contract notice the minimum requirements to be met by the variants and any specific requirements for the presentation of an offer which contains variants²²; and it may only consider variants which meet its minimum requirements as stated in the contract documents in accordance with that provision²³. A utility must not reject an offer which contains variants on the requirements specified in the contract documents on the ground that:

- 225 (a) where it intends to award a services contract, the offer would lead to the award of a supply contract; or
- 226 (b) where it intends to award a supply contract, the offer would lead to the award of a services contract²⁴.

1 For the meaning of 'utility' see PARA 643 note 6 ante.

2 For these purposes, 'technical specifications' means: (1) in the case of a services contract or a supply contract, a specification in a document defining the required characteristics of materials, goods or services, such as quality levels, environmental performance levels, design for all requirements (including accessibility for disabled persons) and conformity assessment, performance, use of a product, safety or dimensions, including requirements relevant to the product as regards the name under which the product is sold, terminology, symbols, testing and test methods, packaging, marking and labelling, user instructions, production processes and methods and conformity assessment procedures; and (2) in the case of a works contract, the totality of the technical prescriptions contained, in particular, in the contract documents, defining the characteristics required of the work, works, materials or goods, which permits the work, works, materials or goods to be described in a manner such that it fulfils the use for which it is intended by the utility and these characteristics must include (a) levels of environmental performance, design for all requirements (including accessibility for disabled persons) and conformity assessment, performance, safety or dimensions, including the procedures concerning quality assurance, terminology, symbols, testing and test methods, packaging, marking and labelling, user instructions and production processes and methods; (b) rules relating to design and costing, the test, inspection and acceptance conditions for work or works and methods or techniques of construction; and (c) all other technical conditions which the utility is in a position to prescribe, under general or specific regulations, in relation to the finished work or works and to the materials or parts which they involve: Utilities Contracts Regulations 2006, SI 2006/6, reg 12(1).

For the meanings of 'supply contract', 'works contract' and 'services contract' see PARA 643 notes 7-9 ante; for the meaning of 'goods' see PARA 643 note 7 ante; for the meanings of 'work' and 'works' see PARA 643 note 8 ante; for the meaning of 'contract documents' see PARA 645 note 25 ante; and for the meaning of 'disabled person' see PARA 643 note 21 ante.

3 For the meaning of 'carrying out' in relation to a work or works see PARA 643 note 8 ante.

4 Utilities Contracts Regulations 2006, SI 2006/6, reg 12(2). As to definition of the technical specifications see reg 12(5)-(12). A utility must accept certificates from recognised bodies established in other member states when considering whether a tender for a contract conforms with the technical specifications laid down by the utility in accordance with reg 12(2): reg 12(15). 'Recognised bodies' means test and calibration laboratories and certification and inspection bodies which comply with applicable European standards and 'recognised body' is to be interpreted accordingly; and 'European standard' means a standard adopted by a European standards organisation and made available to the general public: reg 12(1).

INTRODUCTION/(3) EUROPEAN UNION LEGISLATION/(iii) Co-ordination of Procedures for the Award of Supply and Works Contracts/647. Procedures leading to award of contract.

647. Procedures leading to award of contract.

For the purpose of seeking offers in relation to a proposed contract¹ a utility² must use the open³, the restricted⁴ or the negotiated⁵ procedure⁶.

At least once every 12 months a utility must⁷ send a notice in the required form⁸ and containing the specified information⁹ to the European Commission or publish it on that utility's buyer profile¹⁰ as soon as possible after:

- 227 (1) the beginning of the financial year¹¹ in the case of supply contracts¹², services contracts¹³ or framework agreements¹⁴ for the purchase or hire of goods¹⁵ or for the provision of services; or
- 228 (2) the decision authorising the programme of works contracts¹⁶ or framework agreements for the carrying out of work or works¹⁷, in the case of works contracts or framework agreements for the carrying out of work or works¹⁸.

This obligation to publish a periodic indicative notice applies only to proposed contracts or framework agreements which are not excluded¹⁹ from the application of the Utilities Contracts Regulations 2006²⁰ and where, at the date of dispatch of the notice:

- 229 (a) the total consideration which the utility expects to be payable under supply contracts or framework agreements for the purchase or hire of goods falling within the same product area, or certain services contracts²¹ or framework agreements for the provision of services falling within the same specified category²² is equal to or exceeds 750,000 euros; or
- 230 (b) the total consideration which the utility expects to be payable under works contracts or framework agreements for the carrying out of work or works is equal to or exceeds 5,278,000 euros²³.

It applies only where the utility takes the option²⁴ of shortening time limits for the receipt of tenders²⁵; and does not apply to a proposed contract or framework agreement where the procedure for the award or conclusion of the framework agreement is a contract award procedure²⁶ without a call for competition²⁷.

Subject to prescribed exceptions²⁸, for the purposes of seeking offers in relation to a proposed contract a utility must make a call for competition²⁹. A utility may regard a framework agreement as a contract and award it in accordance with the relevant regulations³⁰ and may, if it has so awarded that agreement, award a contract under the framework agreement without making a call for competition in certain circumstances³¹. It may not, however, misuse a framework agreement in order to prevent, restrict or distort competition³².

A utility using a dynamic purchasing system³³ must comply with prescribed requirements as to means of communication³⁴ when seeking to establish it and must use only electronic means³⁵ to establish that system and to award contracts³⁶ under it³⁷. The utility must use the open procedure to establish a dynamic purchasing system up to the beginning of the procedure for the award of contracts under the system set out³⁸ in relation to such systems³⁹. The utility must not charge any economic operator seeking admission to a dynamic purchasing system or which has been admitted to such a system in relation to any aspect of that system⁴⁰. A dynamic purchasing system established by the utility must not be operated for more than four years, unless there are exceptional circumstances⁴¹; and the utility must not use a dynamic purchasing system improperly or in such a way as to prevent, restrict or distort competition⁴².

A utility may hold an electronic auction⁴³ when using the open procedure, the restricted procedure, the negotiated procedure with a prior call for competition or the procedure⁴⁴ on the opening of competition for contracts to be awarded under a dynamic purchasing system⁴⁵. It must not, however, hold an electronic auction to precede the award of a services contract or a works contract having as its subject matter intellectual performance, such as the design of works⁴⁶; and it may only hold an electronic auction to precede the award of a contract when the contract specification can be established with precision⁴⁷.

A utility may purchase work, works, goods or services from or through a central purchasing body⁴⁸; and where it so makes purchases, it is deemed to have complied with the relevant regulations to the extent that the central purchasing body has complied with them⁴⁹.

Time limits are prescribed for certain of the above procedures⁵⁰. Subject to the minimum time limits so specified, a utility must take account of all the circumstances, in particular the complexity of the contract and the time required for drawing up tenders, when fixing time limits for receipt by it of requests to be selected to tender for or to negotiate the contract and for the receipt by it of tenders⁵¹.

Provision is made with regard to design contests⁵² organised by a utility for the purposes of certain specialised contracts⁵³.

INTRODUCTION/(3) EUROPEAN UNION LEGISLATION/(iii) Co-ordination of Procedures for the Award of Supply and Works Contracts/648. Qualification and selection of economic operators.

648. Qualification and selection of economic operators.

A utility¹ may establish and operate a system of qualification of economic operators² if that system complies³ with the prescribed requirements⁴. Provision is made for the criteria on which economic operators are to be rejected⁵.

A utility using the open procedure⁶ must establish selection criteria on the basis of objective criteria and rules which it determines and which it makes available to economic operators which request them⁷; and a utility using the restricted procedure⁸ or the negotiated procedure⁹, with or without a call for competition, must make the selection of the economic operators to be invited to tender for or to negotiate the contract on the basis of objective criteria and rules which it determines and which it makes available to economic operators which request them¹⁰. Where the selection criteria include requirements relating to the economic and financial capacity or the technical or professional abilities of the economic operator:

- 231 (1) the economic operator, or a group of economic operators¹¹, may rely on the capacity or abilities of other entities or members in the group, regardless of the legal nature of the link between the economic operator or the group of economic operators and the other entities; and
- 232 (2) the economic operator, or the group of economic operators, must prove to the utility that the resources necessary to perform the contract will be available to it, and such proof may in particular include an undertaking from those entities to that effect¹².

The criteria may¹³ be based on the need of the utility to reduce the number of economic operators selected to tender for or to negotiate the contract to a level which is justified by the characteristics of the award procedure and the resources required to complete it¹⁴. The utility must take account of the need to ensure adequate competition in determining the number of economic operators selected to tender for or to negotiate the contract¹⁵.

A utility must not treat the tender of a consortium¹⁶ as ineligible nor decide not to include a consortium amongst those economic operators from which it will make the selection of economic operators to be invited to tender for or to negotiate a contract or to be admitted to a dynamic purchasing system¹⁷ on the grounds that the consortium has not formed a legal entity for the purpose of tendering for or negotiating the contract or being admitted to a dynamic purchasing system¹⁸. Nor may it treat the tender of a services provider¹⁹ as ineligible nor decide not to include a services provider amongst those services providers from which it will make the selection of services providers to be invited to tender for or to negotiate a contract or to be admitted to a dynamic purchasing system on the ground that under the law of any part of the United Kingdom²⁰ the services provider is required to be an individual, a corporation or other type of body, if under the law of the relevant state²¹ in which the services provider is established, that services provider is authorised to provide such services²².

Where a utility establishes criteria for the rejection of economic operators²³ it must exclude any economic operator which meets those criteria when making its selection of the economic operators to be awarded a contract, to be invited to tender for, or to negotiate the contract²⁴. A utility must make its selection of the economic operators to be awarded a contract, to be invited to tender for, or to negotiate the contract in accordance with the selection criteria established²⁵ by it²⁶. A utility using the restricted or negotiated procedure with a call for competition must reduce, where appropriate²⁷, the number of economic operators so selected²⁸. Where a utility makes a call for competition in respect of a contract by publishing a notice on the existence of a qualification system, when making its selection of the economic operators to be invited to tender for or to negotiate that contract, the utility must qualify economic operators²⁹ and apply the provisions set out above³⁰ which are relevant to the restricted procedure or the negotiated procedure to such qualified economic operators³¹. A utility must verify that the tenders submitted by the economic operators which have been selected by the utility comply with the rules and requirements applicable to tenders and must award the contract on the basis of the prescribed³² criteria³³.

When using the negotiated procedure or the restricted procedure and in determining what rules and criteria are to be met by economic operators to be invited to tender for or to negotiate a contract or to qualify under a qualification system, a utility must not:

- 233 (a) impose conditions of an administrative, technical or financial nature on some economic operators which are not imposed on others; or
- 234 (b) require tests or the submission of evidence which duplicates objective evidence already available³⁴.

For the purpose of assessing an economic operator's technical ability, a utility may request that economic operator to provide certain certificates and evidence³⁵. Where the contract to be awarded is a works contract or a services contract, it may also, where appropriate, request an indication of the environmental management measures which the economic operator will apply when performing the contract³⁶.

INTRODUCTION/(3) EUROPEAN UNION LEGISLATION/(iii) Co-ordination of Procedures for the Award of Supply and Works Contracts/649. The award of a contract.

649. The award of a contract.

A utility¹ must² award a contract³ on the basis of the offer⁴ which:

- 235 (1) is the most economically advantageous⁵ from the point of view of the utility;
or
- 236 (2) offers the lowest price⁶.

If an offer for a contract is abnormally low, the utility may reject that offer but only if it has:

- 237 (a) requested in writing⁷ an explanation of the offer or of those parts which it considers contribute to the offer being abnormally low⁸;
- 238 (b) taken account of any evidence provided in response to a request in writing;
and
- 239 (c) subsequently verified the offer or parts of the offer being abnormally low with the economic operator⁹.

Where a utility establishes that a tender is abnormally low because the economic operator has obtained state aid, the offer may be rejected on that ground alone only after consultation with the economic operator and after the economic operator is unable to prove within a reasonable time limit fixed by the utility, that the aid has been granted in a way which is compatible with the EC Treaty¹⁰. Where a utility rejects an abnormally low offer in accordance with that provision, it must send a report justifying the rejection to the minister¹¹ for onward transmission to the European Commission¹².

Notwithstanding the above provisions, a utility need not accept an offer of third country origin¹³.

Provision is made for sending contract award notices to the Official Journal¹⁴ and as to the utility's obligation to inform any economic operator which submitted an offer or applied to be included amongst the economic operators to be selected to tender for or to negotiate the contract, or applied to be a party to a framework agreement¹⁵, of its decision in relation to the award of the contract or the conclusion of the framework agreement¹⁶.

A utility may include in the contract documents relating to a works contract or a services contract information as to where a contractor or services provider may obtain information about the obligations relating to taxes, environmental protection, employment protection and working conditions which will apply to the work or works to be carried out under the works contract or the services to be provided under the services contract¹⁷. A utility which provides that information must request contractors¹⁸ or services providers¹⁹ to indicate that they have taken account of the obligations relating to those employment protection provisions and those working conditions in preparing their tender or in negotiating the contract²⁰. A utility may also stipulate conditions relating to the performance of a contract, provided that those conditions are compatible with Community law and are indicated either in the notice used as a means of calling for competition and the contract documents or in the contract documents²¹; and those conditions may, in particular, include social or environmental considerations²².

1 For the meaning of 'utility' see PARA 643 note 6 ante.

2 be subject to the Utilities Contracts Regulations 2006, SI 2006/6, regs 30(6), (9), 31: see the text and notes 7-9, 11-13 infra.

3 For the meaning of 'contract' see PARA 644 note 2 ante.

4 For these purposes, 'offer' includes a bid by one part of a utility to provide services, to carry out work or works or to make goods available to another part of the utility when the former part is invited by the latter part to compete with the offers sought from other persons: Utilities Contracts Regulations 2006, SI 2006/6, reg 30(10).

5 A utility must use criteria linked to the subject matter of the contract to determine that an offer is the most economically advantageous including delivery date or period for completion, running costs, cost-effectiveness, quality, aesthetic and functional characteristics, environmental characteristics, technical merit, after sales service and technical assistance, commitments with regard to parts, security of supply and price or otherwise: ibid reg 30(2). Where a utility intends to award a contract on the basis of the offer which is the most economically advantageous, it must state the weighting which it gives to each of the criteria chosen in the contract notice or in the contract documents: reg 30(3). When stating the weightings referred to in reg 30(3), a utility may give the weighting a range and specify a minimum and maximum weighting where it considers it appropriate in view of the subject matter of the contract: reg 30(4). Where, in the opinion of the utility, it is not possible to provide weightings for the criteria referred to in reg 30(3) on objective grounds, the utility must indicate the criteria in descending order of importance in the contract notice or contract documents: reg 30(5). For the meaning of 'contract notice' see PARA 643 note 25 ante; and for the meaning of 'contract documents' see PARA 645 note 25 ante.

6 Ibid reg 30(1).

7 For the meaning of 'in writing' see PARA 643 note 7 ante.

8 Where a utility so requests an explanation, the information requested may, in particular, include (1) the economics of the method of construction, the manufacturing process or the services provided; (2) the technical solutions suggested by the economic operator or the exceptionally favourable conditions available to the economic operator for the execution of the work or works, for the supply of goods or for the provision of the services; (3) the originality of the work, works, goods or services proposed by the economic operator; (4) compliance with the provisions relating to employment protection and working conditions in force at the place where the contract is to be performed; or (5) the possibility of the economic operator obtaining state aid: Utilities Contracts Regulations 2006, SI 2006/6, reg 30(7). 12 Utilities Contracts Regulations 2006, SI 2006/6, reg 30(9).

13 See ibid reg 31. For these purposes, 'an offer of third country origin' means an offer to enter a supply contract under which more than 50% of the total value of the goods offered originate in states with which the Communities have not concluded, multilaterally or bilaterally, an agreement ensuring comparable and effective access for undertakings in member states to the markets of those states or in states to which the benefit of the provisions of the Utilities Directive has not been extended; and 'goods' includes software used in telecommunications network equipment: reg 31(1). INTRODUCTION/(3) EUROPEAN UNION LEGISLATION/(iii) Co-ordination of Procedures for the Award of Supply and Works Contracts/650. Records, reports and information.

650. Records, reports and information.

When the Utilities Contracts Regulations 2006¹ apply to the seeking of offers in relation to a contract², a utility³ must keep appropriate information on each contract sufficient to justify decisions taken in connection with the qualification and selection of economic operators⁴ and the award of contracts, and the use of a procedure⁵ without a prior call for competition⁶.

When a utility decides not to apply those regulations to the seeking of offers in relation to a contract⁷ it must keep appropriate information on such a contract sufficient to justify that decision⁸.

A utility must take appropriate steps to document the progress of contract award procedures conducted by electronic means⁹.

The information referred to above must be preserved for at least four years from the date of the award of the contract¹⁰.

A utility must each year¹¹, by the date notified to it by the minister¹², send to the minister a report specifying:

- 240 (1) the aggregate value (estimated if necessary) of the consideration payable under contracts awarded in the previous year which have been excluded from the operation of the Utilities Contracts Regulations 2006 by reason of falling below the prescribed threshold¹³ for the purpose of carrying out the specified activities¹⁴; and
- 241 (2) the type of activities for which those contracts were awarded¹⁵.

When requested a utility must, for the purpose of informing the European Commission, send to the minister a report:

- 242 (a) containing such information as the minister may from time to time require in respect of a particular contract (including contracts excluded or exempted from the application of all or some of the relevant regulations¹⁶);
- 243 (b) specifying which of its activities it considers are not specified activities¹⁷, or are activities outside the territory of the Communities not involving the physical use of a network or geographical area within the Communities; and
- 244 (c) specifying the categories of goods¹⁸, work, works¹⁹ or services it considers comprise the goods, work, works or services which it acquires in order to sell, hire or provide them to another person, but which it does not have a special or exclusive right to sell, hire or provide and which other persons are free to sell, hire or provide under the same conditions²⁰.

Certain utilities²¹ must, not later than 31 July in each year, send to the minister a report specifying in relation to each contract awarded by the utility in the previous year (including contracts excluded or exempted from the application of some or all of the relevant regulations²²):

- 245 (i) the value (estimated if necessary) of the consideration payable under the contract;

- 246 (ii) the principal category of works or services carried out or to be carried out under the contract according to the prescribed nomenclature²³ or the type of goods purchased or hired under the contract; and
- 247 (iii) the nationality of the economic operator to which the contract was awarded and the relevant state²⁴ in which that economic operator is established²⁵.

Provision is made with regard to the publication of notices²⁶ and the means of communication with a utility²⁷.

A utility which makes information available to an economic operator in accordance with the Utilities Contracts Regulations 2006 may impose requirements on that operator for the purpose of protecting the confidentiality of that information²⁸. Subject to the provisions of those regulations, the utility must not disclose information forwarded to it by an economic operator which the economic operator has reasonably designated as confidential²⁹; and confidential information includes technical or trade secrets and the confidential aspects of tenders³⁰. A utility may require an economic operator to indicate in its tender any part of the contract that the economic operator intends to sub-contract to another person and the identity of any person to whom that economic operator proposes to sub-contract any part of the contract³¹.

INTRODUCTION/(3) EUROPEAN UNION LEGISLATION/(iii) Co-ordination of Procedures for the Award of Supply and Works Contracts/651. Enforcement of obligations.

651. Enforcement of obligations.

The obligation on a utility¹ to comply with the relevant provisions of the Utilities Contracts Regulations 2006², and with any enforceable Community obligation in respect of a contract³ or design contest⁴ (other than one excluded⁵ from the application of those regulations) is a duty owed to an economic operator⁶. With certain exceptions⁷, that duty is a duty owed also to a GPA economic operator⁸.

A breach of the duty owed in accordance with the above provisions is actionable by any economic operator⁹ which in consequence suffers, or risks suffering, loss or damage and those proceedings are to be in the High Court¹⁰. Proceedings under these provisions may not be brought unless:

- 248 (1) the economic operator bringing the proceedings has informed the utility of the breach or apprehended breach of the duty so owed to it by that utility and of its intention to bring such proceedings in respect of it; and
- 249 (2) those proceedings are brought promptly and in any event within three months from the date when grounds for the bringing of the proceedings first arose unless the court considers that there is good reason for extending the period within which proceedings may be brought¹¹.

The court may¹²:

- 250 (a) by interim order suspend the procedure leading to the award of the contract or the procedure leading to the determination of a design contest in relation to the award of the contract of which the breach of the duty so owed is alleged, or suspend the implementation of any decision or action taken by the utility in the course of following such a procedure; and
- 251 (b) if satisfied that a decision or action taken by a utility was in breach of the duty so owed:

- 19. (i) order the setting aside of that decision or action or order the utility to amend any document;
- 20. (ii) award damages to an economic operator which has suffered loss or damage as a consequence of the breach; or
- 21. (iii) do both of those things¹³.

In proceedings under these provisions the court does not, however, have power to order any remedy other than an award of damages in respect of a breach of the duty owed in accordance with the above provisions if the contract in relation to which the breach occurred has been entered into¹⁴.

Where, in proceedings under these provisions, the court is satisfied that an economic operator would have had a real chance of being awarded a contract or winning a design contest if that chance had not been adversely affected by a breach of the duty owed to it by the utility, the economic operator is entitled to damages amounting to its costs in preparing its tender and in participating in the procedure leading to the award of the contract or its costs of participating in the procedure leading to the determination of the design contest¹⁵. This does not affect a claim by an economic operator that it has suffered other loss or damage or that it is entitled to relief other than damages and is without prejudice to the matters on which an economic operator may be required to satisfy the court in respect of any other such claim¹⁶.

An economic operator which considers that a utility has breached or may breach the duty referred to above, and that in consequence that economic operator has suffered, or risks suffering, loss or damage, and which wishes to use the conciliation procedure provided for in the Utilities Remedies Directive¹⁷ must send a request for the application of the procedure to the minister¹⁸ for onward transmission as soon as possible to the European Commission¹⁹. Neither the request for, nor any action taken in accordance with, that conciliation procedure affects the rights or liabilities of the economic operator requesting it, the utility in respect of which the request is made or any other person²⁰.

INTRODUCTION/(3) EUROPEAN UNION LEGISLATION/(iv) Competition Law and the Single Energy Market/652. European Community competition law.

(iv) Competition Law and the Single Energy Market

652. European Community competition law.

The energy supply industry in England and Wales is subject to general rules governing competition within the Community¹. These rules cover much the same subject matter as domestic competition law², but are primarily directed at agreements and practices which prevent, restrict or distort the free passage of goods and services across national boundaries³.

European Community law prohibits all agreements between undertakings, decisions by associations of undertakings and concerted practices which may affect trade between member states and which have as their object or effect the prevention, restriction or distortion of competition within the Community, in particular those which:

- 252 (1) directly or indirectly fix purchase or selling prices or any other trading conditions;
- 253 (2) limit or control production, markets, technical development or investment;
- 254 (3) share markets or sources of supply;
- 255 (4) apply dissimilar conditions to equivalent transactions with other trading parties, thereby placing them at a competitive disadvantage; or
- 256 (5) make the conclusion of contracts subject to acceptance by other parties of supplementary obligations which, by their nature or according to commercial usage, have no connection with the subject of such contracts⁴.

It also prohibits any abuse by one or more undertakings of a dominant position within the Community or a substantial part of it, in so far as it may affect trade between member states. Such abuse may, in particular, consist in:

- 257 (a) directly or indirectly imposing unfair purchase or selling prices or other unfair trading conditions;
- 258 (b) limiting production, markets or technical development to the prejudice of consumers;
- 259 (c) applying dissimilar conditions to equivalent transactions with other trading parties, thereby placing them at a competitive disadvantage; or
- 260 (d) making the conclusion of contracts subject to acceptance by the other parties of supplementary obligations which, by their nature or according to commercial usage, have no connection with the subject of such contracts⁵.

State aid⁶ in any form whatsoever which distorts, or threatens to distort, competition by favouring certain undertakings or the production of certain goods is also prohibited so far as it affects trade between member states⁷. State aid may, however, be authorised by the EC Commission and certain categories of aid may be exempted⁸.

In addition, the EC Commission has jurisdiction, generally to the exclusion of national competition authorities of national states, over competition aspects of mergers and other specified types of concentrations with a Community dimension above certain thresholds⁹.

In the exercise of his powers to grant licences in relation to petroleum production¹⁰, and in carrying out his functions relating to energy supply¹¹, the Secretary of State¹² is required, as a matter of general principle, not to discriminate against nationals of other member states on grounds of nationality¹³ and not to restrict the freedom of establishment or the freedom to provide services of such nationals¹⁴.

3 See the text and notes 4-8 infra.

4 EC Treaty art 81(1). Any agreements or decisions prohibited pursuant to art 81 are automatically void: art 81(2). The provisions of art 81(1) may, however, be declared inapplicable in the case of: (1) any agreement or category of agreements between undertakings; (2) any decision or category of decisions by associations of undertakings; (3) any concerted practice or category of concerted practices, which contributes to improving the production or distribution of goods or to promoting technical or economic progress, while allowing consumers a fair share of the resulting benefit, and which does not: (a) impose on the undertakings concerned restrictions which are not indispensable to the attainment of these objectives; (b) afford such undertakings the possibility of eliminating competition in respect of a substantial part of the products in question: art 81(3).

5 See ibid art 82.

6 There is no definition of what constitutes state aid in the EC Treaty itself though the EC Commission declared that 'aid' included direct subsidies, tax exemptions, preferential interest rates, guarantees of loans on expressly favourable terms, acquisition of land or buildings whether gratuitously or on favourable terms, provision of goods and services on preferential terms, and indemnities against losses: see OJ 1963 p 2235. INTRODUCTION/(3) EUROPEAN UNION LEGISLATION/(iv) Competition Law and the Single Energy Market/653. The single energy market.

653. The single energy market.

The EC Commission has announced a series of initiatives relating to energy which are designed to create an open market for electricity and other forms of energy. European Directives have now established common rules for the generation, transmission, distribution and supply of electricity¹ and for the internal market in natural gas²; and a European Regulation has laid down conditions for access to the network for cross-border exchanges in electricity³. There is a European Regulators Group for electricity and gas⁴. Either at its own initiative or at the request of the European Commission, that Group is to advise and assist the Commission in consolidating the internal energy market, in particular with respect to the preparation of draft implementing measures in the field of electricity and gas, and on any matters related to the internal market for electricity and gas. The Group must facilitate consultation, co-ordination and co-operation of national regulatory authorities, contributing to a consistent application, in all member states, of the provisions set out in the Directives and the Regulation mentioned above, as well as of possible future Community legislation in the field of electricity and gas⁵. There is also European legislation setting non-discriminatory rules for access conditions to natural gas transmission systems⁶ and laying down guidelines for trans-European electricity and gas networks⁷.

The Price Transparency Directive requires member states to ensure that undertakings which supply energy to industrial end users communicate to the Statistical Office of the European Community ('SOEC') (1) the prices and terms of sale to industrial end users; (2) the price system in use; and (3) the breakdown of consumers and the corresponding volumes by category of consumption to ensure that these categories are represented at national level⁸.

The Hydrocarbons Licensing Directive establishes common rules to ensure equal access to prospecting, exploration for and producing hydrocarbons for all companies with the necessary capabilities⁹.

Investment projects of interest to the Community in the petroleum, natural gas and electricity sectors must be communicated to the Commission¹⁰.

The Community framework for the taxation of energy products and electricity has been restructured by a 2003 Directive¹¹.

The European Atomic Energy Community ('Euratom') and the Euratom Treaty are discussed in a later part of this title¹².

In 2006, the European Union entered into the Energy Community Treaty with certain non-member states¹³ and with the United Nations Interim Administration Mission in Kosovo¹⁴.

INTRODUCTION/(4) OTHER INTERNATIONAL OBLIGATIONS/654. International treaties relating to energy and the environment; in general.

(4) OTHER INTERNATIONAL OBLIGATIONS

654. International treaties relating to energy and the environment; in general.

The Energy Charter Treaty and the Energy Charter Protocol on Energy Efficiency and Related Environmental Aspects were signed in Lisbon in December 1994 and entered into legal force in April 1998. The United Kingdom is a party and the Treaty and Protocol have been approved by the European Community¹. The treaty makes provision with regard to commerce, including conditions for trade in energy materials, products and energy-related equipment and cross-border energy transit flows through pipelines, grids and other means of transportation², the promotion and protection of foreign investments³, the promotion of energy efficiency and attempts to minimise the environmental impact of energy production and use⁴ and the resolution of disputes⁵. State sovereignty and sovereign rights over energy resources are recognised and the Treaty reaffirms that these must be exercised in accordance with and subject to the rules of international law⁶. The parties undertake to facilitate access to energy resources by, among other things, allocating in a non-discriminatory manner on the basis of published criteria authorisations, licences, concessions and contracts to prospect and explore for or to exploit or extract energy resources⁷. The provisions of the Treaty do not oblige any party to it to introduce mandatory third party access or prevent the use of pricing systems which, within a particular category of consumers, apply identical prices to customers in different locations⁸. The Energy Charter Conference, an inter-governmental organisation, is the governing and decision-making body for the Energy Charter process, and was established by the Energy Charter Treaty⁹. All states who have signed or acceded to the Treaty are members of the Conference, which meets on a regular basis, normally in Brussels. Regular meetings of the Conference's subsidiary groups on investment, trade, transit and energy efficiency are held in between Conference meetings¹⁰.

The United Nations Framework Convention on Climate Change, which entered into force on 21 March 1994, has been ratified by the vast majority of countries, including the United Kingdom, and approved by the European Community¹¹. The Kyoto Protocol to that Convention, which entered into force on 16 February 2005, commits parties to that Protocol to individual, legally-binding targets to limit or reduce their greenhouse gas emissions¹². The United Kingdom has ratified the Protocol and an overall target has been set for the United Kingdom and other member states to reduce their emissions; the distribution of that target between member states has been agreed by the Community¹³.

International treaties and agreements with particular application to nuclear energy and petroleum production are discussed in later parts of this title¹⁴.

(5) ENERGY EFFICIENCY OF BUILDINGS AND APPLIANCES

(i) Buildings

A. IN GENERAL

655. Energy performance of buildings generally.

The Secretary of State¹ must approve:

- 261 (1) a methodology of calculation of the energy performance of buildings², including methods for calculating asset ratings³ and operational ratings⁴ of buildings; and
- 262 (2) ways in which the energy performance of buildings, as calculated in accordance with the methodology, are to be expressed⁵.

He must approve minimum energy performance requirements for new buildings, in the form of target CO₂ emission rates, which must be based upon the methodology approved pursuant to heads (1) and (2) above⁶; and where a building is erected, it must not exceed the target CO₂ emission rate for the building that has been so approved⁷.

Where proposed building work⁸ to an existing building with a total useful floor area⁹ over 1,000 square metres consists of or includes an extension, the initial provision of any fixed building services¹⁰ or an increase to the installed capacity of any fixed building services, then such work, if any, must be carried out as is necessary to ensure that the building complies with the prescribed requirements¹¹ as to energy efficiency¹²; but this does not require work to be carried out if it is not technically, functionally and economically feasible¹³.

As from 6 April 2008¹⁴, but from 1 January 2008 in relation to dwellings¹⁵, where:

- 263 (a) a building is erected; or
- 264 (b) a building is modified so that it has a greater or fewer number of parts designed or altered for separate use than it previously had, where the modification includes the provision or extension of any of the fixed services for heating, hot water, air conditioning or mechanical ventilation, the person carrying out the work must give an energy performance certificate for the building to the owner of the building and must give to the local authority notice to that effect¹⁶. The energy performance certificate must be accompanied by a recommendation report containing recommendations for the improvement of the energy performance of the building, issued by the energy assessor¹⁷ who issued the energy performance certificate¹⁸. An energy performance certificate must:

- 265 (i) express the asset rating of the building in a way approved by the Secretary of State under heads (1) and (2) above;
- 266 (ii) include a reference value such as a current legal standard or benchmark;

- 267 (iii) be issued by an energy assessor who is accredited to produce energy performance certificates for that category of building; and
- 268 (iv) include the following information:
- 17
- 22. (A) the reference number under which the certificate has been registered¹⁹;
 - 23. (B) the address of the building;
 - 24. (C) an estimate of the total useful floor area of the building;
 - 25. (D) the name of the energy assessor who issued it;
 - 26. (E) the name and address of the energy assessor's employer, or, if he is self-employed, the name under which he trades and his address;
 - 27. (F) the date on which it was issued; and
 - 28. (G) the name of the approved accreditation scheme of which the energy assessor is a member²⁰.

Certification for apartments or units designed or altered for separate use in blocks may be based either on a common certification of the whole building for blocks with a common heating system (except in the case of a dwelling) or on the assessment of another representative apartment or unit in the same block²¹. Where a block with a common heating system is divided into parts designed or altered for separate use, and one or more, but not all, of the parts are dwellings, certification for those parts which are not dwellings may be based on a common certification of all the parts which are not dwellings²².

An energy assessor must include in an energy performance certificate a declaration of any personal or business relationship, other than in relation to producing the certificate, that he has with the person who commissioned the certificate and with any person who he believes either has or may have a personal or business relationship with the person who commissioned the certificate, or has or may have an interest in the building²³. Energy assessors must carry out energy assessments with reasonable care and skill²⁴; and the duty so imposed is enforceable by the owner and by any prospective or actual buyer or tenant of the building during the period of validity of the certificate²⁵. Any cause of action arising in relation to the duty so imposed is deemed not to be an action founded on tort for the purposes of the Limitation Act 1980²⁶.

Any person may, for the purpose of complying with any duty imposed by the Building Regulations 2000²⁷ or the Energy Performance of Buildings (Certificates and Inspections) (England and Wales) Regulations 2007²⁸, copy or issue a copy of any document produced by an energy assessor²⁹.

1 As to the Secretary of State see PARA 601 note 1 ante.

2 For these purposes, 'building' means the building as a whole or parts of it that have been designed or altered to be used separately: Building Regulations 2000, SI 2000/2531, reg 17J(1) (regs 17F-17J added by SI 2007/991). 'Building' means any permanent or temporary building but not any other kind of structure or erection, and a reference to a building includes a reference to part of a building: Building Regulations 2000, SI 2000/2531, reg 2(1).

3 'Asset rating' means a numerical indicator of the amount of energy estimated to meet the different needs associated with a standardised use of the building: ibid reg 17A(2) (regs 17A-17E added by SI 2006/652; the Building Regulations 2000, SI 2000/2531, reg 17A substituted by SI 2007/991).

4 'Operational rating' means a numerical indicator of the amount of energy consumed during the occupation of a building over a period of time: Building Regulations 2000, SI 2000/2531, reg 17A(2) (as substituted: see note 3 supra).

5 Ibid reg 17A(1) (as substituted: see note 3 supra).

6 Ibid reg 17B (as added: see note 3 supra).

7 Ibid reg 17C (as added: see note 3 supra). Subject to reg 20D(4) (as added), where reg 17C (as added) applies, the person carrying out the work must give the local authority a notice which specifies (1) the target CO₂ emission rate for the building; and (2) the calculated CO₂ emission rate for the building as constructed: reg 20D(1) (added by SI 2006/652). The notice must be given to the local authority not later than the date on which the notice required by the Building Regulations 2000, SI 2000/2531, reg 20B (as added) (pressure test: see PARA 657 note 5 post) is required to be given: reg 20D(2) (as so added). A local authority is authorised to accept, as evidence that the requirements of reg 17C (as added) would be satisfied if the building were constructed in accordance with an accompanying list of specifications, a certificate to that effect by a person who is registered by either FAERO Ltd or BRE Certification Ltd in respect of the calculation of CO₂ emission rates of buildings: reg 20D(3) (as so added). Where such a certificate is given to the local authority, reg 20D(1) (as added) does not apply, and the person carrying out the work must provide to the local authority not later than the date on which the notice required by reg 20B (as added) is required to be given a notice which (a) states whether the building has been constructed in accordance with the list of specifications which accompanied the certificate; and (b) if it has not, lists any changes to the specifications to which the building has been constructed: reg 20D(4) (as so added).

8 For the meaning of 'building work' see ibid reg 3(1); and BUILDING.

9 'Floor area' means the aggregate area of every floor in a building or extension, calculated by reference to the finished internal faces of the walls enclosing the area, or if at any point there is no such wall, by reference to the outermost edge of the floor: ibid reg 2(1).

10 'Fixed building services' means any part of, or any controls associated with: (1) fixed internal or external lighting systems, but does not include emergency escape lighting or specialist process lighting; or (2) fixed systems for heating, hot water service, air conditioning or mechanical ventilation: ibid reg 2(1) (definition added by SI 2006/652).

12 Ibid reg 17D(1), (2) (as added: see note 3 supra).

13 Ibid reg 17D(3) (as added: see note 3 supra).

14 See the Energy Performance of Buildings (Certificates and Inspections) (England and Wales) Regulations 2007, SI 2007/991, reg 1(4), Sch 1.

15 See ibid Sch 1 (amended by SI 2007/1669, reg 3(1), (6)(b)). 'Dwelling' includes a dwelling house and a flat; 'dwelling house' does not include a flat or a building containing a flat; and 'flat' means separate and self-contained premises constructed or adapted for use for residential purposes and forming part of a building from some other part of which it is divided horizontally: Building Regulations 2000, SI 2000/2531, reg 2(1).

16 Ibid reg 17E(1), (2) (as added (see note 3 supra); substituted by SI 2007/991). The energy performance certificate must be given not later than (1) the date on which the notice required by the Building Regulations 2000, SI 2000/2531 reg 20B (as added) (pressure testing) is required to be given to the local authority, where reg 20B (as added) applies; or (2) in any other case, not later than five days after the work has been completed: reg 17E(3) (as so substituted).

17 For these purposes 'energy assessor' means an individual who is a member of an accreditation scheme approved by the Secretary of State in accordance with ibid reg 17F (as added): reg 17J(1) (as added: see note 2 supra). An energy assessor must be a member of an accreditation scheme approved by the Secretary of State: reg 17F(1) (as added: see note 2 supra). The terms of approval of any accreditation scheme may be limited in relation to the categories of building for which members may produce certificates: reg 17F(2) (as so added). Before approving an accreditation scheme the Secretary of State must be satisfied that the scheme contains adequate provision: (1) for ensuring that members of the scheme carry out consistent and accurate energy assessments in an independent manner; (2) for ensuring that members of the scheme are fit and proper persons who are qualified (by their education, training and experience) to carry out energy assessments; (3) for requiring members of the scheme to prepare energy performance certificates and recommendation reports using a standard form for each type of document; (4) for ensuring the production and publication of a code as regards the conduct required of its members; (5) for indemnity arrangements in relation to owners and prospective or actual buyers or tenants; (6) for facilitating the resolution of complaints against members of the scheme; (7) for requiring energy performance certificates and recommendation reports produced by members of the scheme to be entered on the relevant register referred to in reg 17F(4) (as added); and (8) for the keeping of a register of the members of the scheme: reg 17F(3) (as so added). Where an energy assessor issues an energy performance certificate and recommendation report he must ensure they are entered onto the relevant register maintained by the Secretary of State in accordance with the Energy Performance of Buildings (Certificates and Inspections) (England and Wales) Regulations 2007, SI 2007/991, reg 31 (see PARA 656 post) before he gives them to the person who requested that he issue them: Building Regulations 2000, SI

2000/2531, reg 17F(4) (as so added). For these purposes, a reference to 'energy assessment' includes a reference to (a) the preparation and issuing of energy performance certificates; (b) the preparation and issuing of recommendation reports; and (c) the carrying out of any inspections undertaken for the purposes of preparing energy performance certificates or recommendation reports (reg 17J(2) (as added: see note 2 supra)); and 'recommendation report' means the report required by reg 17E(4) (as substituted) (see the text to this note and note 18 infra) (reg 17J(1) (as so added)).

18 Ibid reg 17E(4) (as substituted: see note 16 supra).

19 Ie in accordance with ibid reg 17F(4) (as added): see note 17 supra.

20 Ibid reg 17E(5) (as substituted: see note 16 supra).

21 Ibid reg 17E(6) (as substituted: see note 16 supra).

22 Ibid reg 17E(7) (as substituted: see note 16 supra).

23 Ibid reg 17G (as added: see note 2 supra).

24 Ibid reg 17H(1) (as added: see note 2 supra).

25 Ibid reg 17H(2) (as added: see note 2 supra).

INTRODUCTION/(5) ENERGY EFFICIENCY OF BUILDINGS AND APPLIANCES/(i) Buildings/A. IN GENERAL/656. Energy performance of buildings; certificates and inspections.

656. Energy performance of buildings; certificates and inspections.

Where a building¹ is to be sold or rented out, the relevant person² must make available free of charge a valid energy performance certificate³ to any prospective buyer or tenant⁴ at the earliest opportunity and in any event before entering into a contract to sell or rent out the building or, if sooner, no later than whichever is the earlier of:

- 269 (1) in the case of a person who requests information about the building, the time at which the relevant person first makes available any information in writing about the building to the person; or
- 270 (2) in the case of a person who makes a request to view the building, the time at which the person views the building⁵.

This does not, however, apply if the relevant person believes on reasonable grounds that the prospective buyer or tenant:

- 271 (a) is unlikely to have sufficient means to buy or rent the building;
- 272 (b) is not genuinely interested in buying or renting a building of a general description which applies to the building; or
- 273 (c) is not a person to whom the relevant person is likely to be prepared to sell or rent out the building⁶.

The relevant person must ensure that a valid energy performance certificate has been given free of charge to the person who ultimately becomes the buyer or tenant⁷. An energy performance certificate must be given or made available to a prospective buyer or tenant at any time before the construction of the building has been completed⁸.

Where a building is to be sold or rented out in circumstances where there is a statutory duty to have a home information pack⁹, then if written particulars¹⁰ about the building are prepared for the purpose of providing information about the building to persons who may be interested in buying or renting the building and the written particulars are given to such a person by the relevant person, or by another person on his behalf, the person giving the particulars must ensure either that the particulars include the asset rating of the building expressed in the required way¹¹ or that a copy of an energy performance certificate for the building is attached to the particulars¹².

The above provisions do not apply in prescribed circumstances where the building is suitable for demolition and redevelopment¹³.

Subject to certain exceptions¹⁴, when a building to which building regulations do not apply is constructed, the relevant person must, no later than five days after the construction work has been completed, give to the owner of the building an energy performance certificate for the building¹⁵.

Where a relevant person is under a duty¹⁶ to make available or give an energy performance certificate to any person, the certificate must be accompanied by a recommendation report, that is, a report containing recommendations for the improvement of the energy performance of the building issued by the energy assessor who issued the energy performance certificate¹⁷.

It is sufficient to give or make available a copy of a valid energy performance certificate¹⁸ and if the recipient consents, this may be done electronically¹⁹. Information from an energy performance certificate, a recommendation report, or a copy of either of them, may only be disclosed in prescribed circumstances²⁰.

Provision is also made with regard to display energy certificates²¹ for larger buildings²² occupied by public authorities and by institutions providing public services to a large number of persons and which are frequented by such persons²³ and with regard to the inspection of air-conditioning systems²⁴.

The Secretary of State must maintain one or more registers of the following documents:

- 274 (i) energy performance certificates and recommendation reports;
- 275 (ii) display energy certificates; and
- 276 (iii) advisory reports²⁵.

Where an energy assessor issues any of those documents he must ensure that it, and the data which was used to calculate any asset rating or operational rating in it, is entered onto the relevant register before he gives it to the person who requested that he issue it²⁶. Each document entered onto the register must be registered under a unique reference number and must not be altered once registered²⁷. Any document or data entered onto the register must be kept on the register for a period of at least 20 years beginning on the date on which it is entered onto the register²⁸. Any document or data so entered may only be disclosed by the keeper of the register if he is authorised²⁹ to do so³⁰.

Where the relevant regulations³¹ impose a duty on a person to make available, give or display an energy performance certificate or a display energy certificate in relation to a building, or to ensure an air-conditioning system is inspected, it is the duty of every person with an interest in, or in occupation of, the building to allow such access to any energy assessor appointed by the above-mentioned person ('the responsible person') as is reasonably necessary to inspect the building for the purposes of:

- 277 (A) preparing an energy performance certificate and recommendation report;
- 278 (B) preparing a display energy certificate or advisory report; or
- 279 (C) inspecting an air-conditioning system; and to co-operate with the responsible person so far as is reasonably necessary to enable him to comply with that duty³².

Enforcement of these provisions is dealt with elsewhere in this work³³.

1 'Building' means a roofed construction having walls, for which energy is used to condition the indoor climate, and a reference to a building includes a reference to a part of a building which has been designed or altered to be used separately: Energy Performance of Buildings (Certificates and Inspections) (England and Wales) Regulations 2007, SI 2007/991, reg 2(1). Subject to reg 4, and notwithstanding the Building Act 1984 s 4 (as amended) (prospectively repealed), the Energy Performance of Buildings (Certificates and Inspections) (England and Wales) Regulations 2007, SI 2007/991 (as amended), other than reg 8, apply to all buildings including buildings which are exempt from building regulations by virtue of that provision: Energy Performance of Buildings (Certificates and Inspections) (England and Wales) Regulations 2007, SI 2007/991, reg 1(2). As to their application to the Crown see reg 49. Regulations 5-14 (as amended) do not, however, apply to (1) buildings which are used primarily or solely as places of worship; (2) temporary buildings with a planned time of use of two years or less, industrial sites, workshops and non-residential agricultural buildings with low energy demand; (3) stand-alone buildings with a total useful floor area of less than 50 square metres which are not dwellings: reg 4(1). 'Dwelling' means a building or part of a building occupied or intended to be occupied as a separate dwelling: reg 2(1).

2 'Relevant person' means (1) in relation to a building which is to be sold, the seller; (2) in relation to a building which is to be rented out, the prospective landlord; (3) in relation to a building in circumstances where reg 9 (construction of Crown and statutory undertakers' buildings: see the text and notes 14-15 infra) applies, the person responsible for carrying out the construction work; and (4) in relation to an air-conditioning system, the person who has control of the operation of the system: ibid reg 2(1). 'Air-conditioning system' means a combination of all the components required to provide a form of air treatment in which the temperature is controlled or can be lowered, and includes systems which combine such air treatment with the control of ventilation, humidity and air cleanliness: reg 2(1).

3 'Energy performance certificate' means a certificate which complies with ibid reg 11(1) or with the Building Regulations 2000, SI 2000/2531, reg 17E (as substituted) (see PARA 655 ante): Energy Performance of Buildings (Certificates and Inspections) (England and Wales) Regulations 2007, SI 2007/991, reg 2(1). An energy performance certificate must (1) express the asset rating of the building in a way approved by the Secretary of State under the Building Regulations 2000, SI 2000/2531, reg 17A (as substituted) (see PARA 655 ante); (2) include a reference value such as a current legal standard or benchmark; (3) be issued by an energy assessor who is accredited to produce energy performance certificates for that category of building; and (4) include the following information: (a) the reference number under which the certificate has been registered in accordance with reg 31 (see the text and notes 25-28 infra); (b) the address of the building; (c) an estimate of the total useful floor area of the building; (d) the name of the energy assessor who issued it; (e) the name and address of the energy assessor's employer, or, if he is self-employed, the name under which he trades and his address; (f) the date on which it was issued; and (g) the name of the approved accreditation scheme of which the energy assessor is a member: Energy Performance of Buildings (Certificates and Inspections) (England and Wales) Regulations 2007, SI 2007/991, reg 11(1). A certificate which complies with the Building Regulations 2000, SI 2000/2531, reg 17E (as substituted) is also an energy performance certificate: Energy Performance of Buildings (Certificates and Inspections) (England and Wales) Regulations 2007, SI 2007/991, reg 11(2). Subject to reg 11(4), an energy performance certificate is only valid for the purposes of Pt 2 (regs 4-14) (as amended) if it was issued no more than ten years before the date on which it is made available and no other energy performance certificate for the building has since been obtained by or provided to the relevant person: reg 11(3). If a building is to be sold or rented out in circumstances where the Housing Act 2004 s 155(1) (duty to have a home information pack) or s 159(2) (estate agent's duty to have a home information pack) imposes a duty on any person in relation to that building, an energy performance certificate for the building is only valid for these purposes if it was issued no earlier than the date that falls 12 months before the first point of marketing of the building: see the Energy Performance of Buildings (Certificates and Inspections) (England and Wales) Regulations 2007, SI 2007/991, reg 11(4), (5) (respectively amended and substituted by substituted by SI 2007/1669). An energy performance certificate must not contain any information or data, (except for the address of the building, from which a living individual (other than the energy assessor or his employer) can be identified: Energy Performance of Buildings (Certificates and Inspections) (England and Wales) Regulations 2007, SI 2007/991, reg 11(6) (as so amended). Certification for apartments or units designed or altered for separate use in blocks may be based (i) except in the case of a dwelling, on a common certification of the whole building for blocks with a common heating system; or (ii) on the assessment of another representative apartment or unit in the same block: reg 11(7). Where a block with a common heating system is divided into parts designed or altered for separate use and one or more, but not all, of the parts are dwellings, certification for those parts which are not dwellings may be based on a common certification of all the parts which are not dwellings: reg 11(8). 'Asset rating' means a numerical indicator of the amount of energy estimated to meet the different needs associated with a standardised use of a building, calculated according to the methodology approved by the Secretary of State pursuant to the Building Regulations 2000, SI 2000/2531, reg 17A (as substituted) (see PARA 655 ante): Energy Performance of Buildings (Certificates and Inspections) (England and Wales) Regulations 2007, SI 2007/991, reg 2(1).

For these purposes, 'energy assessor' means an individual who is a member of an accreditation scheme; and 'accreditation scheme' means a scheme approved by the Secretary of State in accordance with either reg 25, or with the Building Regulations 2000, SI 2000/2531, reg 17F (as added) (see PARA 655 ante): Energy Performance of Buildings (Certificates and Inspections) (England and Wales) Regulations 2007, SI 2007/991, reg 2(1). As to accreditation see reg 25; as an energy assessor's duty to disclose certain connections see reg 26; and as to the duty of care owed by energy assessors see reg 27. Any person may, for the purpose of complying with any duty imposed by the 2007 Regulations, copy or issue a copy of any document produced by an energy assessor: reg 28.

4 A person becomes a prospective buyer or tenant in relation to a building when he (1) requests any information about the building from the relevant person or his agent for the purpose of deciding whether to buy or rent the building; (2) makes a request to view the building for the purpose of deciding whether to buy or rent the building; or (3) makes an offer, whether oral or written, to buy or rent the building: ibid reg 3.

5 Ibid reg 5(1), (2).

6 Ibid reg 5(3). Nothing in reg 5(3) authorises the doing of anything which constitutes an unlawful act of discrimination: reg 5(4).

7 Ibid reg 5(5).

8 Ibid reg 4(2).

9 le where a duty under the Housing Act 2004 s 155(1) (duty to have a home information pack) or s 159(2) (estate agent's duty to have a home information pack) applies to any person in relation to that building.

10 For these purposes, 'written particulars' means any written description of the property which includes at least two of the following: (1) a photograph of the building or any room in the building; (2) a floor plan of the building; or (3) a description of the size of the rooms in the building; and a reference to giving particulars includes a reference to giving or making available particulars electronically: Energy Performance of Buildings (Certificates and Inspections) (England and Wales) Regulations 2007, SI 2007/991, reg 6(3).

11 le the way required by ibid reg 11(1)(a): see note 3 head (1) supra.

12 Ibid reg 6(1), (2).

13 See ibid reg 7.

14 Ibid reg 9(2) does not apply to (1) buildings which are exempt from building regulations by virtue of the Building Regulations 2000, SI 2000/2531, reg 9 (as amended) (exempt building and work: see BUILDING vol 4(2) (2002 Reissue) PARA 313); (2) buildings which are used primarily or solely as places of worship; (3) temporary buildings with a planned time of use of two years or less, industrial sites, workshops and non-residential agricultural buildings with low energy demand; and (4) stand-alone buildings with a total useful floor area of less than 50 square metres which are not dwellings: Energy Performance of Buildings (Certificates and Inspections) (England and Wales) Regulations 2007, SI 2007/991, reg 9(1).

15 Ibid reg 9(2).

16 le under ibid reg 5(2), 5(5) or 9(2).

17 Ibid reg 10(1), (2).

18 See ibid reg 12.

19 See ibid reg 13.

20 See ibid reg 14.

21 'Display energy certificate' means a certificate which complies with ibid reg 17: reg 2(1). A display energy certificate must (1) subject to reg 18, express the operational rating and the asset rating of the building in ways approved by the Secretary of State under the Building Regulations 2000, SI 2000/2531, reg 17A (as substituted); (2) show the operational ratings for the building which were expressed in any certificates displayed by the occupier during the two years before the nominated date; (3) include a reference value such as a current legal standard or benchmark; (4) be issued by an energy assessor who is accredited to produce display energy certificates for that category of building; (5) include the following information; (a) the reference number under which the certificate has been registered in accordance with reg 31 (as amended) (see the text and notes 25-28 infra); (b) the address of the building; (c) an estimate of the total useful floor area of the building; (d) the name of the energy assessor who issued it; (e) the name and address of the energy assessor's employer, or, if he is self-employed, the name under which he trades and his address; (f) the date on which it was issued; (g) the nominated date; and (h) the name of the approved accreditation scheme of which the energy assessor is a member: Energy Performance of Buildings (Certificates and Inspections) (England and Wales) Regulations 2007, SI 2007/991, reg 17. There are prescribed exemptions with regard to changes in occupier etc: see reg 18. 'Operational rating' means a numeric indicator of the amount of energy consumed during the occupation of the building over a period of 12 months (unless reg 18(4) applies) ending no earlier than three months before the nominated date, calculated according to the methodology approved by the Secretary of State for the purposes of the Building Regulations 2000, SI 2000/2531, reg 17A (as substituted); and 'nominated date', in relation to a display energy certificate, means a date no later than three months after the end of the period over which the operational rating is calculated, which is nominated by the energy assessor who issued the certificate: Energy Performance of Buildings (Certificates and Inspections) (England and Wales) Regulations 2007, SI 2007/991, reg 15.

22 le buildings with a total useful floor area over 1,000 square metres.

INTRODUCTION/(5) ENERGY EFFICIENCY OF BUILDINGS AND APPLIANCES/(i) Buildings/A. IN GENERAL/657. Conservation of fuel and power in buildings.

657. Conservation of fuel and power in buildings.

Building work¹ must be carried out so that it complies with the following requirements². Reasonable provision must be made for the conservation of fuel and power in buildings³ by:

- 280 (1) limiting heat gains and losses:
 - 29. (a) through thermal elements⁴ and other parts of the building fabric; and
 - 30. (b) from pipes, ducts and vessels used for space heating, space cooling and hot water services⁵;
- 20
 - 281 (2) providing and commissioning energy efficient fixed building services⁶ with effective controls⁷; and
 - 282 (3) providing to the owner sufficient information about the building, the fixed building services and their maintenance requirements so that the building can be operated in such a manner as to use no more fuel and power than is reasonable in the circumstances⁸.

Where there is a change to a building's⁹ energy status¹⁰, such work, if any, must be carried out as is necessary to ensure that the building complies with the applicable requirements of heads (1) to (3) above¹¹.

Not later than six months after 21 August 2006¹², the Secretary of State was to lay before Parliament a report on what, if any, steps he had taken during the reporting period¹³, or which he proposed to take, with a view to securing a greater incidence of compliance with relevant provisions¹⁴ of building regulations¹⁵. He may from time to time lay further such reports before Parliament¹⁶.

The enforcement of, and exemptions from, building regulations are dealt with elsewhere in this work¹⁷.

1 For the meaning of 'building work' see the Building Regulations 2000, SI 2000/2531, reg 3 (as amended); and BUILDING.

2 See ibid reg 4(1), (1A) (respectively amended and added by SI 2006/652). See also the Building Regulations 2000, SI 2000/2531, reg 6(1) (amended for these purposes by SI 2006/652).

3 For the meaning of 'building' see PARA 655 note 2 ante.

4 'Thermal element' means a wall, floor or roof (but does not include windows, doors, roof windows or roof lights) which separates a thermally conditioned part of the building ('the conditioned space') from (1) the external environment (including the ground); or (2) in the case of floors and walls, another part of the building which is either (a) unconditioned; (b) an extension falling within the Building Regulations 2000, SI 2000/2531, Sch 2 Class VII; or (c) where this provision applies, conditioned to a different temperature: reg 2(2A) (reg 2(2A), (2B) added by SI 2006/652). Head (c) supra only applies to a building which is not a dwelling, where the other part of the building is used for a purpose which is not similar or identical to the purpose for which the conditioned space is used: Building Regulations 2000, SI 2000/2531, reg 2(2B) (as so added). 'Thermal element' includes all parts of the element between the surface bounding the conditioned space and the external environment or other part of the building as the case may be: reg 2(2A) (as so added). For the meaning of 'dwelling' see PARA 655 note 15 ante.

Where a person intends to renovate a thermal element, such work must be carried out as is necessary to ensure that the whole thermal element complies with the requirements of Sch 1 Pt L1(a)(i) (see head (1)(a) in the text); and where a thermal element is replaced, the new thermal element must comply with those requirements: reg 4A(1), (2) (added by SI 2006/652).

5 Building Regulations 2000, SI 2000/2531, Sch 1 Pt L1(a) (Sch 1 Pt L substituted by SI 2006/652). In the case of the erection of a building in relation to which the Building Regulations 2000, SI 2000/2531, Sch 1 Pt L1(a) (as substituted) imposes a requirement, the person carrying out the work must, for the purpose of ensuring compliance with reg 17C (as added) (see PARA 655 ante) and with Sch 1 Pt L1(a)(i) (as added) (see head (1)(a) in the text): (1) ensure that: (a) pressure testing is carried out in such circumstances as are approved by the Secretary of State; and (b) the testing is carried out in accordance with a procedure approved by the Secretary of State; and (2) subject to reg 20B(5) (as added), give notice of the results of the testing to the local authority: see reg 20B(1), (2) (reg 20B added by SI 2006/652). That notice must (i) record the results and the data upon which they are based in a manner approved by the Secretary of State; and (ii) be given to the local authority not later than seven days after the final test is carried out: Building Regulations 2000, SI 2000/2531, reg 20B(3) (as so added). A local authority is authorised to accept, as evidence that the requirements of head (1)(b) supra have been satisfied, a certificate to that effect by a person who is registered by the British Institute of Non-destructive Testing in respect of pressure testing for the air tightness of buildings: reg 20B(4) (as so added). Where such a certificate contains the information required by reg 20B(3)(a) (as added) (see head (i) supra), reg 20(2)(b) (as added) (see head (2) supra) does not apply: reg 20B(5) (as so added). As to the Secretary of State see PARA 601 note 1 ante.

6 For the meaning of 'fixed building services' see PARA 655 note 10 supra.

7 Building Regulations 2000, SI 2000/2531, Sch 1 Pt L1(b) (as substituted: see note 5 supra). In the case of building work in relation to which Sch 1 Pt L1(b) imposes a requirement, except where the work consists only of work described in Sch 2B (as added and amended), the person carrying out the work must, for the purpose of ensuring compliance with Sch 1 Pt L1(b) (as substituted), give to the local authority a notice confirming that the fixed building services have been commissioned in accordance with a procedure approved by the Secretary of State: reg 20C(1) (added by SI 2006/652). The notice must be given to the local authority (1) not later than the date on which the notice required by reg 15(4) (as amended) (completion notices) is required to be given; or (2) where reg 15(4) (as amended) does not apply, not more than 30 days after completion of the work: reg 20C(2) (as so added).

8 Ibid Sch 1 Pt L1(c) (as substituted: see note 5 supra).

9 For these purposes, 'building' means the building as a whole or parts of it that have been designed or altered to be used separately: ibid reg 4B(2) (reg 4B added by SI 2006/652).

10 'Change to a building's energy status' means any change which results in a building becoming a building to which the energy efficiency requirements of the Building Regulations 2000, SI 2000/2531 (as amended) apply, where previously it was not; and 'energy efficiency requirements' means the requirements of regs 4A, 17C-17E (as added and amended) (see note 4 supra; and PARA 655 ante) and Sch 1 Pt L (as substituted): reg 2(1) (definitions added by SI 2006/652; definition of 'energy efficiency requirements' amended by SI 2007/991, with effect from 1 January 2008 in relation to dwellings and 6 April 2008 for remaining purposes).

11 Ibid reg 4B(1) (as added: see note 9 supra).

The relevant report was published on 21 February 2007: see Monitoring the Sustainability of Buildings (Department for Communities and Local Government, 06 BD 04405). At the date at which this title states the law, that report was accessible at www.communities.gov.uk.

13 'Reporting period' means the period specified in the report as the period to which the report relates: Climate Change and Sustainable Energy Act 2006 s 14(3).

14 'Relevant provision', in relation to building regulations, means a provision of building regulations which is in force at any time during the reporting period and which, in the opinion of the Secretary of State, was made (1) for the purpose of furthering the conservation of fuel and power, or otherwise in connection with the use of fuel and power; or (2) for the purpose of reducing emissions of greenhouse gases: ibid s 14(3).

15 See ibid s 14(1)(a), (2). As to the relevant report see note 12 supra. At the date at which this title states the law, that report was accessible at www.communities.gov.uk.

INTRODUCTION/(5) ENERGY EFFICIENCY OF BUILDINGS AND APPLIANCES/(i) Buildings/B. RESIDENTIAL ACCOMMODATION/658. Energy efficiency and conservation.

B. RESIDENTIAL ACCOMMODATION

658. Energy efficiency and conservation.

The Secretary of State¹ must designate at least one energy efficiency aim² in relation to residential accommodation³, and may at any time after such designation designate a further energy efficiency aim or aims⁴. He must take reasonable steps to achieve any aim so designated⁵. In relation to England, he must take reasonable steps to ensure that by 2010 the general level of energy efficiency of residential accommodation in England has increased by at least 20 per cent compared with the general level of such energy efficiency in 2000⁶.

As part of the policy of encouraging households to reduce energy consumption at home, the Home Energy Conservation Act 1995 allows for the drawing up of local energy conservation reports in relation to residential accommodation⁷.

Under the Social Security Act 1990, grants may be payable for the improvement of energy conservation in certain dwellings⁸.

The relevant authority⁹ must have prepared and published a strategy setting out the authority's policies for ensuring, by means including the taking of measures to ensure the efficient use of energy, that as far as reasonably practicable persons do not live in fuel poverty¹⁰. Winter fuel payments are made out of the social fund to any person who, in the third week of September in any year, is aged 60 or over, is ordinarily resident in Great Britain and satisfies certain specified conditions and exclusions¹¹.

All these matters are dealt with in more detail elsewhere in this work¹².

NOTE 7--SI 2005/157 art 4 amended: SI 2009/714.

NOTE 10--Day appointed is 1 October 2008: SI 2008/2550.

Halsbury's Laws of England/FUEL AND ENERGY (VOLUME 19(1) (2007 REISSUE) PARAS 601-775; VOLUME 19(2) (2007 REISSUE) PARAS 776-1328); VOLUME 19(3) (2007 REISSUE) PARAS 1329-1927)/1. INTRODUCTION/(5) ENERGY EFFICIENCY OF BUILDINGS AND APPLIANCES/(ii) Appliances/659. Ecodesign of boilers, refrigerators and ballasts for fluorescent lighting.

(ii) Appliances

659. Ecodesign of boilers, refrigerators and ballasts for fluorescent lighting.

The Ecodesign for Energy-Using Products Regulations 2007¹, which came into force on 11 August 2007², prohibit the placing on the market of a boiler or an appliance³, a refrigerator appliance⁴ or a ballast for fluorescent lighting⁵ (a 'listed product') unless it conforms to the prescribed product requirements⁶. A manufacturer of a listed product must assess that the product conforms to the product requirements; and provision is made for the conformity assessment procedures and for affixing the CE conformity marking⁷. Similar requirements are imposed on authorised representatives and on importers of listed products⁸. Where a listed product, or the packaging or documentation that accompanies that product, bears the CE conformity marking, the listed product is presumed to conform to the product requirements for that product⁹. Where a manufacturer, authorised representative or importer of a listed product becomes aware that he has put a listed product on the market which does not conform to the product requirements, he must either take steps to bring it into conformity as soon as possible, or, if this is not possible, he must withdraw it from the market¹⁰.

The affixing of markings on listed products that may mislead a person to believe that they conform to the product requirements is prohibited¹¹.

There are prescribed requirements as to the documentation that a manufacturer, authorised representative or importer of a listed product must keep¹².

The Secretary of State¹³ may approve persons as notified bodies for the purposes of determining, within the conformity assessment procedure or procedures applicable to a listed product, that the product conforms to the appropriate product requirements¹⁴.

Enforcement of the 2007 Regulations is the responsibility of local weights and measures authorities in England and Wales¹⁵.

Contravention of certain provisions of the regulations is an offence¹⁶. Where a person is convicted of such an offence, the court may make a remediation order in respect of him¹⁷.

1 I.e. the Ecodesign for Energy-Using Products Regulations 2007, SI 2007/2037: see the text and notes 2-17 infra. Those regulations implement European Parliament and EC Council Directive 2005/32 (OJ L191, 22.7.2005, p 29) establishing a framework for the setting of eco-design requirements for energy-using products. See further the Directives mentioned in note 9 infra.

2 Ecodesign for Energy-Using Products Regulations 2007, SI 2007/2037, reg 1.

3 For these purposes, 'a boiler' means the combined boiler body-burner unit which (1) is designed to transmit to water the heat released from burning; (2) is fired by liquid or gaseous fuels; and (3) has a rated output of no less than 4kW and no more than 400kW; and 'an appliance' means (a) the boiler body designed to have a burner fitted; or (b) the burner designed to be fitted to a boiler body: ibid Sch 1 Pt 2 para 1. The following are not within that definition: (i) a boiler capable of being fired by fuels other than liquid or gaseous fuels, including solid fuels; (ii) equipment for the instantaneous preparation of hot water; (iii) a boiler designed to be fired by fuels the properties of which differ appreciably from liquid or gaseous fuels commonly marketed; (iv) a cooker or an appliance designed mainly to heat the premises in which it is installed and, as a subsidiary function, to supply hot water for central heating and sanitary hot water; (v) an appliance with a rated output of less than 6kW using gravity circulation and designed solely for the production of stored sanitary hot water; (vi) a boiler manufactured on a one-off basis; or (vii) cogeneration units as defined in European Parliament and EC

Council Directive 2004/8 (OJ L52, 21.2.2004, p 50) on the promotion of cogeneration based on a useful heat demand in the internal energy market: Ecodesign for Energy-Using Products Regulations 2007, SI 2007/2037, reg 3(1), Sch 1 Pt 2 para 2.

4 For these purposes, 'a refrigerator appliance' means (1) a refrigerator; (2) a frozen food storage cabinet; (3) a food freezer; or (4) a combination of any of head (1), head (2) or head (3) supra, for household use supplied by mains electricity: ibid Sch 1 Pt 3 para 1. The following are not within that definition: (a) a refrigerator appliance manufactured on a one-off basis; (b) a refrigerator appliance capable of using energy sources apart from mains electricity, in particular accumulators; or (c) a refrigerator appliance working on the absorption principle: Sch 1 Pt 3 para 2.

5 For these purposes, 'a ballast for fluorescent lighting' means a ballast operated by mains electricity and used for fluorescent lighting, as defined in European Standard EN 50294 point 3.4 (ie the Standard issued with that designation by the European Committee for Electromechanical Standardisation): Ecodesign for Energy-Using Products Regulations 2007, SI 2007/2037, reg 2(1), Sch 1 Pt 4 para 1. The following are not within that definition: (1) a ballast integrated within a lamp; (2) a ballast (a) designed specifically for a luminaire to be mounted in furniture; (b) which forms a non-replaceable part of the luminaire; and (c) which cannot be tested separately from the luminaire, according to European Standard 60920 point 2.1.3 (ie the Standard issued with that designation by the European Committee for Electromechanical Standardisation); or (3) a ballast to be exported from the Community either as a single component or incorporated in a luminaire: Ecodesign for Energy-Using Products Regulations 2007, SI 2007/2037, reg 2(1), Sch 1 Pt 4 para 2.

6 Ibid reg 3(1), Sch 1 Pt 1. That restriction does not apply to certain displays of listed products: see reg 6. As to product requirements see reg 3(2), Sch 2.

7 See ibid reg 4, Schs 3-6.

8 See ibid reg 5.

9 See ibid reg 7(1). Unless the contrary is proved, where harmonised standards have been applied to a listed product, and the reference numbers of those standards have been published in the Official Journal, the listed product is presumed to comply with the requirements of the implementing measure to the extent that the harmonised standards relate to those requirements: reg 7(2). Unless the contrary is proved, where a listed product has been awarded a Community eco-label, the listed product is presumed to comply with the eco-design requirements for that product to the extent that the Community eco-label relates to those requirements; and for these purposes, 'Community eco-label' means (1) a label that meets the requirements of European Parliament and EC Council Regulation 1980/2000 (OJ L237, 21.9.2000, p 1) on a revised Community eco-label award scheme; or (2) a label which the Commission determines meets equivalent conditions for such a label: Ecodesign for Energy-Using Products Regulations 2007, SI 2007/2037, reg 7(3), (4). 'Implementing measure' in relation to: (a) a boiler or an appliance, means EEC Council Directive 92/42 (OJ L167, 22.6.92, p 17) (as amended) on efficiency requirements for new hot water boilers fired with liquid or gaseous fuels; (b) a refrigerator appliance, means European Parliament and EC Council Directive 96/57 (OJ L236, 18.9.96, p 36) (as amended) on energy efficiency requirements for household electric refrigerators, freezers and combinations thereof; (c) a ballast for fluorescent lighting, means European Parliament and EC Council Directive 2000/55 (OJ L279, 1.11.2000, p 33) on energy efficiency requirements for ballasts for fluorescent lighting: Ecodesign for Energy-Using Products Regulations 2007, SI 2007/2037, Sch 1 Pt 1 para 2.

Halsbury's Laws of England/FUEL AND ENERGY (VOLUME 19(1) (2007 REISSUE) PARAS 601-775; VOLUME 19(2) (2007 REISSUE) PARAS 776-1328); VOLUME 19(3) (2007 REISSUE) PARAS 1329-1927)/1. INTRODUCTION/(5) ENERGY EFFICIENCY OF BUILDINGS AND APPLIANCES/(ii) Appliances/660. Energy consumption by household appliances.

660. Energy consumption by household appliances.

A number of European Directives require that the consumption of energy and other resources by household appliances is to be indicated by labelling and standard product information¹. In the exercise of his powers under the European Communities Act 1972², the Secretary of State³ has made regulations implementing those Directives in respect of:

- 283 (1) combined washer-driers⁴;
- 284 (2) dishwashers⁵;
- 285 (3) household air conditioners⁶;
- 286 (4) household electric ovens⁷;
- 287 (5) household refrigerators and freezers⁸;
- 288 (6) lamps⁹;
- 289 (7) tumble driers¹⁰; and
- 290 (8) washing machines¹¹.

Those regulations do not, in general, apply to secondhand appliances¹²; but where certain secondhand appliances which are sold or displayed by a dealer have energy efficiency labels or are accompanied with energy information notices, the dealer is required to comply with any obligations imposed on him by the relevant regulations¹³.

Enforcement of the regulations is the responsibility of local weights and measures authorities¹⁴.

1 See the Directives cited in notes 4-11 infra.

3 As to the Secretary of State see PARA 601 note 1 ante.

4 See the Energy Information (Combined Washer-driers) Regulations 1997, SI 1997/1624 (amended by SI 2001/3142; SI 2003/1398), which implement EEC Council Directive 92/75 (OJ L297, 13.10.92, p 16) (as amended) on the indication by labelling and standard product information of the consumption of energy and other resources by household appliances and EC Commission Directive 96/60 (OJ L266, 18.10.96, p 1) implementing that parent Directive with regard to energy labelling of household combined washer-driers. Those regulations (1) require suppliers of mains electric household combined washer-driers to supply labels and tables of information (called information notices) with information about the energy consumption of those appliances (see the Energy Information (Combined Washer-driers) Regulations 1997, SI 1997/1624, regs 2-5, Schs 1, 2, 4); (2) provide that suppliers are deemed to consent to the information in labels and information notices being published (see reg 6); (3) make suppliers responsible for the accuracy of the information (see reg 7 (substituted by SI 2001/3142)); (4) require suppliers to establish technical documentation to enable the accuracy of the information to be assessed (see the Energy Information (Combined Washer-driers) Regulations 1997, SI 1997/1624, reg 8); (5) require dealers (as defined in reg 2) to attach the label to an appliance on display (see reg 9 (amended by SI 2001/3142)); (6) require similar information to be given where sales are by means of printed communications such as mail order catalogues (see the Energy Information (Combined Washer-driers) Regulations 1997, SI 1997/1624, reg 12 (as so amended), Schs 3, 4); (7) stop misleading information about energy consumption of the appliances being displayed (see reg 13); and (8) create criminal offences and contain other provisions on enforcement (see reg 14, Sch 5 (amended by SI 2001/3142; SI 2003/1398)).

5 See the Energy Information (Dishwashers) Regulations 1999, SI 1999/1676 (amended by SI 2001/3142; SI 2003/1398), which implement EEC Council Directive 92/75 (OJ L297, 13.10.92, p 16) (as amended) on the indication by labelling and standard product information of the consumption of energy and other resources by household appliances and EC Commission Directive 97/17 (OJ L118, 7.5.97, p 1) (as amended) implementing that parent Directive with regard to energy labelling of household dishwashers. Those regulations (1) oblige suppliers (defined in the Energy Information (Dishwashers) Regulations 1999, SI 1999/1676, reg 2) to supply labels (which comply with Schs 1, 4) and information notices (which comply with Schs 2, 4) about the energy consumption of regulated dishwashers (as defined in reg 3) (see regs 4, 5); (2) provide that suppliers are deemed to consent to the publication of the information given on a label or in an information notice (see reg 6); (3) make suppliers responsible for the accuracy of the information (see reg 7) and require them to establish, before the dishwasher is placed on the Community market, technical documentation to enable the accuracy of the information to be assessed (see reg 8); (4) require dealers (as defined in reg 2), to attach a label to a regulated dishwasher displayed to end-users (see reg 9); (5) require dealers, where a regulated dishwasher is for sale by printed communication eg mail order or other long distance selling, to provide relevant information as determined in Schs 3, 4 (see reg 10 (amended by SI 2001/3142)); (6) prohibit the display of misleading information about energy consumption of regulated dishwashers (see the Energy Information (Dishwashers) Regulations 1999, SI 1999/1676, reg 11); and (7) contain provisions on offences, penalties and other matters of enforcement (see reg 12, Sch 5 (amended by SI 2001/3142; SI 2003/1398)).

6 See the Energy Information (Household Air Conditioners) (No 2) Regulations 2005, SI 2005/1726, which implement EEC Council Directive 92/75 (OJ L297, 13.10.92, p 16) (as amended) on the indication by labelling and standard product information of the consumption of energy and other resources by household appliances and EC Commission Directive 2002/31 (OJ L86, 3.4.2002, p 26) implementing that parent Directive with regard to energy labelling of household air-conditioners. Those regulations (1) apply to electric mains operated household air or water cooled air conditioners of specified types (see the Energy Information (Household Air Conditioners) (No 2) Regulations 2005, SI 2005/1726, reg 3), subject to certain exclusions (see reg 4); (2) require suppliers (defined in reg 2) to establish technical documentation before placing such air conditioners on the market (see regs 5, 6); (3) require suppliers to provide labels to dealers free of charge (see reg 7, Schs 1, 3); (4) require dealers (as defined in reg 2(2)) to attach such labels to regulated appliances (see reg 11); (5) require suppliers to provide free of charge an information sheet (see reg 8, Sch 2), which must be included in any product brochure where provided, or, in other cases, with any other information provided; (6) provide that suppliers are deemed to have consented to that information being published and that they have a duty to ensure the accuracy of such information (see regs 9, 10); (7) provide that certain information is to be provided in cases of distance selling (see reg 12); (8) make provision for translating certain terms into languages other than English (see reg 13); (9) prohibit the provision of misleading information relating to energy information (see reg 14) and (10) make provision with regard to enforcement (see reg 16, Sch 4). Unless there is evidence to the contrary, labels and information sheets are to be deemed to comply with the provisions of those regulations: reg 15.

7 See the Energy Information (Household Electric Ovens) Regulations 2003, SI 2003/751, which implement EEC Council Directive 92/75 (OJ L297, 13.10.92, p 16) (as amended) on the indication by labelling and standard product information of the consumption of energy and other resources by household appliances and EC Commission Directive 2002/40 (OJ L128, 15.5.2002, p 45) implementing that parent Directive with regard to energy labelling of household electric ovens. Those regulations (1) apply to mains operated household electric ovens including ovens which are part of larger appliances, but excluding microwave and certain other ovens (see the Energy Information (Household Electric Ovens) Regulations 2003, SI 2003/751, regs 3, 4); (2) require suppliers (as defined in reg 2) to supply labels (which comply with Schs 1 and 4) and information notices (which comply with Schs 2 and 4) about the energy consumption of those regulated household electric ovens (see regs 7, 8); (3) provide that suppliers are deemed to consent to the publication of the information given on a label or in an information notice (see reg 9); (4) make suppliers responsible for the accuracy of the information (see reg 10) and require them to establish, before the electric oven is placed on the Community market, technical documentation to enable the accuracy of the information to be assessed (see regs 5, 6); (5) require dealers (as defined in reg 2) to attach a label to a regulated household electric oven displayed to end-users (see reg 11); (6) require the dealer, where a regulated household electric oven is for sale by communication (as defined in reg 2), to provide relevant information as set out in Schs 3, 4 (see reg 12); (7) prohibit the display of misleading information about the energy consumption of regulated household electric ovens (see reg 14); (8) provide for the translation of certain terms into languages other than English (see reg 13, Sch 5); (9) provide for the presumption of compliance (reg 15); and (10) contain provisions on offences, penalties and other matters of enforcement (see reg 16, Sch 6).

8 See the Energy Information (Household Refrigerators and Freezers) Regulations 2004, SI 2004/1468, which implement EEC Council Directive 92/75 (OJ L297, 13.10.92, p 16) (as amended) on the indication by labelling and standard product information of the consumption of energy and other resources by household appliances and EC Commission Directive 94/2 (OJ L45, 17.2.94, p 1) (as amended) implementing that parent Directive with regard to energy labelling of household electric refrigerators, freezers and their combinations. Those regulations (1) apply to electric mains operated household electric refrigerators, freezers and their combinations, subject to certain exclusions (see the Energy Information (Household Refrigerators and Freezers) Regulations 2004, SI 2004/1468, regs 3, 4); (2) require suppliers (as defined in reg 2) to supply labels (which must comply with Schs 1, 4) free of charge to dealers and supply information sheets (which comply with Schs 2, 4, 5) giving information about the energy consumption of those appliances (see regs 7, 8); (3) make suppliers responsible for the accuracy of the information (see reg 9) and require them to establish, before the appliance is placed on the Community market, technical documentation to enable the accuracy of the information to be assessed and to retain that information for a period of five years after the last appliance of a particular model is manufactured (see regs 5, 6); (4) provide that suppliers are deemed to consent to the publication of the information given on a label or in an information sheet (see reg 10); (5) require dealers (as defined in reg 2) to attach labels to displayed appliances displayed to end-users (see reg 11); (6) require a person offering an appliance for sale by way of a communication (as defined in reg 2(2)), to provide certain information to the potential purchaser as set out in Sch 3 (see reg 12); (7) prohibit the display of misleading information about the energy consumption of an appliance (see reg 13); (8) provide a presumption of compliance in respect of labels and information sheets (see reg 14); and (9) contain provisions on offences, penalties and other matters of enforcement. (see reg 15, Sch 6).

9 See the Energy Information (Lamps) Regulations 1999, SI 1999/1517 (amended by SI 2001/3142; SI 2003/1398), which implement EEC Council Directive 92/75 (OJ L297, 13.10.92, p 16) (as amended) on the indication by labelling and standard product information of the consumption of energy and other resources by household appliances and EC Commission Directive 98/11 (OJ L71, 10.3.98, p 1) implementing that parent Directive with regard to energy labelling of household lamps. Those regulations (1) apply to 'regulated lamps' as defined in the Energy Information (Lamps) Regulations 1999, SI 1999/1517, reg 2(1), subject to certain exclusions (see regs 2, 3); (2) require the suppliers of regulated lamps to print on the packaging of every regulated lamp a label in the form, and containing the information, indicated in Sch 1, except that where that is not possible because of the size of the packaging, the supplier may attach to the packaging of the lamp a label containing the relevant information (see reg 4); (3) require suppliers who provide product brochures to include in the brochures the information that would otherwise be displayed on the label; where a supplier does not provide a product brochure, he must supply with the lamp information equivalent to that which would have been provided on a label; and information supplied in either of these ways is referred to as an information notice (see reg 5); (4) provide that the supplier is deemed to consent to the publication of the information given in a label or information notice (see reg 6); (5) make the supplier solely responsible for the accuracy of the information given in labels and information notices, and for establishing technical documentation for the purpose of enabling the accuracy of that information to be assessed (see regs 7, 8); (6) require a dealer who displays a regulated lamp to ensure that the lamp or its packaging bears a label containing the appropriate Sch 1 information; but he is relieved of this duty if he provides the information as part of the display, eg on the shelf on which the lamps are displayed (see reg 9); (7) require a dealer who offers for sale a regulated lamp by mail order or in other circumstances in which potential purchasers cannot be expected to see the lamp to provide relevant information as determined in Schs 2, 3 (see reg 10); (8) prohibit the display of labels, marks, symbols and inscriptions relating to energy consumption which, although not complying with the regulations, would be taken to comply and would be likely to mislead or confuse (see reg 11); (9) provide for enforcement, offences, penalties (see reg 12, Sch 4 (as so amended)).

10 See the Energy Information (Tumble Driers) Regulations 1996, SI 1996/601 (amended by SI 2001/3142; SI 2003/1398), which implement EEC Council Directive 92/75 (OJ L297, 13.10.92, p 16) (as amended) on the indication by labelling and standard product information of the consumption of energy and other resources by household appliances and EC Commission Directive 95/13 (OJ L136, 21.6.95, p 28) (as amended) implementing that parent Directive with regard to energy labelling of household electric tumble driers. Those regulations (1) apply to household tumble driers which are electric mains operated and unable to use other energy sources, subject to certain exclusions (see the Energy Information (Tumble Driers) Regulations 1996, SI 1996/601, reg 3); (2) require suppliers to supply to dealers free of charge labels complying with Schs 1, 4 (see reg 4 (amended by SI 2001/3142)) and to supply information notices (see the Energy Information (Tumble Driers) Regulations 1996, SI 1996/601, reg 5, Schs 2, 4); (3) provide that suppliers are deemed to consent to the publication of the information given on a label or in an information notice (see reg 6); (4) make suppliers solely responsible for the accuracy of labels and information notices (see reg 7 (substituted by SI 2001/3142)); (5) require suppliers to establish technical documentation sufficient to enable the accuracy of the information contained in a label or information notice to be assessed (see the Energy Information (Tumble Driers) Regulations 1996, SI 1996/601, reg 8); (6) require dealers who display or offers for sale an appliance to attach a label to the outside front or top of the appliance so that the label remains clearly visible and not obscured whenever the appliance is displayed (see reg 9 (amended by SI 2001/3142)); (7) set out requirements in the case of distance selling (see the Energy Information (Tumble Driers) Regulations 1996, SI 1996/601, reg 12, Sch 3 (as so amended)); (8) prohibit the display of misleading information (see reg 13); and (9) make provision for enforcement and offences (see reg 13, Sch 5 (amended by SI 2001/3142; SI 2003/1398)).

(6) TAXATION

(i) Climate Change Levy

A. INTRODUCTION

661. The charge to climate change levy.

A new tax known as 'climate change levy' was introduced by Schedule 6 to the Finance Act 2000¹ and is charged in accordance with that Schedule². The levy is under the care and management of the Commissioners for Revenue and Customs³ and is charged on taxable supplies⁴ of taxable commodities⁵. Any supply made before 1 April 2001 is, however, excluded from the levy⁶.

The following are⁷ taxable commodities for these purposes:

- 291 (1) electricity;
- 292 (2) any gas in a gaseous state that is of a kind supplied by a gas utility⁸;
- 293 (3) any petroleum gas, or other gaseous hydrocarbon, in a liquid state;
- 294 (4) coal and lignite;
- 295 (5) coke, and semi-coke, of coal or lignite;
- 296 (6) petroleum coke⁹.

The following are not taxable commodities:

- 297 (a) hydrocarbon oil or road fuel gas within the meaning of the Hydrocarbon Oil Duties Act 1979¹⁰;
- 298 (b) waste within the meaning of Part II¹¹ of the Environmental Protection Act 1990¹².

The Treasury may by regulations¹³ provide that a commodity of a description specified in the regulations is, or is not, a taxable commodity for these purposes¹⁴.

Levy is recoverable as a debt due to the Crown¹⁵. The Commissioners may by regulations make provision for securing continuity in the application of the relevant provisions of the Finance Act 2000 in cases where any business carried on by a person is transferred to another person as a going concern¹⁶.

1 See the Finance Act 2000 s 30(1).

2 Ibid s 30(1), Sch 6 para 1(1).

3 Ibid Sch 6 para 1(2) (Sch 6 amended throughout by virtue of the Commissioners for Revenue and Customs Act 2005 s 50).

4 Any supply of a taxable commodity is a taxable supply, subject to the provisions of the Finance Act 2000 Sch 6 Pt II (paras 4-24) (as amended) (see PARA 662 et seq post): Sch 6 para 2(2). References to a taxable supply include a supply that is deemed to be made under Sch 6 para 24 (as amended) (see PARA 670 post)

(subject to any exceptions provided for under Sch 6 para 21 (see PARA 668 post)) or under Sch 6 para 45A (as added) (see PARA 674 post): Sch 6 para 4(2)(b) (amended by the Finance Act 2007 s 23, Sch 2 paras 1, 2).

5 See the Finance Act 2000 Sch 6 para 2(1), (2).

6 Ibid Sch 6 para 10. Provision is made for the adjustment of contracts entered into before 1 April 2001: see Sch 6 para 142.

7 le subject to ibid Sch 6 para 3(2) and to regulations under Sch 6 para 3(3).

8 'Gas utility' means the holder of a licence under the Gas Act 1986 s 7A(1) (as substituted and amended) (supply licences: see PARA 807 post) or the corresponding Northern Ireland legislation, except where the holder is acting otherwise than for purposes connected with the carrying on of activities authorised by the licence (Finance Act 2000 Sch 6 paras 147, 150(3)); but this has effect subject to any direction under s 151(1) and any regulations under s 151(2) (Sch 6 para 150(4)). The Commissioners may by direction (a 'utility direction') make, in respect of a person (or persons) specified in the direction, provision authorised by Sch 6 para 151(3); and the Treasury may by regulations ('utility regulations') make, in respect of any person of a description specified in the regulations, provision so authorised; Sch 6 para 151(1), (2). The provision so authorised is provision for (1) a person who is an unregulated electricity supplier to be treated for levy purposes as being an electricity utility; (2) a person who is an unregulated gas supplier to be treated for levy purposes as being a gas utility; (3) a person who is an electricity utility to be treated for levy purposes as not being an electricity utility; (4) a person who is a gas utility to be treated for levy purposes as not being a gas utility: Sch 6 para 151(3). References in Sch 6 para 151(3) to provision for a person to be treated in a particular way for 'levy purposes' are to provision for him to be treated in that way for (a) the purposes of Sch 6 (as amended) (see PARA 662 et seq post); or (b) such of those purposes as are specified in the direction or regulations by which the provision is made: Sch 6 para 151(4). The power to make any provision by a utility direction or utility regulations may be exercised so that the provision applies in relation to a person only to an extent specified in, or determined under, the direction or regulations: Sch 6 para 151(5). A utility direction cannot take effect until it has been given by the Commissioners to each person in respect of whom it makes provision, and published by the Commissioners: Sch 6 para 151(6). Schedule 6 para 146(7)(b), (c) (see note 13 infra) applies to the power to make provision by a utility direction as to a power to make provision by regulations: Sch 6 para 151(7). For these purposes, 'unregulated electricity supplier' means a person who makes supplies of electricity and is not an electricity utility; and 'unregulated gas supplier' means a person who makes supplies of gas that is in a gaseous state and is of a kind supplied by a gas utility and is not a gas utility: Sch 6 para 151(8). 'Electricity utility' means the holder of a licence under the Electricity Act 1989 s 6(1)(d) (as substituted and amended) (supply licences: see PARA 1065 post) or under the corresponding Northern Ireland legislation, except where the holder is acting otherwise than for purposes connected with the carrying on of activities authorised by the licence (Finance Act 2000 Sch 6 paras 147, 150(1), (2)); but this has effect subject to any direction under Sch 6 para 151(1) and any regulations under Sch 6 para 151(2) (Sch 6 para 150(4)). As to the power to make regulations see further note 13 infra. Any such direction may be withdrawn or varied by a direction given in the same manner as the one withdrawn or varied: see Sch 6 para 145. Any direction required or authorised by or under Sch 6 (as amended) to be given by the Commissioners may be given by sending it by post in a letter addressed to each person affected by it at his latest or usual residence or place of business: Sch 6 para 144(2).

An unregulated gas supplier (within the meaning of Sch 6 para 151(8)) is to be treated for all climate change levy purposes as being a gas utility (i) to the extent of any supplies he makes in relation to which he is in breach of a requirement to hold a gas supply licence; (ii) to the extent that any part of his supplies of gas fall within the exception provided for by the Gas Act 1986 Sch 2A para 5 (as added and amended; prospectively repealed) (exception to prohibition on unlicensed activities for supplies to very large consumers: see PARA 804 post): Climate Change Levy (Electricity and Gas) Regulations 2001, SI 2001/1136, reg 7(1), (2). A holder of a gas supply licence (a) who receives supplies of gas in the course of acting otherwise than for purposes connected with the carrying on of activities authorised by that licence, is to be treated as being a gas utility for the purposes of the climate change levy treatment under the Finance Act 2000 Sch 6 para 6 (as amended) (see PARA 664 post) of the supplies of gas so received; (b) who is not an electricity utility, and who receives supplies of gas and uses that gas to produce electricity, is to be treated as being an electricity utility for the purposes of the climate change levy treatment under Sch 6 para 5 of any supplies he makes of the electricity so produced: Climate Change Levy (Electricity and Gas) Regulations 2001, SI 2001/1136, reg 7(3), (4). For these purposes, 'unregulated gas supplier' includes the holder of a gas supply licence acting otherwise than for purposes connected with the carrying on of activities authorised by that licence: reg 7(5).

An unregulated electricity supplier (within the meaning of the Finance Act 2000 Sch 6 para 151(8)) is to be treated for all climate change levy purposes as being an electricity utility to the extent of any supplies he makes in relation to which he is in breach of a requirement to hold an electricity supply licence; and for these purposes, 'unregulated electricity supplier' includes the holder of an electricity supply licence acting otherwise than for the purposes connected with the carrying on of activities authorised by that licence: Climate Change Levy (Electricity and Gas) Regulations 2001, SI 2001/1136, reg 3(1), (3). A holder of an electricity supply licence, who receives supplies of electricity in the course of acting otherwise than for purposes connected with the carrying on of activities authorised by that licence, is to be treated as being an electricity utility for the purposes of the climate change levy treatment under the Finance Act 2000 Sch 6 para 5 (as amended) (see PARA 663 post) of the supplies of electricity so received: Climate Change Levy (Electricity and Gas) Regulations 2001, SI 2001/1136, reg 3(2). See also reg 4, cited in PARA 663 note 1 post.

12 Finance Act 2000 Sch 6 para 3(2).

13 Any power under ibid Sch 6 (as amended) to make regulations is exercisable by statutory instrument: Sch 6 para 146(1). A statutory instrument that contains regulations made under Sch 6 (as amended), and is not subject to a requirement that a draft of the instrument be laid before Parliament and approved by a resolution of the House of Commons, is subject to annulment in pursuance of a resolution of the House of Commons: Sch 6 para 146(2). A statutory instrument that contains (whether alone or with other provisions) regulations under Sch 6 para 3(3), Sch 6 para 14(2) (as amended), Sch 6 para 15(4)(a), Sch 6 para 16, Sch 6 para 18(2), Sch 6 para 18A (as added), Sch 6 para 52, Sch 6 para 113(1), Sch 6 para 148(4), Sch 6 para 149 (as amended) or Sch 6 para 151(2) (regulations made by the Treasury: see PARA 661 ante, PARAS 663, 667, 675, 695 post) may not be made unless a draft of the statutory instrument containing the regulations has been laid before Parliament and approved by a resolution of the House of Commons: Sch 6 para 146(3) (amended by the Finance Act 2003 s 188(2)(c)). Where regulations under the Finance Act 2000 Sch 6 (as amended) made by the Commissioners impose a relevant requirement on any person, they may provide that if the person fails to comply with the requirement he is to be liable, subject to Sch 6 para 146(5), to a penalty of £250: Sch 6 para 146(4). Where, however, by reason of any conduct a person is convicted of an offence (whether under the Finance Act 2000 or otherwise), or a person is assessed to a penalty under Sch 6 para 98 (see PARA 690 post), that person is not by reason of that conduct to be liable also to a penalty under any regulations under Sch 6 (as amended): Sch 6 para 146(5). 'Relevant requirement' means any requirement other than one the penalty for a contravention of which is specified in Sch 6 para 41(3), 114(3) or 125(6) (see PARAS 673, 681 note 8, 696 post): Sch 6 para 146(6). A power under Sch 6 (as amended) to make any provision by regulations (1) may be exercised so as to apply the provision only in such cases as may be described in the regulations; (2) may be exercised so as to make different provision for different cases or descriptions of case; and (3) includes power by the regulations to make such supplementary, incidental, consequential or transitional provision as the authority making the regulations may think fit: Sch 6 para 146(7).

14 Ibid Sch 6 para 3(3). As to the exercise of this power see the Climate Change Levy (Solid Fuel) Regulations 2001, SI 2001/1137, which came into force on 1 April 2001 (reg 1) and provide that solid fuel is not a taxable commodity for these purposes if (1) a supply of that solid fuel would otherwise be chargeable with climate change levy; but (2) at the time when that supply would be treated as taking place the solid fuel in question has an open market value not exceeding £15 per tonne (reg 2(1)). 'Solid fuel' refers only to (a) coal and lignite; (b) coke, and semi-coke, of coal or lignite; (c) petroleum coke; 'time when the supply would be treated as taking place' refers to the time of supply determined by or under the Finance Act 2000 Sch 6 paras 25-39 (as amended) (see PARA 671 post); and 'open market value' refers to the amount that would, by virtue of the Value Added Tax Act 1994 s 19(2), (5) and on the basis that no climate change levy is chargeable, fall to be taken as the value of a supply of that solid fuel for the purposes of value added tax if the supply were for such consideration in money as would be payable by a person standing in no such relationship with any person as would affect that consideration: Climate Change Levy (Solid Fuel) Regulations 2001, SI 2001/1137, reg 2(2).

15 Finance Act 2000 Sch 6 para 77. As to recovery and interest see PARA 681 et seq post.

16 Ibid Sch 6 para 119(1). As to the provision that may be made by such regulations see Sch 6 para 119(2), (3); and as to the exercise of this power see the Climate Change Levy (General) Regulations 2001, SI 2001/838, reg 59 (amended by SI 2003/604).

(A) IN GENERAL

662. General principles.

A supply of a taxable commodity¹, or part of such a supply, is a taxable supply² for the purposes of the levy if levy is chargeable on the supply under the provisions relating to supplies of electricity³, supplies of gas⁴, or other supplies in the course or furtherance of business⁵, and the supply or part is not excluded⁶ or exempt⁷.

1 For the meaning of 'taxable commodity' see PARA 661 ante. References to a supply of a taxable commodity include a supply that is deemed to be made under the Finance Act 2000 Sch 6 para 23 (see PARA 669 post) subject to any exceptions provided for under Sch 6 para 21 (see PARA 668 post): Sch 6 para 4(2)(a).

663. Supplies of electricity.

Levy is chargeable on a supply of electricity if:

- 299 (1) the supply is made by an electricity utility¹; and
- 300 (2) the person to whom the supply is made is not an electricity utility, or is the utility² itself³.

Levy is also chargeable on a supply made from a combined heat and power station⁴ of electricity produced in the station if:

- 301 (a) the station is a partly exempt combined heat and power station⁵;
- 302 (b) the supply is not one that is deemed to be made⁶ as a self-supply by the producer; and
- 303 (c) the person to whom the supply is made is not an electricity utility⁷.

Levy is chargeable on a supply of electricity that is deemed to be made under specified⁸ statutory provisions⁹.

Except as provided above, levy is not chargeable on a supply of electricity¹⁰.

1 For the meaning of 'electricity utility' see PARA 661 note 8 ante. A person who is an electricity utility is to be treated for the purposes of the climate change levy chargeable under the Finance Act 2000 Sch 6 para 5(1) (see heads (1)-(2) in the text) as not being an electricity utility to the extent of any part of a supply he makes of electricity (1) produced in a fully exempt combined heat and power station; and (2) not supplied to him at any time by another person: Climate Change Levy (Electricity and Gas) Regulations 2001, SI 2001/1136, reg 4(1). Where an electricity utility makes a supply of electricity on which levy would otherwise be chargeable under both the Finance Act 2000 Sch 6 para 5(1) and either Sch 6 para 5(2) or Sch 6 para 5(3) (as amended) (see the text and notes 4-9 infra), that electricity utility is to be treated, for the purposes of the levy chargeable under Sch 6 para 5(1), as not being an electricity utility to the extent of that supply, and levy is accordingly only chargeable on that supply under Sch 6 para 5(2) or Sch 6 para 5(3) (as amended): Climate Change Levy (Electricity and Gas) Regulations 2001, SI 2001/1136, reg 4(2).

2 'Utility' means an electricity utility or a gas utility: Finance Act 2000 Sch 6 paras 147, 150(1). For the meaning of 'gas utility' see PARA 661 note 8 ante.

3 Ibid Sch 6 para 5(1).

4 'Combined heat and power station' means a station producing electricity or motive power that is (or may be) operated for purposes including the supply to any premises of (1) heat produced in association with electricity or motive power; or (2) steam produced from, or air or water heated by, such heat: ibid Sch 6 paras 147, 148(1).

5 'Partly exempt combined heat and power station' means a combined heat and power station in respect of which there is in force a certificate (a 'part-exemption certificate') (1) given by the Secretary of State; (2) stating that the station is a partly exempt combined heat and power station for the purposes of the levy; and (3) complying (so far as applicable) with any provision made by regulations under ibid Sch 6 para 148(10): Sch 6 paras 147, 148(3) (amended by the Finance Act 2003 s 189(1), (3)(a)). The Secretary of State must give a part-exemption certificate in respect of a combined heat and power station where an application is made for a certificate under the Finance Act 2000 Sch 6 para 148 (as amended) in respect of the station, and his decision on the application is to refuse to give a full-exemption certificate: Sch 6 para 148(5). The Secretary of State may by regulations make provision for or about (a) certificates under Sch 6 para 148 (as amended); (b) applications for such certificates; (c) the information that is to accompany such applications: Sch 6 para 148(10). The provision that may be made by virtue of Sch 6 para 148(10)(a) (see head (a) supra) includes in particular provision in respect of the periods for which such certificates are to be in force and provision for the (non-retrospective) variation or revocation of such certificates: Sch 6 para 148(11). As to the Secretary of State see PARA 601 note 1 ante; and as to the power to make regulations generally see PARA 661 note 13 ante.

In the exercise of his powers under Sch 6 para 148(10), (11) the Secretary of State has made the Climate Change Levy (Combined Heat and Power Stations) Exemption Certificate Regulations 2001, SI 2001/486, which came into force on 19 March 2001: reg 1. As to applications for, and the content of, full-exemption or part-exemption certificates see reg 3; and as to their variation and revocation see reg 4.

664. Supplies of gas.

Levy is chargeable on a supply of any gas if:

- 304 (1) the supply is made by a gas utility¹; and
- 305 (2) the person to whom the supply is made is not a gas utility, or is the utility² itself³.

Levy is also chargeable on a supply of gas that is deemed to be made as a self-supply by the producer⁴ if the gas:

- 306 (a) is held in a gaseous state immediately prior to being released for burning; and
- 307 (b) is of a kind supplied by a gas utility⁵.

Levy is chargeable on a supply of gas that is deemed to be made under specified⁶ statutory provisions⁷.

Except as provided above, levy is not chargeable on a supply of any gas that is supplied in a gaseous state⁸.

665. Other supplies made in the course or furtherance of business.

Levy is chargeable on any supply of a taxable commodity¹ other than electricity, or gas in a gaseous state, if the supply is made in the course or furtherance of a business². Anything done in connection with the termination or intended termination of a business is to be treated, for the purposes of the provisions relating to climate change levy³, as being done in the course or furtherance of the business⁴; and where in a disposition of a business as a going concern, or of its assets (whether or not in connection with its reorganisation or winding up), there is a supply of a taxable commodity, that supply is to be taken to be made in the course or furtherance of the business⁵.

INTRODUCTION/(6) TAXATION/(i) Climate Change Levy/B. TAXABLE SUPPLIES/(B) Excluded and Exempt Supplies/666. Supply for domestic or charity use.

(B) EXCLUDED AND EXEMPT SUPPLIES

666. Supply for domestic or charity use.

A supply is excluded from the levy if it is for domestic use or for charity use¹; and a supply is for charity use if the commodity supplied is for use by a charity otherwise than in the course or furtherance of a business². The following supplies are always for domestic use:

- 308 (1) a supply of not more than one tonne of coal or coke held out for sale as domestic fuel;
- 309 (2) a supply to a person at any premises of any gas in a gaseous state that is provided through pipes and is of a kind supplied by a gas utility³, or petroleum gas in a gaseous state provided through pipes, where the gas or petroleum gas (together with any other gas or petroleum gas provided through pipes to him at the premises by the same supplier) was not provided at a rate exceeding 4,397 kilowatt hours a month;
- 310 (3) a supply of petroleum gas in a liquid state where the petroleum gas is supplied in cylinders the net weight of each of which is less than 50 kilogrammes and either the number of cylinders supplied is 20 or fewer or the petroleum gas is not intended for sale by the recipient;
- 311 (4) a supply of petroleum gas in a liquid state, otherwise than in cylinders, to a person at any premises at which he is not able to store more than two tonnes of such petroleum gas;
- 312 (5) a metered supply of electricity to a person at any premises where the electricity (together with any other electricity provided to him at the premises by the same supplier) was not provided at a rate exceeding 1,000 kilowatt hours a month;
- 313 (6) an unmetered supply of electricity to a person where the electricity (together with any other unmetered electricity provided to him by the same supplier) was not provided at a rate exceeding 1,000 kilowatt hours a month⁴.

Supplies not within heads (1) to (6) above are for domestic use if and only if the commodity supplied is for use in:

- 314 (a) a building, or part of a building, which consists of a dwelling or number of dwellings;
 - 315 (b) a building, or part of a building, used for a relevant residential purpose⁵;
 - 316 (c) self-catering holiday accommodation (including any accommodation advertised or held out as such);
 - 317 (d) a caravan;
 - 318 (e) a houseboat⁶; or
 - 319 (f) an appliance that:
- 21
- 31. (i) is not part of a combined heat and power station⁷;
 - 32. (ii) is located otherwise than in premises of a description mentioned in any of heads (a) to (e) above; and

33. (iii) is used to heat air or water that, when heated, is supplied to premises of, or each of, such a description⁸.

If a supply is partly for domestic or charity use and partly not, the part of the supply that is for domestic or charity use is excluded from the levy⁹. Where a supply of a commodity is partly for domestic or charity use and partly not:

- 320 (A) if at least 60 per cent of the commodity is supplied for domestic or charity use, the whole supply is treated as a supply for domestic or charity use; and 321 (B) in any other case, an apportionment must be made to determine the extent to which the supply is for domestic or charity use¹⁰.

The power to make provision under the Value Added Tax Act 1994 s 29A(3) (as added) varying Sch 7A (as added) (charge at reduced rate) includes power to make provision for any appropriate corresponding variation of the Finance Act 2000 Sch 6 para 9 (as amended): Sch 6 para 9(5) (added by the Finance Act 2001 s 99(6), Sch 31 Pt 2 para 7).

5 For these purposes, use for a relevant residential purpose means use as (1) a home or other institution providing residential accommodation for children; (2) a home or other institution providing residential accommodation with personal care for persons in need of personal care by reason of old age, disablement, past or present dependence on alcohol or drugs or past or present mental disorder; (3) a hospice; (4) residential accommodation for students or school pupils; (5) residential accommodation for members of any of the armed forces; (6) a monastery, nunnery or similar establishment; or (7) an institution which is the sole or main residence of at least 90% of its residents, except use as a hospital, a prison or similar institution or an hotel or inn or similar establishment: Finance Act 2000 Sch 6 para 9(3).

6 I.e., a boat or other floating decked structure designed or adapted for use solely as a place of permanent habitation and not having means of, or capable of being readily adapted for, self-propulsion: see ibid Sch 6 para 9(2)(e).

7 For the meaning of 'combined heat and power station' see PARA 663 note 4 ante.

8 Finance Act 2000 Sch 6 para 9(2); and see note 4 supra. Any exclusion provided for by, under or by virtue of Sch 6 para 9(2)(f) (see head (f) in the text) is only to be given effect if and to the extent that, before the time of supply, the recipient has delivered to the supplier a certificate that accords with the Climate Change Levy (General) Regulations 2001, SI 2001/838, reg 34(2) (as amended): see reg 34(1)(a).

There are statutory exemptions from climate change levy with regard to:

- 322 (1) supplies not for burning in the United Kingdom¹;
- 323 (2) Northern Ireland gas supplies²;
- 324 (3) supplies used in certain types of transport³;
- 325 (4) supplies to producers of certain energy-related commodities other than electricity⁴;
- 326 (5) supplies, other than self-supplies, to electricity producers⁵;
- 327 (6) supplies, other than self-supplies, to fully-exempt and partly-exempt combined heat and power stations⁶;
- 328 (7) supplies, other than self-supplies, of electricity from partly exempt combined heat and power stations⁷;
- 329 (8) self-supplies by electricity producers⁸;
- 330 (9) supplies not used as fuel⁹;
- 331 (10) supplies for use in recycling processes¹⁰;
- 332 (11) electricity from renewable sources¹¹; and
- 333 (12) certain supplies of electricity produced in combined heat and power stations¹².

Any exemption provided for under head (1), heads (3) to (6), head (9) or head (10) above is only to be given effect if and to the extent that the recipient delivers to the supplier a certificate that accords with prescribed¹³ requirements¹⁴.

3 See the Finance Act 2000 Sch 6 para 12.

4 See ibid Sch 6 para 13 (amended by the Finance Act 2004 s 289(1)-(4)). The Commissioners may by regulations make provision amending the Finance Act 2000 Sch 6 para 13 for the purpose of extending the circumstances in which a supply of a taxable commodity is exempt from the levy or restricting the circumstances in which a supply of a taxable commodity is exempt from the levy: see the Finance Act 2006 Sch 6 para 13A (added by the Finance Act 2004 s 289(1), (5)). At the date at which this title states the law, no such regulations had been made. As to the power to make regulations generally see PARA 661 note 13 ante.

For the meaning of 'combined heat and power station' see PARA 663 note 4 ante; and for the meaning of 'partly-exempt combined heat and power station' see PARA 663 note 5 ante. 'Fully-exempt combined heat and power station' means a combined heat and power station in respect of which there is in force a certificate (a 'full-exemption certificate') given by the Secretary of State, stating that the station is a fully-exempt combined heat and power station for the purposes of the levy, and complying (so far as applicable) with any provision made by regulations under the Finance Act 2000 Sch 6 para 148(10) (see PARA 663 note 5 ante): Sch 6 para 148(2) (amended by the Finance Act 2003 s 189(1), (3)(a)). 668. Regulations to avoid double charges to levy and for giving effect to exemptions.

The Commissioners for Revenue and Customs may by regulations¹ make provision for avoiding, counteracting or mitigating double charges to levy². There is a double charge to levy where:

- 334 (1) a supply of a taxable commodity³ ('the produced commodity') is a taxable supply⁴; and
- 335 (2) a taxable commodity used directly or indirectly in producing the produced commodity has been the subject of a taxable supply⁵.

Such regulations may, in particular, make provision for a supply of a taxable commodity to be wholly or to any extent either exempt from the levy, or deemed not a supply of the commodity⁶. These powers are in addition to the powers to make provision by tax credit regulations⁷ in relation to certain cases⁸.

The Commissioners may also by regulations make provision for giving effect to the statutory exclusions and exemptions⁹. Such regulations may, in particular, include provision for:

- 336 (a) determining the extent to which a supply of a taxable commodity is, or is to be treated as being, a taxable supply;
- 337 (b) authorising a person making supplies of a taxable commodity to another person to treat the supplies to that other person as being taxable supplies only to an extent certified by the Commissioners¹⁰.

In the exercise of these and their other powers in relation to climate change levy, the Commissioners have made the Climate Change Levy (General) Regulations 2001¹¹.

(C) DEEMED SUPPLIES

669. Use of commodities by utilities and producers.

Where an electricity utility¹ has electricity available to it, and as regards a quantity of the electricity, makes no supply of that quantity to another person but causes it to be consumed in the United Kingdom², the utility is deemed³ to make a supply to itself of that quantity of the electricity⁴. Similarly, where a gas utility⁵ holds gas in a gaseous state, and as regards a quantity of the gas, makes no supply of that quantity to another person but causes it to be burned in the United Kingdom, the utility is deemed⁶ to make a supply to itself of that quantity of the gas⁷. Where:

- 338 (1) a person has produced a taxable commodity⁸;
- 339 (2) the commodity is either a taxable commodity other than electricity, or electricity that has been produced from taxable commodities⁹; and
- 340 (3) as regards a quantity of the commodity, the person makes no supply of that quantity to another person but causes it to be burned (or, in the case of electricity, consumed) in the United Kingdom, the person is deemed¹⁰ to make a supply to himself of that quantity of the commodity¹¹.

9 The Commissioners for Revenue and Customs may by regulations make provision for electricity to be treated for the purposes of head (2) in the text (1) as produced from taxable commodities unless prescribed conditions are fulfilled; or (2) as produced otherwise than from taxable commodities only where prescribed conditions are fulfilled: Finance Act 2000 Sch 6 para 23(4). The conditions that may be so prescribed include, in particular, conditions in connection with the materials from which the electricity is produced: Sch 6 para 23(5). INTRODUCTION/(6) TAXATION/(i) Climate Change Levy/B. TAXABLE SUPPLIES/(C) Deemed Supplies/670. Change of circumstances etc.

670. Change of circumstances etc.

The following provisions apply:

- 341 (1) in a case where:
 23
 34. (a) a supply of a taxable commodity¹ has been made;
 35. (b) the supply was not a taxable supply²; and
 36. (c) there is such a change in circumstances or any person's intentions that, if the changed circumstances or intentions had existed at the time the supply was made, the supply would have been a taxable supply³;
 342 (2) in a case where:
 25
 37. (a) a supply of a taxable commodity has been made;
 38. (b) the supply was made on the basis that it was not a taxable supply; and
 39. (c) it is later determined that the supply was (to any extent) a taxable supply⁴;

but they do not apply where the reason that the supply was not a taxable supply, or the supply was made on the basis that it was not a taxable supply, is that it was, or was thought to be, exempt from the levy under the statutory exemptions⁵ for the supply of electricity produced from renewable sources or in combined heat and power stations⁶.

Where these provisions apply, the person to whom the supply was made is deemed⁷ to make a taxable supply of the commodity⁸ to himself⁹. Where, however, a supply of a taxable commodity was not a taxable supply by virtue of being supplied for use in premises of a specified description¹⁰, and those premises cease to be premises of any such description, that deeming provision only applies to so much, if any, of the commodity supplied as was not used in the premises before they ceased to be premises of any of those descriptions¹¹.

Time of supply; in general.

C. TIME OF SUPPLY

671. Time of supply; in general.

Provision is made to determine when a supply of a taxable commodity¹ is treated as taking place². Where taxable commodities were invoiced or paid before 1 April 2001, but had not to any extent been burned before the invoice was issued or payment was received, and the advance invoicing or payment was not acceptable normal practice, then a supply of those commodities not burned before that date was treated as taking place on that date³. Provision is also made with regard to supplies spanning any change in the rate of levy⁴.

Otherwise, unless it is covered by a special utility scheme prepared by the Commissioners for Revenue and Customs⁵, a supply of electricity, and a supply of gas supplied in a gaseous state and of a kind supplied by a gas utility⁶, is treated as taking place each time a climate change levy accounting document⁷ in respect of a supply is issued by the person making the supply⁸. Where an actual supply of electricity or gas is not followed by a climate change levy accounting document, then the supply is treated as taking place at the end of period by which that document would have been issued⁹.

With regard to other supplies, the general rules as to when such supplies are taken to be made are, in cases where the supply is made by a person resident in the United Kingdom¹⁰, as follows:

- 343 (1) if the commodity is to be removed, the supply takes place at the time of the removal;
- 344 (2) if the commodity is not to be removed, the supply takes place when the commodity is made available to the person to whom it is supplied;
- 345 (3) if the commodity (being sent or taken on approval or sale or return or similar terms) is removed before it is known whether a supply will take place, the supply takes place when it becomes certain that the supply has taken place or, if sooner, 12 months after the removal¹¹.

These general rules are subject to the different rules¹² which apply when the invoice is issued earlier or later than the time applicable under them¹³. Different rules also apply in the case of certain deemed supplies¹⁴.

In the case of supplies of other commodities that are made by a person who is not resident in the United Kingdom, the supply is treated as taking place:

- 346 (a) when the commodity is delivered to the person to whom it is supplied; or
- 347 (b) if earlier, when it is made available in the United Kingdom to that person¹⁵.

If, however, within 14 days after the time so applicable, the person to whom the supply is made elects in writing for the supply to be treated as taking place at the time the election is made, the supply is treated as taking place at the time the election is made¹⁶. Different rules apply in the case of certain deemed supplies¹⁷.

With regard to supplies of other commodities, that is, supplies that are not of electricity or of gas in a gaseous state, the Commissioners may, at the request of the person liable to account for any levy charged on those supplies, make a direction altering the time at which those supplies (or such of those supplies as may be specified in the direction) are to be treated as taking place¹⁸.

The Commissioners may also make provision by regulations¹⁹ as to the time at which a supply is to be treated as taking place:

- 348 (i) in cases where the supply is for a consideration and the whole or part of the consideration:
- 27
- 40. (A) is determined or payable periodically, or from time to time, or at the end of any period; or
- 41. (B) is determined at the time when the commodity is appropriated for any purpose;
- 28
- 349 (ii) in the case of a supply otherwise than for consideration;
- 350 (iii) in the case of any supply that is deemed²⁰ to be made²¹.

In any such case as is mentioned in heads (i) to (iii) above, the regulations may provide that a taxable commodity is to be treated as separately and successively supplied at prescribed times or intervals²². The main rules as to the time of supply²³ have effect subject to any such regulations²⁴.

Where on any day (1) electricity, or gas that is in a gaseous state and is of a kind supplied by a gas utility, is actually supplied to a person ('the consumer'); (2) the supply by which the electricity or gas is supplied is a taxable supply; and (3) the person liable to account for the levy on that supply is the person making the supply ('the supplier'), then a climate change levy accounting document covering the electricity or gas actually supplied on that day must be issued by the supplier no later than (a) the end of the period of 15 weeks beginning with that day, if on that day the consumer is a small-scale user of the commodity supplied; (b) the end of the period of six weeks beginning with that day, if on that day the consumer is not a small-scale user of the commodity supplied: Sch 6 para 27(1), (2). A climate change levy accounting document so issued that covers the electricity, or the gas of any kind, actually supplied on any day must also cover any electricity or (as the case may be) any gas of that kind that has been actually supplied by the supplier to the consumer on any earlier day and has not been covered by a previous climate change levy accounting document: Sch 6 para 27(3). As to the persons who are small-scale users see Sch 6 para 27(6); and the Climate Change Levy (General) Regulations 2001, SI 2001/838, reg 53. D. PAYMENT AND RATE OF LEVY

672. Persons liable to account for levy.

The person liable to account for the levy charged on a taxable supply¹ is, except in a case such as is described below, the person making the supply². In the case of a taxable supply made by a person who is not resident in the United Kingdom³, and is not a utility⁴, the person liable to account for the levy charged on the supply is the person to whom the supply is made⁵.

673. Returns and payment of levy.

The Commissioners for Revenue and Customs may by regulations¹ make provision:

- 351 (1) for persons liable to account for levy² to do so:
- 29 42. (a) by reference to such periods ('accounting periods') as may be determined by or under the regulations; or
- 43. (b) in such other way as may be so determined³;
- 30 352 (2) for persons who are or are required to be registered for the purposes of the levy to be subject to such obligations to make returns for those purposes for such periods, at such times and in such form as may be so determined; and
- 353 (3) for persons who are required to account for levy to become liable to pay the amounts due from them at such times and in such manner as may be so determined⁴.

Without prejudice to the generality of the powers so conferred, such regulations may contain provision:

- 354 (i) for levy falling in accordance with the regulations to be accounted for by reference to one accounting period to be treated in prescribed⁵ circumstances, and for prescribed purposes, as levy due for a different period;
- 355 (ii) for the correction of errors made when accounting for levy by reference to any period;
- 356 (iii) for the entries to be made in any accounts in connection with the correction of any such errors and for the financial adjustments to be made in that connection;
- 357 (iv) for a person, for purposes connected with the making of any such entry or financial adjustment, to be required to provide to any prescribed person, or to retain, a document in the prescribed form containing prescribed particulars of the matters to which the entry or adjustment relates;
- 358 (v) for enabling the Commissioners, in such cases as they may think fit, to dispense with or relax a requirement imposed by regulations made by virtue of head (iv) above;
- 359 (vi) for the amount of levy which, in accordance with the regulations, is treated as due for a later period than that by reference to which it should have been accounted for to be treated as increased by an amount representing interest⁶ for such period as may be determined in accordance with the regulations⁷.

Subject to the following provisions, if any person ('the taxpayer') fails:

- 360 (A) to comply with so much of any regulations under these provisions as requires him, at or before a particular time, to make a return for any accounting period; or
- 361 (B) to comply with so much of any such regulations as requires him, at or before a particular time, to pay an amount of levy due from him, he is liable to a penalty of £250⁸. Liability to such a penalty does not, however, arise if the taxpayer satisfies the Commissioners or, on appeal, an appeal tribunal⁹, that there is a reasonable excuse for the failure to make the return or to pay the levy in accordance with the regulations and that there is not an occasion after the last day on which the return or payment was required by the regulations to be made when there was a failure without a reasonable excuse to make it¹⁰.

Where, by reason of any failure falling within head (A) or head (B) above, a person is convicted of an offence¹¹, or a person is assessed to a penalty for evasion¹², that person is not, by reason of that failure, to be liable also to a penalty¹³ in respect of that failure¹⁴.

1 As to the power to make regulations see generally para 661 note 13 ante.

2 As to the persons liable to account for levy see PARA 672 ante.

3 The Finance Act 2000 s 30(1), Sch 6 para 91(5) provides for the application of Sch 6 Pt VII (paras 77-91) (as amended) (recovery and interest: see PARA 661 ante, PARAS 681-683 post) in relation to cases where, by virtue of regulations under Sch 6 para 41(1)(a)(ii) (as substituted) (see head (1)(a) in the text), a person is liable to account for levy otherwise than by reference to accounting periods: Sch 6 para 41(2A) (added by the Finance Act 2003 s 192(1), (2)(c)). Regulations under the Finance Act 2000 Sch 6 para 41 (as amended) may provide for the application of any provision of Sch 6 (as amended) in relation to such cases: Sch 6 para 41(2B) (as so added).

674. Amount payable by way of levy.

The amount payable by way of levy on a taxable supply¹ is as follows. If the supply is neither a half-rate supply made before 1 April 2006² nor a reduced-rate supply³, the amount payable is the rate specified⁴ in relation to the taxable commodity⁵ supplied⁶. If the supply is a half-rate supply made before that date, the amount payable is 50 per cent of the amount that would be payable if the supply were neither a half-rate supply nor a reduced-rate supply⁷; and if the supply is a reduced-rate supply, the amount payable is 20 per cent of the amount that would be payable if the supply were neither a half-rate supply made before that date nor a reduced-rate supply⁸.

The levy payable on a fraction of a quantity of a commodity is that fraction of the levy payable on that quantity of the commodity⁹.

As from 1 November 2007¹⁰, where:

- 362 (1) a taxable supply has been made to any person ('the recipient');
- 363 (2) the supply was made on the basis that it was a reduced-rate supply; and
- 364 (3) it is later determined that the supply was not a reduced-rate supply, the recipient is deemed¹¹ to make a taxable supply to itself of the taxable commodity, and the amount payable by way of levy on that deemed supply is 80 per cent of the amount that would be payable if the supply were not a reduced-rate supply¹². This applies, however, only in relation to a supply actually made on or after that day and on the basis that it is a reduced-rate supply¹³.

NOTE 4--Finance Act 2000 Sch 6 para 42(1), Table substituted with effect in relation to supplies treated as taking place on or after 1 April 2009: Finance Act 2008 s 19.

Halsbury's Laws of England/FUEL AND ENERGY (VOLUME 19(1) (2007 REISSUE) PARAS 601-775; VOLUME 19(2) (2007 REISSUE) PARAS 776-1328); VOLUME 19(3) (2007 REISSUE) PARAS 1329-1927)/1. INTRODUCTION/(6) TAXATION/(i) Climate Change Levy/D. PAYMENT AND RATE OF LEVY/675. Reduced-rate supplies.

675. Reduced-rate supplies.

As from 1 November 2007¹, 'reduced-rate supply' is defined as follows. A taxable supply² is a reduced-rate supply if:

- 365 (1) the taxable commodity³ is supplied to a facility specified in a certificate given by the Secretary of State⁴ to the Commissioners for Revenue and Customs as a facility which is to be taken as being covered by a climate change agreement⁵ for a period specified in the certificate; and
- 366 (2) the supply is made at a time falling in that period⁶.

This definition has effect subject to the provision made⁷ for variation of certificates⁸; and the Commissioners may by regulations make provision for giving effect to it⁹. Such regulations may, in particular, include provision for determining whether any taxable commodity is supplied to a facility¹⁰; and the provision that may be so made includes, in particular, provision for a taxable commodity of any description specified in the regulations to be taken as supplied to a facility only if the commodity is delivered to the facility¹¹.

A reduced-rate supply made before 1 November 2007 is a taxable supply in respect of which the following conditions are satisfied:

- 367 (a) the first condition is that the taxable commodity supplied by the supply is supplied to a facility identified in a notice published by the Commissioners which must:
 - 31 44. (i) state the day on which it is published;
 - 45. (ii) identify the facility or facilities in respect of which it is published;
 - 46. (iii) for each facility set out the first and last days of the period specified for the facility in the Secretary of State's certificate stating that, for that period, the facility is to be taken as being covered by a climate change agreement, and indicate the effect of this definition¹²; and
 - 47. (iv) indicate that the notice may be varied by later notices;
 - 32
- 368 (b) the second condition is that the supply is made at a time falling in the period that begins with the later of the first day set out for the facility under head (a)(iii) above and the day on which the notice is published, and ends with the last day so set out for the facility¹³.

This definition has effect subject to the provision made¹⁴ for variation of notices¹⁵. The Commissioners may by regulations make provision for determining whether any taxable commodity is supplied to a facility¹⁶; and the provision that may be made by such regulations under includes, in particular, provision for a taxable commodity of any description specified in the regulations to be taken as supplied to a facility only if the commodity is delivered to the facility¹⁷.

675 Reduced-rate supplies

TEXT AND NOTES--The Secretary of State may (1) give a certificate that includes provision specifying one or more descriptions of taxable commodity as being ineligible for reduced-rate supply; (2) vary a certificate so that it includes provision (or further provision) specifying one or more descriptions of taxable commodity as being ineligible for reduced-rate supply; or (3) vary a certificate so that it ceases to include such a provision: Finance Act 2000 Sch 6 para 44(2A), (2B) (Sch 6 para 44(2A)-(2D) added by Finance Act 2009 s 117(2)). A taxable supply of a taxable commodity to a facility is not a reduced-rate supply if, at the time of the supply, the commodity falls within a description that is specified in accordance with head (1) or (2) in the certificate relating to the facility: Finance Act 2000 Sch 6 para 44(2B). For these purposes, 'certificate' means such a certificate as is mentioned in head (1): Sch 6 para 44(2D). The Secretary of State may only include provision in such a certificate by virtue of head (1) or (2) if the Treasury consents in writing to the specification before it is made; and if, and for as long as, the result is compatible with the common market by virtue of EC Commission Regulation 800/2008 (see COMPETITION vol 18 (2009) PARA 27 NOTE 7): Finance Act 2000 Sch 6 para 44(2C).

INTRODUCTION/(6) TAXATION/(i) Climate Change Levy/E. REGISTRATION; SECURITY FOR LEVY/676. Requirement to be registered.

E. REGISTRATION; SECURITY FOR LEVY

676. Requirement to be registered.

A person is required to be registered¹ with the Commissioners for Revenue and Customs for the purposes of the levy if a taxable supply² is made in respect of which he is the person liable to account for the levy charged³. The Commissioners must⁴ establish and maintain a register of persons liable to account for levy⁵ and must keep such information in the register as they consider appropriate for the care and management of the levy⁶. Regulations⁷ made by the Commissioners may, however, provide that, in such cases or circumstances and subject to such conditions or requirements as may be prescribed in the regulations, the Commissioners may exempt a person from the requirement to be registered⁸.

A person who either intends to make, or have made to him, any taxable supply in respect of which (if made) he will be the person liable to account for the levy charged, or is required to be registered for the purposes of the levy, must (if he is not so registered) notify the Commissioners of that fact⁹. A person who fails to comply with this requirement is¹⁰ liable to a penalty¹¹ of either an amount equal to 5 per cent of the relevant levy¹² or, if it is greater or the circumstances are such that there is no relevant levy, £250¹³. A failure to comply does not, however, give rise to any liability to such a penalty if the person concerned satisfies the Commissioners or, on appeal, an appeal tribunal¹⁴, that there is a reasonable excuse for the failure¹⁵. Where, by reason of any conduct amounting to such failure, a person is convicted of an offence¹⁶ or a person is assessed to a penalty for evasion¹⁷, that person is not by reason of that conduct to be liable also to a penalty under these provisions¹⁸.

Where a person who has become liable to give such a notification ceases (whether before or after being registered for the purposes of the levy) to intend to make, or to intend to have made to him, taxable supplies in respect of which, if made, he would be the person liable to account for the levy charged, he must notify the Commissioners of that fact¹⁹. A person who fails to comply with this requirement is liable to a penalty of £250²⁰.

Commissioners may make provision: (1) as to the time within which the notification is to be given; (2) as to the form and manner in which the notification is to be given; and (3) as to the information and other particulars to be contained in or provided with any notification: Sch 6 para 60(1). For those purposes the Commissioners may also by regulations impose obligations requiring a person who has given a notification to notify the Commissioners if any information contained in or provided in connection with that notification is or becomes inaccurate: Sch 6 para 60(2). The power under Sch 6 para 60 to make regulations as to the time within which any notification is to be given include powers to authorise the Commissioners to extend the time for the giving of a notification: Sch 6 para 60(3). 679. Cancellation of registration.

If the Commissioners for Revenue and Customs are satisfied that a registered¹ person:

- 371 (1) has ceased to make, or have made to him, taxable supplies² on which he is liable to account for the levy charged; and
- 372 (2) does not intend to make, or have made to him, any such supplies,

The Commissioners are under a duty to exercise the power so conferred with effect from any time if, where the power is exercisable, they are satisfied that the conditions specified in heads (a) to (d) below are satisfied and were or will be satisfied at that time⁷. Those conditions are:

- 373 (a) that the person in question has given a notification that he is no longer registrable⁸;
- 374 (b) that no levy due from that person, and no amount recoverable as if it were levy, remains unpaid;
- 375 (c) that no tax credit⁹ to which that person is entitled by virtue of any tax credit regulations¹⁰ is outstanding; and
- 376 (d) that that person is not subject to any outstanding liability to make a return for the purposes of the levy¹¹.

Where a registered person notifies the Commissioners that he is no longer registrable¹², and they are satisfied that, if he had not been registered, he would not have been required to be registered at any time since the time when he was registered, they must cancel his registration with effect from the date of his registration¹³.

680. Correction of, and publication of information on, the register.

The Commissioners for Revenue and Customs may by regulations¹ make provision for and with respect to the correction of entries in the register². Such regulations may, to such extent as appears to the Commissioners appropriate for keeping the register up to date, make provision requiring registered³ persons, and persons who are required to be registered⁴, to notify the Commissioners of changes in circumstances relating to themselves, their businesses or any other matter with respect to which particulars are contained in the register (or would be, were the person registered)⁵.

The Commissioners may publish, by such means as they think fit, any information which is derived from the register and which falls within any of the following descriptions, namely:

- 377 (1) the names of registered persons;
- 378 (2) the fact, where it is the case, that the registered person is a body corporate which is a member of a group;
- 379 (3) the names of the other bodies corporate which are members of the group⁶.

Information may be published in accordance with this provision notwithstanding any obligation not to disclose the information that would otherwise apply⁷.

F. RECOVERY AND INTEREST

681. Assessments of amounts of levy due.

Where it appears to the Commissioners for Revenue and Customs:

- 380 (1) that any period is an accounting period¹ by reference to which a person is liable to account for levy²;
- 381 (2) that any levy for which that person is liable to account by reference to that period has become due; and
- 382 (3) that there has been a default by that person that falls within heads (a) to (e) below, they may assess the amount of levy due from that person for that period to the best of their judgment and notify that amount to that person³. Similarly, where it appears to the Commissioners that any levy for which a person is liable to account otherwise than by reference to an accounting period has become due, and that there has been a default by that person that falls within heads (a) to (e) below, they may assess the amount of that levy to the best of their judgment and notify it to him⁴. The defaults described above are:

- 383 (a) any failure to make a return required to be made by any provision made by or under the relevant statutory provisions⁵;
- 384 (b) any failure to keep any documents necessary to verify returns required to be made under any such provision;
- 385 (c) any failure to afford the facilities necessary to verify returns required to be made under any such provision;
- 386 (d) the making, in purported compliance with any requirement of any such provision to make a return, of an incomplete or incorrect return;
- 387 (e) any failure to comply with a requirement imposed⁶ with regard to registration⁷.

Where it appears to the Commissioners that such a default is a default by a person on whom the requirement to make a return is imposed in his capacity as the representative⁸ of another person, heads (1) to (3) above apply as if the reference to the amount of levy due included a reference to any levy due from that other person⁹.

In a case where:

- 388 (i) the Commissioners have made an assessment for any accounting period as a result of any person's failure to make a return for that period;
- 389 (ii) the levy assessed has been paid but no proper return has been made for that period;
- 390 (iii) as a result of a failure (whether by that person or a representative of his) to make a return for a later accounting period, the Commissioners find it necessary to make another assessment under the above provisions in relation to the later period; and 391 (iv) the Commissioners think it appropriate to do so in the light of the absence of a proper return for the earlier period, they may, in the assessment in relation to the later period, specify an amount of levy due that is greater than the amount that they would have considered to be appropriate had they had regard only to the later period¹⁰.

Where an amount has been assessed and notified to any person under these provisions, it is recoverable on the basis that it is an amount of levy due from him¹¹; but this does not have effect if, or to the extent that, the assessment in question has been withdrawn or reduced¹².

If, where an assessment has been notified to any person¹³, it appears to the Commissioners that the amount which ought to have been assessed as due for any accounting period exceeds the amount that has already been assessed, the Commissioners may make a supplementary assessment of the amount of the excess and notify that person accordingly¹⁴. Where an amount has been so assessed and notified to any person, it is recoverable on the basis that it is an amount of levy due from him¹⁵; but this does not have effect if, or to the extent that, the assessment in question has been withdrawn or reduced¹⁶.

An assessment or supplementary assessment of an amount of levy due for any accounting period may not be made more than two years after the end of the accounting period unless it is made within the period of one year after evidence of facts sufficient in the Commissioners' opinion to justify the making of the assessment first came to their knowledge¹⁷. It may not in any event be made¹⁸ more than three years after the end of that accounting period¹⁹. Where, however, levy has been lost:

- 392 (A) as a result of any conduct for which a person has been convicted of an offence involving fraud;
- 393 (B) in circumstances giving rise to liability to a penalty for failure to notify of registrability etc²⁰; or
- 394 (C) as a result of evasion²¹, that levy may be assessed²² as if the time limit set out above were 20 years instead of three years²³. Where, after a person's death, the Commissioners propose to assess an amount of levy as due by reason of some conduct of the deceased, the assessment may not be made more than three years after the death, and if the circumstances are as set out in heads (A) to (C) above, the 20-year time limit does not apply but any assessment which could, applying that time limit, have been made immediately after the death may be made at any time within three years after it²⁴.

1 'Accounting period' means a period which, in pursuance of any regulations under the Finance Act 2000 s 30(1), Sch 6 para 41 (as amended) (see PARA 673 ante), is an accounting period for the purposes of the levy: Sch 6 para 147. In the case of a registered person, the accounting periods to which he is subject are each three month period ending on the dates notified to him at any time by the Commissioners for this purpose: Climate Change Levy (General) Regulations 2001, SI 2001/838, reg 3(1), (2). In the case of any other registrable person, the accounting periods to which he is subject are each three month period ending on 31 March, 30 June, 30 September or 31 December: reg 3(1), (3). The Commissioners may, however, in a particular case vary the start, end and length of any accounting period: reg 3(4). See further note 5 infra.

2 As to the persons liable to account for levy see PARA 672 ante.

3 Finance Act 2000 Sch 6 para 78(1). References in Sch 6 (as amended), in relation to any accounting period, to levy due from any person for that period are references (subject to any regulations made by virtue of Sch 6 para 41(2)(a): see PARA 673 ante) to the levy for which that person is required, in accordance with regulations under Sch 6 para 41 (as amended), to account by reference to that period: Sch 6 para 153.

4 Ibid Sch 6 para 78(1A) (added by the Finance Act 2003 s 192(1), (5)). In relation to cases where, by virtue of regulations under the Finance Act 2000 Sch 6 para 41(1)(a)(ii), a person is liable to account for levy otherwise than by reference to accounting periods, Sch 6 Pt VII (paras 77-91) (as amended) has effect as if (1) references to levy due for 'an' or 'any' accounting period were references simply to levy due; (2) references to levy due for a specified accounting period were references to the levy in question; (3) references to an assessment for a specified accounting period were references to an assessment in respect of the levy in question; (4) any time limit framed by reference to the end of the accounting period for which levy is due were framed by reference to the date on which payment of the levy is due; (5) references to the making of a return for an accounting period were references to the payment of the levy in question; (6) references to the amount shown in such a return were references to the amount of levy paid; and (7) Sch 6 para 88(8), (9) was omitted: Sch 6 para 91(5) (added by the Finance Act 2003 s 192(1), (6)).

5 le under the Finance Act 2000 Sch 6 (as amended): see PARA 661 et seq ante, PARA 682 et seq post. A registrable person is obliged to make a return to the Commissioners covering each of his accounting periods (Climate Change Levy (General) Regulations 2001, SI 2001/838, reg 4(1)); and is obliged to make that return no later than the last working day of the month immediately following the end of the period to which it relates (reg 4(2)). In the case of an accounting period that does not end on the last day of a month, the registrable person is obliged to make that return no later than the due day directed by the Commissioners: reg 4(3). The Commissioners may allow the registrable person extra time in which to make that return: reg 4(4). The registrable person must make that return in a form that is prescribed by the Commissioners in a published notice ('prescribed form') (reg 4(5)) and by securing that it is delivered either to the address prescribed by the Commissioners in a published notice or to any other address that they may direct or allow (reg 4(6)). As to the content of returns see reg 5 (amended by SI 2003/604; SI 2005/1716; SI 2007/2903).

A registrable person must pay to the Commissioners the amount of levy due from him for a given accounting period no later than the due date for the return for that period: Climate Change Levy (General) Regulations 2001, SI 2001/838, reg 6(1). He must make that payment by securing that it is delivered either to the address or bank account prescribed for this purpose by the Commissioners in a published notice or to any other address or bank account that they may direct or allow: reg 6(2). The Commissioners may allow a registrable person who has made arrangements with them for the payment of any amount of levy due from him by means of direct debit an extra seven days in which the payment may be made (reg 6(3)); but they may only do so in accordance with conditions they must stipulate in a published notice (reg 6(4)). A registrable person is obliged to keep a record to be known as the 'climate change levy account' which is a periodic summary of levy due: reg 7(1).

The Commissioners may, however, authorise a registered person to pay and account for levy by reference to any transitional accounting period, and any subsequent current accounting year, at such times, and for such amounts, as may be determined in accordance with the scheme: see regs 6B-6G (added by SI 2002/1152; amended by SI 2003/604).

6 le by or under the Finance Act 2000 Sch 6 Pt V (as amended): see PARA 676 et seq ante.

7 Ibid Sch 6 para 78(2).

8 For the purposes of ibid Sch 6 Pt VII (paras 77-91) (as amended), 'representative', in relation to any person, means (1) any of that person's personal representatives; (2) that person's trustee in bankruptcy or liquidator; (3) any person holding office as a receiver in relation to that person or any of his property; (4) that person's tax representative or any other person for the time being acting in a representative capacity in relation to that person (Sch 6 para 91(3)); and any notification of an assessment under any provision of Sch 6 Pt VII (as amended) to a person's representative is to be treated for these purposes as notification to the person in relation to whom the representative acts (Sch 6 para 91(2)).

'Tax representative', in relation to any person, means the person who, in accordance with any regulations under Sch 6 para 114, is for the time being that person's tax representative for the purposes of the levy: Sch 6 para 147. The Commissioners may by regulations make provision for securing that every non-resident taxpayer has a person resident in the United Kingdom to act as his tax representative for the purposes of the levy: Sch 6 para 114(1). As to the provision that may be made in such regulations see Sch 6 para 114(2). A person who becomes subject, in accordance with any such regulations, to an obligation to request the Commissioners' approval for any person's appointment as his tax representative, but who fails (with or without making the appointment) to make the request as required by the regulations, is liable to a penalty of £10,000 (Sch 6 para 114(3)); but such a failure does not give rise to liability to such a penalty if the person concerned satisfies the Commissioners or, on appeal, an appeal tribunal that there is a reasonable excuse for the failure (Sch 6 para 114(4)). As to the effect of the appointment of tax representatives see Sch 6 para 115. See further the Climate Change Levy (Registration and Miscellaneous Provisions) Regulations 2001, SI 2001/7, regs 14-19 (amended by SI 2005/1716). 'Non-resident taxpayer' means a person who (a) is or is required to be registered for the purposes of the levy; and (b) is not resident in the United Kingdom: Finance Act 2000 Sch 6 para 147. For the meaning of 'resident in the United Kingdom' see PARA 671 note 10 ante; and as to the power to make regulations see generally para 661 note 13 ante.

The Commissioners may also by regulations make provision (i) for the purposes of the levy in relation to cases where a person carries on a business of an individual who has died or become incapacitated (Sch 6 para 118(1)); (ii) for the application of Sch 6 (as amended) in cases in which an insolvency procedure is applied to a person or to a deceased individual's estate (Sch 6 para 120(1)). As to the provision that may be made by such regulations see Sch 6 paras 118(2), 120(2)-(9) (amended by the Enterprise Act 2002 (Insolvency) Order 2003, SI 2003/2096, art 4, Schedule Pt 1 paras 31, 33). UPDATE

TEXT AND NOTE 19--For 'three years' read 'four years': Finance Act 2000 Sch 6 para 80(1) (b) (amended by Finance Act 2009 Sch 51 para 35(2)).

TEXT AND NOTES 20-23--Replaced. An assessment of an amount due from a person in a case involving a loss of levy (1) brought about deliberately by the person (or by another person acting on that person's behalf), or (2) attributable to a failure by the person to comply with an obligation under the Finance Act 2000 Sch 6 para 53 (see PARA 676) or Sch 6 para 55 (see PARA 677), may be made at any time not more than 20 years after the end of the accounting period to which it relates (subject to Sch 6 para 80(4)); and in head (2) the reference to a loss brought about deliberately by the person includes a loss brought about as a result of a deliberate inaccuracy in a document given to Her Majesty's Revenue and Customs by or on behalf of that person: Sch 6 para 80(3), (3A) (substituted by Finance Act 2009 Sch 51 para 35(3)).

TEXT AND NOTE 24--The assessment may not be made more than four years after the death, and words 'and if the circumstances ... after it' omitted: Finance Act 2000 Sch 6 para 80(4) (amended by Finance Act 2009 Sch 51 para 35(4)).

682. Interest.

Where:

- 395 (1) the circumstances are such that an assessment or supplementary assessment¹ could have been made of an amount of levy due from any person, but before such an assessment was made and notified to that person that amount was paid (so that no such assessment was necessary), the whole of the amount paid carries interest² for the specified period³;
- 396 (2) a person makes a return⁴ and the return shows that an amount of levy is due from him for the accounting period for which the return is made, that amount is to carry penalty interest⁵ for the specified period⁶;
- 397 (3) the Commissioners for Revenue and Customs make an assessment or supplementary assessment of an amount of levy due from any person for any accounting period and notify it to him, and the assessment is made at a time after the time by which a return is required⁷ to be made by that person for that accounting period and before any such return has been made, that amount is to carry penalty interest for the specified period⁸; but where after the assessment is made the person makes a return for the accounting period in question, the assessed amount is not to carry such penalty interest to the extent that that amount is shown in the return as an amount of levy due from him for that accounting period and, accordingly, carries penalty interest under head (2) above⁹;
- 398 (4) the Commissioners make an assessment or supplementary assessment of an amount of levy due from any person for any accounting period and notify it to him, the assessment is made after a return¹⁰ has been made by that person for that accounting period, and the assessment is made on the basis that the amount ('the additional amount') is due from him in addition to any amount shown in the return, or in a previous assessment made in relation to the accounting period, the additional amount is to carry interest¹¹ for the specified period¹²;
- 399 (5) the Commissioners make an assessment or supplementary assessment of an amount of levy due from any person for any accounting period and notify it to him, they also specify a date for these purposes, and the amount assessed is paid on or before that date, the only interest carried by that amount under head (4) above is, however, to be interest¹³ for the period before the day on which the assessment is notified¹⁴;
- 400 (6) the Commissioners make an assessment¹⁵ of an amount of interest payable at the ordinary rate¹⁶, that amount is to carry penalty interest for the period which begins with the day on which the assessment is notified to the person on whom the assessment is made and ends with the day before the day on which the assessed interest is paid¹⁷;
- 401 (7) the Commissioners make an assessment of an amount of interest due from any person, they also specify a date for these purposes, and the amount of interest assessed is paid on or before that date, the amount paid before that date is not, however, to carry penalty interest under head (6) above¹⁸.

Interest under any of heads (1) to (7) above is to be paid without any deduction of income tax¹⁹. Where, however, an amount carries interest under any of those heads, or would do so apart from heads (a) and (b) below, and all or part of the amount turns out not to be due, then in such a case:

- 402 (a) the amount or part that turns out not to be due is not to carry interest under the applicable head and is to be treated as never having done so; and
- 403 (b) all such adjustments as are reasonable must be made, including²⁰ adjustments by way of repayment²¹.

Where a person is liable for interest under any of heads (1) to (7) above, the Commissioners may assess the amount due by way of interest and notify it to him accordingly²². If, where an assessment has been notified to any person²³, it appears to the Commissioners that the amount which ought to have been assessed exceeds the amount that has already been assessed, the Commissioners may make a supplementary assessment of the amount of the excess and must notify that person accordingly²⁴. Where an amount has been assessed and notified to any person under these provisions, it is recoverable as if it were levy due from him²⁵; but this does not apply so as to require any interest to be payable on interest except in accordance with heads (6) and (7) above, or in so far as it falls²⁶ to be compounded²⁷. Nor does it have effect if, or to the extent that, the assessment in question has been withdrawn or reduced²⁸.

Where a person is assessed²⁹ to an amount due by way of any interest, and is also assessed to levy³⁰ for the accounting period which is the relevant accounting period in relation to that interest, the assessments may be combined and notified to him as one assessment³¹. A notice of a combined assessment must separately identify the interest being assessed³².

In a case where the amount of any interest falls to be calculated by reference to levy which was not paid at the time when it should have been, and that levy cannot be readily attributed to any one or more accounting periods, that levy is to be treated for the purposes of interest on any of that levy as levy due for such period or periods as the Commissioners may determine to the best of their judgment and notify to the person liable³³.

Where an assessment is made under the above provisions³⁴ to an amount of penalty interest under any of heads (1) to (7) above:

- 404 (i) the notice of assessment must specify a date, not later than the date of the notice of assessment, to which the amount of interest which is assessed is calculated; and
- 405 (ii) if the interest continues to accrue after that date, a further assessment or further assessments may be made in respect of the amounts so accruing³⁵.

Where, however, an assessment to penalty interest is made specifying a date for the purposes of head (i) above, and within such period as may for these purposes have been notified by the Commissioners to the person liable for the interest, the amount on which the interest is payable is paid, that amount is to be deemed for the purposes of any further liability to interest to have been paid on the specified date³⁶.

1 I.e. an assessment under the Finance Act 2000 s 30(1), Sch 6 para 78 (as amended) or Sch 6 para 79: see PARA 681 ante.

2 Such interest is payable at the rate applicable under the Finance Act 1996 s 197 (as amended) (setting of rates of interest for indirect taxation): Finance Act 2000 Sch 6 para 81(3).

3 Ibid Sch 6 para 81(1). The specified period for these purposes is the period which (1) begins with the day after that on which the person is required in accordance with regulations under Sch 6 para 41 (as amended) to pay levy due from him for the accounting period to which the amount paid relates; and (2) ends with the day before that on which the amount is paid: Sch 6 para 81(2). For the meaning of 'accounting period' see PARA 681 note 1 ante.

4 Ie for the purposes of any regulations made under Sch 6 para 41 (as amended), and whether or not at the time required by the regulations.

5 Penalty interest under any of ibid Sch 6 paras 82-85 (see the text and notes 6-18 infra) is to be compound interest calculated at the penalty rate, and with monthly rests: Sch 6 paras 86(1), 91(1). For this purpose the penalty rate is the rate found by taking the rate applicable under the Finance Act 1996 s 197 (as amended) for the purposes of the Finance Act 2000 Sch 6 para 81(3) and adding 10 percentage points to that rate: Sch 6 para 86(2). Where a person is liable under any of Sch 6 paras 82-85 to pay any penalty interest, the Commissioners or, on appeal, an appeal tribunal may reduce the amount payable to such amount (including nil) as they think, or the tribunal thinks, proper: Sch 6 para 86(3). Where the person concerned satisfies the Commissioners or, on appeal, an appeal tribunal that there is a reasonable excuse for the conduct giving rise to the liability to pay penalty interest, that is a matter which (among other things) may be taken into account under Sch 6 para 86(3): Sch 6 para 86(4). In determining whether there is a reasonable excuse for these purposes, no account must, however, be taken of any of the following matters, namely: (1) the insufficiency of the funds available to any person for paying any levy due or for paying the amount of the interest; (2) the fact that there has, in the case in question or in that case taken with any other cases, been no or no significant loss of levy; (3) the fact that the person liable to pay the interest or a person acting on his behalf has acted in good faith: Sch 6 para 86(5). In the case of interest reduced by the Commissioners under Sch 6 para 86(3) an appeal tribunal, on an appeal relating to the interest, may cancel the whole or any part of the reduction made by the Commissioners: Sch 6 para 86(6). For the meaning of 'appeal tribunal' see PARA 673 note 9 ante.

6 Ibid Sch 6 para 82(1). The specified period for these purposes is the period which (1) begins with the day after that on which the person is required in accordance with regulations under Sch 6 para 41 (as amended) to pay levy due from him for the accounting period in question; and (2) ends with the day before that on which the amount shown in the return is paid: Sch 6 para 82(2).

7 Ie by regulations under ibid Sch 6 para 41 (as amended).

8 Ibid Sch 6 para 83(1). The specified period for these purposes is the period which (1) begins with the day after that on which the person is required in accordance with regulations under Sch 6 para 41 (as amended) to pay levy due from him for the accounting period in question; and (2) ends with the day before that on which the assessed amount is paid: Sch 6 para 83(2).

9 Ibid Sch 6 para 83(3).

10 Ie a return for the purposes of any regulations under ibid Sch 6 para 41 (as amended).

11 Interest under ibid Sch 6 para 84 (see heads (4)-(5) in the text): (1) in respect of so much of the period specified in Sch 6 para 84(2) (see note 12 infra) as falls before the day on which the assessment is notified to the person in question, is to be payable at the rate applicable under the Finance Act 1996 s 197 (as amended) (setting of rates of interest for indirect taxation) for the purposes of the Finance Act 2000 Sch 6 para 81(3); and (2) in respect of the remainder (if any) of that period, is to be penalty interest: Sch 6 para 84(3). See, however, head (5) in the text.

12 Ibid Sch 6 para 84(1). 682 Interest

TEXT AND NOTE 6--If (1) a person ('P') fails to pay climate change levy when it becomes due and payable: (2) P makes a request to an officer of Revenue and Customs that payment of the surcharge be deferred; and (3) such an officer agrees that payment of that amount may be deferred for a period ('the deferral period'), P is not liable to penalty interest under the Finance Act 2000 Sch 6 para 82 for failure to pay the amount concerned if P would otherwise become liable to such interest between the date on which he makes the request and the end of the deferral period: Finance Act 2009 s 108(1), (2), (5). However, if P breaks the agreement, and an officer of Revenue and Customs serves on P a notice specifying any interest to which P would become liable apart from the above provisions, P becomes liable, at the date of the notice, to that interest: s 108(3). P breaks an agreement for this purpose if he fails to pay the amount of tax in question when the deferral period ends, or the deferral is subject to P complying with a condition (including a condition that part of the amount be paid during the deferral period and P fails to comply with it: s 108(4).

683. Walking possession agreements.

Where a distress is authorised¹ to be levied on the goods and chattels of a person ('the person in default') who has refused or neglected to pay an amount of levy due from him or an amount recoverable from him as if it were levy, and the person levying the distress and the person in default have entered into a walking possession agreement², then if the person in default is in breach of the undertaking contained in a walking possession agreement, he is liable to a penalty equal to one half of the levy or other amount recoverable from him as if it were levy³. The person in default is not, however, so liable to a penalty if he satisfies the Commissioners for Revenue and Customs or, on appeal, an appeal tribunal⁴ that there is a reasonable excuse for the breach in question⁵.

1 In accordance with regulations under the Finance Act 1997 s 51 (as amended) (enforcement by distress). See the Customs and Excise Duties and Other Indirect Taxes Regulations 1997, SI 1997/1431 (amended for these purposes by the Climate Change Levy (General) Regulations 2001, SI 2001/838, reg 61); and CUSTOMS AND EXCISE vol 12(3) (2007 Reissue) PARA 1140 et seq.

2 For these purposes, a walking possession agreement is an agreement under which, in consideration of the property distrained upon being allowed to remain in the custody of the person in default and of the delaying of its sale, the person in default (1) acknowledges that the property specified in the agreement is under distraint and held in walking possession; and (2) undertakes that, except with the consent of the Commissioners and subject to such conditions as they may impose, he will not remove or allow the removal of any of the specified property from the premises named in the agreement: Finance Act 2000 s 30(1), Sch 6 para 90(2).

G. CREDITS AND REPAYMENTS

684. Tax credits.

The Commissioners for Revenue and Customs may, in accordance with the following provisions, by regulations¹ make provision in relation to cases where:

- 406 (1) after a taxable supply² has been made, there is such a change in circumstances or any person's intentions that, if the changed circumstances or intentions had existed at the time the supply was made, the supply would not have been a taxable supply;
- 407 (2) after a supply of a taxable commodity³ is made on the basis that it is a taxable supply, it is determined that the supply was not (to any extent) a taxable supply;
- 408 (3) after a taxable supply has been made on the basis that it was neither a half-rate supply (if made before 1 April 2006)⁴ nor a reduced-rate supply⁵, it is determined that the supply was (to any extent) a half-rate or reduced-rate supply;
- 409 (4) after a charge to levy has arisen on a supply of a taxable commodity ('the original commodity') to a person who uses the commodity supplied in producing taxable commodities primarily for his own consumption, that person makes supplies of any of the commodities in whose production he has used the original commodity;
- 410 (5) after a person has become entitled to a debt as a result of making a taxable supply, the debt turns out to be bad (in whole or in part);
- 411 (6) the making of a taxable supply gives rise to a double charge⁶ to levy⁷.

The provision that may be made in relation to any such case as is mentioned above is provision:

- 412 (a) for such person as may be specified in the regulations to be entitled to a tax credit⁸ in respect of any levy charged on the supply or, in such a case as is mentioned in head (6) above, one of the supplies in question⁹;
- 413 (b) for a tax credit to which any person is entitled under the regulations to be brought into account when he is accounting for such levy due from him as may be determined in accordance with the regulations¹⁰; and
- 414 (c) for a person entitled to a tax credit to be entitled, in any prescribed case where he cannot bring the tax credit into account so as to set it against a liability to levy, to a repayment of levy of an amount so determined¹¹.

Such regulations may contain any or all of the following provisions:

- 415 (i) provision making any entitlement to a tax credit conditional on the making of a claim by such person, within such period and in such manner as may be prescribed¹²;
- 416 (ii) provision making entitlement to bring a tax credit into account, or to receive a repayment in respect of such a credit, conditional on compliance with such

- requirements, including the making of a claim, as may be determined in accordance with the regulations¹³;
- 417 (iii) provision requiring a claim for a tax credit to be evidenced and quantified by reference to such records and other documents as may be so determined¹⁴;
- 418 (iv) provision requiring a person claiming any entitlement to a tax credit to keep, for such period and in such form and manner as may be so determined, those records and documents and a record of such information relating to the claim as may be so determined¹⁵;
- 419 (v) provision for the withdrawal of a tax credit where any requirement of the regulations is not complied with¹⁶;
- 420 (vi) provision for interest¹⁷ to be treated as added, for such period and for such purposes as may be prescribed, to the amount of any tax credit¹⁸;
- 421 (vii) provision for determining whether, and to what extent, a debt is to be taken as bad¹⁹;
- 422 (viii) provision for the withdrawal of a tax credit to which a person has become entitled in a case within head (5) above where any part of the debt that has been taken to be bad falls to be regarded as not having been bad²⁰;
- 423 (ix) provision for determining whether, and to what extent, any part of a debt that has been taken to be bad should be regarded as not having been bad²¹;
- 424 (x) provision for anything falling to be determined in accordance with the regulations to be determined by reference to a general or specific direction given in accordance with the regulations by the Commissioners²².

685. Repayments of overpaid levy.

Where a person has paid an amount to the Commissioners for Revenue and Customs by way of levy which was not levy due to them, they are liable to repay the amount to him¹. They are not, however, so liable to repay an amount:

- 425 (1) if, or to the extent that, any person has become entitled to a tax credit² in respect of that amount by virtue of tax credit regulations³;
- 426 (2) except on the making of a claim for that purpose⁴.

Except as so provided, or as provided by tax credit regulations, the Commissioners are not, by virtue of the fact that it was not levy due to them, liable to repay any amount paid to them by way of levy⁵.

The Commissioners are not liable, on any claim for a repayment of levy, to repay any amount paid to them more than three years before the making of the claim⁶. Furthermore, it is a defence to any claim for a repayment of an amount of levy that the repayment of that amount would unjustly enrich the claimant⁷. Where:

- 427 (a) there is an amount paid by way of levy which would otherwise fall to be the subject of a repayment of levy to any person ('person A'); and
- 428 (b) the whole or a part of the cost of the payment of that amount to the Commissioners has, for practical purposes, been borne by a person other than person A, then where, in such a case, loss or damage has been or may be incurred by person A as a result of mistaken assumptions made in his case about the operation of any provisions relating to levy⁸, that loss or damage is to be disregarded, except to the extent of the quantified amount⁹, in the making of any determination as to:

- 429 (i) whether or to what extent the repayment of an amount to person A would enrich him; or
- 430 (ii) whether or to what extent any enrichment of person A would be unjust¹⁰.

1 Finance Act 2000 s 30(1), Sch 6 para 63(1). Schedule 6 para 63(1)-(4) is subject to the provisions of Sch 6 para 64 (see the text and notes 6-10 infra): Sch 6 para 63(5).

3 Finance Act 2000 Sch 6 para 63(2); and see note 1 supra. For the meaning of 'tax credit regulations' see PARA 679 note 9 ante.

4 Ibid Sch 6 para 63(3); and see note 1 supra. Such a claim must be made in such form and manner, and must be supported by such documentary evidence, as may be required by regulations made by the Commissioners: Sch 6 para 63(4). As to the power to make regulations see generally para 661 note 13 ante; and as to the exercise of this power see the Climate Change Levy (General) Regulations 2001, SI 2001/838, reg 18.

5 Finance Act 2000 Sch 6 para 63(6).

6 Ibid Sch 6 para 64(1).

7 Ibid Sch 6 para 64(2). The Commissioners may by regulations make provision for reimbursement arrangements made by any person to be disregarded for the purposes of Sch 6 para 64(2) except where the arrangements contain such provision as may be required by the regulations and are supported by such undertakings to comply with the provisions of the arrangements as may be required by the regulations to be given to the Commissioners: Sch 6 para 65(1). For these purposes, 'reimbursement arrangements' means any arrangements for the purposes of a claim to a repayment of levy which (1) are made by any person for the purpose of securing that he is not unjustly enriched by the repayment of any amount in pursuance of the claim; and (2) provide for the reimbursement of persons who have for practical purposes borne the whole or any part of the cost of the original payment of that amount to the Commissioners: Sch 6 para 65(2). Without prejudice to the generality of Sch 6 para 65(1), the provision that may be required by regulations under Sch 6 para 65 to be contained in reimbursement arrangements includes: (a) provision requiring a reimbursement for which the arrangements provide to be made within such period after the repayment to which it relates as may be specified in the regulations; (b) provision for the repayment of amounts to the Commissioners where those amounts are not reimbursed in accordance with the arrangements; (c) provision requiring interest paid by the Commissioners on any amount repaid by them to be treated in the same way as that amount for the purposes of any requirement under the arrangements to make reimbursement or to repay the Commissioners; (d) provision requiring such records relating to the carrying out of the arrangements as may be described in the regulations to be kept and produced to the Commissioners, or to an officer of theirs: Sch 6 para 65(3). Such regulations may impose obligations on such persons as may be specified in them: (i) to make the repayments to the Commissioners that they are required to make in pursuance of any provisions contained in any reimbursement arrangements by virtue of Sch 6 para 65(3)(b) or (c) (see heads (b)-(c) supra); (ii) to comply with any requirements contained in any such arrangements by virtue of Sch 6 para 65(3)(d) (see head (d) supra): Sch 6 para 65(4). Such regulations may also make provision for the form and manner in which, and the times at which, undertakings are to be given to the Commissioners in accordance with the regulations; and any such provision may allow for those matters to be determined by the Commissioners in accordance with the regulations: Sch 6 para 65(5). As to the exercise of this power see the Climate Change Levy (General) Regulations 2001, SI 2001/838, regs 19-25.

8 The reference in the text to provisions relating to levy is a reference to any provisions of (1) any enactment or subordinate legislation (whether or not still in force) which relates to the levy or to any matter connected with it; or (2) any notice published by the Commissioners under or for the purposes of any enactment or subordinate legislation relating to the levy: ibid Sch 6 para 64(6).

9 For these purposes, 'the quantified amount' means the amount (if any) which is shown by person A to constitute the amount that would appropriately compensate him for loss or damage shown by him to have resulted, for any business carried on by him, from the making of the mistaken assumptions: ibid Sch 6 para 64(5).

10 Ibid Sch 6 para 64(3), (4).

TEXT AND NOTE 6--For 'three years' read 'four years': Finance Act 2000 Sch 6 para 64(1) (amended by Finance Act 2009 Sch 51 para 33).

Halsbury's Laws of England/FUEL AND ENERGY (VOLUME 19(1) (2007 REISSUE) PARAS 601-775; VOLUME 19(2) (2007 REISSUE) PARAS 776-1328); VOLUME 19(3) (2007 REISSUE) PARAS 1329-1927)/1. INTRODUCTION/(6) TAXATION/(i) Climate Change Levy/G. CREDITS AND REPAYMENTS/686. Interest payable by the Commissioners.

686. Interest payable by the Commissioners.

Where, due to an error on the part of the Commissioners for Revenue and Customs, a person:

- 431 (1) has paid to them by way of levy an amount which was not due and which they are in consequence liable to repay to him¹;
- 432 (2) has failed to claim a repayment of levy to which he was entitled, under any tax credit regulations², in respect of any tax credits³; or
- 433 (3) has suffered delay in receiving payment of an amount due to him from them in connection with levy⁴, then, if and to the extent that they would not otherwise be liable to do so, they must, subject to the following provisions, pay interest⁵ to him on that amount for the applicable period⁶. The Commissioners are not, however, liable to pay interest under these provisions except on the making of a claim for that purpose⁷. Such a claim must be in writing and must be made not more than three years after the end of the applicable period to which it relates⁸.

1 The reference in head (1) in the text to an amount which the Commissioners are liable to repay in consequence of the making of a payment that was not due is a reference to only so much of that amount as is the subject of a claim that the Commissioners are required to satisfy or have satisfied: Finance Act 2000 s 30(1), Sch 6 para 66(2).

2 For the meaning of 'tax credit regulations' see PARA 679 note 9 ante.

3 For the meaning of 'tax credit' see PARA 679 note 9 ante; and as to such credits see PARA 684 ante.

4 The amounts referred to in head (3) in the text: (1) do not include any amount payable under the Finance Act 2000 Sch 6 para 66; (2) do not include the amount of any interest for which provision is made by virtue of Sch 6 para 62(3)(f) (see PARA 684 ante); but (3) do include any amount due (in respect of an adjustment of overpaid interest) by way of a repayment under Sch 6 para 87(3) (see PARA 682 ante) or Sch 6 para 110(3) (see PARA 694 post): Sch 6 para 66(3).

5 Interest is so payable at the rate applicable under the Finance Act 1996 s 197 (as amended) (setting of rates of interest for indirect taxation): Finance Act 2000 Sch 6 para 66(12). References in Sch 6 para 66(1) to receiving payment of any amount from the Commissioners; or (2) to the authorisation by the Commissioners of the payment of any amount, include references to the discharge by way of set-off (whether in accordance with regulations under Sch 6 para 73 or Sch 6 para 74 (see PARA 688 post) or otherwise) of the Commissioners' liability to pay that amount: Sch 6 para 66(11).

6 Ibid Sch 6 para 66(1). The applicable period, in a case falling within Sch 6 para 66(1)(a) (see head (1) in the text) is the period (1) beginning with the date on which the payment is received by the Commissioners; and (2) ending with the date on which they authorise payment of the amount on which the interest is payable: Sch 6 para 66(4). The applicable period, in a case falling within Sch 6 para 66(1)(b) or (c) (see heads (2)-(3) in the text, is the period (a) beginning with the date on which, apart from the error, the Commissioners might reasonably have been expected to authorise payment of the amount on which the interest is payable; and (b) ending with the date on which they in fact authorise payment of that amount: Sch 6 para 66(5); and see note 5 supra. In determining the applicable period for these purposes there must be left out of account any period by which the Commissioners' authorisation of the payment of interest is delayed by circumstances beyond their control: Sch 6 para 66(6). The reference in Sch 6 para 66(6) to a period by which the Commissioners' authorisation of the payment of interest is delayed by circumstances beyond their control includes, in particular, any period which is referable to (i) any unreasonable delay in the making of any claim for the payment or repayment of the amount on which interest is claimed; (ii) any failure by any person to provide the Commissioners (A) at or before the time of the making of a claim; or (B) subsequently in response to a request for information by the Commissioners, with all the information required by them to enable the existence and amount of the claimant's entitlement to a payment or repayment, and to interest on that payment or repayment, to be determined; and (iii) the making, as part of or in association with any claim for the payment or repayment of the amount on which interest is claimed, of a claim to anything to which the claimant was not entitled: Sch 6 para 66(7). In determining for these purposes whether any period of delay is referable to a failure by any person to provide information in response to a request by the Commissioners, there must be taken to be so referable, except so far as may be provided for by regulations, any period which (aa) begins with the date on which the Commissioners require that person to provide information which they reasonably consider relevant to the matter to be determined; and (bb) ends with the earliest date on which it would be reasonable for the Commissioners to conclude either that they have received a complete answer to their request for information, that they have received all that they need in answer to that request, or that it is unnecessary for them to be provided with any information in answer to that request: Sch 6 para 66(8).

687. Assessment for excessive repayment or for overpayment of interest.

Where:

- 434 (1) any amount has been paid at any time to any person by way of a repayment of levy, and the amount paid exceeded the amount which the Commissioners for Revenue and Customs were liable at that time to repay to that person, the Commissioners may, to the best of their judgment, assess the excess paid to that person and notify it to him¹;
- 435 (2) any amount has been paid to any person by way of repayment of levy, the repayment is in respect of a tax credit² the entitlement to which arose in a case relating to a bad debt³, the whole or any part of the credit is withdrawn on account of any part of the debt taken as bad falling to be regarded as not having been bad, and the amount paid exceeded the amount which the Commissioners would have been liable to repay to that person had that withdrawal been taken into account, the Commissioners may, to the best of their judgment, assess the excess paid to that person and notify it to him⁴;
- 436 (3) any person is liable to pay any amount to the Commissioners in pursuance of an obligation imposed by virtue of any provisions contained in any reimbursement arrangements⁵, the Commissioners may, to the best of their judgment, assess the amount due from that person and notify it to him⁶.

Where an assessment is made on any person under heads (1) to (3) above in respect of a repayment of levy made in relation to any accounting period⁷, and the Commissioners have power⁸ to make an assessment on that person to an amount of levy due from that person for that period, the assessments may be combined and notified to him as one assessment⁹. Such a notice of a combined assessment must separately identify the amount being assessed in respect of repayments of levy¹⁰.

Where any amount has been paid to any person by way of interest¹¹ but that person was not entitled¹² to that amount, the Commissioners may, to the best of their judgment, assess the amount so paid to which that person was not entitled and notify it to him¹³.

An assessment under the above provisions¹⁴ may not be made more than two years after the time when evidence of facts sufficient in the opinion of the Commissioners to justify the making of the assessment comes to the knowledge of the Commissioners¹⁵. Where an amount has been so assessed and notified to any person, it is recoverable as if it were levy due from him¹⁶; but this does not have effect if, or to the extent that, the assessment in question has been withdrawn or reduced¹⁷. Where such an assessment is made, the whole of the amount assessed carries interest, for the specified period¹⁸, as follows:

- 437 (a) with certain exceptions¹⁹, so much of that amount as represents the amount of a tax credit claimed by a person who was not entitled to it carries penalty interest²⁰;
- 438 (b) so much of that amount as does not carry penalty interest under head (a) above carries interest at the ordinary rate²¹.

Where a person is so liable to pay any penalty interest, the Commissioners or, on appeal, an appeal tribunal²² may reduce the amount payable to such amount, including nil, as they think, or as the tribunal thinks, proper²³. In the case of interest so reduced by the Commissioners an appeal tribunal, on an appeal relating to the interest, may cancel the whole or any part of the reduction made by the Commissioners²⁴. Where any person is liable to interest on such an assessment, the Commissioners may assess the amount due by way of interest and notify it to him accordingly²⁵; and where an amount has been assessed and notified to any person under this provision it is recoverable as if it were levy due from him²⁶. This does not, however, have effect if, or to the extent that, the assessment in question has been withdrawn or reduced²⁷. Without prejudice to the power to make such assessments to an amount of interest for later periods, the interest to which such an assessment may relate is confined to interest for a period of no more than two years ending with the time when that assessment is made²⁸. Where an assessment is so made to an amount of interest:

- 439 (i) the notice of assessment must specify a date, not later than the date of the notice of assessment, to which the amount of interest which is assessed is calculated; and
- 440 (ii) if the interest continues to accrue after that date, a further assessment or further assessments may be made in respect of the amounts so accruing²⁹.

Where, however, an assessment to interest is made specifying a date for the purposes of head (i) above, and within such period as may have been notified by the Commissioners to the person liable for the interest, the amount on which the interest is payable is paid, that amount is to be deemed for the purposes of any further liability to interest to have been paid on the specified date³⁰.

If it appears to the Commissioners that the amount which ought to have been assessed in an assessment under any of the above provisions³¹ exceeds the amount which was so assessed, then the Commissioners may make a supplementary assessment under the same provision as that assessment was made, and on or before the last day on which that assessment could have been made, of the amount of the excess and must notify the person concerned accordingly³².

1 Finance Act 2000 s 30(1), Sch 6 para 67(1). Any notification of an assessment under any provision of Sch 6 Pt VI (paras 62-76) (as amended) to a person's representative is to be treated for those purposes as notification to the person in relation to whom the representative acts: Sch 6 para 76(1). 'Representative', in relation to any person, means (1) any of that person's personal representatives; (2) that person's trustee in bankruptcy or liquidator; (3) any person holding office as a receiver in relation to that person or any of his property; (4) that person's tax representative or any other person for the time being acting in a representative capacity in relation to that person: Sch 6 para 76(2). In determining whether there is a reasonable excuse for these purposes, no account is to be taken of any of the following matters, that is to say: (1) the insufficiency of the funds available to any person for paying any levy due or for paying the amount of the interest; (2) the fact that there has, in the case in question or in that case taken with any other cases, been no or no significant loss of levy; (3) the fact that the person liable to pay the interest or a person acting on his behalf has acted in good faith: Sch 6 para 70(8).

688. Set-off.

The Commissioners for Revenue and Customs may by regulations¹ make provision in relation to any case where:

- 441 (1) a person is under a duty to pay to the Commissioners at any time an amount or amounts in respect of levy; and
- 442 (2) the Commissioners are under a duty to pay to that person at the same time an amount or amounts in respect of levy or any of the other taxes under their care and management².

Such regulations may:

- 443 (a) provide that if the total of the amount or amounts mentioned in head (1) above exceeds the total of the amount or amounts mentioned in head (2) above, the latter is to be set off against the former³;
- 444 (b) provide that if the total of the amount or amounts mentioned in head (2) above exceeds the total of the amount or amounts mentioned in head (1) above, the Commissioners may set off the latter in paying the former⁴;
- 445 (c) provide that if the total of the amount or amounts mentioned in head (1) above is the same as the total of the amount or amounts mentioned in head (2) above, no payment need be made in respect of the former or the latter⁵;
- 446 (d) provide for any limitation on the time within which the Commissioners are entitled to take steps for recovering any amount due to them in respect of levy to be disregarded, in such cases as may be described in the regulations, in determining whether any person is under such a duty to pay as is mentioned in head (1) above⁶;
- 447 (e) include provision treating any duty to pay mentioned in heads (1) and (2) above as discharged accordingly⁷.

The Commissioners may also by regulations make provision in relation to any case where:

- 448 (i) a person is under a duty to pay to the Commissioners at any time an amount or amounts in respect of any tax (or taxes) under their care and management other than levy; and
- 449 (ii) the Commissioners are under a duty, at the same time, to make any repayment of levy to that person or to make any other payment to him of any amount or amounts in respect of levy⁸.

Such regulations may:

- 450 (A) provide that if the total of the amount or amounts mentioned in head (i) above exceeds the total of the amount or amounts mentioned in head (ii) above, the latter is to be set off against the former⁹;

- 451 (B) provide that if the total of the amount or amounts mentioned in head (ii) above exceeds the total of the amount or amounts mentioned in head (i) above, the Commissioners may set off the latter in paying the former¹⁰;
- 452 (C) provide that if the total of the amount or amounts mentioned in head (i) above is the same as the total of the amount or amounts mentioned in head (ii) above, no payment need be made in respect of the former or the latter¹¹;
- 453 (D) provide for any limitation on the time within which the Commissioners are entitled to take steps for recovering any amount due to them in respect of any of the taxes under their care and management to be disregarded, in such cases as may be described in the regulations, in determining whether any person is under such a duty to pay as is mentioned in head (i) above¹²;
- 454 (E) include provision treating any duty to pay mentioned in heads (i) and (ii) above as discharged accordingly¹³.

Regulations made under any of the above provisions may not, however, require any such amount or amounts as are mentioned in heads (2) and (ii) above ('the credit') to be set against any such amount or amounts as are mentioned in heads (1) and (i) above ('the debit') in any case where an insolvency procedure has been applied to the person entitled to the credit¹⁴, the credit became due after that procedure was so applied and the liability to pay the debit either arose before that procedure was so applied or (having arisen afterwards) relates to, or to matters occurring in the course of, the carrying on of any business at times before the procedure was so applied¹⁵.

The powers conferred by the above provisions are without prejudice to any power of the Commissioners to provide by tax credit regulations¹⁶ for any amount to be set against another¹⁷.

14 For these purposes, an insolvency procedure is applied to a person if (1) a bankruptcy order, winding-up order or administration order is made or an administrator is appointed in relation to that person or an award of sequestration is made on that person's estate; (2) that person is put into administrative receivership; (3) that person passes a resolution for voluntary winding up; (4) any voluntary arrangement approved in accordance with the Insolvency Act 1986 Pt I (ss 1-7B) (as amended) (see COMPANY AND PARTNERSHIP INSOLVENCY vol 7(3) (2004 Reissue) PARA 71 et seq) or Pt VIII (ss 252-263G) (as amended) (see BANKRUPTCY AND INDIVIDUAL INSOLVENCY vol 3(2) (2002 Reissue) PARA 81 et seq) or the corresponding Northern Ireland legislation comes into force in relation to that person; (5) a deed of arrangement registered in accordance with the Deeds of Arrangement Act 1914 (see BANKRUPTCY AND INDIVIDUAL INSOLVENCY vol 3(2) (2002 Reissue) PARA 859 et seq), or the corresponding Northern Ireland legislation, takes effect in relation to that person; (6) a person is appointed as the interim receiver of some or all of that person's property under the Insolvency Act 1986 s 286 (see BANKRUPTCY AND INDIVIDUAL INSOLVENCY vol 3(2) (2002 Reissue) PARA 223 et seq) or the corresponding Northern Ireland legislation; (7) a person is appointed as the provisional liquidator in relation to that person under s 135 (see COMPANY AND PARTNERSHIP INSOLVENCY vol 7(3) (2004 Reissue) PARA 491 et seq) or the corresponding Northern Ireland legislation; (8) an interim order is made under Pt VIII (as amended) or the corresponding Northern Ireland legislation; or (9) that person's estate becomes vested in any other person as that person's trustee under a trust deed (within the meaning of the Bankruptcy (Scotland) Act 1985): Finance Act 2000 Sch 6 para 75(2) (Sch 6 para 75(2), (3), (5) amended by the Enterprise Act 2002 (Insolvency) Order 2003, SI 2003/2096, art 4, Schedule Pt 1 paras 31, 32). References, in relation to any person, to the application of an insolvency procedure to that person do not include: (a) the making of a bankruptcy order, winding-up order or award of sequestration or the appointment of an administrator at a time when any such arrangement or deed as is mentioned in head (4), head (5) or head (9) supra is in force in relation to that person; (b) the making of a winding-up order at any of the following times, that is to say (i) immediately upon the appointment of an administrator in respect of the person ceasing to have effect; (ii) when that person is being wound up voluntarily; (iii) when that person is in administrative receivership; or (c) the making of an administration order in relation to that person at any time when that person is in administrative receivership: Finance Act 2000 Sch 6 para 75(3) (as so amended). For these purposes, a person is to be regarded as being in administrative receivership throughout any continuous period for which (disregarding any temporary vacancy in the office of receiver) there is an administrative receiver of that person: Sch 6 para 75(4). 'Administration order' means an administration order under the Insolvency Act 1986 Sch B1 (as added) (see COMPANY AND PARTNERSHIP INSOLVENCY vol 7(3) (2004 Reissue) PARA 216 et seq), or the corresponding Northern Ireland legislation; and 'administrative receiver' means an administrative receiver within the meaning of s 251 or of that Northern Ireland legislation: Finance Act 2000 Sch 6 para 75(5) (as so amended).

H. EVASIONS, MISDECLARATIONS AND NEGLECT

689. Criminal offences with regard to evasion and misstatements.

A person is guilty of an offence:

- 455 (1) if he is knowingly concerned in, or in the taking of steps with a view to, the fraudulent evasion by that person of any levy¹ with which he is charged, or the fraudulent evasion by any other person of any levy with which that other person is charged²;
- 456 (2) if, with the requisite intent³ and for purposes connected with the levy, he produces or provides, or causes to be produced or provided, any document which is false in a material particular, or he otherwise makes use of such a document⁴;
- 457 (3) if, in providing any information under any provision made by or under the relevant statutory provisions⁵, he makes a statement which he knows to be false in a material particular or he recklessly makes a statement which is false in a material particular⁶;
- 458 (4) if his conduct⁷ during any particular period must have involved the commission by him of one or more offences under heads (1) to (3) above⁸; and for the purposes of any proceedings for such an offence it is immaterial whether the particulars of the offence or offences that must have been committed are known⁹;
- 459 (5) if, where he becomes a party to any agreement¹⁰ under or by means of which a supply of a taxable commodity¹¹ is or is to be made, or makes arrangements for any other person to become a party to such an agreement, he does so in the belief that levy chargeable on the supply will be evaded¹².

The provisions of the Customs and Excise Management Act 1979 concerning proceedings for offences, mitigation of penalties and certain other matters¹³ apply in relation to offences and penalties under heads (1) to (5) above as they apply in relation to offences and penalties under the Customs and Excise Acts¹⁴.

1 The references in head (1) in the text to the evasion of levy include references to obtaining, in circumstances where there is no entitlement to it, either a tax credit or a repayment of levy: Finance Act 2000 s 30(1), Sch 6 para 92(2). For the meaning of 'tax credit' see PARA 679 note 9 ante. References in Pt VIII (paras 92-102) (as amended) to obtaining a tax credit are references to bringing an amount into account as a tax credit for the purposes of levy on the basis that that amount is an amount which may be so brought into account in accordance with tax credit regulations (Sch 6 para 102(1)); and references to obtaining a repayment of levy are references to obtaining either (1) the payment or repayment of any amount; or (2) the acknowledgment of a right to receive any amount, on the basis that that amount is the amount of a repayment of levy to which there is an entitlement (Sch 6 para 102(2)). For the meaning of 'tax credit regulations' see PARA 679 note 9 ante.

2 Ibid Sch 6 para 92(1). A person guilty of such an offence is liable (subject to Sch 6 para 92(4)) on summary conviction to a penalty of the statutory maximum or to imprisonment for a term not exceeding six months, or to both, or on conviction on indictment to a penalty of any amount or to imprisonment for a term not exceeding seven years, or to both: Sch 6 para 92(3). In the case of any such offence, however, where the statutory maximum is less than three times the sum of the amounts of levy which are shown to be amounts that were or were intended to be evaded, the penalty on summary conviction is to be the amount equal to three times that sum (instead of the statutory maximum): Sch 6 para 92(4). For these purposes, the amounts of levy that were or were intended to be evaded are to be taken to include the amount of any tax credit, and the amount of any repayment of levy, which was, or was intended to be, obtained in circumstances where there was no entitlement to it: Sch 6 para 92(5). In determining for the purposes of Sch 6 para 92(4) how much levy (in addition to any amount falling within Sch 6 para 92(5)) was or was intended to be evaded, no account is to be taken of the extent (if any) to which any liability to levy of any person fell, or would have fallen, to be reduced by the amount of any tax credit or repayment of levy to which he was, or would have been, entitled: Sch 6 para 92(6).

The 'statutory maximum', with reference to a fine or penalty on summary conviction for an offence, is the prescribed sum within the meaning of the Magistrates' Courts Act 1980 s 32 (as amended): see the Interpretation Act 1978 s 5, Sch 1 (definition added by the Criminal Justice Act 1988 s 170(1), Sch 15 para 58); and SENTENCING AND DISPOSITION OF OFFENDERS vol 92 (2010) PARA 140. As to the prescribed sum see PARA 613 note 20 ante.

3 For these purposes, 'the requisite intent' means the intent to deceive any person or to secure that a machine will respond to the document as if it were a true document: ibid Sch 6 para 93(1).

4 Ibid Sch 6 para 93(1). A person guilty of an offence under Sch 6 para 93 (as amended) is liable (subject to Sch 6 para 93(4) (as amended)) on summary conviction to a penalty of the statutory maximum or to imprisonment for a term not exceeding six months, or to both, or on conviction on indictment to a penalty of any amount or to imprisonment for a term not exceeding seven years, or to both: Sch 6 para 93(3). In the case of any such offence, where (1) the document referred to in Sch 6 para 93(1) (see head (2) in the text) is a return or other notification required under any provision made by or under Sch 6 (as amended) (see PARA 661 et seq ante, PARA 690 et seq post); or (2) the information referred to in Sch 6 para 93(2) (see head (3) in the text) is contained in or otherwise relevant to such a return or notification, the amount of the penalty on summary conviction is to be whichever is the greater of the statutory maximum and the amount equal to three times the sum of the amounts (if any) by which the return or notification understates any person's liability to levy: Sch 6 para 93(4) (amended by the Finance Act 2003 s 192(1), (7)(a)). The reference in the Finance Act 2000 Sch 6 para 93(4) (as amended) to the amount by which any person's liability to levy is understated is to be taken to be equal to the sum of (a) the amount (if any) by which his gross liability was understated; and (b) the amount (if any) by which any entitlements of his to tax credits and repayments of levy were overstated (Sch 6 para 93(5)); and 'gross liability' means liability to levy before any deduction is made in respect of any entitlement to any tax credit or repayments of levy (Sch 6 para 93(6)).

5 le by or under ibid Sch 6 (as amended).

6 Ibid Sch 6 para 93(2). For the penalty on conviction see note 4 supra; and for the meaning of 'recklessly' in the context of the criminal law see CRIMINAL LAW, EVIDENCE AND PROCEDURE vol 11(1) (2006 Reissue) PARA 11.

7 'Conduct' includes acts and omissions: ibid Sch 6 para 147.

8 Ibid Sch 6 para 94(1).

9 Ibid Sch 6 para 94(2). A person guilty of such an offence is liable (subject to Sch 6 para 94(4)), on summary conviction to a penalty of the statutory maximum or to imprisonment for a term not exceeding six months, or to both, or on conviction on indictment to a penalty of any amount or to imprisonment for a term not exceeding seven years, or to both: Sch 6 para 94(3). In the case of any such offence, however, where the statutory maximum is less than three times the sum of the amounts of levy which are shown to be amounts that were or were intended to be evaded by the conduct in question, the penalty on summary conviction is to be the amount equal to three times that sum (instead of the statutory maximum): Sch 6 para 94(4). For these purposes, the amounts of levy that were or were intended to be evaded by any conduct are to be taken to include the amount of any tax credit, and the amount of any repayment of levy, which was, or was intended to be, obtained in circumstances where there was no entitlement to it: Sch 6 para 94(5). In determining for the purposes of Sch 6 para 94(4) how much levy (in addition to any amount falling within Sch 6 para 94(5)) was or was intended to be evaded, no account is to be taken of the extent (if any) to which any liability to levy of any person fell, or would have fallen, to be reduced by the amount of any tax credit or repayments of levy to which he was, or would have been, entitled: Sch 6 para 94(6).

10 'Agreement' includes any arrangement or understanding (whether or not legally enforceable), and cognate expressions are to be construed accordingly: ibid Sch 6 para 147.

11 For the meaning of 'taxable commodity' see PARA 661 ante; and for the meaning of references to a supply of a taxable commodity see PARA 662 note 1 ante.

12 Finance Act 2000 Sch 6 para 95(1). Subject to Sch 6 para 95(3), a person guilty of such an offence is liable, on summary conviction, to a penalty of level 5 on the standard scale: Sch 6 para 95(2). As to the standard scale see PARA 613 note 11 ante. In the case of any such offence, however, where level 5 on the standard scale is less than three times the sum of the amounts of levy which are shown to be amounts that were or were intended to be evaded in respect of the supply in question, the penalty is to be the amount equal to three times that sum (instead of level 5 on the standard scale): Sch 6 para 95(3). For these purposes, the amounts of levy that were or were intended to be evaded are to be taken to include the amount of any tax credit, and the amount of any repayment of levy, which was, or was intended to be, obtained in circumstances where there was no entitlement to it: Sch 6 para 95(4). In determining for the purposes of Sch 6 para 95(3) how much levy (in addition to any amount falling within Sch 6 para 95(4)) was or was intended to be evaded, no account is to be taken of the extent (if any) to which any liability to levy of any person fell, or would have fallen, to be reduced by the amount of any tax credit or repayments of levy to which he was, or would have been, entitled: Sch 6 para 95(5).

INTRODUCTION/(6) TAXATION/(i) Climate Change Levy/H. EVASIONS, MISDECLARATIONS AND NEGLECT/690. Civil penalties for evasion, misdeclaration or neglect etc.

690. Civil penalties for evasion, misdeclaration or neglect etc.

Where any person engages in any conduct¹ for the purpose of evading levy², and that conduct involves dishonesty (whether or not it is such as to give rise to criminal liability), that person is liable³ to a penalty⁴. The amount of the penalty is to be:

- 460 (1) equal to the amount of levy evaded, or (as the case may be) intended to be evaded, by the person's conduct⁵ if at the time of engaging in that conduct he was or was required to be registered⁶ for the purposes of the levy;
- 461 (2) equal to twice that amount if at that time the person neither was nor was required to be registered for those purposes⁷.

Where, however, by reason of any such conduct, a person is convicted of an offence⁸, that person is not by reason of that conduct to be liable also to a such penalty⁹.

Where it appears to the Commissioners for Revenue and Customs that a body corporate is liable to a penalty under the above provisions, and that the conduct giving rise to that penalty is, in whole or in part, attributable to the dishonesty of a person who is, or at the material time was, a director¹⁰ or managing officer¹¹ of the body corporate (a 'named officer'), the Commissioners may serve a notice¹² on the body corporate and on the named officer, stating the amount of the penalty referred to above ('the basic penalty'), and that the Commissioners propose to recover from the named officer such portion of the basic penalty (which may be the whole of it) as is specified in the notice¹³. Where such a notice is served:

- 462 (a) the portion of the basic penalty specified in the notice is to be recoverable from the named officer as if he were personally liable¹⁴ to a penalty which corresponds to that portion¹⁵;
- 463 (b) the amount which may be assessed¹⁶ as the amount due by way of penalty from the body corporate is to be only so much (if any) of the basic penalty as is not assessed on and notified to a named officer¹⁷; and
- 464 (c) the body corporate is to be treated as discharged from liability for so much of the basic penalty as is so assessed and notified¹⁸.

Subject to exceptions with regard to the liability of the body corporate to a penalty when it is assessed as mentioned in head (b) above, and with regard to the amount of the basic penalty specified in the assessment¹⁹, the giving of such a notice is not, as such, a decision which may be reviewed²⁰ by the Commissioners²¹.

Where:

- 465 (i) a return or other notification is made which understates a person's liability to levy or overstates his entitlement to any tax credit or repayment of levy²²; or
- 466 (ii) at the end of the period of 30 days beginning on the date of the making of any assessment which understates a person's liability to levy, that person has not taken all such steps as are reasonable to draw the understatement to the attention of the Commissioners, the person concerned is liable²³ to a penalty equal to 5 per cent of the amount of the understatement of liability or (as the case may be) overstatement of entitlement²⁴. Conduct falling within head (i) or head (ii) above does not, however, give rise to liability to such a penalty if the person concerned provides the Commissioners with full information with respect to the inaccuracy concerned at a time when he has no reason to believe that inquiries are being made by the Commissioners into his affairs, so far as they relate to the levy, and in such form and manner as may be prescribed by regulations²⁵ made by the Commissioners or specified by them in accordance with any such regulations²⁶. Nor does such conduct give rise to liability to such a penalty if the person concerned satisfies the Commissioners or, on appeal, an appeal tribunal²⁷ that there is a reasonable excuse for his conduct²⁸. Where, by reason of such conduct, a person is convicted of an offence²⁹, or is assessed to a penalty on the basis that he has engaged in dishonest conduct for the purpose of evading levy³⁰, that person is not by reason of that conduct to be liable also to a penalty under this provision³¹.

Where a person gives, in relation to any supply or supplies of a taxable commodity³² or taxable commodities being made to him, a certificate to the supplier that the supply or supplies is or are to any extent:

- 467 (A) for domestic or charity use³³;
- 468 (B) exempt under any of the specified provisions³⁴;
- 469 (C) a half-rate supply or half-rate supplies made before 1 April 2006³⁵; or
- 470 (D) a reduced-rate supply or reduced-rate supplies³⁶, and the certificate is or becomes incorrect, the person is liable to a penalty³⁷. The amount of the penalty to which a person is so liable is to be equal to 105 per cent of the difference between the amount of levy (which may be nil) that would have been chargeable on the supply or supplies if the certificate had been correct, and the amount of levy actually chargeable³⁸. The giving of a certificate, or not revoking or varying it, does not, however, give rise to such a penalty if the person concerned satisfies the Commissioners or, on appeal, an appeal tribunal that the person has a reasonable excuse³⁹. Where by reason of giving a certificate, or not revoking or varying it, a person is convicted of an offence⁴⁰, or is assessed to a penalty on the basis that he has engaged in dishonest conduct for the purpose of evading levy⁴¹, that person is not by reason of that to be liable also to a penalty under this provision⁴².

In determining for these purposes how much levy (in addition to any amount falling within Sch 6 para 98(4)) was or was intended to be evaded, no account is to be taken of the extent (if any) to which any liability to levy of any person fell, or would have fallen, to be reduced by the amount of any tax credit or repayments of levy to which he was, or would have been, entitled: Sch 6 para 98(5).

INTRODUCTION/(6) TAXATION/(i) Climate Change Levy/H. EVASIONS, MISDECLARATIONS AND NEGLECT/691. Civil penalty for invoices incorrectly showing levy due.

691. Civil penalty for invoices incorrectly showing levy due.

Where a person issues an invoice¹ showing an amount as levy chargeable on a supply, and no levy is chargeable on the supply, or the amount chargeable is less than the amount shown, then he is liable to a penalty unless he satisfies the Commissioners for Revenue and Customs or, on appeal, an appeal tribunal² that there is a reasonable excuse for the inclusion in the invoice of the false information³. The amount of the penalty is £50 or, if more, the following amount:

- 471 (1) where no levy is chargeable, the amount shown as chargeable;
- 472 (2) where an amount of levy is chargeable, the difference between that amount and the amount shown as chargeable⁴.

It is irrelevant for these purposes whether or not the supply shown on the invoice actually takes place or has taken place⁵.

1 For these purposes, a reference to an invoice is a reference to any kind of invoice (and not just a climate change levy accounting document): Finance Act 2000 Sch 6 para 141A(5) (Sch 6 para 141A added by the Finance Act 2002 s 128(1)). A 'climate change levy accounting document' for a taxable supply is an invoice (1) stating that it is a climate change levy accounting document (for which purpose the inclusion of the phrase 'climate change levy accounting document' or the phrase 'CCL accounting document', whether as shown here or with any of the letters shown here as small letters appearing as capitals, is sufficient); (2) stating the date on which it is issued; and (3) containing the required statements, namely (a) in the case of a climate change levy accounting document issued under the Finance Act 2000 Sch 6 para 27 (see PARA 671 ante), the statements required by Sch 6 para 27(5); (b) in the case of a climate change levy accounting document whose provision is required by regulations, statements of prescribed particulars of or relating to the supply, the persons by and to whom the supply is made, and the levy chargeable: Sch 6 paras 134(2), (3), 147.

I. CIVIL PENALTIES

692. Reduction of penalties.

Where a person is liable to a civil penalty¹:

- 473 (1) the Commissioners for Revenue and Customs or, on appeal, an appeal tribunal² may reduce the penalty to such amount (including nil) as they think, or as the tribunal thinks, proper; but
- 474 (2) on an appeal relating to any penalty reduced by the Commissioners, an appeal tribunal may cancel the whole or any part of the Commissioners' reduction³.

In determining whether a civil penalty should be, or should have been, so reduced, no account is to be taken of any of the following matters, that is to say:

- 475 (a) the insufficiency of the funds available to any person for paying any levy due or for paying the amount of the penalty;
- 476 (b) the fact that there has, in the case in question or in that case taken with any other cases, been no or no significant loss of levy;
- 477 (c) the fact that the person liable to the penalty or a person acting on his behalf has acted in good faith⁴.

1 For the purposes of the Finance Act 2000 s 30(1), Sch 6 Pt IX (paras 103-113) (see the text and notes 2-4 infra; and PARA 693 et seq post) 'civil penalty' means any penalty liability to which is imposed by or under Sch 6 (as amended) (see PARA 661 et seq ante, PARA 693 et seq post), and arises otherwise than in consequence of a person's conviction for a criminal offence: Sch 6 para 103(1). References to a person's being liable to a civil penalty include references to his being a person from whom the whole or any part of a civil penalty is recoverable by virtue of Sch 6 para 99 (see PARA 690 ante); and references, in relation to a person from whom the whole or any part of a civil penalty is so recoverable, to the penalty to which he is liable are references to so much of the penalty as is recoverable from him: Sch 6 para 103(2). As to civil penalties under regulations made under Sch 6 (as amended) see the Climate Change Levy (General) Regulations 2001, SI 2001/838, reg 60 (amended by SI 2003/604); the Climate Change Levy (Registration and Miscellaneous Provisions) Regulations 2001, SI 2001/7, reg 20.

693. Matters not amounting to reasonable excuse.

For the purposes of any provision¹ under which liability to a civil penalty² does not arise in respect of conduct³ for which there is shown to be a reasonable excuse:

- 478 (1) an insufficiency of funds available for paying any amount is not a reasonable excuse; and
- 479 (2) where reliance has been placed on any other person to perform any task, neither the fact of that reliance nor any conduct of the person relied upon is a reasonable excuse⁴.

INTRODUCTION/(6) TAXATION/(i) Climate Change Levy/I. CIVIL PENALTIES/694. Assessments to penalties and interest on penalties etc.

694. Assessments to penalties and interest on penalties etc.

Where a person is liable to a civil penalty¹, the Commissioners for Revenue and Customs may assess the amount due by way of penalty and notify it to him accordingly². If, where an assessment has been notified to any person³, it appears to the Commissioners that the amount which ought to have been assessed exceeds the amount that has already been assessed, the Commissioners may make a supplementary assessment of the amount of the excess and must notify that person accordingly⁴. The fact that any conduct⁵ giving rise to a civil penalty may have ceased before an assessment is made under these provisions does not affect the power of the Commissioners to make such an assessment⁶. Where an amount has been so assessed and notified to any person, it is recoverable as if it were levy due from him⁷; but this does not apply so as to require any interest to be payable on a penalty otherwise than in accordance with the following provisions⁸. Nor does it have effect if, or to the extent that, the assessment in question has been withdrawn or reduced⁹. Where a person is so assessed to an amount due by way of a penalty, and is also assessed¹⁰ for an accounting period¹¹ to which the conduct attracting the penalty is referable, the assessments may be combined and notified to him as one assessment¹². Such a notice of a combined assessment must separately identify the penalty being assessed¹³.

Where an assessment is so made to an amount of a civil penalty to which any person is liable by reason of failure to provide information¹⁴ or failure to produce a document¹⁵, the notice of assessment must specify a time, not later than the end of the day of the giving of the notice of assessment, to which the amount of any daily penalty¹⁶ is calculated¹⁷. If further penalties accrue in respect of a continuing failure after that date to provide the information or, as the case may be, produce the document, a further assessment or further assessments may be made¹⁸ in respect of the amounts so accruing¹⁹. Where an assessment to a civil penalty is made specifying a date for the above purposes²⁰, and the failure in question is remedied within such period as may for these purposes have been notified by the Commissioners to the person liable for the penalty, the failure is to be deemed for the purposes of any further liability to civil penalties to have been remedied on the specified date²¹.

Where the Commissioners make an assessment²²:

- 480 (1) of any civil penalty to which a person is liable, the amount of that penalty is to carry penalty interest²³ for the period which begins with the day on which the assessment is notified to the person on whom the assessment is made and ends with the day before the day on which the assessed penalty is paid²⁴;
- 481 (2) of an amount of any civil penalty to which any person is liable, they also specify a date for these purposes, and the amount of the penalty assessed is paid on or before that date, then the amount paid before that date does not carry penalty interest²⁵.

Where a person is so liable to pay any penalty interest, the Commissioners or, on appeal, an appeal tribunal²⁶ may reduce the amount payable to such amount (including nil) as they think, or as the tribunal thinks, proper²⁷. In the case of interest so reduced by the Commissioners, an appeal tribunal, on an appeal relating to the interest, may cancel the whole or any part of the reduction made by the Commissioners²⁸.

Interest under the above provisions is to be paid without any deduction of income tax²⁹. Where an amount carries such interest, or would otherwise do so, and all or part of the amount turns out not to be due, then in such a case the amount or part that turns out not to be due does not carry such interest and is to be treated as never having done so, and all such adjustments as are reasonable must be made, including³⁰ adjustments by way of repayment³¹.

Where a person is liable for interest on an unpaid penalty³², the Commissioners may assess the amount due by way of interest and notify it to him accordingly³³. If, where an assessment has been notified to any person³⁴, it appears to the Commissioners that the amount which ought to have been assessed exceeds the amount that has already been assessed, the Commissioners may make a supplementary assessment of the amount of the excess and notify that person accordingly³⁵. Where an amount has been so assessed and notified to any person, it is recoverable as if it were levy due from him³⁶; but this does not apply so as to require any interest to be payable on interest, except in so far as it falls³⁷ to be compounded³⁸. Nor does it have effect if, or to the extent that, the assessment in question has been withdrawn or reduced³⁹. Where a person is so assessed to an amount due by way of any interest on a penalty, and is also assessed⁴⁰ for the accounting period to which the conduct attracting the penalty is referable, the assessments may be combined and notified to him as one assessment⁴¹. A notice of a combined assessment must separately identify the interest being assessed⁴². Where an assessment is made to an amount of penalty interest⁴³, the notice of assessment must specify a date, not later than the date of the notice of assessment, to which the amount of interest which is assessed is calculated, and if the interest continues to accrue after that date, a further assessment or further assessments may be so made in respect of the amounts so accruing⁴⁴. Where, however, an assessment to penalty interest is made specifying a date for the above purposes, and within such period as may for these purposes have been notified by the Commissioners to the person liable for the interest, the amount on which the interest is payable is paid, that amount is to be deemed for the purposes of any further liability to interest to have been paid on the specified date⁴⁵.

1 For the meanings of 'civil penalty', and references to a person's being liable to a civil penalty, see PARA 692 note 1 ante.

2 Finance Act 2000 s 30(1), Sch 6 para 106(1). The power to make an assessment under Sch 6 para 106 is subject to Sch 6 para 99(4) (see PARA 690 ante): Sch 6 para 106(8). Any notification of an assessment under any provision of Sch 6 Pt IX (paras 103-113) to a person's representative is to be treated for those purposes as notification to the person in relation to whom the representative acts: Sch 6 para 103(3). 'Representative', in relation to any person, means any of that person's personal representatives, that person's trustee in bankruptcy or liquidator, any person holding office as a receiver in relation to that person or any of his property or that person's tax representative or any other person for the time being acting in a representative capacity in relation to that person: Sch 6 para 103(4). For the meaning of 'tax representative' see PARA 681 note 8 ante.

Subject to Sch 6 para 108(2), (3), an assessment under Sch 6 para 106 to a penalty may not be made more than three years after the conduct to which the penalty relates: Sch 6 para 108(1). Subject to Sch 6 para 108(3), if levy has been lost (1) as a result of any conduct for which a person has been convicted of an offence involving fraud; (2) in circumstances giving rise to liability to a penalty under Sch 6 para 55 (failure to notify of registrability etc: see PARA 676 ante); or (3) as a result of conduct falling within Sch 6 para 98(1) (evasion: see PARA 690 ante), an assessment may be made for any civil penalty relating to that conduct as if, in Sch 6 para 108(1), for 'three years' there were substituted '20 years': Sch 6 para 108(2). Where, after a person's death, the Commissioners propose to assess an amount of a civil penalty due by reason of some conduct of the deceased, the assessment may not be made more than three years after the death, and if the circumstances are as set out in Sch 6 para 108(2), the modification of Sch 6 para 108(1) contained in Sch 6 para 108(2) does not apply, but any assessment which (applying that modification) could have been made immediately after the death may be made at any time within three years after it: Sch 6 para 108(3).

If it appears to the Treasury that there has been a change in the value of money since the time when the amount of a civil penalty¹ provided for² was fixed³, the Treasury may by regulations⁴ substitute, for the amount for the time being specified as the amount of that penalty, such other sum as appears to it to be justified by the change⁵. Regulations so made are not to apply to the penalty for any conduct⁶ before the coming into force of the regulations⁷.

J. INFORMATION AND EVIDENCE

696. Information and records.

Every person involved, in whatever capacity, in making or receiving supplies of taxable commodities¹, or in any connected activities, must provide the Commissioners for Revenue and Customs with such information relating to the matters in which he is or has been involved as the Commissioners may reasonably require². Information so required must be provided to the Commissioners within such period after being required, and in such form, as the Commissioners may reasonably require³. If a person fails to provide information which he is so required to provide, he is liable⁴ to a penalty of £250, and to a further penalty of £20 for every day after the last relevant date⁵ and before the day after that on which the required information is provided⁶. Liability to such a penalty does not, however, arise if the person required to provide the information satisfies the Commissioners or, on appeal, an appeal tribunal⁷ of the specified matters⁸. Where, by reason of any failure by any person to provide information so required, that person is convicted of an offence⁹, or is assessed to a penalty for evasion¹⁰, that person is not by reason of that failure to be liable also to a penalty under these provisions¹¹.

The Commissioners may by regulations¹² impose obligations to keep records on persons who are registered¹³, are required to be registered, or are exempted¹⁴ from the requirement to be registered¹⁵. Such regulations may be framed by reference to such records as may be stipulated in any notice published by the Commissioners in pursuance of the regulations and not withdrawn by a further notice¹⁶. They may:

- 482 (1) require any records kept in pursuance of the regulations to be preserved for such period, not exceeding six years, as may be specified in the regulations;
- 483 (2) authorise the Commissioners to direct that any such records need only be preserved for a shorter period than that specified in the regulations;
- 484 (3) authorise a direction to be made so as to apply generally or in such cases as the Commissioners may stipulate¹⁷.

Any duty under such regulations to preserve records may be discharged by the preservation of the information contained in them by such means as the Commissioners may approve¹⁸. The Commissioners may, as a condition of so approving any means of preserving information contained in any records, impose such reasonable requirements as appear to them necessary for securing that the information will be as readily available to them as if the records themselves had been preserved¹⁹. A person who fails to preserve any record in compliance with any such regulations, or any notice, direction or requirement given or imposed under such regulations, is liable²⁰ to a penalty of £250²¹; but such a failure does not give rise to any such penalty if the person required to preserve the record satisfies the Commissioners or, on appeal, an appeal tribunal that there is a reasonable excuse for the failure²². Where, by reason of any such failure by any person, that person is convicted of an offence²³ or is assessed to a penalty for evasion²⁴, that person is not by reason of that failure to be liable also to a penalty under this provision²⁵.

697. Production of documents.

Every person involved, in whatever capacity, in making or receiving supplies of taxable commodities¹, or in any connected activities, must upon demand made by an authorised person² produce or cause to be produced for inspection by that person any documents relating to the matters in which he is or has been involved³. Where an authorised person has such power to require the production of any documents from any person:

- 485 (1) he has the like power to require production of the documents concerned from any other person who appears to the authorised person to be in possession of them; and
- 486 (2) the production of any document by that other person in pursuance of such a requirement is without prejudice to any lien claimed by that other person on that document⁴.

The documents mentioned above must be produced at such time and place as the authorised person may reasonably require⁵. If a person fails to produce any document which he is so required to produce, he is liable⁶ to a penalty of £250⁷ and to a further penalty of £20 for every day after the last relevant date⁸ and before the day after that on which the document is produced⁹. Liability to such a penalty does not, however, arise if the person required to produce the document in question satisfies the Commissioners or, on appeal, an appeal tribunal¹⁰ of the specified matters¹¹. Where, by reason of any failure by any person to provide information so required, that person is convicted of an offence¹² or assessed to a penalty for evasion¹³, that person is not by reason of that failure to be liable also to a penalty under this provision¹⁴.

An authorised person may take copies of, or make extracts from, any document produced under the above provisions¹⁵. If it appears to him to be necessary to do so, an authorised person may also, at a reasonable time and for a reasonable period, remove any document so produced¹⁶; but if he so removes any document he must, if requested to do so, provide a receipt for the document so removed¹⁷. Where a lien is claimed on a document produced under heads (1) and (2) above, the removal of the document under the above powers is not to be regarded as breaking the lien¹⁸. Where a document so removed by an authorised person is reasonably required for any purpose he must, as soon as practicable, provide a copy of the document, free of charge, to the person by whom it was produced or caused to be produced¹⁹. Where any documents removed under the powers conferred by these provisions are lost or damaged, the Commissioners for Revenue and Customs are liable to compensate their owner for any expenses reasonably incurred by him in replacing or repairing the documents²⁰.

For the purpose of exercising any powers under these provisions, an authorised person may at any reasonable time enter and inspect premises used in connection with the carrying on of a business²¹.

INTRODUCTION/(6) TAXATION/(i) Climate Change Levy/J. INFORMATION AND EVIDENCE/698. Order for access to recorded information etc.

698. Order for access to recorded information etc.

Where, on an application by an authorised person¹, a justice of the peace is satisfied that there are reasonable grounds for believing:

- 487 (1) that an offence in connection with levy is being, has been or is about to be committed; and
- 488 (2) that any recorded information, including any document of any nature at all, which may be required as evidence for the purpose of any proceedings in respect of such an offence is in the possession of any person, he may make an order that the person who appears to the justice to be in possession of the recorded information to which the application relates is to give an authorised person access to it², and permit an authorised person to remove and take away any of it which he reasonably considers necessary, not later than the end of the period of seven days beginning with the date of the order or the end of such longer period as the order may specify³. Where the recorded information consists of information stored in any electronic form, such an order has effect as an order to produce the information:

- 489 (a) in a form in which it is visible and legible or from which it can readily be produced in a visible and legible form; and
- 490 (b) if the authorised person wishes to remove it, in a form in which it can be removed⁴.

An authorised person who removes anything in the exercise of a power so conferred⁵ must, if so requested by a person showing himself to be the occupier of premises from which it was removed, or to have had custody or control of it immediately before the removal, provide that person with a record of what he removed⁶. The authorised person must provide the record within a reasonable time from the making of the request for it⁷.

If a request for permission to be allowed access to anything which has been removed by an authorised person, and is retained by the Commissioners for Revenue and Customs for the purposes of investigating an offence, is made to the officer in overall charge of the investigation⁸ by a person who had custody or control of the thing immediately before it was so removed, or by someone acting on behalf of such a person, the officer must⁹ allow the person who made the request access to it under the supervision of an authorised person¹⁰. If a request for a photograph or copy of any such thing is made to the officer in overall charge of the investigation by a person who had custody or control of the thing immediately before it was so removed, or by someone acting on behalf of such a person, the officer must¹¹:

- 491 (i) allow the person who made the request access to it under the supervision of an authorised person for the purpose of photographing it or copying it; or
- 492 (ii) photograph or copy it, or cause it to be photographed or copied¹²; and where anything is photographed or copied under head (ii) above, the officer must¹³ supply the photograph or copy, or cause it to be supplied, to the person who made the request¹⁴, within a reasonable time from the making of the request¹⁵. There is, however, no duty under these provisions to allow access to anything, or to supply a photograph or copy of anything, if the officer in overall charge of the investigation for the purposes of which it was removed has reasonable grounds for believing that to do so would prejudice:

- 493 (A) that investigation;
- 494 (B) the investigation of an offence other than the offence for the purposes of the investigation of which the thing was removed; or
- 495 (C) any criminal proceedings which may be brought as a result of the investigation of which he is in charge or any such investigation as is mentioned in head (B) above¹⁶.

Where, on an application made by the specified person¹⁷, the appropriate judicial authority¹⁸ is satisfied that a person has failed to comply with a requirement to comply with a request for access to anything that has been removed¹⁹, the authority may order that person to comply with the requirement within such time and in such manner as may be specified in the order²⁰.

An authorised person¹ may, if it appears to him necessary for the protection of the revenue against mistake or fraud, at any time:

- 496 (1) take, from material which he has reasonable cause to believe is either a taxable commodity² which is intended to be, is being or has been the subject of a taxable supply³, or a product of the burning of a taxable commodity (other than electricity) which is being or has been the subject of a taxable supply, such samples as he may require with a view to determining how the material ought to be treated, or to have been treated, for the purposes of the levy⁴;
- 497 (2) examine any meter which he has reasonable cause to believe is intended to be, is being or has been used for ascertaining the quantity of any taxable commodity supplied by a taxable supply⁵.

In any proceedings a certificate of the Commissioners for Revenue and Customs:

- 498 (a) that a person was or was not at any time registered⁶ for the purposes of the levy;
- 499 (b) that any return required by regulations⁷ has not been made or had not been made at any time;
- 500 (c) that any levy shown as due in a return or other notification made in pursuance of regulations⁸ has not been paid; or
- 501 (d) that any amount shown as due in any assessment⁹ has not been paid, is evidence of that fact¹⁰. A photograph of any document provided to the Commissioners for the statutory purposes¹¹ and certified by them to be such a photograph is admissible in any proceedings, whether civil or criminal, to the same extent as the document itself¹². In any proceedings any document purporting to be a certificate under the above provisions¹³ is to be taken to be such a certificate unless the contrary is shown¹⁴.

Statements made or documents produced or provided by or on behalf of a person are not be inadmissible in any:

- 502 (i) criminal proceedings against a person in respect of an offence in connection with or in relation to levy; and
- 503 (ii) proceedings against a person for the recovery of any sum due from him in connection with or in relation to levy, by reason only that a specified matter¹⁵ has been drawn to that person's attention and he was or may have been induced, as a result, to make the statements or to produce or provide the documents¹⁶. The specified matters are:

- 504 (A) that, in relation to levy, the Commissioners may assess an amount due by way of a civil penalty instead of instituting criminal proceedings¹⁷;

- 505 (b) that it is the practice of the Commissioners, without giving any undertaking as to whether they will make such an assessment in any case, to be influenced by whether a person has made a full confession of any dishonest conduct to which he has been a party and has otherwise co-operated to the full with any investigation¹⁸;
- 506 (c) the fact that the Commissioners have or, on appeal, an appeal tribunal¹⁹ has, power²⁰ to reduce a penalty²¹.

K. REVIEW AND APPEAL

701. Review of Commissioners' decisions.

Any person who is or will be affected by any decision of the Commissioners for Revenue and Customs with respect to any of the following matters:

- 519 (1) whether or not a person is charged in any case with an amount of levy;
- 520 (2) the amount of levy charged in any case and the time when the charge is to be taken as having arisen;
- 521 (3) the registration¹ of any person for the purposes of the levy or the cancellation of any registration;
- 522 (4) the person liable to pay the levy charged in any case, the amount of a person's liability to levy and the time by which he is required to pay an amount of levy;
- 523 (5) whether to prepare a special utility scheme² for a utility³;
- 524 (6) the imposition of a requirement on any person to give security, or further security⁴, and the amount and manner of providing any security required;
- 525 (7) whether or not liability to a penalty or to interest on any amount arises in any person's case⁵ and the amount of any such liability;
- 526 (8) any matter the decision as to which is reviewable in accordance with certain provisions relating to the liability of a body corporate to a penalty⁶;
- 527 (9) the extent of any person's entitlement to any tax credit⁷ or to a repayment in respect of a tax credit and the extent of any liability of the Commissioners⁸ to pay interest on any amount;
- 528 (10) whether or not any person is required⁹ to have a tax representative¹⁰;
- 529 (11) the giving, withdrawal or variation¹¹ of any approval or direction with respect to the person who is to act as another's tax representative;
- 530 (12) the giving, withdrawal or variation of a utility direction¹²;
- 531 (13) whether a body corporate is to be treated, or is to cease to be treated, as a member¹³ of a group, the times at which a body corporate is to be so treated and the body corporate which is, in relation to any time, to be the representative member for a group;
- 532 (14) any matter not falling within heads (1) to (13) above the decision with respect to which is contained in certain assessments¹⁴, may by notice in writing¹⁵ to the Commissioners require them to review the decision¹⁶.

The Commissioners are not required to review any decision under these provisions unless the notice requiring the review is given before the end of the period of 45 days beginning with the day on which written notification of the decision, or of an assessment containing or giving effect to the decision, was first given to the person requiring the review¹⁷; and for these purposes it is the duty of the Commissioners to give written notification of any decision to which heads (1) to (14) above apply to any person who:

- 533 (a) requests such a notification;
- 534 (b) has not previously been given written notification of that decision; and 535 (c) if given such a notification, will be entitled to require a review of the decision¹⁸.

A person is entitled to give a notice under these provisions requiring a decision to be reviewed for a second or subsequent time only if:

- 536 (i) the grounds on which he requires the further review are that the Commissioners did not, on any previous review, have the opportunity to consider certain facts or other matters; and
- 537 (ii) he does not, on the further review, require the Commissioners to consider any facts or matters which were considered on a previous review except in so far as they are relevant to any issue to which the facts or matters not previously considered relate¹⁹.

Where the Commissioners are required by a notice under these provisions to review any decision, it is their duty to do so²⁰. On such a review the Commissioners may²¹ withdraw, vary or confirm the decision reviewed²². Where it is their duty so to review any decision, and they do not, within the period of 45 days beginning with the day on which the review was required, give notice to the person requiring it of their determination on the review, they are deemed to have confirmed the decision²³. Where they decide, on such a review, that a liability to a penalty or to an amount of interest arises, there are statutory restrictions on their ability to modify the amount payable in respect of that liability²⁴.

UPDATE

701 Review of Commissioners' decisions

TEXT AND NOTES 1-16--Subject to the Finance Act 2000 Sch 6 para 122 (see PARA 702) an appeal lies to an appeal tribunal from any person who is or will be affected by any decision of HM Revenue and Customs with respect to any of the matters set out in heads (1)-(14): Sch 6 para 121(1) (amended by SI 2009/56). Finance Act 2000 Sch 6 para 121(2)-(9) are repealed.

Provisions similar to those applying more generally for customs and excise purposes (see CUSTOMS AND EXCISE) is made with regard to the review by HM Revenue and Customs of decisions relating to climate change levy: Finance Act 2000 Sch 6 paras 121A-121F (Sch 6 paras 121A-121G added by SI 2009/56). An appeal under the Finance Act 2000 Sch 6 para 121 must be made to the appeal tribunal before the end of the period of 30 days beginning with (a) (i) in a case where the appellant is the person (P) to whom notice of the decision has been given, the date of the document in which he was so notified; and (ii) in any other case, the date when the person concerned become aware of the decision; or (b) if later, the end of the relevant period (ie the period of 30 days from the acceptance of HM Revenue and Customs' offer of a review or from the appellant's request for a review): Sch 6 para 121G(1). In a case where HM Revenue and Customs is required to undertake a review under Sch 6 para 121C, an appeal may not be made until the conclusion date; and must then be made within the period of 30 days beginning with that date; and where a review is requested under Sch 6 para 121E, an appeal may not be made unless HM Revenue and Customs has decided not to undertake a review or, if a review is undertaken, until the conclusion date, and must then be made within the period of 30 days beginning with the date on which the decision was made or, as the case may be, with the conclusion date: Sch 6 para 121G(2)-(4). Where no notice is given of the conclusions of a review by HM Revenue and Customs, it is treated as having confirmed the decision and HM Revenue and Customs are then required to give notice of the conclusion which is treated as having been so reached: Sch 6 paras 121F(8), 121G(5). In such a case, an appeal may be made at any time from the end of the period of 45 days (or such longer period as HM Revenue and Customs may allow) beginning with the date on which the offer of review was accepted, the request for review was made, or the decision not to review was taken, to the date 30 days after the conclusion date. In each case, the appeal tribunal may extend the period: Sch 6 para 121G(5), (6). 'Conclusion date' means the date of the document notifying the conclusion of the review: Sch 6 para 121G(7).

TEXT AND NOTE 6--In head (8), for 'reviewable' read 'appealable': Finance Act 2000 Sch 6 para 121(1)(h) (amended by SI 2009/56).

Halsbury's Laws of England/FUEL AND ENERGY (VOLUME 19(1) (2007 REISSUE) PARAS 601-775; VOLUME 19(2) (2007 REISSUE) PARAS 776-1328); VOLUME 19(3) (2007 REISSUE) PARAS 1329-1927)/1. INTRODUCTION/(6) TAXATION/(i) Climate Change Levy/K. REVIEW AND APPEAL/702. Appeals against reviewed decisions.

702. Appeals against reviewed decisions.

Subject to the following provisions, an appeal lies to an appeal tribunal¹ with respect to any of the following decisions:

- 538 (1) any decision by the Commissioners for Revenue and Customs on a review under the provisions set out in the previous paragraph², including a deemed confirmation³;
- 539 (2) any decision by the Commissioners on any such review of a decision⁴ as the Commissioners have agreed to undertake in consequence of a request made after the end of the specified⁵ period⁶.

Where such an appeal relates to a decision, whether or not contained in an assessment, that an amount of levy is due from any person, that appeal may not be entertained unless:

- 540 (a) the amount which the Commissioners have determined to be due has been paid or deposited with them; or
- 541 (b) on being satisfied that the appellant would otherwise suffer hardship, either the Commissioners agree, or the appeal tribunal decides, that it should be entertained notwithstanding that that amount has not been so paid or deposited⁷.

On such an appeal relating to a penalty for evasion⁸, the burden of proof as to the specified matters⁹ lies upon the Commissioners¹⁰.

Where, on such an appeal:

- 542 (i) it is found that an assessment of the appellant made, confirmed or treated as confirmed by the Commissioners on a review¹¹ ('the original assessment') is an assessment for an amount that is less than it ought to have been, and the appeal tribunal gives a direction specifying the correct amount, the assessment has effect as an assessment of the amount specified in the direction and (without prejudice to any power¹² to reduce the amount of interest payable on the amount of an assessment) as if it were an assessment notified to the appellant in that amount at the same time as the original assessment¹³;
- 543 (ii) the appeal tribunal finds that a liability to a penalty or to an amount of interest arises, there are statutory restrictions on the tribunal's power to give a direction for the modification of the amount payable in respect of that liability¹⁴;
- 544 (iii) it is found that the whole or part of any amount paid or deposited in pursuance of head (a) above is not due, so much of that amount as is found not to be due must be repaid with interest at such rate as the appeal tribunal may determine¹⁵;
- 545 (iv) it is found that the whole or part of any amount due to the appellant by way of any repayment in respect of a tax credit¹⁶ has not been paid, so much of that amount as is found not to have been paid must be paid with interest at such rate as the appeal tribunal may determine¹⁷.

Where such an appeal has been entertained notwithstanding that an amount determined by the Commissioners to be payable as levy has not been paid or deposited, and it is found on the appeal that that amount is due, the appeal tribunal may, if it thinks fit, direct that that amount is to be paid with interest at such rate as may be specified in the direction¹⁸.

On such an appeal, the powers of the appeal tribunal in relation to any decision of the Commissioners include a power, where the tribunal allows an appeal on the ground that the Commissioners could not reasonably have arrived at the decision, either:

- 546 (A) to direct that the decision, so far as it remains in force, is to cease to have effect from such time as the tribunal may direct; or
- 547 (B) to require the Commissioners to conduct, in accordance with the directions of the tribunal, a further review of the original decision¹⁹.

Provision is made for the settling of appeals by agreement and for the enforcement of certain decisions of the appeal tribunal²⁰.

702 Appeals against reviewed decisions

TEXT AND NOTES--Finance Act 2000 Sch 6 para 122(1) repealed: SI 2009/56. Where an appeal relates to a decision (whether or not contained in an assessment) that an amount of levy is due from any person, it must not be entertained unless the amount which HM Revenue and Customs has determined to be due has been paid or deposited with it: Finance Act 2000 Sch 6 para 122(2), (2A), (2B) (Sch 6 para 122(2) substituted, Sch 6 para 122(2A), (2B) added, by SI 2009/56). However, in a case where no payment or deposit has been made, an appeal may still be entertained if HM Revenue and Customs is satisfied (on application by the appellant) or if (HM Revenue and Customs not being so satisfied) the appeal tribunal decides (again on application by the appellant) that the requirement to pay or deposit the amount determined would cause the appellant to suffer hardship: Finance Act 2000 Sch 6 para 122(2A). Notwithstanding the provisions of the Tribunals, Courts and Enforcement Act 2007 ss 11 (see ADMINISTRATIVE LAW vol 1(1) (2001 Reissue) PARA 13A.7) and 13 (see ADMINISTRATIVE LAW vol 1(1) (2001 Reissue) PARA 13A.8), the decision of the appeal tribunal on the issue of hardship is final: Finance Act 2000 Sch 6 para 122(2B). 'Appeal tribunal' means the First-tier Tribunal or, where determined by or under Tribunal Procedure Rules, the Upper Tribunal: Finance Act 2000 Sch 6 para 147 (amended by SI 2009/56).

Interest within the Finance Act 2000 Sch 6 para 123(4), (5) (see heads (iii) and (iv)) and Sch 6 para 123(6) is now payable at the rate applicable under the Finance Act 1996 s 197; and interest under the Finance Act 2000 Sch 6 para 123(6) is payable without any deduction of income tax: Sch 6 para 123(4)-(6A) (Sch 6 para 123(4)-(6) amended, Sch 6 para 123(6A) added, by SI 2009/56). The Value Added Tax Act 1994 ss 85, 85B (see VALUE ADDED TAX vol 49(1) (2005 Reissue) PARA 368A) have effect as if the references to s 83 included references to the Finance Act 2000 Sch 6 para 121 and the references to value added tax included references to climate change levy: Sch 6 para 123(7) (substituted by SI 2009/56).

(ii) Other Relevant Tax Provisions

703. Reliefs for energy-saving homes and for domestic microgeneration.

Certain deductions from income tax and corporation tax are allowed for expenditure by persons carrying on property businesses who acquire and install energy-saving items in dwelling houses¹. The Finance Act 2007 has introduced relief from stamp duty land tax for new zero-carbon homes² and an exemption from income tax in respect of income arising to an individual from the sale of electricity generated by a domestic microgeneration system³ or in respect of the receipt by an individual of a renewables obligation certificate for domestic microgeneration⁴. Furthermore, a gain accruing to an individual on a disposal of such a renewables obligation certificate is not to be a chargeable gain for the purposes of capital gains tax⁵.

These matters are discussed elsewhere in this work⁶.

704. Value added tax.

The supply of any form of power, heat, refrigeration or ventilation is treated as a supply of goods for the purposes of VAT¹. Supplies of domestic fuel and power are charged to VAT at a reduced rate², as are the supply of heating equipment and the connection or reconnection of a mains gas supply to persons in receipt of certain social security benefits³.

The removal to another member state of gas through the natural gas distribution network, or of electricity, is not a taxable supply for the purposes of VAT, provided that certain conditions are satisfied⁴. A reverse charge arises in the case of the supply of electricity, and the supply of gas through the natural gas distribution network, by a person who is outside the United Kingdom⁵ to a person registered for VAT for the purposes of any business carried on by the recipient⁶. Supplies of electricity, or gas supplied through the natural gas distribution network, other than to a dealer, are generally treated as supplied at the place where the recipient of the supply has effective use and consumption of the goods⁷.

NOTES--Certain functions under provisions mentioned in this paragraph are 'relevant functions' for the purposes of the Regulatory Enforcement and Sanctions Act 2008 s 4, Sch 3, see LOCAL GOVERNMENT vol 69 (2009) PARA 733.

Halsbury's Laws of England/FUEL AND ENERGY (VOLUME 19(1) (2007 REISSUE) PARAS 601-775; VOLUME 19(2) (2007 REISSUE) PARAS 776-1328); VOLUME 19(3) (2007 REISSUE) PARAS 1329-1927)/2. GAS AND ELECTRICITY INDUSTRIES; IN GENERAL/ (2) THE GAS AND ELECTRICITY MARKETS AUTHORITY ('GEMA')/708. Establishment etc of the Gas and Electricity Markets Authority.

(2) THE GAS AND ELECTRICITY MARKETS AUTHORITY ('GEMA')

708. Establishment etc of the Gas and Electricity Markets Authority.

The Utilities Act 2000 established a body corporate to be known as the Gas and Electricity Markets Authority for the purpose of carrying out:

- 575 (1) functions transferred to that Authority¹ from the former Director General of Gas Supply and the former Director General of Electricity Supply (whose offices were abolished)²; and
- 576 (2) the other functions of that Authority under the 2000 Act³.

The Gas and Electricity Markets Authority is referred to in the Utilities Act 2000 (and thus in the Gas Act 1986 and the Electricity Act 1989 where amended by that 2000 Act) as 'the Authority'⁴ but in the Energy Act 2004 as 'GEMA'⁵. Its functions are performed on behalf of the Crown⁶ and now include a number of functions under the Energy Act 2004⁷ as well as under the Gas Act 1986⁸ and the Electricity Act 1989⁹. As from a day to be appointed¹⁰, the Authority will also exercise regulatory functions under the Consumers, Estate Agents and Redress Act 2007, including:

- 577 (a) making regulations which prescribe standards for the handling by its regulated providers¹¹ of consumer complaints made to them¹²;
- 578 (b) making regulations requiring each of its regulated providers in relation to which standards are so prescribed to give to the provider's relevant consumers¹³ such information as may be specified or described in the regulations about the standards and the levels of compliance with those standards achieved by the provider¹⁴;
- 579 (c) approving a redress scheme to which its regulated providers are to belong¹⁵; and
- 580 (d) powers of enforcement under the 2007 Act¹⁶.

1 As to the transfer of functions see PARA 711 post.

2 See the Utilities Act 2000 s 1(3).

3 Ibid s 1(1). Any expenditure incurred by the Authority by virtue of the Utilities Act 2000 must be paid out of money provided by Parliament: s 107(a). Any increase attributable to that Act in the sums payable out of money so provided out of any other Act must also be so paid: s 107(c).

4 See ibid ss 1(1), 106(1). See also the Gas Act 1986 s 4AA (added by the Utilities Act 2000 s 9, and subsequently amended); and PARA 789 post; the Electricity Act 1989 s 3A (added by the Utilities Act 2000 s 13, and subsequently amended); and PARA 1041 post.

5 See the Energy Act 2004 s 196(1). Throughout this title, and for the sake of consistency, where the full name of the Gas and Electricity Markets Authority is given it is followed by the abbreviation 'GEMA', even if not so followed in the legislation being set out; but where the full name is not given, then either 'the Authority' or 'GEMA' is used to refer to the Gas and Electricity Markets Authority in accordance with the practice of the legislation in question. The Office of the Gas and Electricity Markets Authority is known as 'Ofgem'. Ofgem

11 For these purposes, 'regulated provider' means the holder of a supply licence or a transportation licence under the Gas Act 1986 s 7A(1) (as added and amended) (see PARA 807 post) or s 7(2) (as substituted and amended) (see PARA 805 post) or the holder of a distribution licence or a supply licence under the Electricity Act 1989 s 6(1)(c) (as substituted and amended) (see PARA 1065 post) or s 6(1)(d) (as substituted and amended) (see PARA 1065 post): see the Consumers, Estate Agents and Redress Act 2007 s 42(1) (not in force).

12 See ibid s 43 (not in force). In relation to standards prescribed in relation to gas or electricity licence holders (or some of them) by such regulations, the Authority must from time to time collect information with respect to the levels of compliance with the standards which those licence holders have achieved; and at such times as the Authority may direct, each of those licence holders must give the Authority such information as the Authority may direct with respect to the levels of compliance with the standards which the licence holder has achieved: see the Gas Act 1986 s 33DB; the Electricity Act 1989 s 42AB (prospectively added by the Consumers, Estate Agents and Redress Act 2007 s 45(4), Sch 5 paras 1, 2 (not in force)).

13 For these purposes, 'relevant consumer' means (1) a person who is a consumer in relation to gas supplied by a gas supplier (within the meaning of the Gas Act 1986 Pt I (ss 4AA-48) (as amended) (see PARA 789 et seq post)); (2) a person (other than a gas licensee) who is a consumer in relation to services provided by a gas transporter (within the meaning of Pt I (as amended)); (3) a person who is a consumer in relation to electricity supplied by an electricity supplier (within the meaning of the Electricity Act 1989 Pt I (ss 3A-64) (as amended) (see PARA 1041 et seq post)); (4) a person (other than an electricity licensee) who is a consumer in relation to services provided by an electricity distributor (within the meaning of Pt I (as amended)): see the Consumers, Estate Agents and Redress Act 2007 s 42(1) (not in force). The Gas and Electricity Markets Authority ('GEMA')¹ consists of a chairman, and no fewer than two other members, appointed by the Secretary of State²; and the Secretary of State must consult the chairman before appointing any other member³. The chairman and other members hold and vacate office⁴ as such in accordance with the terms of their respective appointments⁵, which must be determined by the Secretary of State⁶. An appointment of a person to hold office as chairman or other member must be for a term not exceeding five years⁷; but a previous appointment as chairman or other member does not affect a person's eligibility for appointment to either office⁸.

A person holding office as chairman or other member:

- 581 (1) may resign that office by giving notice in writing⁹ to the Secretary of State; and
- 582 (2) may be removed from office by the Secretary of State on the ground of incapacity or misbehaviour¹⁰.

The Authority must pay to the chairman and other members such remuneration, and such travelling and other allowances, as may be determined by the Secretary of State¹¹ and must, if required to do so by the Secretary of State:

- 583 (a) pay such pension, allowances or gratuities as may be determined by the Secretary of State to or in respect of a person who is or has been the chairman or a member of the Authority; or

If, where any person ceases to hold office as chairman or other member, the Secretary of State determines that there are special circumstances which make it right that he should receive compensation, the Authority must pay to him a sum by way of compensation of such amount as may be determined by the Secretary of State¹³.

The Authority may, with the approval of the Minister for the Civil Service as to numbers and terms and conditions of service, appoint such staff as it may determine¹⁴.

The Gas and Electricity Markets Authority ('GEMA')¹ may establish committees and any committee of the Authority may establish sub-committees². The members of a committee of the Authority may include persons who are not members of the Authority and the members of a sub-committee may include persons who are not members of the committee³.

The Authority may regulate its own procedure, including quorum⁴, and the validity of anything done by the Authority is not affected by a vacancy among its members or by a defect in the appointment of a member⁵.

The application of the Authority's seal to a statutory instrument must be authenticated by the signature of the chairman or by some other person who has been authorised by the Authority to act for that purpose⁶. A document purporting to be duly executed under the seal of the Authority, or signed on its behalf, is to be received in evidence and, unless the contrary is proved, is to be taken to be so executed or signed⁷.

Anything authorised or required to be done by the Authority may be done by:

- 585 (1) any member or employee of the Authority who is authorised for that purpose by the Authority, whether generally or specially;
- 586 (2) any committee of the Authority⁸ which has been so authorised⁹;

but this does not apply to any power to make statutory instruments¹⁰. The Statutory Instruments Act 1946 applies to any power to make statutory instruments conferred on the Authority by or under any Act as if the Authority were a Minister of the Crown¹¹.

The Authority has power to do anything which is calculated to facilitate, or is conducive or incidental to, the performance of its functions¹²; and that power includes the formation of advisory bodies¹³.

UPDATE

710 Proceedings etc of the Gas and Electricity Markets Authority; performance of functions

TEXT AND NOTES--The Authority has a duty to keep under review its regulatory functions, other than any function exercised under competition law (or, if exercisable in Wales, if or to the extent that it relates to a Welsh ministerial matter), and, when carrying out those functions, not to impose unnecessary burdens, and where proportionate and practicable, to remove unnecessary burdens: see the Regulatory Enforcement and Sanctions Act 2008 ss 72(1), (2), 73(1), (2)(a), (3)(c). The Authority must publish a statement each year, setting out its proposals pursuant to the duty and, where a burden that is unnecessary has not been removed, explaining why its removal would be disproportionate or impracticable: see s 72(3)-(7).

Halsbury's Laws of England/FUEL AND ENERGY (VOLUME 19(1) (2007 REISSUE) PARAS 601-775; VOLUME 19(2) (2007 REISSUE) PARAS 776-1328); VOLUME 19(3) (2007 REISSUE) PARAS 1329-1927)/2. GAS AND ELECTRICITY INDUSTRIES; IN GENERAL/ (2) THE GAS AND ELECTRICITY MARKETS AUTHORITY ('GEMA')/711. Transfer to the Gas and Electricity Markets Authority of functions, property etc.

711. Transfer to the Gas and Electricity Markets Authority of functions, property etc.

The functions of the former Director General of Gas Supply and the former Director General of Electricity Supply ('the Directors') are transferred to the Gas and Electricity Markets Authority ('GEMA')¹. Any enactment which relates to a function of either of the Directors, and which was in force immediately before the transfer by the above provision of that function, has effect after the transfer, so far as necessary for the purposes of or in consequence of the transfer, as if references to the Director were references to the Authority².

The Secretary of State³ was given power under the Utilities Act 2000 to make one or more schemes ('transfer schemes') for the transfer of the property, rights and liabilities of the Directors either to the Authority or to the Gas and Electricity Consumer Council⁴. On the day appointed by a transfer scheme, the property, rights and liabilities which were the subject of the scheme were to be transferred in accordance with the provisions of the scheme⁵.

The property, rights and liabilities which may be transferred by a transfer scheme⁶ include property, rights and liabilities that would not otherwise be capable of being transferred or assigned⁷. A transfer scheme may:

- 587 (1) define the property, rights and liabilities to be transferred by specifying them or describing them or by referring to all, or all except anything specified or described, of the property, rights and liabilities comprised in a specified part of the undertaking of the transferor, or partly in one way and partly in the other⁸;
- 588 (2) include such supplementary, incidental, transitional and consequential provision as the Secretary of State considers appropriate⁹.

If, after the day appointed by a transfer scheme, the transferor and transferee so agree in writing, the scheme must for all purposes be deemed to have come into force on that day with such modifications as may be agreed¹⁰; and an agreement under this provision may, in connection with giving effect to modifications to the scheme, include incidental, supplemental, consequential and transitional provision¹¹.

Anything done by the transferor for the purpose of or in connection with anything transferred which was in effect immediately before it is transferred is to be treated as if done by the transferee¹². A transfer does not affect the validity of anything done by or in relation to the transferor before the transfer takes effect¹³.

There may be continued by or in relation to the transferee anything, including legal proceedings, relating to anything transferred which was in the process of being done by or in relation to the transferor immediately before it was transferred¹⁴.

The transferee must be substituted for the transferor in any document relating to anything transferred¹⁵.

The transfers authorised by Sch 3 para 2(1) include transfers which are to take effect as if there were no such contravention, liability or interference with any interest or right as there would otherwise be by reason of any provision having effect (whether under any enactment or agreement or otherwise) in relation to the terms on which the transferor is entitled to the property or right, or subject to the liability, in question: Sch 3 para 2(2). 'Transfer' means (1) a transfer of functions under any provision of the Utilities Act 2000 to the Authority; or (2) a transfer of property, rights and liabilities under s 3: Sch 3 para 1.

GAS AND ELECTRICITY INDUSTRIES; IN GENERAL/ (2) THE GAS AND ELECTRICITY MARKETS AUTHORITY ('GEMA')/712. Forward work programmes.

712. Forward work programmes.

The Gas and Electricity Markets Authority ('GEMA')¹ must, before each financial year, publish a document (the 'forward work programme') containing a general description of the projects, other than those comprising routine activities in the exercise of its functions, which it plans to undertake during the year². That description must include the objectives of each project³. The forward work programme for any year must also include an estimate of the overall expenditure which the Authority expects to incur during the year in the exercise of its functions⁴.

Before publishing the forward work programme for any year, the Authority must give notice:

- 589 (1) containing a draft of the forward work programme; and
- 590 (2) specifying the time within which representations or objections to the proposals contained in it may be made, and must consider any representations or objections which are duly made and not withdrawn⁵. The notice must be published by the Authority in such manner as it considers appropriate for the purpose of bringing the matters contained in it to the attention of persons likely to be affected by them⁶; and the Authority must send a copy of any notice so given by it to the Gas and Electricity Consumer Council⁷.

GAS AND ELECTRICITY INDUSTRIES; IN GENERAL/ (2) THE GAS AND ELECTRICITY MARKETS AUTHORITY ('GEMA')/713. Annual and other reports of the Gas and Electricity Markets Authority.

713. Annual and other reports of the Gas and Electricity Markets Authority.

The Gas and Electricity Markets Authority ('GEMA')¹ must, as soon as practicable after the end of each financial year, make to the Secretary of State² a report (the 'annual report' for that year) on its activities during that year, and the activities of the Competition Commission during that year in respect of any references made by the Authority³. The annual report for each year must include:

- 591 (1) a general survey of developments in respect of matters falling within the scope of the Authority's functions, including in particular developments in competition between persons engaged in, or in commercial activities connected with:
- 33
- 48. (a) the shipping, transportation or supply of gas⁴ conveyed through pipes; or
- 49. (b) the generation, transmission⁵, distribution⁶ or supply⁷ of electricity;
- 34
- 592 (2) a report on the progress of the projects described in the forward work programme⁸ for that year;
- 593 (3) a summary of final and provisional orders⁹ made and penalties imposed by the Authority during the year; and
- 594 (4) a report on such other matters as the Secretary of State may from time to time require¹⁰.

The annual report for each year must set out:

- 595 (i) any general directions given¹¹ by the Secretary of State¹²;
- 596 (ii) a list of the impact assessments¹³ carried out during the financial year to which the report relates¹⁴; and
- 597 (iii) a summary of the decisions taken during that year in relation to proposals to which impact assessments carried out in that year or previous financial years relate¹⁵.

The Secretary of State must lay a copy of each annual report before each House of Parliament and must arrange for the report to be published in such manner as he considers appropriate¹⁶.

The Authority may also prepare other reports with respect to any matter falling within the scope of its functions and may arrange for any such report to be published in such manner as it considers appropriate¹⁷.

In making or preparing any report under the above provisions the Authority must have regard to the need for excluding, so far as that is practicable, any matter which relates to the affairs of a particular individual or body of persons, corporate or unincorporate, where publication of that matter would or might, in the opinion of the Authority, seriously and prejudicially affect the interests of that individual or body¹⁸.

The Authority must send a copy of each annual or other report published under the above provisions to the Gas and Electricity Consumer Council¹⁹.

GAS AND ELECTRICITY INDUSTRIES; IN GENERAL/ (2) THE GAS AND ELECTRICITY MARKETS AUTHORITY ('GEMA')/714. Duty to carry out impact assessment.

714. Duty to carry out impact assessment.

The following provisions apply where:

- 598 (1) the Gas and Electricity Markets Authority ('GEMA')¹ is proposing to do anything for the purposes of, or in connection with, the carrying out of any function exercisable by it under or by virtue of Part I of the Gas Act 1986² or Part I of the Electricity Act 1989³; and
- 599 (2) it appears to it that the proposal is important;

but do not apply if it appears to the Authority that the urgency of the matter makes it impracticable or inappropriate for the Authority to comply with the requirements⁴ set out below⁵. A proposal is important for these purposes only if its implementation would be likely to do one or more of the following:

- 600 (a) involve a major change in the activities carried on by the Authority;
- 601 (b) have a significant impact on persons engaged in the shipping, transportation or supply of gas⁶ conveyed through pipes or in the generation, transmission⁷, distribution⁸ or supply⁹ of electricity;
- 602 (c) have a significant impact on persons engaged in commercial activities connected with the shipping, transportation or supply of gas conveyed through pipes or with the generation, transmission, distribution or supply of electricity;
- 603 (d) have a significant impact on the general public in Great Britain¹⁰ or in a part of Great Britain; or
- 604 (e) have significant effects on the environment¹¹.

Before implementing its proposal, the Authority must either:

- 605 (i) carry out and publish an assessment of the likely impact of implementing the proposal; or
- 606 (ii) publish¹² a statement setting out its reasons for thinking that it is unnecessary for it to carry out an assessment¹³.

An assessment carried out under these provisions must include an assessment of the likely effects on the environment of implementing the proposal¹⁴ and must relate to such other matters as the Authority considers appropriate¹⁵. In determining the matters to which such an assessment should relate, the Authority must have regard to such general guidance relating to the carrying out of impact assessments as it considers appropriate¹⁶.

An assessment carried out under these provisions may take such form as the Authority considers appropriate¹⁷. Where the Authority publishes such an assessment:

- 607 (A) it must provide an opportunity of making representations to the Authority about its proposal to members of the public and other persons who, in the Authority's opinion, are likely to be affected to a significant extent by the proposal's implementation;

- 608 (b) the published assessment must be accompanied by a statement setting out how representations may be made; and
- 609 (c) the Authority must not implement its proposal unless the period for making representations about the proposal has expired and it has considered all the representations that were made in that period¹⁸.

Where the Authority is otherwise required to consult about a proposal to which these provisions apply, or to give a person an opportunity of making representations about it, the requirements of these provisions are in addition to, but may be performed contemporaneously with, the other requirements¹⁹.

715. Co-operation with the Gas and Electricity Consumer Council.

The Gas and Electricity Markets Authority ('GEMA')¹ and the Gas and Electricity Consumer Council² must make arrangements with a view to securing:

- 610 (1) co-operation and the exchange of information³ between them; and
- 611 (2) consistent treatment of matters which affect both of them⁴.

As soon as practicable after agreement is reached on those arrangements, the Authority and the Council must prepare a memorandum setting them out and send a copy of it to the Secretary of State⁵.

Arrangements under these provisions must be kept under review by the Authority and the Council⁶. As soon as practicable after agreement is reached on any changes to those arrangements, the Authority and the Council must revise their memorandum and send a copy of the revised memorandum to the Secretary of State⁷.

The Secretary of State must lay a copy of any document received by him under these provisions before each House of Parliament⁸.

The Authority has power to direct the Council to supply it with information which the Authority requires for the purpose of exercising its functions⁹.

Establishment etc of the Gas and Electricity Consumer Council.

(3) THE GAS AND ELECTRICITY CONSUMER COUNCIL

(i) Establishment of the Council and General Provisions

716. Establishment etc of the Gas and Electricity Consumer Council.

The Utilities Act 2000 established a body corporate to be known as the Gas and Electricity Consumer Council ('the Council', commonly known as 'Energywatch') for the purpose of carrying out the functions of the Council under that Act¹. The former Gas Consumers' Council established under the Gas Act 1986² and the consumers' committees established under the Electricity Act 1989³ were abolished⁴.

The Council is not to be regarded as a servant or agent of the Crown or as enjoying any status, immunity or privilege of the Crown⁵. It is a public authority for the purposes of the Freedom of Information Act 2000⁶ and is subject to investigation by the Parliamentary Commissioner⁷.

The Council has a statutory duty to co-operate with the Gas and Electricity Markets Authority ('GEMA')⁸. The Authority must send the Council a copy of annual and other reports published by the Authority⁹.

The Secretary of State was given power to make one or more transfer schemes for the transfer of the property, rights and liabilities of the former Director General of Gas Supply and the former Director General of Electricity Supply to either the Gas and Electricity Markets Authority or to the Council¹⁰. Such a scheme might provide for the transfer to the Council of rights and liabilities relating to persons employed in the civil service of the state¹¹.

As from a day to be appointed¹², the Council is to be abolished and its statutory functions will be transferred to the new National Consumer Council to be established under the Consumers, Estate Agents and Redress Act 2007¹³. A number of the provisions of the Utilities Act 2000 relating to the functions and powers of the Gas and Electricity Consumer Council¹⁴ are, however, prospectively repealed as from that day¹⁵.

1 See the Utilities Act 2000 s 2(1) (prospectively repealed: see the text and notes 14-15 infra).

2 Ie under the Gas Act 1986 s 2 (repealed). The property, rights and liabilities of the Gas Consumers' Council (including rights and obligations in relation to contracts of employment) were transferred to the Gas and Electricity Consumer Council (Utilities Act 2000 s 3(6) (prospectively repealed: see the text and notes 14-15 infra)); and this transfer has effect in relation to property, rights or liabilities to which it applies in spite of any provision (of whatever nature) which would otherwise prevent or restrict the transfer of the property, rights or liabilities (s 3(7)). Section 3(6), (7) came into force on 7 November 2000: see the Utilities Act 2000 (Commencement No 3 and Transitional Provisions) Order 2000, SI 2000/2974, art 2, Schedule.

Where an employee of the Gas Consumers' Council became an employee of the Gas and Electricity Consumer Council (1) he was not to be regarded for the purposes of the Employment Rights Act 1996 Pt XI (ss 135-181) (as amended) (redundancy: see EMPLOYMENT vol 40 (2009) PARA 790 et seq) as having been dismissed by virtue of the transfer; and (2) his period of employment with the Gas Consumers' Council counts as a period of employment with the Gas and Electricity Consumer Council for the purposes of the Employment Rights Act 1996 (and the change of employer does not break the continuity of his employment): Utilities Act 2000 s 3(8), Sch 3 para 9(2).

The relevant entry is prospectively repealed by the Consumers, Estate Agents and Redress Act 2007 s 64, Sch 8 (not in force).

GAS AND ELECTRICITY INDUSTRIES; IN GENERAL/(3) THE GAS AND ELECTRICITY CONSUMER COUNCIL/(i) Establishment of the Council and General Provisions/717. Membership and staff of the Gas and Electricity Consumer Council.

717. Membership and staff of the Gas and Electricity Consumer Council.

The Gas and Electricity Consumer Council¹ is to consist of a chairman and such other members as may be appointed by the Secretary of State². The Secretary of State must consult the chairman before appointing any other member³; and in appointing persons the Secretary of State must have regard to the desirability of including among the members one or more persons who:

- 612 (1) have experience of work among, and the special needs of, disabled persons;
or
- 613 (2) have or have had a disability⁴.

An appointment must be for a term not exceeding five years⁵. A previous appointment as chairman or other member does not affect a person's eligibility for appointment to either office⁶.

A person holding office as chairman or other member may resign that office by giving notice⁷ in writing to the Secretary of State⁸; and the Secretary of State may remove any person from office as chairman or other member on the ground of incapacity or misbehaviour⁹. The chairman and other members are otherwise to hold and vacate office as such in accordance with the terms of their respective appointments¹⁰. The Council must pay to the chairman and other members of the Council such remuneration, and such travelling and other allowances, as the Secretary of State may determine¹¹.

If the Secretary of State so determines in the case of any holder of the office of chairman or other member, the Council must pay:

- 614 (a) such pension, allowance or gratuity to or in respect of him; or
- 615 (b) such contributions or payments towards provision for such a pension, allowance or gratuity, as the Secretary of State may determine¹²; and if, when any person ceases to hold office as chairman or other member, the Secretary of State determines that there are special circumstances which make it right that he should receive compensation, the Council must pay to him a sum by way of compensation of such amount as may be determined by the Secretary of State¹³.

The Council must, with the approval of the Secretary of State, appoint a principal officer on such terms of employment as it may, with that approval, determine¹⁴; and it may, with the approval of the Secretary of State as to numbers and terms of employment, appoint such other employees as it may determine¹⁵.

GAS AND ELECTRICITY INDUSTRIES; IN GENERAL/(3) THE GAS AND ELECTRICITY CONSUMER COUNCIL/(i) Establishment of the Council and General Provisions/718. Composition of committees; performance of functions.

718. Composition of committees; performance of functions.

The Gas and Electricity Consumer Council¹ may establish committees in addition to the regional committees² and any regional or other committee of the Council may establish sub-committees³. The Council must not, however, establish or abolish a regional committee, or alter the areas for which a regional committee is established, except with the approval of the Secretary of State⁴; and if the Council proposes to do any such thing in relation to a regional committee, it must, after consulting the Secretary of State, give notice describing its proposals and specifying the time from the date of the notice, not being less than two months, within which representations may be made with respect to the proposals⁵. Such a notice must be given by publishing it in such manner as the Council considers appropriate for bringing the proposals to the attention of those likely to be affected⁶. The Council must consider any representations that are duly made and not withdrawn⁷; and the Secretary of State must not give his approval until after the time specified in the notice⁸.

A regional or other committee of the Council is to consist of a chairman and such other members as the Council may determine⁹. The chairman and other members of a regional or other committee of the Council may be persons who are not members of the Council; and the members of a sub-committee may include persons who are not members of the relevant committee¹⁰. The Council must consult the Secretary of State before appointing a person as chairman of a regional committee¹¹. The Council may pay to the chairman and other members of a regional or other committee of the Council, or of any sub-committee, such remuneration, and such travelling and other allowances, as the Secretary of State may determine¹².

If the Secretary of State so determines in the case of any holder of the office of chairman or other member of a regional or other committee, or of any sub-committee, the Council must pay:

- 616 (1) such pension, allowance or gratuity to or in respect of him; or
- 617 (2) such contributions or payments towards provision for such a pension, allowance or gratuity, as the Secretary of State may determine¹³. If, when any person ceases to hold office as chairman or other member of a regional or other committee, or of any sub-committee, the Secretary of State determines that there are special circumstances which make it right that he should receive compensation, the Council must pay to him a sum by way of compensation of such amount as may be determined by the Secretary of State¹⁴.

Anything authorised or required to be done by the Council may be done by any member or employee¹⁵ of the Council who, or any regional or other committee of the Council which, is authorised for the purpose by the Council, whether generally or specially¹⁶. The validity of anything done by the Council is not affected by a vacancy among its members or by a defect in the appointment of a member¹⁷.

The Council has power to do anything which is calculated to facilitate, or is incidental or conducive to, the performance of any of its functions¹⁸; and that power includes, among other things, power to enter into agreements and to acquire and dispose of property¹⁹. The Council may make charges for facilities or services provided by it at the request of any person²⁰.

GAS AND ELECTRICITY INDUSTRIES; IN GENERAL/(3) THE GAS AND ELECTRICITY CONSUMER COUNCIL/(i) Establishment of the Council and General Provisions/719. Forward work programmes.

719. Forward work programmes.

The Gas and Electricity Consumer Council¹ must, before each financial year, publish a document (the 'forward work programme') containing a general description of the projects, other than those comprising routine activities in the exercise of its functions, which it plans to undertake during the year². That description must include the objectives of each project³. The forward work programme for any year must also include an estimate of the overall expenditure which the Council expects to incur during the year in the exercise of its functions⁴.

Before publishing the forward work programme for any year, the Council must give notice:

- 618 (1) containing a draft of the forward work programme; and
- 619 (2) specifying the time within which representations or objections to the proposals contained in it may be made, and must consider any representations or objections which are duly made and not withdrawn⁵. The notice must be published by the Council in such manner as it considers appropriate for the purpose of bringing the matters contained in it to the attention of persons likely to be affected by them⁶; and the Council must send a copy of any notice so given by it to the Gas and Electricity Markets Authority ('GEMA')⁷ and to the Secretary of State⁸.

GAS AND ELECTRICITY INDUSTRIES; IN GENERAL/(3) THE GAS AND ELECTRICITY CONSUMER COUNCIL/(i) Establishment of the Council and General Provisions/720. Annual reports.

720. Annual reports.

As soon as practicable after the end of each financial year the Gas and Electricity Consumer Council¹ must report to the Secretary of State² on its activities during the year³. The annual report for each year must include a report on the progress of the projects described in the Council's forward work programme⁴ for that year⁵. In making any such report the Council must not include any information⁶ which relates to the affairs of a particular individual or body of persons, corporate or unincorporate, unless one or more of heads (1) to (3) below applies to the information⁷. Information relating to a particular individual or body may be included in the report if:

- 620 (1) that individual or body has consented to its inclusion;
- 621 (2) it is information that is available to the public from some other source; or
- 622 (3) it is not information the publication of which would or might, in the opinion of the Council, seriously and prejudicially affect the interests of that individual or body⁸.

Before deciding to include any information relating to a particular individual or body in pursuance of head (3) above, the Council must:

- 623 (a) consult that person or body; and
- 624 (b) have regard to any opinion expressed by the Gas and Electricity Markets Authority ('GEMA')⁹ as to the application of head (3) above to the information or as to the desirability or otherwise of its publication¹⁰.

The Secretary of State must lay a copy of each annual report of the Council before each House of Parliament¹¹.

The Council must send a copy of each annual report to the Authority and must arrange for the report to be published in such manner as it considers appropriate¹².

It is the duty of the Gas and Electricity Consumer Council¹ to comply with any notice given by the Secretary of State² with the approval of the Treasury requiring it to perform duties of a financial nature specified in the notice³.

The Council must prepare, in respect of each financial year, a statement of accounts giving a true and fair view of the state of affairs and the income and expenditure of the Council⁴. The statement of accounts must comply with any requirement which the Secretary of State has, with the approval of the Treasury, notified to the Council⁵. The Council must send each statement of accounts of the Council to the Secretary of State and to the Comptroller and Auditor General⁶ within such period after the end of the financial year to which it relates as the Secretary of State may specify by notice given to the Council⁷. The Comptroller and Auditor General must:

- 625 (1) examine, certify and report on each statement of accounts so received by him; and

722. Duty to have regard to interests of particular descriptions of consumer.

In considering the interests of consumers¹ the Gas and Electricity Consumer Council² must have regard to the interests of:

- 627 (1) individuals who are disabled or chronically sick;
- 628 (2) individuals of pensionable age³;
- 629 (3) individuals with low incomes; and
- 630 (4) individuals residing in rural areas,

but that is not to be taken as implying that regard may not be had to the interests of other descriptions of consumer⁴.

1 In the Utilities Act 2000 Pt III (ss 17-27) (as amended) (see the text and notes 2-4 infra; and PARA 723 et seq post), 'consumers' includes both existing consumers and future consumers; and 'the interests of consumers' means the interests of consumers in relation to gas conveyed through pipes or electricity conveyed by distribution systems or transmission systems: s 17(1) (amended by the Energy Act 2004 s 179(2), (3)(e)). Acquisition and review of information.

723. Acquisition and review of information.

The Gas and Electricity Consumer Council¹ has the function of obtaining and keeping under review:

- 631 (1) information² about consumer matters³, including matters affecting consumers in different areas of Great Britain⁴; and
- 632 (2) information about the views of consumers on such matters, including the views of consumers in different areas⁵.

As part of the arrangements it makes for carrying out that function, the Council:

- 633 (a) must establish one or more committees of the Council for, or for areas within, Wales and Scotland; and
- 634 (b) may establish one or more committees of the Council for, or for areas within, England⁶.

The composition of these committees has already been discussed⁷.

The purposes of a committee so established (a 'regional committee') are to be:

- 635 (i) the provision of advice and information to the Council on consumer matters affecting the area for which the committee is established; and
- 636 (ii) such other purposes as the Council may determine⁸.

The Council must maintain in each of England, Wales and Scotland at least one office at which consumers may apply for information⁹.

1 As to the establishment of the Gas and Electricity Consumer Council see PARA 716 ante. As to the prospective abolition of the Council and the transfer of its functions to the new National Consumer Council to be established under the Consumers, Estate Agents and Redress Act 2007, and the prospective repeal of the provisions set out in this paragraph, see PARA 716 the text and notes 12-15 ante.

3 For the purposes of the Utilities Act 2000 Pt III (ss 17-27) (as amended) (see PARA 722 ante; the text and notes 4-9 infra; and PARA 724 et seq post), 'consumer matter' means any matter connected with the interests of consumers: s 17(1). GAS AND ELECTRICITY INDUSTRIES; IN GENERAL/(3) THE GAS AND ELECTRICITY CONSUMER COUNCIL/(ii) Functions of the Council/A. GENERAL FUNCTIONS UNDER THE UTILITIES ACT 2000/724. Provision of advice and information to public authorities and other persons.

724. Provision of advice and information to public authorities and other persons.

The Gas and Electricity Consumer Council¹ has the function of:

- 637 (1) making proposals, or providing advice and information², about consumer matters³, including matters affecting consumers in different areas; and
- 638 (2) representing the views of consumers on such matters, including the views of consumers in different areas, to public authorities, persons authorised by a licence or exemption under the Gas Act 1986⁴ or the Electricity Act 1989⁵ and other persons whose activities may affect the interests of consumers⁶.

Information which relates to the affairs of any particular individual or body of persons, corporate or unincorporate, must not, however, be disclosed⁷ in the exercise of the Council's function under these provisions unless one or more of heads (a) to (c) below applies to the information⁸. Information relating to a particular individual or body may be disclosed if:

- 639 (a) the individual or body has consented to the disclosure;
- 640 (b) it is information that is available to the public from some other source; or
- 641 (c) it is not information the disclosure of which would or might, in the opinion of the Council, seriously and prejudicially affect the interests of the individual or body⁹.

Before deciding to disclose any information relating to a particular individual or body in pursuance of head (c) above, the Council must:

- 642 (i) consult that individual or body; and
- 643 (ii) have regard to any opinion expressed by the Gas and Electricity Markets Authority ('GEMA')¹⁰ as to the application of head (c) above to the information or as to the desirability or otherwise of its disclosure¹¹.

The above prohibition on the disclosure of information relating to the affairs of any particular individual or body of persons does not apply to a disclosure of information which is made to the Authority, the Secretary of State¹², the Competition Commission¹³ or any other public authority¹⁴.

The disclosure by the Council of information in the exercise of its function under these provisions does not contravene the general statutory restrictions¹⁵ on the disclosure of information¹⁶.

725. Provision of information to consumers.

The Gas and Electricity Consumer Council¹ has the function of providing information² about consumer matters³, in such form as appears to the Council to be most useful to the recipients, to consumers of electricity or gas⁴ supplied by persons authorised to do so by a licence or exemption⁵ under the Gas Act 1986 or the Electricity Act 1989⁶. That function may be exercised by:

- 644 (1) publishing information in any manner the Council thinks appropriate for the purpose of bringing it to the attention of those likely to be interested; or
- 645 (2) furnishing information to any consumer, whether in response to a request or otherwise⁷.

Information may, however, only be disclosed in the exercise of that function if it is information that is available to the public from some other source⁸.

The disclosure by the Council of information in the exercise of that function does not contravene the general statutory restrictions⁹ on the disclosure of information¹⁰.

As to the prospective abolition of the Council and the transfer of its functions to the new National Consumer Council to be established under the Consumers, Estate Agents and Redress Act 2007, and the prospective repeal of the provisions set out in this paragraph, see PARA 716 the text and notes 12-15 ante.

726. Power to publish advice and information about consumer matters.

If it appears to the Gas and Electricity Consumer Council¹ that the publication of any advice and information² about consumer matters³, including information about the views of consumers on such matters, would promote the interests of consumers⁴, the Council may publish that advice or information in such manner as it thinks fit⁵. Information which relates to the affairs of any particular individual or body of persons, corporate or unincorporate, must not, however, be published under these provisions unless one or more of heads (1) to (3) below applies to the information⁶. Information relating to a particular individual or body may be published if:

- 646 (1) that individual or body has consented to the publication;
- 647 (2) it is information that is available to the public from some other source; or
- 648 (3) it is not information the publication of which would or might, in the opinion of the Council, seriously and prejudicially affect the interests of that individual or body⁷.

Before deciding to publish any information relating to a particular individual or body in pursuance of head (3) above, the Council must:

- 649 (a) consult that individual or body; and
- 650 (b) have regard to any opinion expressed by the Authority as to the application of head (3) above to the information or as to the desirability or otherwise of its publication⁸.

The publication by the Council of information under these provisions does not contravene the general statutory restrictions⁹ on the disclosure of information¹⁰.

Provision of information to the Gas and Electricity Consumer Council.

727. Provision of information to the Gas and Electricity Consumer Council.

The Gas and Electricity Consumer Council¹ may direct:

- 651 (1) the Gas and Electricity Markets Authority ('GEMA')²; or
- 652 (2) the holder of a gas licence³ or an electricity licence⁴, to supply to it, in such form as it may reasonably specify, such information⁵ specified or described in the direction as it may require for the purpose of exercising its functions⁶. Before giving such a direction and in specifying the form in which any information is to be supplied, the Council must have regard to the desirability of minimising the costs, or any other detriment, to the Authority or licence holder⁷.

A person to whom such a direction is given must comply with it as soon as is reasonably practicable⁸. Information of certain prescribed descriptions⁹ need not, however, be given¹⁰.

The Secretary of State¹¹ may make regulations¹² for the purpose of enabling a failure to comply with such a direction to be referred by the Council to such person, other than the Authority, as may be prescribed by the regulations¹³. If no person is prescribed for this purpose, the Council may refer a failure by a licence holder to comply with such a direction to the Authority¹⁴. A person to whom such a failure is referred¹⁵ must:

- 653 (a) consider any representations made by either party;
- 654 (b) determine whether the person failing to comply with the direction is entitled to refuse to do so and, if not, order him to comply with the direction; and
- 655 (c) give notice of his determination and any order under head (b) above, with reasons, to both parties¹⁶.

A notice of determination may be published by either party to the reference¹⁷. Publication of such a notice is subject to the restrictions on publication of information relating to a particular individual or body¹⁸ which are set out below¹⁹.

If the Authority fails to comply with such a direction it must, if so required by the Council, give notice to the Council of the reasons for its failure²⁰ and the Council may²¹ publish a notice so given to it²². Information which relates to the affairs of any particular individual or body of persons, corporate or unincorporate, must be excluded from any notice so published unless one or more of heads (i) to (iii) below applies to the information²³. Information relating to a particular individual or body may be published if:

- 656 (i) that individual or body has consented to the publication;
- 657 (ii) it is information that is available to the public from some other source; or
- 658 (iii) it is not information the publication of which would or might, in the opinion of the Council, seriously and prejudicially affect the interests of that individual or body²⁴.

Before deciding to publish any information relating to a particular individual or body in pursuance of head (iii) above, the Council must:

- 659 (A) consult that individual or body; and
- 660 (B) have regard to any opinion expressed by the Authority as to the application of head (iii) above to the information or as to the desirability or otherwise of its publication²⁵.

The publication by the Council of information under these provisions does not contravene the general statutory restrictions²⁶ on the disclosure of information²⁷. Nor does the publication of information in a notice of determination as described above²⁸ contravene those restrictions²⁹.

Provision of information by the Gas and Electricity Consumer Council to the Gas and Electricity Markets Authority.

728. Provision of information by the Gas and Electricity Consumer Council to the Gas and Electricity Markets Authority.

The Gas and Electricity Markets Authority ('GEMA')¹ may direct the Gas and Electricity Consumer Council² to supply to it, in such form as it may reasonably specify, such information³ specified or described in the direction as it may require for the purpose of exercising its functions⁴. The Council must comply with such a direction as soon as is reasonably practicable⁵. Information of certain prescribed descriptions⁶ need not, however, be given⁷.

Where the Council refuses to supply any information under the above provisions, it must give notice⁸ to the Authority of its reason for the refusal and the Authority may publish that notice in such manner as it considers appropriate⁹. In publishing any such notice the Authority must have regard to the need for excluding, so far as that is practicable, any matter which relates to the affairs of a particular individual or body of persons, corporate or unincorporate, where publication of that matter would or might, in the opinion of the Authority, seriously and prejudicially affect the interests of that person or body¹⁰.

The Secretary of State¹¹ may make regulations¹² for the purpose of enabling a failure to comply with such a direction to be referred to such person, other than the Authority, as may be prescribed by the regulations¹³. A person to whom such a failure is referred must:

- 663 (3) give notice of his determination and any order under head (2) above, with reasons, to both parties¹⁴.

A notice of determination may be published by either party to the reference¹⁵. Publication of such a notice is subject to the restrictions on publication of information relating to a particular individual or body¹⁶ which have already been discussed¹⁷; but the publication of information in such a notice does not contravene the general statutory restrictions¹⁸ on the disclosure of information¹⁹.

729. Prescribed descriptions of information which need not be supplied.

The Secretary of State¹ may make regulations² prescribing:

- 664 (1) descriptions of information which the Gas and Electricity Markets Authority ('GEMA')³, a licence holder⁴ or the Gas and Electricity Consumer Council⁵ may refuse to supply under the relevant statutory provisions⁶; or
- 665 (2) circumstances in which the Authority, a licence holder or the Council may refuse to comply with a direction under those provisions⁷.

The Authority, a licence holder or the Council may refuse to supply under the relevant statutory provisions:

- 666 (a) any information which it would be against the interests of national security to make public⁸;
- 667 (b) any information whose disclosure would be prohibited by or under any enactment other than the Gas Act 1986 or the Electricity Act 1989, or whose disclosure is incompatible with any Community obligation⁹;
- 668 (c) any information which constitutes personal data¹⁰ and where:
 - 35 50. (i) in a specified case¹¹, the disclosure of the information to a member of the public would contravene any of the data protection principles¹² or the statutory right to prevent processing likely to cause damage or distress¹³; or
 - 51. (ii) in any other case, the disclosure of the information to a member of the public would contravene any of the data protection principles if the statutory exemptions relating to manual data held by public authorities¹⁴ were disregarded¹⁵;
- 36 669 (d) any information whose disclosure would constitute or be punishable as a contempt of court¹⁶;
- 670 (e) any information whose disclosure would, or would be likely to, prejudice any criminal proceedings¹⁷;
- 671 (f) any information concerning:
 - 37 52. (i) the discussions or deliberations of the Authority, a licence holder or the Council as to a decision or action to be taken or that may be taken by the Authority, a licence holder or the Council where the direction requiring the supply of that information is given before that decision or action has been taken¹⁸;
 - 53. (ii) the discussions or deliberations of the Authority, a licence holder or the Council as to a decision or action which has been taken and is to be announced or published by the Authority, a licence holder or the Council where the direction requiring the supply of that information is given before that decision or action has been announced or published¹⁹;
 - 54. (iii) any information concerning the views of the Authority or a licence holder on its relationship with the Council or the performance by the Council of its functions²⁰;

55. (iv) any information concerning the views of the Council on its relationship with the Authority or the performance by the Authority of its functions²¹;
- 38 672 (g) information if that person does not hold the information specified or described in the direction²².

The Authority or a licence holder may refuse to supply²³:

- 673 (A) any information which relates to particular securities²⁴ or to a particular issuer of securities²⁵ or to particular issuers of securities, which is specific or precise, which has not been made public²⁶ and which, if it were made public, would be likely to have a significant effect on the price²⁷ of the securities²⁸;
- 674 (B) any information whose disclosure would, or would be likely to, prejudice any action for securing compliance or penalties under the specified provisions²⁹ of the Gas Act 1986 or the Electricity Act 1989³⁰.

The Authority may refuse to supply³¹ any information not falling within head (A) above which was disclosed to the Authority in specified circumstances³² or which was obtained by the Authority in the exercise of functions which it may exercise concurrently with the Office of Fair Trading under Part 4 of the Enterprise Act 2002³³ or under Part I³⁴ of the Competition Act 1998³⁵.

It may also refuse to supply any information which relates to the obtaining of information from confidential sources by the Authority for the purposes of its functions under specified provisions of the Gas Act 1986³⁶ or the Electricity Act 1989³⁷ or in relation to any criminal proceedings which the Authority has power to conduct³⁸.

A licence holder may refuse to supply³⁹ information which the licence holder could not be compelled to give as evidence in civil proceedings or which is contained in documents or records which the licence holder could not be compelled to produce in evidence in any such proceedings⁴⁰.

It may also refuse to supply any information where the cost or effort that would be incurred or suffered by the licence holder in supplying that information would be excessive in relation to the likely benefit of the information to the Council⁴¹.

Nothing in the above provisions entitles a licence holder to refuse to supply⁴² information to the Council if it is information whose supply the Council has directed in accordance with the Council's duties to publish statistical information about standards of performance under the specified provisions⁴³ of the Gas Act 1986 and the Electricity Act 1989⁴⁴.

(4) PAYMENTS BY LICENCE HOLDERS RELATING TO REGULATORY ARRANGEMENTS

732. Payments relating to regulatory arrangements.

The payment conditions¹ of a gas licence² or an electricity licence³ may⁴ require the payment by the licence holder⁵ of sums relating to any of the following expenses, namely:

- 675 (1) the expenses of the Gas and Electricity Consumer Council⁶; and
- 676 (2) the expenses of the Secretary of State⁷ in relation to the establishment of the Gas and Electricity Markets Authority ('GEMA')⁸ and the Council⁹.

The Secretary of State may give directions to the Authority for the purpose of securing that sums relating to any of the expenses mentioned in heads (1) and (2) above are included in the sums payable by virtue of payment conditions in gas licences and electricity licences; and the Authority must comply with any such direction¹⁰.

The Utilities Act 2000 conferred transitional powers on the Authority to modify any payment conditions of a gas licence or an electricity licence where the Authority considered it necessary or expedient to do so in consequence of, or in preparation for, the establishment of the Authority or the Council or the abolition of the former offices of Director General of Gas Supply and Director General of Electricity Supply or the abolition of the former Gas Consumers' Council and consumers' committees established under the Electricity Act 1989¹¹.

1 For these purposes, 'payment conditions' means (1) in relation to a gas licence, conditions included in the licence by virtue of the Gas Act 1986 s 7B(4)(c) (as added and amended) (see PARA 809 post); or (2) in relation to an electricity licence, conditions included in the licence by virtue of the Electricity Act 1989 s 7(1)(b) (see PARA 1068 post): Utilities Act 2000 s 8(1).

732 Payments relating to regulatory arrangements

NOTE 9--Day appointed is 21 December 2007: SI 2007/3546.

Halsbury's Laws of England/FUEL AND ENERGY (VOLUME 19(1) (2007 REISSUE) PARAS 601-775; VOLUME 19(2) (2007 REISSUE) PARAS 776-1328); VOLUME 19(3) (2007 REISSUE) PARAS 1329-1927)/2. GAS AND ELECTRICITY INDUSTRIES; IN GENERAL/(5) APPEALS FROM GEMA DECISIONS/(i) Right of Appeal/733. Right of appeal to the Competition Commission; application for permission to bring an appeal.

(5) APPEALS FROM GEMA DECISIONS

(i) Right of Appeal

733. Right of appeal to the Competition Commission; application for permission to bring an appeal.

An appeal lies to the Competition Commission¹ from a decision by the Gas and Electricity Markets Authority ('GEMA')² to which these provisions apply³. These provisions apply to a decision by GEMA if:

- 677 (1) it is a decision relating to a document⁴ by reference to which provision is made by a condition of a gas or electricity licence⁵;
- 678 (2) that document is designated for these purposes by an order made by the Secretary of State⁶;
- 679 (3) the decision consists in the giving or refusal of a consent⁷ by virtue of which the document has effect, or would have had effect, for the purposes of the licence with modifications⁸ or as reissued; and
- 680 (4) the decision is not of a description of decisions for the time being excluded from the right of appeal under these provisions by an order made by the Secretary of State⁹.

An appeal against a decision may be brought under these provisions only by:

- 681 (a) a person whose interests are materially affected by it; or
- 682 (b) a body or association whose functions are or include representing persons in respect of interests of theirs that are so affected¹⁰.

The permission of the Competition Commission is required for the bringing of an appeal under these provisions¹¹. An application for permission to bring an appeal may be made only by sending a notice to the Commission requesting the permission¹²; and only a person who will be entitled¹³ to bring the appeal if permission is granted may apply for permission¹⁴. Where GEMA publishes a decision to which the right of appeal set out above applies, an application for permission is not to be made after the end of 15 working days following the earliest day on which the decision was published¹⁵. An application for permission must be accompanied by all such information as may be required by appeal rules¹⁶; and those rules may require information contained in the application to be verified by a statement of truth¹⁷.

The applicant must send GEMA a copy of his application and such other information as may be required by appeal rules¹⁸. He must also send a copy of that application and of that information to such persons, apart from GEMA, as appear to him to be affected by the decision appealed against, and to such other persons as GEMA may require him to keep informed about his appeal¹⁹.

The Commission's decision on an application for permission must be made before the end of ten working days following the day on which it received it²⁰. The decision whether to grant permission is to be taken by an authorised member of the Commission²¹. The Commission may refuse permission only on one of the following grounds:

- 683 (i) that the appeal is brought for reasons that are trivial or vexatious;
- 684 (ii) that the appeal has no reasonable prospect of success²².

A decision to grant permission may be made subject to conditions²³. Those conditions may include conditions:

- 685 (A) which limit the matters that are to be considered on the appeal in question;
- 686 (B) for the purpose of expediting the determination of the appeal; and
- 687 (C) requiring that appeal to be considered together with other appeals, including appeals relating to different matters or decisions and appeals brought by different persons²⁴.

Where a decision is made to grant or to refuse an application for permission, the Commission must notify the decision to the applicant, to GEMA and to each person who was sent²⁵ a copy of the application²⁶.

1 As to the Competition Commission see COMPETITION vol 18 (2009) PARAS 9-12. The Competition Commission's functions with respect to appeals under the Energy Act 2004 s 173 (see the text and notes 2-11 infra) are to be treated as included in: (1) the functions for the purposes of which members of the Competition Commission are appointed under the Utilities Act 2000 s 104(1) (specialist members: see PARA 766 post); and (2) the functions for the purposes of which the members appointed under s 104(1) before 5 October 2004 (ie the commencement date of the Energy Act 2004 s 176: see the Energy Act 2004 (Commencement No 3) Order 2004, SI 2004/2575, art 2(1), Sch 1) were appointed: Energy Act 2004 s 176.

2 As to the establishment of the Gas and Electricity Markets Authority see PARA 708 ante.

3 Energy Act 2004 s 173(1).

4 'Documents' includes accounts, drawings, written representations and records of any description: ibid s 196(1).

5 For these purposes, 'gas or electricity licence' means a licence for the purposes of the Gas Act 1986 s 5 (as substituted and amended) or the Electricity Act 1989 s 4 (as amended) (prohibition on unlicensed activities: see PARAS 803, 1050 post): Energy Act 2004 ss 173(9), 196(1).

6 Before making an order under ibid s 173, the Secretary of State must consult (1) GEMA; and (2) such other persons as he considers appropriate: s 173(6). An order so made is subject to the negative resolution procedure: s 173(8). As to the negative resolution procedure see ss 192(2), 196(1); and PARA 602 note 2 ante; and as to the Secretary of State see PARA 601 note 1 ante.

In the exercise of the power under heads (2), (4) in the text, the Secretary of State has made the Electricity and Gas Appeals (Designation and Exclusion) Order 2005, SI 2005/1646, which came into force on 14 July 2005: art 1(1). The documents designated for these purposes are those set out as follows (art 3), ie:

- 5 (1) the Balancing and Settlement Code, being the document of that title required to be prepared pursuant to Standard Condition C3 of transmission licences;
- 6 (2) the Connection and Use of System Code, being the document of that title required to be prepared pursuant to Standard Condition C10 of transmission licences;
- 7 (3) a Network Code, being a document of that title required to be prepared pursuant to the conditions of a transportation licence to which Standard Special Condition A11 (Network and Uniform Network Code) applies;

The documents listed in heads (1)-(6) supra may be inspected at the offices of the Gas and Electricity Markets Authority, 9 Millbank, London, SW1P 3GE. 'Transmission licence' has the same meaning as in the Electricity Act 1989 s 6 (as substituted and amended) (see PARA 1065 post); and 'transportation licence' means a licence granted under the Gas Act 1986 s 7(2) (as substituted and amended) (see PARA 805 post): Electricity and Gas Appeals (Designation and Exclusion) Order 2005, SI 2005/1646, art 2.

7 For these purposes, 'consent' includes an approval or direction: ibid s 173(9).

8 'Modification' includes omission, addition or alteration, and cognate expressions are to be construed accordingly: Energy Act 2004 s 196(1).

9 Ibid s 173(2). An order excluding decisions from the right of appeal under s 173(2) may provide (1) for the exclusion to apply only in such cases as may be determined in accordance with the order; and (2) for a determination in accordance with the order to be made by such persons, in accordance with such procedures, and by reference to such matters and the opinions of such persons (including GEMA), as may be provided for in the order: s 173(7). As to the negative resolution procedure see ss 192(2), 196(1); and PARA 602 note 2 ante; as to the Secretary of State see PARA 601 note 1 ante; and for the meaning of 'modify' see note 8 supra. GAS AND ELECTRICITY INDUSTRIES; IN GENERAL/(5) APPEALS FROM GEMA DECISIONS/(i) Right of Appeal/734. Excluded decisions.

734. Excluded decisions.

No appeal lies¹ to the Competition Commission² from a decision made by the Gas and Electricity Markets Authority ('GEMA')³ on or after 14 July 2005⁴ which consists in the giving or refusal of a consent⁵ by virtue of which a designated document⁶ has effect or would have had effect for the purposes of a gas or electricity licence⁷ with modifications or as reissued⁸, if the relevant condition⁹ is satisfied in respect of that decision¹⁰.

The relevant condition is, in the case of a decision in relation to:

- 688 (1) the Balancing and Settlement Code¹¹, that the decision consists in the giving of a consent to a majority recommendation made by the panel in the modification report¹²;
- 689 (2) the Connection and Use of System Code, that the decision consists in the giving of a consent to a majority recommendation¹³ of panel members in the amendment report¹⁴;
- 690 (3) a Network Code, that the decision accords with a majority recommendation made by the modification panel in the modification report¹⁵;
- 691 (4) the Supply Point Administration Agreement, that the decision consists in the giving of a consent to a change proposal¹⁶;
- 692 (5) the Master Registration Agreement, that the decision consists in the giving of a consent to a resolution of the MEC arising from the change procedures¹⁷; and
- 693 (6) the Uniform Network Code, that the decision consists in the giving of a consent to a majority recommendation made by the modification panel in the modification report¹⁸.

When on or after 14 July 2005 a decision in relation to a designated document is made by GEMA which is not excluded under the above provisions from the right of appeal which would otherwise be conferred¹⁹ and which consists in the giving or refusal of a consent by virtue of which that document has effect or would have had effect as mentioned above²⁰, GEMA must at the same time or as soon as reasonably practicable thereafter:

- 694 (a) decide whether to exclude that decision²¹; and
- 695 (b) give notice of the decision taken under head (a) above in such manner as it considers appropriate for the purpose of bringing the matters to which the notice relates to the attention of persons likely to be interested²².

GEMA may exclude a decision referred to in heads (a) and (b) from the statutory right of appeal²³ if the delay caused by the holding of the appeal against that decision is likely to have a material adverse effect on the availability of electricity or gas for meeting the reasonable demands of consumers in Great Britain²⁴. Where GEMA so excludes a decision, it must, as soon as reasonably practicable after the exclusion of that decision, publish a notice stating the reasons for its having exercised its power to exclude in such manner as it considers appropriate for the purpose of bringing the matters to which the notice relates to the attention of persons likely to be interested²⁵.

TEXT AND NOTES--As to further decisions excluded from the right of appeal see Electricity and Gas Appeals (Designation and Exclusion) Order 2009, SI 2009/648, arts 4-6.

Halsbury's Laws of England/FUEL AND ENERGY (VOLUME 19(1) (2007 REISSUE) PARAS 601-775; VOLUME 19(2) (2007 REISSUE) PARAS 776-1328); VOLUME 19(3) (2007 REISSUE) PARAS 1329-1927)/2. GAS AND ELECTRICITY INDUSTRIES; IN GENERAL/(5) APPEALS FROM GEMA DECISIONS/(ii) Procedure on Appeals/735. Procedure on appeals; in general.

(ii) Procedure on Appeals

735. Procedure on appeals; in general.

The functions of the Competition Commission¹ with respect to appeals from certain decisions of the Gas and Electricity Markets Authority ('GEMA')² are not to be regarded as comprised in its general functions for the purposes of the provisions of the Competition Act 1998³ which set out the manner in which the Commission's general functions are to be carried out⁴. Instead, the provisions of the Energy Act 2004 setting out the procedure on appeals⁵ have effect⁶.

The Commission may make rules regulating the conduct and disposal of such appeals⁷. Those rules may:

- 696 (1) include provision supplementing the relevant statutory provisions⁸ in relation to any application, notice, hearing or requirement for which those provisions provide; and that provision may, in particular, impose time limits or other restrictions on the taking of evidence at an oral hearing or the making of representations or observations at such a hearing⁹;
- 697 (2) make different provision for different cases¹⁰.

Before making such rules, the Commission must consult such persons as it considers appropriate¹¹. The Commission must publish rules so made in such manner as it considers appropriate for the purpose of bringing them to the attention of those likely to be affected by them¹². In the exercise of this power, the Commission has made the Energy Code Modification Rules¹³, and it has also published a Guide to Appeals in Energy Code Modification Cases¹⁴.

The following functions of the Commission must be carried out, in accordance with appeal rules, by a group selected for the purpose by the chairman¹⁵:

- 698 (a) considering an appeal;
- 699 (b) determining an appeal; and
- 700 (c) giving directions and taking other steps to give effect to the Commission's determination on an appeal¹⁶.

A group must consist of three members of the Commission¹⁷; and the chairman must appoint one of the members of a group to be its chairman¹⁸. The Chairman of the Commission may select a member of the Commission to replace another as a member of a group if:

- 701 (i) the person being replaced has ceased to be a member of the Commission;
- 702 (ii) that chairman is satisfied that the person being replaced will be unable, for a substantial period, to perform his duties as a member of the group; or
- 703 (iii) it appears to that chairman that it is inappropriate, because of a particular interest of the person being replaced, for that person to remain a member of the group¹⁹.

The replacement of a member of a group does not, however, prevent the group from continuing after his replacement with anything begun before it²⁰.

A decision of a group is effective if, and only if, all the members of the group are present when it is made, and at least two members of the group are in favour of the decision²¹.

GAS AND ELECTRICITY INDUSTRIES; IN GENERAL/(5) APPEALS FROM GEMA DECISIONS/(ii) Procedure on Appeals/736. Suspension of GEMA decision pending determination of the appeal; representations by GEMA.

736. Suspension of GEMA decision pending determination of the appeal; representations by GEMA.

Where permission has been granted to bring an appeal¹ against a decision to give a consent², an authorised member of the Competition Commission³ may, on behalf of the Commission, direct that, pending the determination of the appeal:

- 704 (1) the consent is not to have effect; or
- 705 (2) the consent is not to have effect to such extent as may be specified in the direction⁴.

The power to give such a direction is exercisable only where:

- 706 (a) an application for its exercise has been made by the applicant for permission or by another person with interests or functions that entitle him, or would have entitled him, to appeal against the decision;
- 707 (b) the applicant for the exercise of the power would incur significant costs if the consent were to have effect, or to continue to have effect, before the determination of the appeal; and
- 708 (c) the balance of convenience does not otherwise require effect to be given to the consent pending that determination⁵.

That power is exercisable at any time before the determination of the appeal⁶.

A person making such an application must notify the Gas and Electricity Markets Authority ('GEMA')⁷.

Before determining whether to grant such an application, the authorised member of the Commission must give GEMA an opportunity of making representations about the matter⁸.

Where GEMA wishes to make representations or observations to the Commission about:

- 709 (i) a decision in respect of which permission to bring an appeal has been granted;
- 710 (ii) GEMA's reasons for that decision; or
- 711 (iii) the grounds on which an appeal is being brought against that decision, it must do so before the end of 15 working days⁹ following the day of the making of the application for permission to bring the appeal¹⁰. Where more than one application for permission to bring an appeal was made¹¹ in respect of the same decision, that period of 15 working days begins to run from the end of the day of the making of the last of those applications to be made¹². GEMA must send a copy of its representations and observations to every person who received a copy of:

- 712 (A) the application for permission to bring the appeal; or
- 713 (B) a notice by which a person asked to become a party¹³ to the appeal¹⁴.

GAS AND ELECTRICITY INDUSTRIES; IN GENERAL/(5) APPEALS FROM GEMA DECISIONS/(ii) Procedure on Appeals/737. Addition of parties to appeal.

737. Addition of parties to appeal.

The following provisions apply if:

- 714 (1) before the end of 20 working days¹ following the day of the making of an application for permission to bring an appeal²; or
- 715 (2) within such longer period as an authorised member of the Competition Commission³ may allow, a person who is not the applicant for permission, but who is a person who would have been entitled, at the time of the application, to make his own application to the Commission for permission to bring an appeal against the decision in question, gives notice to the Commission asking to become a party to the appeal⁴. A person who gives a notice asking to become a party to an appeal must send the Gas and Electricity Markets Authority ('GEMA')⁵ a copy of the notice and such other information as may be required by appeal rules⁶. That person must also send a copy of the notice and of that information to such persons, apart from GEMA, as appear to him to be affected by the decision appealed against, and to such other persons as GEMA may require him to keep informed about his appeal⁷.

An authorised member of the Commission may, on behalf of the Commission, give a direction that a person who has asked in accordance with the above provisions to become a party to an appeal is to be a party to that appeal⁸. A member of the Commission is not, however, to give such a direction if he considers that it would prevent the determination of the appeal within the period allowed⁹ to do so¹⁰. Such a direction:

- 716 (a) does not allow the intervener¹¹ to rely on grounds of appeal not contained in the appellant's application for permission to bring an appeal;
- 717 (b) may allow the intervener to become a party to the appeal for the purpose of opposing it; and
- 718 (c) may be given subject to conditions¹²; and the conditions of such a direction may include:

- 719 (i) conditions which limit the matters that are to be considered on the appeal in question;
- 720 (ii) conditions for the purpose of expediting the determination of the appeal¹³.

Where a direction is so given, the application for permission, and, if permission is or has been granted, the appeal brought by the applicant and any other appeals that are considered with it, are to proceed¹⁴ as if the intervener had joined with the applicant in making that application and bringing the appeal¹⁵.

GAS AND ELECTRICITY INDUSTRIES; IN GENERAL/(5) APPEALS FROM GEMA DECISIONS/(ii) Procedure on Appeals/738. Timetable for determination of an appeal and matters to be considered.

738. Timetable for determination of an appeal and matters to be considered.

The group¹ with the function of determining an appeal² must determine that appeal before the end of 30 working days³ following the last day for the making⁴ of representations or observations by the Gas and Electricity Markets Authority ('GEMA')⁵. If the group with the function of determining an appeal is satisfied that there are good reasons for departing from the normal requirements, it may on one occasion only extend that period of 30 working days by not more than ten more working days⁶. The Competition Commission⁷ must ensure that such an extension is notified to every party to the appeal⁸.

The group with the function of determining an appeal, if it thinks it necessary to do so for the purpose of securing the determination of the appeal within the period allowed by the above provisions, may disregard:

- 721 (1) all matters raised by the appellant or an intervener⁹ that were not raised by him at the time of his application for permission to bring the appeal or in his request to become a party¹⁰; and
- 722 (2) all matters raised by GEMA that were not contained in representations or observations made¹¹ for the purposes of the appeal¹².

Appeal rules made by the Commission contain further provisions about case management¹³.

GAS AND ELECTRICITY INDUSTRIES; IN GENERAL/(5) APPEALS FROM GEMA DECISIONS/(ii) Procedure on Appeals/739. Documents, hearings and evidence.

739. Documents, hearings and evidence.

The Competition Commission¹ may, by notice², require a person to produce to the Commission the documents³ specified or otherwise identified in the notice⁴. The power to require the production of a document is a power to require its production at the time and place specified in the notice and in a legible form⁵; and the Commission may take copies of a document so produced to it⁶. No person is, however, to be compelled under these provisions to produce a document that he could not be compelled to produce in civil proceedings in the High Court⁷.

For the purposes of the procedural provisions relating to appeals⁸ an oral hearing may be held, and evidence may be taken on oath, by a person considering an application for permission to bring an appeal, by a person considering an application for a direction⁹ or by a group¹⁰ with the function of determining an appeal; and, for that purpose, such a person or group may administer oaths¹¹. The Commission may, by notice¹², require a person to attend at a time and place¹³ specified in the notice and at that time and place to give evidence to a person or group mentioned above¹⁴. At any oral hearing the person or group conducting the hearing may require:

- 723 (1) the applicant, or the appellant or any intervener¹⁵, if he is present at the hearing; or
- 724 (2) a person attending the hearing as a representative of a person mentioned in head (1) above or as a representative of the Gas and Electricity Markets Authority ('GEMA')¹⁶, to give evidence or to make representations or observations¹⁷. If, however, a person is not present at a hearing to be subjected to such a requirement, the Commission is not required to give notice to him¹⁸ and the person or group conducting the hearing may determine the application or appeal without hearing his evidence, representations or observations¹⁹. A person who gives oral evidence at the hearing may be cross-examined by or on behalf of any party to the appeal²⁰. No person is, however, to be compelled under these provisions to give evidence which he could not be compelled to give in civil proceedings in the High Court²¹.

The Commission may, by notice²², require a person to produce a written statement with respect to a matter specified in the notice to:

- 725 (a) a person who is considering, or is to consider, an application for a suspension direction²³; or
- 726 (b) a group with the function of determining an appeal²⁴.

The power to require the production of a written statement includes power to specify the time and place at which it is to be produced and to require it to be verified by a statement of truth; and a statement so produced must be disregarded unless it is so verified²⁵. No person is, however, to be compelled under these provisions to produce a written statement with respect to any matter about which he could not be compelled to give evidence in civil proceedings in the High Court²⁶.

If a person ('the defaulter'):

- 727 (i) fails to comply with a notice or other requirement issued or imposed under any of the above provisions;
- 728 (ii) in complying with a notice to produce a written statement²⁷, makes a statement that is false in any material particular; or
- 729 (iii) in providing information otherwise verified in accordance with a statement of truth required by appeal rules²⁸, provides information that is false in a material particular, a member of the Commission may certify the failure, or the fact that such a false statement has been made, to the High Court²⁹. The High Court may inquire into a matter so certified to it; and if, after having heard any witness against or on behalf of the defaulter, and any statement in his defence, it is satisfied that the defaulter did, without reasonable excuse, refuse or otherwise fail to comply with the notice or other requirement, or made the false statement, that court may punish him as if he had been guilty of contempt of court³⁰. Where the High Court has such power to punish a body corporate for contempt of court, it may so punish any director or other officer of that body, either instead of or as well as punishing the body³¹.

A person who wilfully alters, suppresses or destroys a document that he has been required to produce³² is guilty of an offence and is liable on summary conviction to a fine not exceeding the statutory maximum³³, or on conviction on indictment to imprisonment for a term not exceeding two years or a fine, or to both³⁴.

1 As to the Competition Commission see COMPETITION vol 18 (2009) PARAS 9-12. See also PARA 733 note 1 ante.

2 A notice for these purposes, or for the purposes of the Energy Act 2004 s 174(2), Sch 22 para 9 (see the text and notes 8-21 infra) or Sch 22 para 10 (see the text and notes 22-26 infra) may be issued on the Commission's behalf by any member of the Commission or by its secretary: Energy Act 2004 Sch 22 paras 8(5), 9(8), 10(4). As to such notices see further the Energy Code Modification Rules (CC 10) (Competition Commission, July 2005) r 12.

Where provision made (in whatever terms) by or under the Energy Act 2004, other than ss 129-131 (see PARAS 1334-1336 post) or Pt 3 Ch 3 (ss 51-71) (as amended) (see PARA 1520 et seq post), authorises or requires a notification to be given to a person or a document of any other description (including a copy of a document) to be sent to a person, the notification or document may be given or sent to the person in question (1) by delivering it to him; (2) by leaving it at his proper address; or (3) by sending it by post to him at that address: s 193(1), (2). The notification or document may be given or sent to a body corporate by being given or sent to the secretary or clerk of that body (s 193(3)) and may be given or sent to a firm by being given or sent to a partner in the firm or to a person having the control or management of the partnership business (s 193(4)). It may be given or sent to an unincorporated body or association by being given or sent to a member of the governing body of the body or association: s 193(5). For these purposes and the purposes of the Interpretation Act 1978 s 7 (service of documents by post) in its application to the Energy Act 2004 s 193, the proper address of a person is (a) in the case of a body corporate, the address of the registered or principal office of the body; (b) in the case of a firm, or an unincorporated body or association, the address of the principal office of the firm, body or association; (c) in the case of a person to whom the notification or other document is given or sent in reliance on any of s 193(3)-(5), the proper address of the body corporate, firm or (as the case may be) other body or association in question; and (d) in any other case, the last known address of the person in question: s 193(6). In the case of a company registered outside the United Kingdom, a firm carrying on business outside the United Kingdom, or an unincorporated body or association with offices outside the United Kingdom, the references in s 193(6) to its principal office include references to its principal office within the United Kingdom (if any): s 193(7). For these purposes, 'notification' includes notice; and references in s 193 to sending a document to a person include references to making an application to him: s 193(8). Section 193 has effect subject to s 194: s 193(9).

Where s 193 authorises the giving or sending of a notification or other document by its delivery to a particular person ('the recipient'), and the notification or other document is transmitted to the recipient by means of an electronic communications network, or by other means but in a form that nevertheless requires the use of apparatus by the recipient to render it intelligible, the transmission has effect for the purposes of the Energy Act 2004 as a delivery of the notification or other document to the recipient, but only if the requirements imposed by or under s 194 are complied with: s 194(1), (2). Where the recipient is a person other than the Nuclear Decommissioning Authority ('the NDA'), then the recipient, or the person on whose behalf the recipient receives the notification or other document, must have indicated to the person making the transmission the recipient's willingness to receive notifications or documents transmitted in the form and manner used: s 194(5). An indication to any person for the purposes of s 194(5): (i) must be given to that person in such manner as he may require; (ii) may be a general indication or one that is limited to notifications or documents of a particular description; (iii) must state the address to be used and must be accompanied by such other information as that person requires for the making of the transmission; and (iv) may be modified or withdrawn at any time by a notice given to that person in such manner as he may require: s 194(6). Section 193(8) applies for these purposes as it applies for the purposes of s 193: s 194(8). As to the NDA see PARA 1394 et seq post; and as to delivery under s 194 by or to the NDA see s 194(3), (4), (6); and PARA 1591 post. For these purposes, 'electronic communications network' has the same meaning as in the Communications Act 2003 (see TELECOMMUNICATIONS vol 97 (2010) PARA 60): Energy Act 2004 s 196(1).

The Secretary of State may, by order, make provision specifying, for the purposes of any enactment or subordinate legislation contained in or made under the Energy Act 2004, the manner of determining (A) the times at which things done under that enactment or subordinate legislation by means of electronic communications networks are done; and (B) the places at which such things are so done, and at which things transmitted by means of such networks are received: s 195(1). The provision so made may include provision as to the country or territory in which an electronic address is to be treated as located: s 195(2). An order made by the Secretary of State may also make provision about the manner of proving in any legal proceedings (aa) that something done by means of an electronic communications network satisfies the requirements of an enactment or subordinate legislation contained in or made under the Energy Act 2004 for the doing of that thing; and (bb) the matters mentioned in heads (A)-(B) supra: s 195(3). Such an order may provide for such presumptions to apply (whether conclusive or not) as the Secretary of State considers appropriate: s 195(4). GAS AND ELECTRICITY INDUSTRIES; IN GENERAL/(5) APPEALS FROM GEMA DECISIONS/(ii) Procedure on Appeals/740. Determination of appeals.

740. Determination of appeals.

The following provisions apply to every appeal brought¹ under the relevant statutory provision². In determining the appeal the Competition Commission³ must have regard, to the same extent as is required of the Gas and Electricity Markets Authority ('GEMA')⁴, to the matters to which GEMA must have regard:

- 730 (1) in the carrying out of its principal objectives under the specified provision of the Gas Act 1986⁵ and its principal objectives and general duties under the specified provision of the Electricity Act 1989⁶;
- 731 (2) in the performance of its duties under the provisions mentioned in head (1) above; and
- 732 (3) in the performance of its duties under the provisions of those 1986 and 1989 Acts⁷ relating to environmental and health and safety considerations⁸.

The Commission may, in determining the appeal, have regard to any matter to which GEMA was not able to have regard in the case of the decision appealed against⁹; but it must not, in the exercise of that power, have regard to any matter to which GEMA would not have been entitled to have regard in that case had it had the opportunity of doing so¹⁰.

The Commission may allow the appeal only if it is satisfied that the decision appealed against was wrong on one or more of the following grounds:

- 733 (a) that GEMA failed properly to have regard to the matters mentioned in heads (1) to (3) above;
- 734 (b) that GEMA failed properly to have regard to the purposes for which the relevant condition¹¹ has effect;
- 735 (c) that GEMA failed to give the appropriate weight to one or more of those matters or purposes;
- 736 (d) that the decision was based, wholly or partly, on an error of fact;
- 737 (e) that the decision was wrong in law¹².

Where the Commission does not allow the appeal, it must confirm the decision appealed against¹³. Where it allows the appeal, it must do one or more of the following:

- 738 (i) quash the decision appealed against;
- 739 (ii) remit the matter to GEMA for reconsideration and determination in accordance with the directions given by the Commission;
- 740 (iii) where it quashes the refusal of a consent¹⁴, give directions to GEMA, and to such other persons as it considers appropriate, for securing that the relevant condition has effect as if the consent had been given¹⁵.

A person to whom a direction is given under the above provision must comply with it; and such a direction given to a person other than GEMA is enforceable as if it were an order of the High Court¹⁶; but a person may not be directed under that provision to do anything that he would not have power to do apart from the direction¹⁷.

The decision of the Commission on the appeal:

- 741 (A) must be contained in an order made by the Commission;
- 742 (B) must set out the reasons for the decision;
- 743 (C) takes effect at the time specified in the order or determined in accordance with provision set out in that order;
- 744 (D) must be notified by the Commission to the persons who were parties¹⁸ to the appeal; and
- 745 (E) must be published by the Commission in such manner as it considers appropriate for bringing it to the attention of other persons likely to be affected by it¹⁹.

The Commission may, however, exclude from what it publishes under head (E) above any information which it is satisfied is commercial information the disclosure of which would, or might, significantly harm the legitimate business interests of an undertaking to which it relates²⁰ or information relating to the private affairs of an individual the disclosure of which would, or might, in its opinion, significantly harm his interests²¹.

741. Costs.

A group¹ that determines an appeal² must make an order requiring the payment to the Competition Commission³ of the costs incurred by the Commission in connection with the appeal⁴. Where the appeal is allowed, the order must require those costs to be paid by the Gas and Electricity Markets Authority ('GEMA')⁵; and where the appeal is dismissed, the order must require those costs to be paid by the appellant⁶ but, if there is more than one appellant, the order:

746 (1) may provide that only such one or more of the appellants as may be specified in the order is to be liable for the costs; and 747 (2) may determine the proportions in which the appellants so specified are to be so liable⁷.

The group that determines an appeal may also make such order as it thinks fit for requiring a party⁸ to the appeal to make payments to another in respect of costs incurred by that other party in connection with the appeal⁹.

A person who is required by an order under these provisions to pay a sum to another person must comply with the order before the end of the period of 28 days¹⁰ beginning with the day after the making of the order¹¹. Sums required to be paid by such an order but not paid within that 28-day period are to bear interest at such rate as may be determined in accordance with provision contained in the order¹².

(iii) Funding of Appeals and References

742. Modifications of standard conditions for funding appeals and references.

The Energy Act 2004 conferred powers on the Secretary of State¹, which were to be exercised within the three months beginning with 1 November 2005², in the following terms³. Where the Secretary of State considered it appropriate to do so:

- 748 (1) in connection with the provision made in relation to appeals against certain decisions by the Gas and Electricity Markets Authority ('GEMA')⁴; or
- 749 (2) in relation to modification references⁵ to the Competition Commission⁶, he might make licence modifications⁷ as follows, namely:

- 750 (a) modifications of so much of the standard conditions of gas or electricity licences⁸ of any type as related to licence charges⁹; and
- 751 (b) such incidental, consequential or transitional modifications in connection with modifications falling within head (a) above as he thought fit¹⁰.

Before making a modification under the above provisions that applied to licences of any type, the Secretary of State was to consult the holders of the licences and such other persons as he considered appropriate¹¹.

The Secretary of State must publish every modification so made by him¹² in such manner as he considers appropriate¹³.

Where the Secretary of State has made modifications under these provisions of the standard conditions of licences of any type, GEMA must:

- 752 (i) make, as nearly as may be, the same modifications of those standard conditions for the purposes of their incorporation in licences of that type granted after that time; and
- 753 (ii) publish the modifications in such manner as it considers appropriate¹⁴.

Where the standard conditions of gas or electricity licences contain provision authorising the imposition of licence charges in respect of costs incurred by the Commission in connection with a reference mentioned in head (2) above, the Commission has power, on such a reference, to give directions to GEMA about the manner in which the Competition Commission's costs in connection with that reference are to be recovered by means of such charges, and GEMA must comply with any such directions¹⁵.

(6) SPECIAL ADMINISTRATION REGIME FOR ENERGY LICENSEES

(i) Energy Administration Orders

743. Energy administration orders; in general.

For the relevant statutory purposes¹, 'energy administration order' means an order which:

- 754 (1) is made by the court² in relation to a protected energy company³; and
- 755 (2) directs that, while the order is in force, the affairs, business⁴ and property⁵ of the company are to be managed by a person appointed by the court⁶.

The person appointed in relation to a company for the purposes of an energy administration order is referred to as the energy administrator of the company⁷. The energy administrator of a company must manage its affairs, business and property, and exercise and perform all his powers and duties as such, so as to achieve the statutory⁸ objective⁹.

The power to modify or apply enactments conferred on the Secretary of State¹⁰ by each of the specified provisions of the Enterprise Act 2002¹¹ includes power to make such consequential modifications¹² of the provisions of the Energy Act 2004 relating to energy administration¹³ as he considers appropriate in connection with any other provision made under that power¹⁴.

1 le for the purposes of the Energy Act 2004 Pt 3 Ch 3 (ss 154-171): see PARA 744 et seq post.

2 For these purposes, 'court' (1) in relation to a company other than a Northern Irish joint stock company, means the court having jurisdiction to wind up the company; and (2) in relation to a Northern Irish joint stock company, means the court that would have jurisdiction to wind it up if it were an unregistered company within the meaning of the Insolvency Act 1986 Pt V (ss 220-229) (as amended) (see COMPANY AND PARTNERSHIP INSOLVENCY vol 7(4) (2004 Reissue) PARA 1147 et seq): Energy Act 2004 s 171(1). 'Company' means (a) a company formed and registered under the Companies Act 1985 or the Companies Act 2006; (b) an existing company; or (c) an unregistered company: Energy Act 2004 s 171(1); Companies Act 2006 s 1297(5). 'Existing company' has the same meaning as in the Companies Act 1985 (see s 735(1) (prospectively repealed by the Companies Act 2006 s 1295, Sch 16, as from a day to be appointed under s 1300(2); at the date at which this title states the law, no such day had been appointed); and COMPANIES vol 14 (2009) PARA 14); and 'Northern Irish joint stock company' means a company registered in Northern Ireland under the Joint Stock Companies Acts (as defined in the Companies Act 1985 s 735(3) (prospectively repealed by the Companies Act 2006 s 1295, Sch 16, as from a day to be appointed under s 1300(2); at the date at which this title states the law, no such day had been appointed) (see COMPANIES vol 14 (2009) PARA 14): Energy Act 2004 s 171(8). 'Unregistered company' means (i) an unregistered company within the meaning of the Insolvency Act 1986 Pt V (as amended); or (ii) a Northern Irish joint stock company: Energy Act 2004 s 171(1).

3 For these purposes, 'protected energy company' means a company which is the holder of a relevant licence; and 'relevant licence' means (1) a licence granted under the Electricity Act 1989 s 6(1)(b) or (c) (as substituted and amended) (transmission and distribution licences for electricity: see PARA 1065 post); or (2) a licence granted under the Gas Act 1986 s 7 (as substituted and amended) (licensing of gas transporters: see PARA 805 post): Energy Act 2004 ss 154(5), 171(1).

4 Except in so far as the context otherwise requires, 'business' includes a trade or profession: Insolvency Act 1986 s 436 (definition applied by the Energy Act 2004 s 171(1)).

5 Except in so far as the context otherwise requires, 'property' includes money, goods, things in action, land and every description of property wherever situated and also obligations and every description of interest, whether present or future or vested or contingent, arising out of, or incidental to, property: Insolvency Act 1986 s 436 (definition applied by the Energy Act 2004 s 171(1)). In relation to an energy administration order applying to a non-GB company, references in s 154 to the affairs, business and property of the company are references only to its affairs and business so far as carried on in Great Britain and to its property in Great Britain: s 154(4). 'Non-GB company' means an unregistered company incorporated outside Great Britain: s 171(1). For the meaning of 'Great Britain' see PARA 602 note 7 ante.

6 Ibid ss 154(1), 171(1).

7 Ibid ss 154(2), 171(1). For these purposes, references to the energy administrator of a company (1) include references to a person appointed under the Insolvency 1986 Sch B1 para 91 (as added) or Sch B1 para 103 (as added), as applied by the Energy Act 2004 Sch 20 Pt 1, to be the energy administrator of that company; and (2) where two or more persons are appointed to be the energy administrator of that company, are to be construed in accordance with the provision made under s 158(5) (see PARA 747 post): s 171(2).

743 Energy administration orders; in general

NOTES 2, 5--Definitions of 'court', 'company', 'non-GB company' and 'unregistered company' amended: SI 2009/1941.

Halsbury's Laws of England/FUEL AND ENERGY (VOLUME 19(1) (2007 REISSUE) PARAS 601-775; VOLUME 19(2) (2007 REISSUE) PARAS 776-1328); VOLUME 19(3) (2007 REISSUE) PARAS 1329-1927)/2. GAS AND ELECTRICITY INDUSTRIES; IN GENERAL/(6) SPECIAL ADMINISTRATION REGIME FOR ENERGY LICENSEES/(i) Energy Administration Orders/744. Objective of an energy administration.

744. Objective of an energy administration.

The objective of an energy administration is to secure:

- 756 (1) that the company's system¹ is and continues to be maintained and developed as an efficient and economical system²; and
- 757 (2) that it becomes unnecessary, by one or both of the following means, for the energy administration order³ to remain in force for that purpose⁴.

Those means are:

- 758 (a) the rescue as a going concern of the company subject to the energy administration order; and
- 759 (b) transfers falling within the following provision, namely a transfer as a going concern either to another company, or, as respects different parts of the undertaking of the company subject to the energy administration order, to two or more different companies, of so much of that undertaking as it is appropriate to transfer for the purpose of achieving the objective of the energy administration⁵.

The means by which such transfers may be effected include, in particular:

- 760 (i) a transfer of the undertaking of the company subject to the energy administration order, or of a part of its undertaking, to a wholly-owned subsidiary⁶ of that company; and
- 761 (ii) a transfer to a company of securities⁷ of a wholly-owned subsidiary to which there has been a transfer falling within head (i) above⁸.

The objective of an energy administration may be achieved by such transfers to the extent only that:

- 762 (A) the rescue as a going concern of the company subject to the energy administration order is not reasonably practicable or is not reasonably practicable without such transfers;
- 763 (B) the rescue of that company as a going concern will not achieve that objective or will not do so without such transfers;
- 764 (C) such transfers would produce a result for the company's creditors as a whole that is better than the result that would be produced without them; or
- 765 (D) such transfers would, without prejudicing the interests of those creditors as a whole, produce a result for the company's members⁹ as a whole that is better than the result that would be produced without them¹⁰.

¹ For these purposes, 'the company's system', in relation to an energy administration, means (1) the system of electricity distribution or of electricity transmission; or (2) the pipeline system for the conveyance of gas, which the company subject to the energy administration order has been maintaining as the holder of a relevant licence: Energy Act 2004 s 155(6). For the meaning of 'company' see PARA 743 note 2 ante; and for the meaning of 'relevant licence' see PARA 743 note 3 ante.

2 For these purposes, 'efficient and economical', in relation to a system for electricity distribution or electricity transmission, includes co-ordinated: ibid s 155(7).

3 For the meaning of 'energy administration order' see PARA 743 ante.

4 Energy Act 2004 ss 155(1), 171(1).

5 Ibid s 155(2), (3).

6 'Subsidiary' and 'wholly-owned subsidiary' have the meanings given by the Companies Act 1985 s 736 (as substituted; prospectively repealed by the Companies Act 2006 s 1295, Sch 16, and replaced by s 1159, as from a day to be appointed under s 1300(2); at the date at which this title states the law, no such day had been appointed) (see COMPANIES vol 14 (2009) PARA 25): Energy Act 2004 s 196(1).

7 'Securities', in relation to a body corporate, includes shares, debentures, debenture stock, bonds and other securities of the body corporate, whether or not constituting a charge on the assets of the body corporate; and 'shares' includes stock: ibid s 196(1).

8 Ibid s 155(4).

9 For these purposes, a person who is not a member of a company but to whom shares in the company have been transferred, or transmitted by operation of law, is to be regarded as a member of the company, and references to a member or members are to be read accordingly: Insolvency Act 1986 s 250 (applied by the Energy Act 2004 s 171(1)).

745. Applications for energy administration orders.

An application for an energy administration order¹ in relation to a company² may be made only by the Secretary of State³ or, with the consent of the Secretary of State, by the Gas and Electricity Markets Authority ('GEMA')⁴.

The energy administration application must be in the prescribed form⁵ and an affidavit⁶ must be prepared and sworn, with a view to its being filed with the court⁷ in support of the application⁸. The application must state by whom it is made and the applicant's address for service⁹; and where it is made by GEMA, the application must contain a statement that it is made with the consent of the Secretary of State¹⁰. - 768 (a) the applicant's belief that the protected energy company is, or is likely to be, unable to pay its debts¹⁶;
- 769 (b) that the Secretary of State has certified that it would be appropriate for him to petition for the winding up of the protected energy company¹⁷ on grounds of public interest¹⁸.

The notice must be given as soon as reasonably practicable after the making of the application²².

As soon as reasonably practicable after filing the application, the applicant must give notice of its being made to:

- 774 (A) any enforcement officer²³ or other officer who to the applicant's knowledge is charged with an execution or other legal process against the protected energy company or its property; and
- 775 (B) any person who to the applicant's knowledge has distrained against the protected energy company or its property²⁴.

19 For these purposes, 'administrative receiver' means (1) an administrative receiver within the meaning given by the Insolvency Act 1986 s 251 for the purposes of Pts I-VII (ss 1-251) (as amended) (see COMPANIES vol 15 (2009) PARA 1337); or (2) a person whose functions in relation to a non-GB company (a) are equivalent to those of an administrative receiver; and (b) relate only to the affairs and business of the company so far as carried on in Great Britain and to its property in Great Britain: Energy Act 2004 s 156(4). For the meaning of 'non-GB company' see PARA 743 note 5 ante; for the meaning of 'business' see PARA 743 note 4 ante; and for the meaning of 'Great Britain' see PARA 602 note 7 ante.

21 Ibid s 156(2). 'Energy administration rules' means rules made under the Insolvency Act 1986 s 411 (as amended) by virtue of the Energy Act 2004 s 159(3): s 171(1). The power to make rules conferred by the Insolvency Act 1986 s 411 (as amended) (company insolvency rules: see COMPANY AND PARTNERSHIP INSOLVENCY vol 7(4) (2004 Reissue) PARA 1041) applies for the purpose of giving effect to the Energy Act 2004 Pt 3 Ch 3 as it applies for the purpose of giving effect to the Insolvency Act 1986 Pts I-VII (as amended) and, accordingly, as if references in s 411 (as amended) to Pts I-VII (as amended) included references to the Energy Act 2004 Pt 3 Ch 3: s 159(3). In the exercise of that power to make rules, the Secretary of State has made the Energy Administration Rules 2005, SI 2005/2483, which came into force on 1 October 2005 (r 1) and which apply in relation to protected energy companies which the courts in England and Wales have jurisdiction to wind up (r 3). They apply to energy administration proceedings commenced on or after 1 October 2005, and nothing in the Insolvency Rules 1986, SI 1986/1925 (as amended) (see generally COMPANY AND PARTNERSHIP INSOLVENCY) applies to such proceedings commenced on or after that date: Energy Administration Rules 2005, SI 2005/2483, r 187. For miscellaneous and general provisions made by the 2005 Rules see Pt 14 (rr 153-175).

Notification for the purposes of the Energy Act 2004 s 156(2) must be by way of service in accordance with the Energy Administration Rules 2005, SI 2005/2483, r 10, verified in accordance with r 11: r 8(2). In addition to those persons referred to in the Energy Act 2004 s 156(2), the application must be served: (1) if an administrative receiver has been appointed, on him; (2) if there is pending an administration application under the Insolvency Act 1986 Sch B1 (as added), without the modifications made by the Energy Act 2004 Sch 20, on the applicant; (3) if there is pending a petition for the winding up of the protected energy company, on the petitioner (and also on the provisional liquidator, if any); (4) on any creditor who has served notice in accordance with the Energy Act 2004 s 164 (see PARA 760 post) of his intention to enforce his security over property of the protected energy company; (5) on the person proposed as energy administrator; (6) on the protected energy company; (7) if the applicant is the Secretary of State, on GEMA; (8) if the applicant is GEMA, on the Secretary of State; (9) if a supervisor of a voluntary arrangement under the Insolvency Act 1986 Pt I (ss 1-7B) (as amended) (see COMPANY AND PARTNERSHIP INSOLVENCY vol 7(3) (2004 Reissue) PARA 71 et seq) has been appointed, on him: Energy Administration Rules 2005, SI 2005/2483, r 8(3). In r 8(2), (3), references to the application are to a copy of the application issued by the court under r 7(2) together with the affidavit in support of it and the documents attached to the application: r 8(1).

Service of the application in accordance with r 8 must be effected by the applicant, or the applicant's solicitor, or by a person instructed by the applicant or the applicant's solicitor, not less than two days before the date fixed for the hearing: r 10(1). Service must be effected as follows: (a) on the protected energy company (subject to r 10(3)), by delivering the documents to its registered office; (b) on any other person (subject to r 10(4)), by delivering the documents to his proper address; (c) in either case, in such other manner as the court may direct: r 10(2). If delivery to a protected energy company's registered office is not practicable or if the protected energy company is an unregistered company, service may be effected by delivery to its last known principal place of business in England and Wales: r 10(3). Subject to r 10(5), for the purposes of head (2) supra a person's proper address is any which he has previously notified as his address for service; but if he has not notified any such address, service may be effected by delivery to his usual or last known address: r 10(4). In the case of a person who: (i) is an authorised deposit-taker or a former authorised deposit-taker; (ii) has appointed, or is or may be entitled to appoint, an administrative receiver of the protected energy company, or is, or may be entitled to appoint an administrator of the protected energy company under the Insolvency Act 1986 Sch B1 para 14 (as added) without the modifications made by the Energy Act 2004 Sch 20; and (iii) has not notified an address for service, the proper address is the address of an office of that person where, to the knowledge of the applicant, the protected energy company maintains a bank account or, where no such office is known to the applicant, the registered office of that person, or, if there is no such office, his usual or last known address: r 10(5). Delivery of the documents to any place or address may be made by leaving them there, or sending them by first class post: r 10(6). 'Authorised deposit-taker' means a person with permission under the Financial Services and Markets Act 2000 Pt IV (ss 40-55) to accept deposits: Energy Administration Rules 2005, SI 2005/2483, r 186(1). 'Former authorised deposit-taker' means a person who is not an authorised deposit-taker, was formerly an authorised institution under the Banking Act 1987 (repealed), or a recognised bank or a licensed institution under the Banking Act 1979 (repealed), and continues to have liability in respect of any deposit for which it had a liability at a time when it was an authorised institution, recognised bank or licensed institution: Energy Administration Rules 2005, SI 2005/2483, r 186(2). Rule 186(1), (2) must be read with the Financial Services and Markets Act 2000 s 22, any relevant order under s 22, and Sch 22: Energy Administration Rules 2005, SI 2005/2483, r 186(3).

Service of the application must be verified by an affidavit of service in the form set out in Sch 1, Form EA3, specifying the date on which, and the manner in which, service was effected: r 11(1). The affidavit of service, with a sealed copy of the application exhibited to it, must be filed with the court as soon as reasonably practicable after service, and in any event not less than one day before the hearing of the application: r 11(2).

22 Energy Act 2004 s 156(3).

23 'Enforcement officer' means an individual who is authorised to act as an enforcement officer under the Courts Act 2003: Energy Administration Rules 2005, SI 2005/2483, r 2(1).

746. The hearing; powers of the court.

At the hearing of the energy administration application, any of the following may appear or be represented:

- 776 (1) the Secretary of State¹;
- 777 (2) the Gas and Electricity Markets Authority ('GEMA')²;
- 778 (3) the protected energy company³;
- 779 (4) one or more of the directors;
- 780 (5) if an administrative receiver⁴ has been appointed, that person;
- 781 (6) any person who has presented a petition for the winding up of the protected energy company;
- 782 (7) the person proposed for appointment as energy administrator⁵;
- 783 (8) any person who is the holder of a qualifying floating charge⁶;
- 784 (9) any person who has applied to the court⁷ for an administration order under the Insolvency Act 1986⁸;
- 785 (10) any creditor who has served notice⁹ of his intention to enforce his security over the protected energy company's property;
- 786 (11) any supervisor of a voluntary arrangement under Part I of the 1986 Act¹⁰;
- 787 (12) with the permission of the court, any other person who appears to have an interest justifying his appearance¹¹.

On hearing an application for an energy administration order¹², the court¹³ has the following powers:

- 788 (a) it may make the order¹⁴;
- 789 (b) it may dismiss the application;
- 790 (c) it may adjourn the hearing conditionally or unconditionally;
- 791 (d) it may make an interim order¹⁵;
- 792 (e) it may treat the application as a winding-up petition and make any order the court could make under the relevant provision of the Insolvency Act 1986¹⁶;
- 793 (f) it may make any other order which the court thinks appropriate¹⁷.

The court may, however, make an energy administration order in relation to a company only if it is satisfied:

- 794 (i) that the company is unable to pay its debts¹⁸;
- 795 (ii) that it is likely to be unable to pay its debts; or
- 796 (iii) that, on a petition by the Secretary of State for winding up of the company in the public interest¹⁹, it would be just and equitable, disregarding the objective of the energy administration²⁰, to wind up the company in the public interest²¹; and the court must not make an energy administration order in relation to a company on the ground set out in head (iii) above unless the Secretary of State has certified to the court that the case is one in which he considers, disregarding the objective of the energy administration, that it would be appropriate for him to petition²² for such winding up²³.

An energy administration order comes into force at the time appointed by the court or, if no time is so appointed, when the order is made²⁴. It must be in the prescribed form²⁵. As soon as reasonably practicable, the court must send two sealed copies of the order to the person who made the application²⁶ and the applicant must send a sealed copy of the order as soon as reasonably practicable to the person appointed as energy administrator²⁷. If the court makes an interim order under head (d) above or if it makes any other order under head (f) above, it must give directions as to the persons to whom, and how, notice of that order is to be given²⁸.

If the court makes an energy administration order, the costs of the applicant, and of any person whose costs are allowed by the court, are payable as an expense of the energy administration²⁹.

GAS AND ELECTRICITY INDUSTRIES; IN GENERAL/(6) SPECIAL ADMINISTRATION REGIME FOR ENERGY LICENSEES/(i) Energy Administration Orders/747. Energy administrators.

747. Energy administrators.

The energy administrator¹ of a company² is an officer of the court³. In exercising and performing his powers and duties in relation to the company, he is the company's agent⁴.

A person is not to be the energy administrator of a company unless he is a person qualified to act as an insolvency practitioner⁵ in relation to the company⁶. Where the court makes an appointment in a case in which two or more persons will be the energy administrator of a company after the appointment, the appointment must set out:

- 797 (1) which, if any, of the powers and duties of an energy administrator are to be exercisable or performed only by those persons acting jointly;
- 798 (2) the circumstances, if any, in which powers and duties of an energy administrator are to be exercisable, or may be performed, by one of the persons appointed to be the energy administrator, or by particular appointees, acting alone; and
- 799 (3) the circumstances, if any, in which things done in relation to one of the persons appointed to be the energy administrator, or in relation to particular appointees, are to be treated as done in relation to all of them⁷.

The management by the energy administrator of a company of any affairs, business⁸ or property⁹ of the company must be carried out for the purpose of achieving the objective of the energy administration¹⁰ as quickly and as efficiently as is reasonably practicable¹¹. The energy administrator of a company must exercise and perform his powers and duties in the manner which, so far as it is consistent with the objective of the energy administration to do so, best protects:

- 800 (a) the interests of the creditors of the company as a whole; and
- 801 (b) subject to those interests, the interests of the members¹² of the company as a whole¹³.

The energy administrator is entitled to receive remuneration for his services as such¹⁴. The remuneration must be fixed by reference to the time properly given by the insolvency practitioner (as energy administrator) and his staff in attending to matters arising in the energy administration¹⁵. It must be fixed by the court¹⁶ and the energy administrator must make an application to court accordingly¹⁷. He must give at least 14 days' notice of his application to the following, who may appear or be represented:

- 802 (i) the Secretary of State¹⁸;
- 803 (ii) the Gas and Electricity Markets Authority ('GEMA')¹⁹; and
- 804 (iii) the creditors of the protected energy company²⁰.

In fixing the remuneration, the court must have regard to the following matters:

- 805 (A) the complexity (or otherwise) of the case;

- 806 (b) any respects in which, in connection with the protected energy company's affairs, there falls on the energy administrator any responsibility of an exceptional kind or degree;
- 807 (c) the effectiveness with which the energy administrator appears to be carrying out, or to have carried out, his duties as such; and
- 808 (d) the value and nature of the property with which he has to deal²¹.

Where there are joint energy administrators, it is for them to agree between themselves as to how the remuneration payable should be apportioned. Any dispute arising between them may be referred to the court for settlement by order²².

If the energy administrator is a solicitor and employs his own firm, or any partner in it, to act on behalf of the protected energy company, profit costs must not be paid unless this is authorised by the court²³.

748. Transfer schemes; in general.

Where the court¹ has made an energy administration order² in relation to a company³ (the 'old energy company') and it is proposed that a transfer to achieve the objective of the energy administration⁴ be made to another company (the 'new energy company'), the provisions set out in Schedule 21 to the Energy Act 2004⁵ apply⁶. It is for the energy administrator⁷, while the energy administration order is in force, to act on behalf of the old energy company in the doing of anything that it is authorised or required to do by or under those provisions⁸.

GAS AND ELECTRICITY INDUSTRIES; IN GENERAL/(6) SPECIAL ADMINISTRATION REGIME FOR ENERGY LICENSEES/(ii) Transfer Schemes to Achieve the Objective of an Energy Administration/749. Making and effect of energy transfer schemes.

749. Making and effect of energy transfer schemes.

The old energy company¹ may, with the consent of the new energy company², and for the purpose of giving effect to the proposed transfer, make a scheme³ for the transfer of property⁴, rights and liabilities from the old energy company to the new energy company (an 'energy transfer scheme')⁵. Such a scheme may be made only at a time when the energy administration order⁶ is in force in relation to the old energy company⁷.

An energy transfer scheme may set out the property, rights and liabilities to be transferred in one or more of the following ways:

- 809 (1) by specifying or describing them in particular;
- 810 (2) by identifying them generally by reference to, or to a specified part of, the undertaking of the old energy company; or
- 811 (3) by specifying the manner in which they are to be determined⁸.

An energy transfer scheme takes effect⁹ at the time appointed by the court¹⁰; but the court must not appoint a time for a scheme to take effect unless that scheme has been approved by the Secretary of State¹¹. The Secretary of State may modify¹² an energy transfer scheme before approving it, but only modifications to which both the old energy company and the new energy company have consented may be made¹³.

In deciding whether to approve an energy transfer scheme, the Secretary of State must have regard, in particular, to the public interest and to the effect the scheme is likely to have, if any, upon the interests of third parties¹⁴. Before approving an energy transfer scheme, the Secretary of State must consult the Gas and Electricity Markets Authority ('GEMA')¹⁵.

The old energy company and the new energy company each have a duty to provide the Secretary of State with all information and other assistance that he may reasonably require for the purposes of, or in connection with, the exercise of the powers conferred on him by the above provisions¹⁶.

For these purposes, 'the transferee' (a) in relation to property, rights or liabilities transferred by an energy transfer scheme, means the new energy company; and (b) in relation to interests, rights or liabilities created by such a scheme, means the person in whose favour, or in relation to whom, they are created: Sch 21 para 8(2).

GAS AND ELECTRICITY INDUSTRIES; IN GENERAL/(6) SPECIAL ADMINISTRATION REGIME FOR ENERGY LICENSEES/(ii) Transfer Schemes to Achieve the Objective of an Energy Administration/750. Provision that may be made by a scheme; in general.

750. Provision that may be made by a scheme; in general.

An energy transfer scheme¹ may contain provision:

- 812 (1) for the creation, in favour of the old energy company² or the new energy company³, of an interest or right in or in relation to property⁴ transferred in accordance with the scheme;
- 813 (2) for giving effect to a transfer to the new energy company by the creation, in favour of that company, of an interest or right in or in relation to property retained by the old energy company;
- 814 (3) for the creation of new rights and liabilities, including rights of indemnity and duties to indemnify, as between the old energy company and the new energy company;
- 815 (4) in connection with any provision made under heads (1) to (3) above, provision making incidental provision as to the interests, rights and liabilities of other persons with respect to the property, rights and liabilities to which the scheme relates⁵.

The property, rights and liabilities of the old energy company that may be transferred in accordance with an energy transfer scheme include:

- 816 (a) property, rights and liabilities that would not otherwise be capable of being transferred or assigned by the old energy company;
- 817 (b) property acquired, and rights and liabilities arising, in the period after the making of the scheme but before it takes effect;
- 818 (c) rights and liabilities arising after it takes effect in respect of matters occurring before it takes effect;
- 819 (d) property situated anywhere in Great Britain⁶ or elsewhere⁷;
- 820 (e) rights and liabilities under the law of a part of Great Britain or of a place outside Great Britain⁸;
- 821 (f) rights and liabilities under an enactment⁹, Community instrument or subordinate legislation¹⁰.

The transfers to which effect may be given by an energy transfer scheme include transfers of interests and rights that are to take effect in accordance with the scheme as if there were no such requirement to obtain a person's consent or concurrence, no such liability in respect of a contravention of any other requirement, and no such interference with any interest or right, as there would be, in the case of a transaction apart from the Energy Act 2004, by reason of a provision¹¹ that has effect, whether under an enactment or agreement or otherwise, in relation to the terms on which the old energy company is entitled, or subject, to anything to which the transfer relates¹².

Where a person would otherwise be entitled, in consequence of anything done or likely to be done by or under the 2004 Act in connection with an energy transfer scheme, to terminate, modify, acquire or claim an interest or right, or to treat an interest or right as modified or terminated, then that entitlement is not enforceable in relation to that interest or right until after the transfer of the interest or right by the scheme, and is then enforceable in relation to the interest or right only in so far as the scheme contains provision for the interest or right to be transferred subject to whatever confers that entitlement¹³.

An energy transfer scheme may make incidental, supplemental, consequential and transitional provision in connection with the other provisions of the scheme¹⁴; and such provision may include different provision for different cases or different purposes¹⁵. In particular, an energy transfer scheme may make provision, in relation to a provision of the scheme:

- 822 (i) for the new energy company to be treated as the same person in law as the old energy company;
- 823 (ii) for agreements made, transactions effected or other things done by or in relation to the old energy company to be treated, so far as may be necessary for the purposes of or in connection with a transfer in accordance with the scheme¹⁶, as made, effected or done by or in relation to the new energy company;
- 824 (iii) for references in an agreement, instrument or other document¹⁷ to the old energy company or to an employee or office holder with the old energy company to have effect, so far as may be necessary for the purposes of or in connection with a transfer in accordance with the scheme, with such modifications¹⁸ as are specified in the scheme¹⁹;
- 825 (iv) that the effect of any transfer in accordance with the scheme in relation to contracts of employment with the old energy company is not to terminate any of those contracts but is to be that periods of employment with that company are to count for all purposes as periods of employment with the new energy company;
- 826 (v) for proceedings commenced by or against the old energy company to be continued by or against the new energy company²⁰.

An energy transfer scheme may make provision for disputes as to the effect of the scheme between the old energy company and the new energy company to be referred to such arbitration as may be specified in or determined under the scheme²¹.

Where a person is entitled, in consequence of an energy transfer scheme, to possession of a document relating in part to the title to land or other property in England and Wales, or to the management of such land or other property, the scheme may provide for that person to be treated as having given another person an acknowledgment in writing of the right of that other person to production of the document and to delivery of copies of it²².

5 Energy Act 2004 s 159(2), Sch 21 para 4(1).

6 For the meaning of 'Great Britain' see PARA 602 note 7 ante.

7 Where, however, the old energy company is a non-GB company, the property, rights and liabilities of that company which may be transferred by an energy transfer scheme, or in relation to which interests, rights or liabilities may be created by such a scheme, are confined to (1) property of the old energy company in Great Britain; (2) rights and liabilities arising in relation to any such property; and (3) rights and liabilities arising in connection with the affairs and business of the company so far as carried on in Great Britain: Energy Act 2004 Sch 21 para 10. For the meaning of 'non-GB company' see PARA 743 note 5 ante; and for the meaning of 'business' see PARA 743 note 4 ante. As to foreign property etc of other companies see note 8 infra.

8 Where there is a transfer in accordance with an energy transfer scheme of any foreign property, or a foreign right or liability, the old energy company and the new energy company must each take all requisite steps to secure that the vesting of the foreign property, right or liability in the new energy company is effective under the relevant foreign law: ibid Sch 21 para 11(1). Until the vesting of the foreign property, right or liability in the new energy company in accordance with the energy transfer scheme is effective under the relevant foreign law, the old energy company must either hold the property or right for the benefit of the new energy company or discharge the liability on behalf of the new energy company: Sch 21 para 11(2). The old energy company must comply with any directions given to it by the new energy company in relation to the performance of the obligations under Sch 21 para 11(1), (2) of the old energy company (Sch 21 para 11(3)); but nothing in Sch 21 para 11(1)-(3) prejudices the effect under the law of a part of Great Britain of the vesting of a foreign property, right or liability in the new energy company in accordance with an energy transfer scheme (Sch 21 para 11(4)). Where (1) any foreign property, right or liability is acquired or incurred in respect of any other property, right or liability by a company; and (2) by virtue of Sch 21 para 11, the company holds the other property or right for the benefit of the new energy company or is required to discharge the liability on behalf of the new energy company, the property, right or liability acquired or incurred immediately becomes the property, right or liability of the new energy company: Sch 21 para 11(5). The provisions of Sch 21 para 11(1)-(5) have effect in relation to foreign property, rights or liabilities transferred to the new energy company under Sch 21 para 11(5) as they have effect in the case of property, rights and liabilities transferred in accordance with an energy transfer scheme: Sch 21 para 11(6). References for these purposes to foreign property, or to a foreign right or liability, are references to any property, right or liability as respects which an issue arising in any proceedings would be determined (in accordance with the rules of private international law) by reference to the law of a country or territory outside Great Britain: Sch 21 para 11(7).

Expenses incurred under Sch 21 para 11 by a company as the company from which anything is transferred are to be met by the new energy company (Sch 21 para 11(8)); and an obligation imposed under Sch 21 para 11 in relation to property, rights or liabilities is enforceable as if contained in a contract between the old energy company and the new energy company (Sch 21 para 11(9)).

9 For these purposes, 'enactment' includes Acts of the Scottish Parliament and Northern Ireland legislation: ibid s 196(1).

10 Ibid Sch 21 para 4(2). 'Subordinate legislation' has the same meaning as in the Interpretation Act 1978 (see STATUTES vol 44(1) (Reissue) PARA 1232): Energy Act 2004 s 196(1).

11 Ie a provision falling within ibid Sch 21 para 4(4).

12 Ibid Sch 21 para 4(3), (4). Schedule 21 para 4(3), (4) applies to the creation of an interest or right by an energy transfer scheme as it applies to the transfer of an interest or right (Sch 21 para 4(8)); and Sch 21 para 4(3)-(6) has effect where shares in a subsidiary of the old energy company are transferred: (1) as if the reference in Sch 21 para 4(4) to the terms on which the old energy company is entitled or subject to anything to which the transfer relates included a reference to the terms on which the subsidiary is entitled or subject to anything immediately before the transfer takes effect; and (2) in relation to an interest or right of the subsidiary, as if the references in Sch 21 para 4(6) (see the text to note 13 infra) to the transfer of the interest or right included a reference to the transfer of the shares (Sch 21 para 4(7)).

13 Ibid Sch 21 para 4(5), (6).

14 Ibid Sch 21 para 7(1).

15 Ibid Sch 21 para 7(2).

16 For these purposes, references to a transfer in accordance with an energy transfer scheme include references to the creation in accordance with such a scheme of an interest, right or liability: ibid Sch 21 para 7(8).

17 For the meaning of 'document' see PARA 733 note 4 ante.

18 For the meaning of 'modifications' see PARA 733 note 8 ante.

19 The Energy Act 2004 Sch 21 para 7(3)(c) (see head (iii) in the text) does not apply to references in an enactment or in subordinate legislation: Sch 21 para 7(4).

20 Ibid Sch 21 para 7(3).

21 Ibid Sch 21 para 7(5).

22 Ibid Sch 21 para 7(6)(a). The Law of Property Act 1925 s 64 (production and safe custody of documents: see SALE OF LAND vol 42 (Reissue) PARA 299) has effect accordingly, and on the basis that the acknowledgment did not contain an expression of contrary intention: Energy Act 2004 Sch 21 para 7(6)(b).

GAS AND ELECTRICITY INDUSTRIES; IN GENERAL/(6) SPECIAL ADMINISTRATION REGIME FOR ENERGY LICENSEES/(ii) Transfer Schemes to Achieve the Objective of an Energy Administration/751. Provision for transfer of licences and of statutory powers and duties.

751. Provision for transfer of licences and of statutory powers and duties.

The provision that may be made by an energy transfer scheme¹ includes the transfer of a relevant licence² from the old energy company³ to the new energy company⁴; and such a transfer may relate to the whole or any part of the licence⁵. Where such a transfer relates to a part of the licence, the provision so made may include:

- 827 (1) provision apportioning responsibility between the old energy company and the new energy company in relation to the making of payments required by conditions included in the licence and ensuring compliance with any other requirements of the conditions included in the licence; and
- 828 (2) provision making incidental modifications⁶ to the terms and conditions of the licence⁷.

The provision that may be made by an energy transfer scheme also includes provision for some or all of the powers and duties conferred or imposed upon the old energy company by or under an enactment⁸, so far as those powers and duties are connected with:

- 829 (a) the undertaking of the old energy company to the extent the energy transfer scheme relates to that undertaking; or
- 830 (b) any property, rights or liabilities to be transferred in accordance with the scheme, and including, in particular, powers and duties relating to the carrying out of works or the acquisition of land, to be transferred to the new energy company or to become powers and duties that are exercisable, or must be performed, concurrently by the old energy company and the new energy company⁹. Such provision may apply to powers and duties only in so far as they are exercisable or required to be performed in the area specified or described in the provision¹⁰.

GAS AND ELECTRICITY INDUSTRIES; IN GENERAL/(6) SPECIAL ADMINISTRATION REGIME FOR ENERGY LICENSEES/(ii) Transfer Schemes to Achieve the Objective of an Energy Administration/752. Subsequent modification of scheme.

752. Subsequent modification of scheme.

The Secretary of State¹ may by notice to the old energy company² and the new energy company³ modify⁴ an energy transfer scheme⁵ after it has taken effect, but only modifications to which both the old energy company and the new energy company have consented may be made⁶. The notice must specify the time at which it is to take effect (the 'modification time')⁷.

Where a notice is so issued in relation to an energy transfer scheme, as from the modification time, the scheme is to be treated for all purposes as having taken effect, at the time appointed for the statutory purposes⁸, with the modifications made by the notice⁹. Those modifications may make:

- 831 (1) any provision that could have been included in the scheme when it took effect at the time appointed for the statutory purposes; and
- 832 (2) transitional provision in connection with provision falling within head (1) above¹⁰.

In deciding whether to modify an energy transfer scheme, the Secretary of State must have regard, in particular, to the public interest, and to the effect the modification is likely to have, if any, upon the interests of third parties¹¹. Before modifying an energy transfer scheme that has taken effect, the Secretary of State must consult the Gas and Electricity Markets Authority ('GEMA')¹².

Every reference, however, expressed, which is or includes reference to:

- 853 (1) an administrator¹ appointed by an administration order²;
- 854 (2) an administration order;
- 855 (3) an application for an administration order;
- 856 (4) a company in administration;
- 857 (5) entering into administration;
- 858 (6) Schedule B1 to the Insolvency Act 1986³ or a provision of that Schedule, which is contained in a provision of the 1986 Act, other than in that Schedule, or in any other enactment⁴ passed before 22 July 2004, has effect as including a reference to whatever corresponds to it for the purposes of energy administration⁵. This does not, however:

- 859 (a) entitle the energy administrator of an unregistered company⁶ to make a proposal⁷ for a company voluntary arrangement⁸;
- 860 (b) confer any right⁹ for a supervisor of a voluntary arrangement to apply for an energy administration order in relation to a protected energy company¹⁰; or
- 861 (c) apply to the statutory provision¹¹ relating to administration applications by the Financial Services Authority¹².

There are specific modifications to the provisions of the Insolvency Act 1986 relating to the effect of the approval of voluntary arrangements¹³, challenging decisions in relation to voluntary arrangements¹⁴ and the commencement of winding up¹⁵. Additionally, the Secretary of State¹⁶ may by order¹⁷ make such modifications of the 1986 Act, or any other enactment passed before 22 July 2004 that relates to insolvency or makes provision by reference to anything that is or may be done under the 1986 Act, as he considers appropriate in relation to any provision made by or under the provisions of the Energy Act 2004¹⁸ relating to energy administration¹⁹.

1 For these purposes, 'administrator' is to be construed in accordance with the Insolvency Act 1986 Sch B1 (as added and amended) (see COMPANY AND PARTNERSHIP INSOLVENCY vol 7(3) (2004 Reissue) PARA 212 note 1), disregarding the Energy Act 2004 s 159(2), Sch 20 Pt 1 (paras 1-2) (see PARA 753 ante): Sch 20 para 47.

2 For these purposes, 'administration order' is to be construed in accordance with the Insolvency Act 1986 Sch B1 (as added and amended) (see COMPANY AND PARTNERSHIP INSOLVENCY vol 7(3) (2004 Reissue) PARA 212), disregarding the Energy Act 2004 Sch 20 Pt 1 (paras 1-2) (see PARA 753 ante): Sch 20 para 47.

5 See the Energy Act 2004 Sch 20 para 41(1), (2). For these purposes: (1) an energy administrator corresponds to an administrator appointed by an administration order; (2) an energy administration order corresponds to an administration order; (3) an application for an energy administration order corresponds to an application for an administration order; (4) a company in energy administration corresponds to a company in administration; (5) entering into energy administration corresponds to entering into administration; (6) what corresponds to the Insolvency Act 1986 Sch B1 (as added) or a provision of that Schedule is that Schedule or that provision as applied by the Energy Act 2004 Sch 20 Pt 1: Sch 20 para 41(3). Court procedure and practice; examination of persons in energy administration proceedings.

755. Court procedure and practice; examination of persons in energy administration proceedings.

Court procedure and practice in energy administration proceedings¹ is set out in Part 11 of the Energy Administration Rules 2005². Those rules make provision for:

- 862 (1) the form and contents of, and the procedure for, applications³;
- 863 (2) the nomination, appointment and remuneration of shorthand writers⁴;
- 864 (3) enforcement procedures⁵;
- 865 (4) court records and returns⁶;
- 866 (5) costs and detailed assessment⁷;
- 867 (6) persons incapable of managing their affairs⁸; and
- 868 (7) appeals in energy administration proceedings⁹.

They also make provision for general procedural matters such as rights of audience and attendance and the giving of security for costs¹⁰. The Civil Procedure Rules ('CPR') and the practice and procedure of the High Court, including any practice direction, apply to energy administration proceedings with any necessary modifications, except so far as inconsistent with the 2005 Rules¹¹. All energy administration proceedings must be allocated to the multi-track¹² and accordingly those provisions of the CPR which provide for allocation questionnaires and track allocation do not apply¹³. Rights of audience in energy administration proceedings are the same as obtain in insolvency proceedings¹⁴.

Part 13 of the 2005 Rules makes provision for the examination of persons in energy administration proceedings¹⁵.

1 'Energy administration proceedings' means any proceedings under the Energy Act 2004 ss 154-171, Schs 20, 21 (see PARA 743 et seq ante, PARA 756 et seq post): Energy Administration Rules 2005, SI 2005/2483, r 182.

(iv) Restrictions on other Insolvency Procedures

756. Restrictions on winding-up orders.

Where a petition for the winding up of a protected energy company¹ is presented by a person other than the Secretary of State², the court³ is not to exercise its powers on a winding-up petition⁴ unless:

- 869 (1) notice of the petition has been served both on the Secretary of State and on the Gas and Electricity Markets Authority ('GEMA')⁵; and
- 870 (2) a period of at least 14 days has elapsed since the service of the last of those notices to be served⁶.

If an application for an energy administration order⁷ in relation to the company is made⁸ to the court before a winding-up order is made on the petition, the court may exercise its powers on the hearing of the application for the energy administration order⁹, instead of exercising its powers on a winding-up petition¹⁰.

GAS AND ELECTRICITY INDUSTRIES; IN GENERAL/(6) SPECIAL ADMINISTRATION REGIME FOR ENERGY LICENSEES/(iv) Restrictions on other Insolvency Procedures/757. Restrictions on voluntary winding up.

757. Restrictions on voluntary winding up.

A protected energy company¹ has no power to pass a resolution for voluntary winding up² without the permission of the court³; and such permission may be granted only on an application made by the company⁴. The court is not to grant permission on such an application unless:

- 871 (1) notice of the application has been served both on the Secretary of State⁵ and on the Gas and Electricity Markets Authority ('GEMA')⁶; and
- 872 (2) a period of at least 14 days has elapsed since the service of the last of those notices to be served⁷.

If an application for an energy administration order⁸ in relation to the company is made⁹ after an application for permission under the above provisions has been made and before it is granted, the court may exercise its powers on the hearing of the application for the energy administration order¹⁰, instead of granting permission¹¹.

758. Restrictions on making of ordinary administration orders.

The following provisions apply where an ordinary administration application¹ is made in relation to a protected energy company² by a person other than the Secretary of State³:

- 873 (1) the court⁴ must dismiss the application if:
- 39
56. (a) an energy administration order⁵ is in force in relation to the company; or
57. (b) an energy administration order has been made in relation to the company but is not yet in force⁶;
- 40
- 874 (2) where head (1) above does not apply, the court, on hearing the application, must not exercise its powers under the relevant provision of the Insolvency Act 1986⁷, other than its power of adjournment, unless:
- 41
58. (a) notice of the application has been served both on the Secretary of State and on the Gas and Electricity Markets Authority ('GEMA')⁸;
59. (b) a period of at least 14 days has elapsed since the service of the last of those notices to be served; and
60. (c) there is no application for an energy administration order that is outstanding⁹;
- 42
- 875 (3) the provision of the 1986 Act with respect to an interim moratorium¹⁰ does not prevent, or require the permission of the court for, the making of an application for an energy administration order¹¹;
- 876 (4) upon the making of an energy administration order in relation to a protected energy company, the court must dismiss any ordinary administration application made in relation to that company which is outstanding¹².

1 For these purposes, 'ordinary administration application' means an application in accordance with the Insolvency Act 1986 Sch B1 para 12 (as added) (see COMPANY AND PARTNERSHIP INSOLVENCY vol 7(3) (2004 Reissue) PARA 216); Energy Act 2004 s 162(6).

An appeal is to be treated as pending for the purposes of s 171(5) if: (a) such an appeal has been brought and has been neither determined nor withdrawn; (b) an application for permission to appeal has been made but has not been determined or withdrawn; or (c) no such appeal has been brought and the period for bringing an appeal is still running: s 171(6).

759. Restrictions on administrator appointments by creditors etc.

No step is to be taken by any person to make an appointment in relation to a company¹ under the provisions of the Insolvency Act 1986 conferring powers on the holder of a floating charge and on the company itself and its directors to appoint administrators² if:

- 877 (1) an energy administration order³ is in force in relation to the company;
- 878 (2) an energy administration order has been made in relation to the company but is not yet in force; or
- 879 (3) an application for such an order is outstanding⁴.

In the case of a protected energy company⁵ to which heads (1) to (3) above do not apply, such an appointment in relation to that company takes effect only if each of the following conditions is met⁶, namely that:

- 880 (a) a copy of every document⁷ in relation to the appointment that is filed or lodged with the court⁸ in accordance with the provisions of the 1986 Act regarding documents to be filed or lodged for the appointment of an administrator⁹ has been served both on the Secretary of State¹⁰ and on the Gas and Electricity Markets Authority ('GEMA')¹¹;
- 881 (b) a period of 14 days has elapsed since the service of the last of those copies to be served;
- 882 (c) there is no outstanding application to the court for an energy administration order in relation to the company in question; and
- 883 (d) the making of an application for such an order has not resulted in the making of an energy administration order which is in force or is still to come into force¹².

The provision of the 1986 Act with respect to an interim moratorium¹³ does not prevent, or require the permission of the court for, the making of an application for an energy administration order at any time before the appointment takes effect¹⁴.

1 For these purposes, 'security' means any mortgage, charge, lien or other security: Insolvency Act 1986 s 248(b)(i) (definition applied by the Energy Act 2004 s 171(1)).

Where an energy administration order¹ has been made in relation to a company², the Secretary of State³ may, with the consent of the Treasury⁴, make grants or loans to the company of such amounts as it appears to him appropriate to pay or lend for achieving the objective of the energy administration⁵. Such a grant or loan may be made in whatever manner, and on whatever terms, the Secretary of State considers appropriate⁶; and the terms:

- 886 (1) on which a grant may be so made include, in particular, terms requiring the whole or a part of the grant to be repaid to the Secretary of State if there is a contravention⁷ of the other terms on which the grant is made⁸;
- 887 (2) on which a loan may be so made include, in particular, terms requiring:
 - 43 61. (a) the loan to be repaid at such times and by such methods; and
 - 62. (b) interest to be paid on the loan at such rates and at such times,
 - 44
 - 888 as the Secretary of State may from time to time and with Treasury consent direct⁹.

The Secretary of State must pay sums received by him by virtue of these provisions into the Consolidated Fund¹⁰.

GAS AND ELECTRICITY INDUSTRIES; IN GENERAL/(6) SPECIAL ADMINISTRATION REGIME FOR ENERGY LICENSEES/(v) Financial Support for Companies in Administration/762. Indemnities.

762. Indemnities.

Where an energy administration order¹ has been made in relation to a company², the Secretary of State³ may, with the consent of the Treasury⁴, agree to indemnify persons in respect of one or both of the following:

- 889 (1) liabilities incurred in connection with the exercise and performance by the energy administrator⁵ of his powers and duties; and
- 890 (2) loss or damage sustained in that connection⁶.

The agreement may be made in whatever manner, and on whatever terms, the Secretary of State considers appropriate⁷.

The power of the Secretary of State to agree to indemnify persons:

- 891 (a) is confined to a power to agree to indemnify persons in respect of liabilities, loss and damage incurred or sustained by them as relevant persons; but
- 892 (b) includes power to agree to indemnify persons, whether or not they are identified or identifiable at the time of the agreement, who subsequently become relevant persons⁸; and a person is a relevant person for these purposes if he is:

- 893 (i) the energy administrator⁹;
- 894 (ii) an employee of the energy administrator;
- 895 (iii) a member or employee of a firm¹⁰ of which the energy administrator is a member;
- 896 (iv) a member or employee of a firm of which the energy administrator is an employee;
- 897 (v) a member of a firm of which the energy administrator was an employee or member at a time when the order was in force;
- 898 (vi) a body corporate which is the employer of the energy administrator;
- 899 (vii) an officer, employee or member of such a body corporate¹¹.

If sums are paid by the Secretary of State in consequence of an indemnity agreed to under these provisions, the company must pay him:

- 900 (A) such amounts in or towards the repayment to him of those sums as he may, with Treasury consent¹², direct; and
- 901 (B) interest, at such rates as he may with the like consent direct, on amounts outstanding under this provision¹³;

but this does not apply in the case of a sum paid by the Secretary of State for indemnifying a person in respect of a liability to the company in relation to which the energy administration order was made¹⁴. The Secretary of State must pay sums received by him by virtue of heads (A) and (B) above into the Consolidated Fund¹⁵.

Where an energy administration order¹ has been made in relation to a company², the Secretary of State³ may, with the consent of the Treasury⁴, guarantee:

- 902 (1) the repayment of any sum borrowed by the company while the energy administration order is in force;
- 903 (2) the payment of interest on such a sum; and
- 904 (3) the discharge of any other financial obligation of the company in connection with the borrowing of such a sum⁵;

and he may so give a guarantee in such manner, and on such terms, as he thinks fit⁶. As soon as practicable after giving such a guarantee, the Secretary of State must lay a statement of the guarantee before Parliament⁷.

If sums are paid out by the Secretary of State under a guarantee given under these provisions, the company must pay him:

- 905 (a) such amounts in or towards the repayment to him of those sums as he may, with Treasury consent⁸, direct; and
- 906 (b) interest, at such rates as he may direct, on amounts outstanding under this provision⁹.

The Secretary of State must pay sums received by him by virtue of heads (a) and (b) above into the Consolidated Fund¹⁰.

Where a sum has been paid out by the Secretary of State under a guarantee given under the above provisions, he must lay a statement relating to that sum before Parliament:

Modifications of particular or standard conditions.

(vi) Licence Modifications relating to Energy Administration

764. Modifications of particular or standard conditions.

The Energy Act 2004 conferred transitional powers on the Secretary of State¹, where he considered it appropriate to do so in connection with the provision made by the provisions of that Act relating to energy administration², to make:

- 909 (1) modifications³ of the conditions of a gas or electricity licence⁴ held by a particular person⁵;
- 910 (2) modifications of the standard conditions of such licences of any type⁶.

The power to make such modifications included power to make incidental, consequential or transitional modifications⁷ and was exercisable only during the period of 18 months beginning with 5 October 2004⁸.

Before so making a modification, the Secretary of State was to consult the holder of any licence being modified and such other persons as he considered appropriate⁹.

The Secretary of State must publish every modification so made by him¹⁰ in such manner as he considers appropriate¹¹.

Where the Secretary of State has made modifications under head (2) above of the standard conditions of licences of any type, the Gas and Electricity Markets Authority ('GEMA')¹² must:

- 911 (a) make, as nearly as may be, the same modifications of those standard conditions for the purposes of their incorporation in licences of that type granted after the 18-month period referred to above; and
- 912 (b) publish the modifications in such manner as it considers appropriate¹³.

The modifications that might, or may, be made under the above provisions include, in particular, modifications imposing conditions requiring the holder of the licence:

- 913 (i) so to modify the charges imposed by him for anything done by him in the carrying on of the licensed activities as to raise such amounts as may be determined by or under the conditions; and
- 914 (ii) to pay the amounts so raised to such persons as may be so determined for the purpose of:

45

- 63. (A) their applying those amounts in making good any shortfall in the property¹⁴ available for meeting the expenses of an energy administration¹⁵; or

- 64. (B) enabling those persons to secure that those amounts are so applied¹⁶; and might, or may, include modifications imposing on the licence holder an obligation to apply amounts paid to him in pursuance of conditions falling within head (i) or head (ii) above in making good any such shortfall¹⁷.

4 For these purposes, 'gas or electricity licence' means a licence for the purposes of the Gas Act 1986 s 5 (as substituted and amended) or the Electricity Act 1989 s 4 (as amended) (prohibition on unlicensed activities: see PARAS 803, 1050 post): Energy Act 2004 s 168(11).

5 A modification under ibid s 168(1)(a) (see head (1) in the text) of part of a standard condition of a licence does not prevent any other part of the condition from continuing to be regarded as a standard condition for the purposes of the Electricity Act 1989 Pt I (ss 3A-64) (as amended) or the Gas Act 1986 Pt I (ss 4AA-48) (as amended): Energy Act 2004 s 168(7).

6 See ibid s 168(1). Section 191 applies to (1) the Secretary of State's powers under Pt 3 Chs 2-4 (ss 145-185) with respect to the conditions of gas licences; and (2) his powers under ss 90 and 91 (see PARAS 1078-1079 post) and Pt 3 (ss 133-185) with respect to the conditions of electricity licences; and s 191 is to be disregarded in determining the generality of those or any other powers conferred on the Secretary of State by the Energy Act 2004 or otherwise: s 191(1). Conditions included in a gas licence, or in an electricity licence, by virtue of a power to which s 191 applies need not relate to the activities authorised by the licence: s 191(2). Conditions included in a gas licence by virtue of a power to which s 191 applies may do any of the things authorised by the Gas Act 1986 s 7B(4A) or (5) (as added and amended) (which apply to GEMA's power with respect to licence conditions under s 7B(4)(a) (as added and amended): see PARA 809 post): Energy Act 2004 s 191(3). Conditions included in an electricity licence by virtue of a power to which s 191 applies may do any of the things authorised by the Electricity Act 1989 s 7(2)-(4) (as amended) (which apply to GEMA's power with respect to licence conditions under s 7(1)(a) (as amended): see PARA 1068 post): Energy Act 2004 s 191(4). For these purposes, 'electricity licence' means a licence for the purposes of the Electricity Act 1989 s 4 (as amended) (prohibition on unlicensed electricity activities: see PARA 1050 post); and 'gas licence' means a licence for the purposes of the Gas Act 1986 s 5 (as substituted and amended) (prohibition on unlicensed gas activities: see PARA 803 post): Energy Act 2004 s 191(5). 15 For these purposes: (1) there is a shortfall in the property available for meeting the costs of an energy administration if, in a case where a company is or has been subject to an energy administration order, the property available (apart from conditions falling within the Energy Act 2004 s 169(1) or (2): see heads (i)-(ii) in the text) for meeting relevant debts is insufficient for meeting them; and (2) amounts are applied in making good that shortfall if they are paid in or towards discharging so much of a relevant debt as cannot be met out of the property otherwise available for meeting relevant debts: s 169(3). 'Relevant debt', in relation to a case in which a company is or has been subject to an energy administration order, means an obligation (a) to make payments in respect of the expenses or remuneration of any person as the energy administrator of that company; (b) to make a payment in discharge of a debt or liability of that company arising out of a contract entered into at a time when the order was in force by the person who at that time was the energy administrator of that company; (c) to repay the whole or a part of a grant made to that company under s 165 (see PARA 761 ante); (d) to repay a loan made to the company under s 165, or to pay interest on such a loan; (e) to make a payment under s 166(4) (see PARA 762 ante); or (f) to make a payment under s 167(5) (see PARA 763 ante): s 169(4). (7) SUPPLEMENTARY PROVISIONS

765. Overall carbon emissions reduction.

As from 28 February 2007¹, the following provisions have effect. For the purposes of the exercise by the Gas and Electricity Markets Authority ('GEMA')² of its functions under either or both of the specified provisions of the Gas Act 1986³ and the Electricity Act 1989⁴, the Secretary of State⁵ may by order⁶ specify an overall target for the promotion of the specified measures⁷ for carbon emissions reduction⁸. Before making such an order the Secretary of State must consult the Authority, the Gas and Electricity Consumer Council⁹, gas transporters¹⁰, gas suppliers¹¹, electricity distributors¹², electricity suppliers¹³, and such other persons as he considers appropriate¹⁴.

Where an overall target applies in relation to both of the specified provisions¹⁵, the order specifying the target may make provision for the Authority to apportion the target between:

- 915 (1) persons who are gas transporters or gas suppliers¹⁶; and
- 916 (2) persons who are electricity distributors or electricity suppliers¹⁷;

by reference to such criteria as may be specified in the order¹⁸.

The Authority must exercise its functions under the specified provisions¹⁹ in relation to which an overall target applies, and in particular its functions relating to the determination of carbon emissions reduction targets, in the manner it considers best calculated to result in the achievement of the overall target²⁰.

Until 28 February 2007, the above provisions had effect with the substitution:

- 917 (a) for the reference to an overall target for the promotion of the specified measures for carbon emissions reduction, of a reference to an overall target for the promotion of improvement in energy efficiency²¹; and
- 918 (b) for the reference to functions relating to the determination of carbon emissions reduction targets, of a reference to functions relating to the determination of energy efficiency targets²².

The Secretary of State has made orders under the above provisions, as they had effect in accordance with heads (a) and (b) above, specifying overall targets for the promotion of improvement in energy efficiency:

- 919 (i) over the period beginning on 1 April 2002 and ending immediately before 1 April 2005²³;
- 920 (ii) in relation to domestic consumers as regards the period from 1 April 2005 to 31 March 2008²⁴.

To comply with his energy efficiency obligation a supplier²⁵ must achieve the latest energy efficiency target determined for him by the Authority²⁶ by 31 March 2008²⁷. A supplier's energy efficiency target must be met by improvements in energy efficiency attributable to qualifying actions²⁸, where at least 50 per cent of the total improvement in energy efficiency attributed to those actions²⁹ is to be achieved in relation to domestic consumers in the priority group³⁰. Following the receipt by the Authority of a written request from the suppliers concerned, the Authority may agree to the whole or any part of a supplier's energy efficiency target being treated as having been achieved by a qualifying action taken by another supplier or being transferred to another supplier, and such agreement must be in writing and must not be unreasonably withheld³¹.

A supplier must provide to the Authority such information relating to his proposals for complying with his energy efficiency obligation, or the question whether he has complied with that obligation, in such form and at such time as the Authority may reasonably require in writing³². By 31 July 2008 the Authority must submit to the Secretary of State a report setting out in respect of the year ending on the preceding 31 March the progress made by each supplier towards complying with his energy efficiency obligation and the progress made towards achieving the overall target³³.

23 See the Electricity and Gas (Energy Efficiency Obligations) Order 2001, SI 2001/4011 (amended by SI 2003/1180). For the purposes of the exercise by the Authority of its functions under that Order, the overall target for the promotion of improvements in energy efficiency in Great Britain, as regards that period, was 62 fuel-standardised terawatt hours: see the Electricity and Gas (Energy Efficiency Obligations) Order 2001, SI 2001/4011, art 3(1). Certain records made by the Authority under that Order must be kept for a period of at least five years: see art 11(5).

24 See the Electricity and Gas (Energy Efficiency Obligations) Order 2004, SI 2004/3392. For the purposes of the exercise by the Authority of its functions under that Order, the overall target for the promotion of improvements in energy efficiency in relation to domestic consumers as regards that period is 130 fuel-standardised, lifetime-discounted terawatt hours: art 2. For these purposes: (1) 'domestic consumer' means a person who uses coal, electricity, gas, liquid petroleum gas or oil at domestic premises in Great Britain wholly or mainly for domestic purposes; (2) 'energy efficiency' includes efficiency in the use by consumers of coal, liquid petroleum gas or oil; (3) 'fuel-standardised' means, in respect of an improvement in energy efficiency, the number of kilowatt hours of improvement multiplied (a) where the source of energy is coal, by 0.557; (b) where the source of energy is electricity, by 0.801; (c) where the source of energy is gas, by 0.353; (d) where the source of energy is liquid petroleum gas, by 0.398; or (e) where the source of energy is oil, by 0.464; and (4) 'lifetime-discounted' means, in respect of an improvement in energy efficiency, the number of kilowatt hours of improvement discounted by 3.5% a year over its lifetime (as estimated by the Authority under art 6(1)(a)(ii)): art 1(2).

25 For these purposes, 'supplier' means an electricity supplier or a gas supplier who supplies at least 50,000 domestic customers (including those supplied by his holding company or subsidiary or by any subsidiary of such a holding company, where 'holding company' and 'subsidiary' have the same meaning as in the Companies Act 1985 s 736 (as substituted; prospectively repealed by the Companies Act 2006 s 1295, Sch 16, and replaced by s 1159, as from a day to be appointed under s 1300(2); at the date at which this title states the law, no such day had been appointed) (see COMPANIES vol 14 (2009) PARA 25): Electricity and Gas (Energy Efficiency Obligations) Order 2004, SI 2004/3392, art 1(2). A person who ceases to be a supplier after 31 December 2004 but who continues to hold a supply licence under the Electricity Act 1989 s 6(1)(d) (as substituted and amended) (see PARA 1065 post) or the Gas Act 1986 s 7A (as added and amended) (see PARA 807 post) is to continue to be treated as a supplier: Electricity and Gas (Energy Efficiency Obligations) Order 2004, SI 2004/3392, art 1(3)(a).

A requirement imposed on a supplier by the 2004 Order is to be treated as a relevant requirement (1) if the supplier is a gas supplier, for the purposes of the Gas Act 1986 Pt I (ss 4AA-48) (as amended); (2) if the supplier is an electricity supplier, for the purposes of the Electricity Act 1989 Pt I (ss 3A-64) (as amended): Electricity and Gas (Energy Efficiency Obligations) Order 2004, SI 2004/3392, art 10.

26 See ibid art 4. The Authority must determine an energy efficiency target to be achieved by a supplier (1) if he was a supplier on 31 December 2004, from 1 April 2005; (2) if he becomes a supplier after 31 December 2004 and was a supplier on 31 December 2005, from 1 April 2006; or (3) if he becomes a supplier after 31 December 2005 and was a supplier on 31 December 2006, from 1 April 2007: art 4(1)(a). The Authority may alter that target with effect from 1 April 2006 or 1 April 2007 (art 4(1)(b)); and by 31 January 2005, 31 January 2006 and 31 January 2007, must notify the supplier of the target to be achieved by him as determined or altered from 1 April of that year (art 4(1)(c)). The Authority must determine or alter a supplier's energy efficiency target by reference to the following criteria: (a) the overall target under art 2; (b) the mean of the total number of domestic customers supplied by suppliers on 31 December 2004 and on any anniversary of that date; (c) the mean of the number of domestic customers supplied by him on 31 December 2004 and on any anniversary of that date; and (d) the time available for its achievement: art 4(2). By 14 January 2005, 14 January 2006 and 14 January 2007 a supplier was to notify the Authority of the number of domestic customers supplied by him on the preceding 31 December: art 4(3). For these purposes, a reference to notification is a reference to notification in writing and includes notification by electronic mail, facsimile or similar means (art 1(3)(b)); and 'domestic customer' means an owner or occupier of domestic premises in Great Britain who is supplied with electricity or gas at those premises wholly or mainly for domestic purposes (art 1(2)).

27 Ibid art 3(1).

28 'Qualifying action' means an action determined by the Authority under ibid art 5(1)(b) as promoting an improvement in energy efficiency: art 1(2). The Authority must: (1) approve an action notified under art 5(2)(a) (see head (a) infra) if it is satisfied that the action would promote an improvement in energy efficiency in relation to domestic consumers, and estimate what improvement in energy efficiency would be attributable to that action; and (2) after it has been notified under art 5(2)(b) (see head (b) infra), determine whether the action promotes such an improvement and if so what improvement is to be attributed to it under art 6, and must notify the supplier accordingly: art 5(1). Subject to art 5(3) (transitional provisions), a supplier must notify the Authority: (a) before or within one month of its commencement, of any action by him which he intends is to qualify for the purpose of meeting the whole or part of his energy efficiency target, indicating how the action would contribute, if at all, to the achievement of the requirement in art 3(2) in relation to domestic consumers in the priority group; and (b) by 30 April 2008, whether an action approved under art 5(1)(a) (see head (1) supra) has been taken: art 5(2). For these purposes, the promotion of the supply to domestic premises of (i) electricity generated by a generating station which is operated for the purposes of producing heat, or a cooling effect, in association with electricity; (ii) heat produced in association with electricity or steam produced from (or air or water heated by) such heat; or (iii) any gas or liquid subjected to a cooling effect produced in association with electricity, is to be treated as promotion of improvements in energy efficiency: art 5(4).

'Priority group' means persons (A) who are in receipt of at least one of the benefits described in Schedule para 2 (ie council tax benefit; housing benefit; income support; an income-based jobseeker's allowance; an attendance allowance; a disability living allowance; a war disablement pension which includes either a mobility supplement or a constant attendance allowance; a disablement pension which includes a constant attendance allowance; and state pension credit); or (B) who are in receipt of at least one of the credits described in Schedule para 3 (ie child tax credit and working tax credit) and whose relevant income (within the meaning of the Tax Credits Act 2002 Pt 1 (ss 1-48)) is £14,600 or less: Electricity and Gas (Energy Efficiency Obligations) Order 2004, SI 2004/3392, art 1(2).

29 Ie under ibid art 6. Subject to art 6(2), the Authority must determine the improvement in energy efficiency, assessed in fuel-standardised, lifetime-discounted kilowatt hours, to be attributed to a qualifying action by reference to (1) the improvement in energy efficiency in relation to domestic consumers which it is satisfied will result from that action; and (2) its estimate of the lifetime of that improvement: art 6(1)(a). It must also determine the amount, if any, of that improvement which it is satisfied will be achieved in relation to domestic consumers in the priority group: art 6(1)(b). The Authority must attribute an improvement in energy efficiency which is 50% higher than the improvement which would otherwise be attributed under art 6(1): (a) to an energy service action, provided that the total improvement in energy efficiency that would otherwise be attributed to such actions under art 6(1) in relation to the supplier's energy efficiency target would achieve at least 5% and no more than 10% of that target; (b) to an innovative action, provided that the total improvement that would otherwise be attributed to such actions under art 6(1) in relation to the supplier's energy efficiency target would achieve no more than 10% of that target: art 6(2). For these purposes, 'energy service action' means a qualifying action undertaken in pursuance of an agreement between a supplier and a domestic consumer which is intended to achieve improvements in energy efficiency at the domestic premises concerned by at least 13%, where that agreement requires the supplier (i) to undertake an energy efficiency audit of the premises; and (ii) to offer the consumer the option of making an arrangement with the supplier for deferring the whole or any part of the cost incurred by the consumer under the agreement: art 6(3)(a). 'Innovative action' means a qualifying action which is not an energy service action and which (A) achieves an improvement in energy efficiency by a means which was not used in respect of an action by any supplier which was determined by the Authority as a qualifying action under the Electricity and Gas (Energy Efficiency Obligations) Order 2001, SI 2001/4011, art 8(1)(a) and which the Authority is satisfied is significantly greater than that achieved by any similar action so determined; or (B) achieves an improvement in energy efficiency through the use of a micro-cogeneration unit, as defined in European Parliament and EC Council Directive 2004/8 on the promotion of cogeneration based on a useful heat demand in the internal energy market (OJ L52, 21.2.2004, p 50), art 3(m): Electricity and Gas (Energy Efficiency Obligations) Order 2004, SI 2004/3392, art 6(3)(b).

(8) PLANNING AND ENVIRONMENTAL CONTROLS AND CIVIL CONTINGENCIES

(i) Planning

768. General provisions.

The statutory provisions governing land development generally¹, and the land of statutory undertakers and their rights to lay down, erect or maintain apparatus on, under or over land in particular, apply to gas transporters and holders of an electricity licence².

Notwithstanding the general provision that land is not to be regarded as operational land³ of a statutory undertaker if it was acquired by the undertaker after 6 December 1968 and no specific planning permission is or has been in force in respect of that land for development which would involve, or would have involved, the use of that land for the purpose of carrying on the undertaking of the undertaker⁴, land which was acquired by a public gas supplier as a result of a transfer under the provisions of the Gas Act 1986, and was immediately before that date operational land of the British Gas Corporation⁵ is to be treated as operational land of the relevant gas transporter whether or not any such planning permission then was or had been in force⁶. Similarly, land which was acquired by the holder of an electricity licence as a result of a transfer under the provisions of the Electricity Act 1989, and was immediately before that date operational land of the Electricity Boards or the Electricity Council⁷ is to be treated as operational land of the licence holder whether or not any such planning permission then was or had been in force⁸.

¹ I.e. the Town and Country Planning Act 1990 and in particular Pt XI (ss 262-283) (as amended): see TOWN AND COUNTRY PLANNING vol 46(2) (Reissue) PARA 1009 et seq.

³ 'Operational land' means land which is used for the purpose of carrying on the undertaking of a statutory undertaker, and land in which an interest is held for that purpose, not being land which, in respect of its nature or situation, is comparable rather with land in general than with land which is used, or in which interests are held, for the purpose of the carrying on of statutory undertakings: ibid s 263(1), (2). Land may be operational land although the undertakers have not begun, or have no present power, to use it for the purposes of their undertaking, and although it is not contiguous or adjacent to land which is; and whether land is comparable rather with land in general than with such land is a question of fact: R v Minister of Fuel and Power, ex p Warwickshire County Council [1957] 2 All ER 731, [1957] 1 WLR 861, DC. 'Land' generally includes buildings and other structures, land covered with water and any estate, interest, easement, servitude or right over land: see the Interpretation Act 1978 s 5, Sch 1.

GAS AND ELECTRICITY INDUSTRIES; IN GENERAL/(8) PLANNING AND ENVIRONMENTAL CONTROLS AND CIVIL CONTINGENCIES/(i) Planning/769. Permitted development and EIA development.

769. Permitted development and EIA development.

The classes of development for which planning permission is deemed to have been granted¹ include specified forms of development (1) by gas transporters²; or (2) by statutory undertakers for the generation, transmission or supply of electricity³, for the purposes of their undertakings⁴.

So far as the carrying out or construction of any surface works, boreholes or pipes associated with an underground gas storage⁵ which are approved by the Secretary of State⁶ constitutes development⁷, that development is to be taken to be authorised⁸ by him in making the storage authorisation order⁹. The bringing into use or operation of an underground gas storage is, to the same extent, to be taken to be similarly authorised¹⁰.

Certain development for the purposes of the gas and electricity industries requires an assessment of environmental impact¹¹. Such development is known as 'EIA development'¹².

The holders of certain gas and electricity licences¹ are category two responders² for the purposes of Part 1 of the Civil Contingencies Act 2004³.

Part 2 of that Act⁴ confers power on the Secretary of State⁵ to make emergency regulations if there is, among other things, an event or situation which threatens serious damage to human welfare in the United Kingdom⁶ or a part of the United Kingdom by disrupting supplies of energy or fuel⁷. Such regulations may make particular provision for protecting or restoring a supply of energy or fuel⁸.

The Secretary of State also has emergency and reserve powers under the Energy Act 1976 to control the production, supply, acquisition or use of natural gas⁹ and electricity, and, in the exercise of reserve powers, to regulate the price at which natural gas may be supplied¹⁰.

2 As such, regulations may permit or require them to co-operate with the authorities responsible for emergency planning (the 'category one responders'), to provide those authorities with relevant information and to share information with them: see ibid ss 2(5)(h)(i), 6, 12. GAS AND ELECTRICITY INDUSTRIES; IN GENERAL/ (9) RESTRICTIONS ON RIGHTS OF ENTRY/773. Restriction on exercise of rights of entry.

(9) RESTRICTIONS ON RIGHTS OF ENTRY

773. Restriction on exercise of rights of entry.

The rights of entry¹ of gas operators² and electricity operators³ are regulated and restricted by the Rights of Entry (Gas and Electricity Boards) Act 1954. No right of entry to which that Act applies⁴ is exercisable in respect of any premises⁵ except (1) with consent given by or on behalf of the occupier⁶ of the premises; or (2) under the authority of a warrant granted under that Act⁷. These restrictions do not, however, apply when entry is required in a case of emergency⁸. No person is liable to a penalty under any enactment relating to obstruction of the exercise of a right or power of entry to which that Act applies, by reason only of his refusing admission to a person who seeks to exercise the right of entry without a warrant granted under the Act⁹.

1 'Right of entry' includes a power of entry: Rights of Entry (Gas and Electricity Boards) Act 1954 s 3(1).

2 For these purposes, 'gas operator' means a gas transporter, gas supplier or gas shipper within the meaning of the Gas Act 1986 Pt I (ss 4AA-48) (as amended) (see PARA 789 et seq post): Rights of Entry (Gas and Electricity Boards) Act 1954 s 3(1) (definition substituted by the Gas Act 1995 s 16(1), Sch 4 para 5(4)(b); amended by virtue of the Utilities Act 2000 s 76(7)). For the meaning of 'gas transporter' for those purposes see PARA 805 post; and for the meanings of 'gas supplier' and 'gas shipper' for those purposes see PARA 807 post.

3 For these purposes, 'electricity operator' means an electricity distributor or an electricity supplier (within the meaning of the Electricity Act 1989 Pt I (ss 3A-64) (as amended) (see PARA 1041 et seq post); (definition substituted by the Utilities Act 2000 s 108, Sch 6 Pt III para 41(1), (5)(b)).

4 The Rights of Entry (Gas and Electricity Boards) Act 1954 applies to all rights of entry conferred by (1) the Gas Act 1986, regulations made under it or any other enactment relating to gas (see PARA 776 et seq post; and as to rights of entry see PARAS 867, 900-902 post); (2) the Electricity Act 1989 Sch 6 (as substituted) (see PARA 1107 et seq post); and (3) any local enactment relating to gas or electricity in so far as those rights are exercisable for the purposes of a gas operator or an electricity operator: Rights of Entry (Gas and Electricity Boards) Act 1954 s 1(2) (substituted by the Electricity Act 1989 s 112(1), Sch 16 para 8(1), (2); amended by the Gas Act 1995 s 16(1), Sch 4 para 5(1); the Utilities Act 2000 s 108, Sch 6 Pt III para 41(1), (2)). 'Enactment' includes a local enactment; and 'local enactment' means a local or private Act, or an order made under, or confirmed by, an Act (whether a public general Act or a local or private Act): Rights of Entry (Gas and Electricity Boards) Act 1954 s 3(1).

5 For these purposes, 'premises' means a building or part of a building: Rights of Entry (Gas and Electricity Boards) Act 1954 s 3(1).

6 There is no statutory definition of 'occupier' for these purposes; but see PARA 1094 note 6 post.

7 Rights of Entry (Gas and Electricity Boards) Act 1954 s 1(1). As to warrants to authorise entry see PARA 774 post.

8 Ibid s 1(1). References for these purposes to a case of emergency are references to a case in which a person lawfully requiring entry to the premises in question, in the exercise of a right of entry to which the Rights of Entry (Gas and Electricity Boards) Act 1954 applies (see note 4 supra), has reasonable cause to believe that circumstances exist which are likely to endanger life or property, and that immediate entry is necessary to verify the existence of those circumstances or to ascertain their cause or to effect a remedy: s 3(3). A person lawfully requiring entry to premises in the exercise of a right of entry to which the 1954 Act applies is a person seeking admission to those premises by virtue of that right and in accordance with the requirements (if any) of the relevant enactment (s 3(2)(a)); and 'the relevant enactment' in relation to a right of entry is the enactment conferring the right, and references to the requirements of the relevant enactment are references to any requirements of that enactment as to the giving of notices or the taking of any other step before or at the time of the exercise of the right (s 3(2)(b)).

9 Ibid s 1(3). As to obstruction of a person exercising a right of entry under the Gas Act 1986 Sch 2B (as added and amended) or under the Gas Safety (Rights of Entry) Regulations 1996, SI 1996/2535 (as amended), see PARAS 867, 900 post; and as to obstruction of a person exercising a right of entry under the Electricity Act 1989 Sch 6 (as substituted) see PARA 1107 post. As to entry under warrant see PARA 774 post.

774. Entry under warrant.

Where it is shown to the satisfaction of a justice of the peace, on sworn information in writing:

- 938 (1) that admission to premises¹ specified in the information is reasonably required by a gas operator² or an electricity operator³ or by an employee⁴ of a gas operator or an electricity operator;
- 939 (2) that the operator or any employee of the operator, as the case may be, would, apart from the statutory restriction on the exercise of rights of entry⁵, be entitled for that purpose to exercise in respect of the premises a right of entry⁶ to which the Rights of Entry (Gas and Electricity Boards) Act 1954 applies⁷; and
- 940 (3) that the requirements, if any, of the relevant enactment⁸ have been complied with, then subject to the following provisions the justice may by warrant under his hand authorise the operator or any employee of the operator, as the case may be, to enter the premises, if need be by force⁹.

The power to issue a warrant is subject to the qualification that, if the relevant enactment does not require notice of an intended entry to be given to the occupier of the premises, the justice must not grant a warrant in respect of the right of entry in question unless he is satisfied:

- 941 (a) that admission to the premises for the purpose specified in the information was sought by a person lawfully requiring entry¹⁰ in the exercise of that right, and was so sought after not less than 24 hours' notice of the intended entry had been given to the occupier¹¹; or
- 942 (b) that admission to the premises for that purpose was sought in a case of emergency¹² and was refused by or on behalf of the occupier; or
- 943 (c) that the premises are unoccupied; or
- 944 (d) that an application for admission to the premises would defeat the object of the entry¹³.

Every warrant granted under the above provisions continues in force until either:

- 945 (i) the time when the purpose for which entry is required has been satisfied; or
- 946 (ii) the end of the period of 28 days beginning with the day on which the warrant was granted, whichever is the earlier¹⁴.

Any person who, in the exercise of a right of entry under the authority of a warrant so granted, enters any premises which are unoccupied, or from which the occupier is temporarily absent, must leave them as effectually secured against trespassers as he found them¹⁵.

Where a warrant is granted in respect of a right of entry, then for the purposes of any enactment whereby an obligation is imposed to make good damage or to pay compensation, or to take any other step in consequence of the exercise of the right of entry, or a penalty is imposed for obstructing the exercise of that right, any entry effected, or sought to be effected, under the authority of the warrant must be treated as an entry effected, or sought to be effected, in the exercise of that right of entry¹⁶.

2 For the meaning of 'gas operator' see PARA 773 note 2 ante.

3 For the meaning of 'electricity operator' see PARA 773 note 3 ante.

4 For these purposes, 'employee' means: (1) in relation to a gas operator, an officer, servant or agent of the operator and any servant or officer of such an agent; and (2) in relation to an electricity operator, an officer, servant or agent of the operator and any person authorised by such an agent: Rights of Entry (Gas and Electricity Boards) Act 1954 s 3(1) (definition substituted by the Gas Act 1995 s 16(1), Sch 4 para 5(4)(a); amended by the Utilities Act 2000 s 108, Sch 6 Pt III para 41(1), (5)(a)).

10 For the meaning of references to a person lawfully requiring entry see PARA 773 note 8 ante.

11 Where head (a) in the text applies, then either the Gas Act 1986 s 46 (as amended) (see PARA 980 post) (if entry is required for the purposes of a gas operator) or the Electricity Act 1989 s 109 (see PARA 1307 post) (if entry is required for the purposes of an electricity operator), applies to the service of the required notice: Rights of Entry (Gas and Electricity Boards) Act 1954 s 2(3) (substituted by the Electricity Act 1989 s 112(1), Sch 16 para 8; amended by the Gas Act 1995 s 16(1), Sch 4 para 5(3); the Utilities Act 2000 Sch 6 Pt III para 41(1), (4)). GAS AND ELECTRICITY INDUSTRIES; IN GENERAL/(10) LOCAL AUTHORITY POWERS RELATING TO DOMESTIC SUPPLY/775. Local authority powers; in general.

(10) LOCAL AUTHORITY POWERS RELATING TO DOMESTIC SUPPLY

775. Local authority powers; in general.

If any premises in the area of a district council, a London borough council or the Common Council of the City of London or of a county or county borough council in Wales are occupied as a dwelling¹ and the supply of gas or electricity to the premises is cut off or is likely, in the opinion of the council, to be cut off in consequence of the failure of the owner or former owner² to pay a sum payable by him in connection with that supply³, the council may, at the request in writing of the occupier of the premises, make such arrangements as it thinks fit with the person who provided the supply for it to be restored or, as the case may be, for it to be continued, to the premises⁴. Where under any arrangements so made in respect of any premises a council makes a payment:

- 947 (1) in respect of a sum which, at the time when the relevant supply to the premises was or became likely to be cut off, a person was liable to pay in connection with the supply to the person who provided it, the council is entitled to demand and recover from that person a sum equal to the payment; and
- 948 (2) in respect of the restoration of a supply to any premises or a payment for a supply to any premises, the council is entitled to demand and recover from the owner of the premises a sum equal to the payment reduced by any amount received by it⁵ in respect of the payment⁶.

A council by which a sum is so recoverable from a person is also entitled to recover from him interest on the sum, from the date of service of the demand⁷ for the sum, at such reasonable rate as the council may determine⁸.

Where a council is so entitled to recover from the owner of any premises a sum on account of a payment in respect of the restoration or continuation of a supply to the premises or a payment for a supply to the premises or interest on such a sum, the sum so recoverable, together with any interest accrued due is, until recovered, a charge on the premises concerned⁹. If the owner of the premises is required, under the terms on which a person occupies the premises, to pay for a supply of the kind to which that sum relates and the council has served notice on that person requiring him to pay to the council, instead of to the owner of the premises, the rent for the premises which is otherwise payable, or becomes payable, by him to the owner of the premises, it is the duty of that person to comply with the notice except so far as the council directs otherwise and the council may accordingly recover from him from time to time sums equal to the rent in question¹⁰.

London borough councils have additional powers with regard to domestic supplies of gas and electricity¹¹.

1 A house is occupied as a dwelling if it is a house in which people actually live or which is physically capable of being used for human habitation: see Lewin v End [1906] AC 299 at 304, HL, per Lord Atkinson.

2 'The owner', in relation to any premises, means a person who, apart from the Local Government (Miscellaneous Provisions) Act 1976 s 33(4) (as amended) (see note 9 infra), is entitled on his own behalf or as a trustee or agent for another person to rent for the premises from the occupier of the premises; and 'former owner' means a person who was so entitled to rent for the premises from the occupier or former occupier of the premises: s 33(5).

6 Ibid s 33(2) (amended by the Gas Act 1986 Sch 7 para 24).

7 Such a demand must (1) be served on the recipient in writing; (2) give particulars of the payment to which the sum demanded relates; and (3) in the case of a demand for a sum on which interest is so payable, state the rate of the interest and that interest is payable from the date of service: Local Government (Miscellaneous Provisions) Act 1976 s 33(3)(a)-(c).

8 Ibid s 33(3) (amended by the Local Government, Planning and Land Act 1980 s 1(6), Sch 6 para 21(b)).

9 Local Government (Miscellaneous Provisions) Act 1976 s 33(4) (amended by the Local Government and Housing Act 1989 s 194(1), Sch 11 para 47). Such a charge takes effect from the date when the council makes the payment and, for the purposes of enforcing a charge, the council has the same powers and remedies under the Law of Property Act 1925 and otherwise as if it were a mortgagee by deed having powers of sale and lease, of accepting surrenders of leases and of appointing a receiver: Local Government (Miscellaneous Provisions) Act 1976 s 33(4A)(a) (added by the Local Government and Housing Act 1989 Sch 11 para 47). The power to appoint a receiver is exercisable at any time after the expiry of one month from the date when the charge takes effect: Local Government (Miscellaneous Provisions) Act 1976 s 33(4A)(b) (as so added).

(1) GAS LEGISLATION

776. Historical background.

On 1 May 1949¹ there were established 12 area gas boards² and the Gas Council³, and the property, rights, liabilities and obligations of gas undertakers⁴ in Great Britain vested in the boards⁵. Duties and powers in relation to gas supply were given to the boards⁶, and they received certain exclusive rights to supply gas through pipes⁷. The functions of the Gas Council were to advise the minister⁸ and to assist the area boards⁹. Gas consultative councils were established for the area of each board¹⁰. Certain local enactments ceased to have effect on that day¹¹.

On 1 January 1973¹² the area boards were dissolved and their property, rights, liabilities and obligations vested in the Gas Council which was renamed the British Gas Corporation¹³. A duty to supply gas was imposed on the corporation¹⁴, the provisions relating to exclusive rights of supply, tariffs and charges and gas quality were modified, and a modified gas supply code was incorporated. The gas consultative councils were replaced by the National Gas Consumers' Council and regional councils for particular areas of Great Britain¹⁵.

3 See ibid s 2(1) (repealed).

4 The undertakers affected were (1) all statutory gas undertakers; (2) all non-statutory gas undertakers which in 1947 supplied gas the whole or main part of which was consumed by persons other than the undertaker, its holding and subsidiary companies and other subsidiaries of the holding company; and (3) certain companies which in 1947 had one or more subsidiaries falling within head (1) or head (2) supra: ibid s 15(1) (repealed).

The minister for the purposes of the Gas Act 1948 (repealed) was the Minister of Fuel and Power, whose style and title were altered to that of Minister of Power by the Minister of Fuel and Power (Change of Style and Title) Order 1957, SI 1957/48. His functions were transferred to the Minister of Technology by the Minister of Technology Order 1969, SI 1969/1498, and to the Secretary of State by the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry Order 1970, SI 1970/1537. Those functions were exercised by the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry, and then by the Secretary of State for Energy. 777. The Gas Act 1986 and subsequent legislation.

On 18 August 1986¹, provision was made for the appointment of the Director General of Gas Supply ('the director') for the purpose of regulating the gas supply industry². On 23 August 1986³, there was established a Gas Consumers' Council ('the council') and the National Gas Consumers' Council and the regional gas consumers' councils ceased to exist⁴. The exclusive privilege of the British Gas Corporation to supply gas through pipes was abolished⁵ and provision was made for a new structure in which persons might be authorised to supply gas to any premises within an authorised area⁶. Public gas suppliers⁷ were given various duties and powers in relation to the supply of gas⁸, including the duty to supply gas to certain premises⁹, some of which were incorporated in the Public Gas Supply Code¹⁰.

On 24 August 1986, all the property, rights and liabilities to which the British Gas Corporation was entitled or subject immediately before that date became those of the successor company¹¹, British Gas plc¹². Provision was made for an initial government holding in the successor company¹³ and for the government to invest in its securities¹⁴. The Secretary of State was given power to fix by order¹⁵ a target investment limit for such government shareholding¹⁶. Provision was also made for the financial structure of the successor company¹⁷. The British Gas Corporation was dissolved on 28 February 1990¹⁸.

The director's powers were enhanced by the Competition and Service (Utilities) Act 1992¹⁹ and the arrangements for authorising the supply of gas through pipes were modified by the Gas (Exempt Supplies) Act 1993²⁰.

The former exemption from rating of certain buildings and establishments relating to gas²¹ ceased to have effect as from 1 April 1990²².

The Gas Act 1995 made extensive amendments to the Gas Act 1986, in particular to the licensing regime. Separate licences were introduced for public gas transporters (now known as 'gas transporters')²³ and for gas suppliers and gas shippers²⁴. The Energy Act 2004 has since introduced licences for the operation of gas interconnectors²⁵. The 1995 Act introduced a new gas code, which replaces the former Public Gas Supply Code²⁶, and reframed the general statutory duties of the regulatory authorities placing greater emphasis on competition²⁷. New provision was made for requiring the owners of certain gas processing facilities to make them available to other persons²⁸.

Further changes, particularly to the regulatory regime, were made by the Utilities Act 2000 which abolished the office of the director²⁹ and also abolished the Gas Consumers' Council³⁰, replacing the former by the Gas and Electricity Markets Authority ('GEMA')³¹ and the latter by the Gas and Electricity Consumer Council³². The Authority and the Secretary of State now have a new principal objective, in carrying out their functions in both the gas and electricity sectors, to protect the interests of consumers, wherever appropriate by promoting effective competition³³. In carrying out their functions in relation to gas the regulatory authorities may now have regard to the interests of consumers in relation to other utilities³⁴ and must, as a result of amendments made by the Energy Act 2004, carry out those functions in the manner best calculated, among other things, to contribute to the achievement of sustainable development³⁵.

The Energy Act 2004 has made further amendments to the Gas Act 1986 and has also introduced a special administration regime for gas transportation companies facing actual or threatened insolvency³⁶ and established a mechanism allowing energy market participants to appeal against GEMA's decisions on modifications to the codes that govern activities in the gas and electricity markets³⁷.

4 See the Gas Act 1986 s 2 (repealed). The Secretary of State was given power to pay, with Treasury approval and out of money provided by Parliament, compensation for (1) loss of office or loss or diminution of pension rights to the former chairmen of the national and regional consumers' councils; (2) loss of employment or loss or diminution of remuneration or pension rights to former officers of any of those councils: see s 44(1)-(3). As to the Secretary of State see PARA 601 note 1 ante.

5 Ibid s 3 (repealed), s 68(2); Gas Act 1986 (Appointed Day) Order 1986, SI 1986/1316, art 2. Certain transitional provisions relating to offices and addresses, agreements etc, deposits, offences, arbitration and the application of other enactments to persons carrying on gas undertakings came into force on the appointed day: see the Gas Act 1986 s 67(3), Sch 8 Pt I paras 11-14, 16-17.

6 See ibid s 7 (as originally enacted).

7 'Public gas supplier' meant any person who held an authorisation under ibid s 7 (as originally enacted) except where that person was acting otherwise than for purposes connected with the supply of gas through pipes to premises in its authorised area: see s 7(1) (as originally enacted).

8 These duties were generally statutory, not contractual.

9 See the Gas Act 1986 s 10 (as originally enacted).

10 See ibid s 15, Sch 5 (repealed).

11 See ibid ss 49(1), (3), (4), 68(3); and the Gas Act 1986 (Transfer Date) Order 1986, SI 1986/1318, art 2. The successor company, and its successors, is thus not liable under the Environmental Protection Act 1990 Pt IIA (ss 78A-78YC) (as added and amended: see ENVIRONMENTAL QUALITY AND PUBLIC HEALTH vol 46 (2010) PARA 761 et seq) for contamination of land caused by private gas companies prior to the Gas Act 1948 (repealed): see R (on the application of National Grid Gas plc (formerly Transco plc)) v Environment Agency [2007] UKHL 30, [2007] 3 All ER 877, [2007] 1 WLR 1780. The successor company was to be treated, for all purposes of corporation tax and petroleum revenue tax, as if it were the same person as the British Gas Corporation; but it is not thereby to be regarded as a body falling within the Taxation of Chargeable Gains Act 1992 s 170(12) (bodies established for carrying on industries or undertakings under national ownership or control: see CAPITAL GAINS TAXATION vol 5(1) (2004 Reissue) PARA 187): Gas Act 1986 s 60(1), (2) (amended by the Taxation of Chargeable Gains Act 1992 s 290(1), Sch 10 para 13; the Finance Act 1998, s 165, Sch 27, Pt V(3)).

On the transfer date, all the rights and liabilities to which the British Gas Corporation was entitled or subject immediately before that date under the terms of issue of British Gas stock became rights and liabilities of the Treasury, and as from that date, British Gas stock was deemed to have been created and issued under the National Loans Act 1968: Gas Act 1986 s 50(1), (2). See further s 50(6), (7). 'British Gas stock' means any stock created and issued under the Gas Act 1972 s 21 (repealed) or under the Gas Act 1948 (repealed): Gas Act 1986 s 50(8). Certain transitional provisions came into force on the transfer date: see Sch 8 Pt II (paras 18-41).

12 See ibid s 49(2); and the Gas Act 1986 (Nominated Company) Order 1986, SI 1986/1317, art 2.

13 See the Gas Act 1986 s 51 (ss 51, 52 amended by the Finance Act 1988 s 148, Sch 14 Pt XI). The Treasury or the Secretary of State might appoint nominees for this purpose: Gas Act 1986 s 53(1)(a), (2). Any annual payment secured by any debentures issued in pursuance of s 51 (as so amended) was treated, with respect to accounting periods ending before 31 March 1996, for all purposes of corporation tax as if it were a charge on the income of the successor company (s 60(3) (as originally enacted)); with respect to accounting periods ending after that date, any debentures issued in pursuance of s 51 (as so amended) are to be treated, for the purposes of the Income and Corporation Taxes Act 1988 Pt VI (ss 208-254) (as amended) (company distributions) and the Finance Act 1996 Pt IV Ch II (ss 80-105) (as amended) (loan relationships), as having been issued for new consideration equal to the principal sum payable under the debenture (Gas Act 1986 s 60(3) (substituted by the Finance Act 1996 s 104, Sch 14 para 4)).

14 See the Gas Act 1986 s 52 (as amended: see note 13 supra). The Treasury or the Secretary of State might appoint nominees for this purpose: s 53(1)(b), (2).

15 Any power conferred on the Secretary of State by the Gas Act 1986 to make orders is exercisable by statutory instrument, subject, except in the case of an order appointing a day or an order under s 23 (as substituted and amended) (see PARA 812 post), s 30A (as added) (see PARA 973 post), s 33BC (as added and amended) (see PARA 895 post), s 41A (as added) (see PARA 871 post), s 41C (as added and amended) (see PARA 819 post), s 49(2) (see note 12 supra) or s 57(2) (repealed) (see note 18 infra), to annulment in pursuance of a resolution of either House of Parliament: s 64(1), (2) (amended by the Gas Act 1995 ss 11(7), 17(5), Sch 6; the Utilities Act 2000 s 108, Sch 6 Pt I paras 1, 21).

16 See the Gas Act 1986 s 54; and the Gas Act 1986 (Government Shareholding) Order 1987, SI 1987/866, setting a limit of 2.680% of the voting rights exercisable in all circumstances at general meetings of the company.

17 See the Gas Act 1986 s 55 (financial structure); s 56 (temporary restrictions on successor company's borrowings etc if its articles of association confer certain powers on the Secretary of the State). Provision was also made for the application of the Trustee Investments Act 1961 in relation to investment in the successor company: see the Gas Act 1986 s 59.

778. Subordinate legislation.

The Gas Acts 1948 and 1972¹ conferred upon the relevant minister² power to deal with various matters by regulations or orders³. Regulations made before 23 August 1986⁴ ('the appointed day') and still effective on that date continued to have effect as if made under the relevant provision of the Gas Act 1986⁵.

The Secretary of State⁶ may by order make such consequential modifications⁷ of any provision contained in any Act (whether public general or local) passed, or in subordinate legislation made, before the appointed day as appear to him necessary or expedient in respect of any reference therein to the British Gas Corporation, to a person carrying on a gas undertaking or to such an undertaking, or to any enactment repealed by the Gas Act 1986⁸.

Regulations made under any provision of Part I⁹ of the Gas Act 1986:

949 (1) may provide for the determination of questions of fact or of law which may arise in giving effect to the regulations and for regulating, except in relation to court proceedings, any matters relating to the practice and procedure to be followed in connection with the determination of such questions, including provision:

47

65. (a) as to the mode of proof of any matter;

66. (b) as to parties and their representation;

67. (c) for the right to appear before and be heard by the Secretary of State, the Gas and Electricity Markets Authority ('GEMA')¹⁰ and other authorities; and

68. (d) as to awarding costs or expenses of proceedings for the determination of such questions, determining the amount thereof and the enforcement of awards thereof¹¹;

950 (2) which prescribe a period within which things are to be done may provide for extending the period so prescribed¹²;

951 (3) may:

69. (a) provide for anything falling to be determined under the regulations to be determined by the Authority, or by such other person as may be prescribed by the regulations, and in accordance with such procedure and by reference to such matters and to the opinion of such persons as may be so prescribed;

71. (c) provide for such exceptions, limitations and conditions and make such supplementary, incidental or transitional provision, as the Secretary of State or, as the case may be, the Authority, considers necessary or expedient¹³;

952 (4) may provide that any person contravening the regulations is to be guilty of an offence and liable on summary conviction to a fine not exceeding level 5 on the standard scale¹⁴.

Any power to make regulations which is conferred by Part I of the Gas Act 1986¹⁵ on the Secretary of State or the Authority is exercisable by statutory instrument¹⁶ subject, in the case of regulations made by the Secretary of State and unless otherwise provided, to annulment in pursuance of a resolution of either House of Parliament¹⁷.

(2) COGNATE LEGISLATION

(i) Works and Buildings

779. Safety and health at gas works.

Certain operational premises of gas suppliers are factories for the purposes of the factories legislation. These include works for the manufacture of gas from coal or oil and for the reformation of natural gas to the calorific value of coal gas, and premises used either for the storage of gas in a gasholder having a storage capacity of not less than 140 cubic metres or for the odourisation of natural gas at coastal reception stations¹.

The general purposes of Part I of the Health and Safety at Work etc Act 1974² include protecting the public from personal injury, fire, explosions and other dangers arising from the transmission, distribution, supply or use of gas³.

Water-sealed gasholders with a storage capacity of not less than 140 cubic metres⁴ must be of sound construction and properly maintained⁵; they must be thoroughly examined externally by a competent person at least once in every two years and a record containing the prescribed particulars of the examination must be entered in or attached to the appropriate register⁶. When any lift of a gasholder has been in use for more than 20 years, the internal state of the sheeting must be examined by a competent person at least once in every ten years⁷. No gasholder may be repaired or demolished except under the direct supervision of a competent person⁸.

1 See the Factories Act 1961 s 175(1)(a), (c), (2)(n) (amended by the Factories Act 1961 etc (Metrication) Regulations 1983, SI 1983/978, regs 3(1), 4(1), Sch 1). In Cox v S Cutler & Sons Ltd and Hampton Court Gas Co [1948] 2 All ER 665, CA, it was held that coal gas was an article within earlier statutory provisions, so that premises in which persons were employed in manual labour for the purpose of making it constituted a factory, and this view was approved in Longhurst v Guildford, Godalming and District Water Board [1963] AC 265, [1961] 3 All ER 545, HL.

2 I.e. the Health and Safety at Work etc Act 1974 Pt I (ss 1-54) (as amended): see HEALTH AND SAFETY AT WORK vol 52 (2009) PARA 420 et seq.

3 Offshore Safety Act 1992 s 2(1)(c). For these purposes, 'gas' means any substance which is or, if it were in a gaseous state, would be gas within the meaning of the Gas Act 1986 Pt I (ss 4AA-48) (as amended) (see PARA 802 post): Offshore Safety Act 1992 s 2(4).

The Health and Safety at Work etc Act 1974 Pt I (as amended) has effect as if the Pipe-lines Act 1962 s 58A (as added) (see RAILWAYS, INLAND WATERWAYS AND CROSS-COUNTRY PIPELINES vol 39(1A) (Reissue) PARA 560) and the Gas Act 1986 s 22A(1)(c) (as added and amended) (see PARA 843 post), Sch 2B para 17 (as added and amended) (see PARA 865 post) were existing statutory provisions within the meaning of that Part and were specified in the Health and Safety at Work etc Act 1974 Sch 1 col 3 (as amended) (see HEALTH AND SAFETY AT WORK vol 52 (2009) PARA 302): see the Gas Act 1995 s 16(1), Sch 4 para 10(1). Without prejudice to the generality of the Health and Safety at Work etc Act 1974 s 15(1) (as amended) (health and safety regulations), regulations under s 15 (as amended) may repeal or modify any of the provisions mentioned in the Gas Act 1995 Sch 4 para 10(1): Sch 4 para 10(2). Nothing in Sch 4 para 10(1) affects the operation of the Health and Safety at Work etc Act 1974 s 18 (as amended) (enforcement of relevant statutory provisions: see HEALTH AND SAFETY AT WORK vol 52 (2009) PARA 370 et seq) in relation to any time before such day as the Secretary of State may by order made by statutory instrument appoint, and different days may be appointed for different purposes: Gas Act 1995 Sch 4 para 10(3).

Any regulations made or having effect as if made under the Gas Act 1972 s 31 (repealed) which were effective on the appointed day, and did not make such provision as was mentioned in s 31(2)-(4) or s 42(2) (repealed), had effect as if made under the Health and Safety at Work etc Act 1974 s 15 (as amended) for the general purpose of protecting the public from personal injury, fire, explosions and other dangers arising from the transmission or distribution of gas through pipes, or from the use of gas supplied through pipes; and subject to the Gas Act 1986 s 67(3), Sch 8 para 6(3), (4), the provisions of the Health and Safety at Work etc Act 1974 Pt I (as amended) and the provisions of the Gas Act 1986 apply accordingly: Sch 8 para 6(1), (2) (Sch 8 para 6(2) amended by the Offshore Safety Act 1992 s 3(3)(c)). For these purposes 'gas' has the same meaning as in the Gas Act 1986 Pt I (as amended) (see PARA 802 post): Sch 8 para 6(2A) (added by the Offshore Safety Act 1992 s 3(3)(d)). The Health and Safety at Work etc Act 1974 s 1(2) (as amended: see HEALTH AND SAFETY AT WORK vol 52 (2009) PARA 302) has effect as if any regulations to which the Gas Act 1986 Sch 8 para 6 (as so amended) applies were in force under an enactment specified in the Health and Safety at Work etc Act 1974 Sch 1 col 3 (as amended); and s 20 (as amended) (see HEALTH AND SAFETY AT WORK vol 52 (2009) PARA 376) has effect as if anything done before the appointed day in contravention of any regulations to which the Gas Act 1986 Sch 8 para 6 (as so amended) applies had been done on or after that day: Sch 8 para 6(3), (4). The 'appointed day' is 23 August 1986: see s 3, 66, 68(2); and the Gas Act 1986 (Appointed Day) Order 1986, SI 1986/1316, art 2. 'Contravention', in relation to any direction, condition, requirement, regulation or order, includes any failure to comply with it and cognate expressions are to be construed accordingly: Gas Act 1986 s 66.

4 Gasholders of smaller capacity are not affected: see the Factories Act 1961 s 39(7) (amended by the Factories Act 1961 etc (Metrication) Regulations 1983, SI 1983/978, regs 3(1), 4(1), Sch 1).

780. Building regulations.

Nothing in the statutory provisions relating to building regulations¹ and nothing in such regulations applies in relation to a building belonging to gas transporters² or other statutory undertakers and held or used by them for the purposes of their undertaking, unless it is a house or a building used as offices or showrooms³. Such regulations may apply to various aspects of building construction including the ventilation of buildings, and also to gas stoves and other gas fittings in buildings to the extent that such regulations are required for health and safety purposes and fuel and water conservation⁴. They may also impose continuing requirements in relation to fuel, power and emissions⁵.

(ii) Gas Appliances

A. INSTALLATION OF APPLIANCES

781. Installation of appliances.

The statutory regulations governing buildings and works and fittings apply to the installation in buildings of combustion appliances, including those which burn gas¹, and chimneys, flue pipes, hearths and fireplace recesses for use in connection with them².

The general requirements imposed on persons intending to carry out building work to give certain notices³ and to deposit full plans⁴ do not apply to the installation of a heat-producing gas appliance if the appliance is to be installed by a person, or an employee of a person, who is competent⁵ to do so⁶. Nor do they apply to the installation of a heating or hot water service system connected to a heat-producing gas appliance, or associated controls, if the installation is to be carried out by a person registered by CORGI Services Ltd in respect of that type of work⁷. Specific regulations have been made relating to the safe installation and use of gas appliances⁸.

PARTICULAR PROVISIONS RELATING TO GAS/(2) COGNATE LEGISLATION/ (ii) Gas Appliances/B. SAFETY OF HEATING AND COOKING APPLIANCES/782. Safety of heating and cooking appliances; in general.

B. SAFETY OF HEATING AND COOKING APPLIANCES

782. Safety of heating and cooking appliances; in general.

In the exercise of his statutory powers under the Consumer Protection Act 1987 to make regulations in respect of certain goods for the purpose of securing that they are safe or, if unsafe, not generally available and that appropriate information is provided¹, and also as the designated minister in relation to European Community measures relating to safety as regards appliances burning gaseous fuels², the Secretary of State³ has made the Gas Appliances (Safety) Regulations 1995⁴. Those regulations do not apply to the supply of certain secondhand appliances⁵ which must meet the standards of earlier regulations⁶. Subject to that, no manufacturer or his authorised representative established in the Community is to supply⁷:

- 953 (1) an appliance⁸ or a fitting⁹ which does not comply with the essential requirements¹⁰;
- 954 (2) an appliance or a fitting in respect of which there is not in force at that time:
51
 - 72. (a) either an EC type-examination certificate¹¹ and an EC declaration of conformity to type¹²; or
 - 73. (b) an EC type-examination certificate and either an EC declaration of conformity (guarantee of product or production quality)¹³ or an EC declaration of conformity (EC verification)¹⁴ and either an EC declaration of conformity issued by a notified body¹⁵ or a fitting certificate¹⁶; or
 - 74. (c) an EC declaration of conformity (EC unit verification)¹⁷ and an EC certificate of conformity¹⁸ issued by a notified body¹⁹,
- 52
 - 955 or a corresponding declaration issued by a manufacturer or his authorised representative established in the Community, or a corresponding certificate issued under the law of another member state²⁰.

Nor is any person to supply:

- 956 (i) an appliance which, when normally used, is not safe²¹;
- 957 (ii) an appliance to which the CE marking has not been affixed²² or a fitting without a fitting certificate which has been issued²³.

The above provisions do not apply in any case in which a person placing an appliance or fitting on the market reasonably believes that it will not be put into service in the United Kingdom or in any other member state²⁴.

¹ See the Consumer Protection Act 1987 s 11 (as amended); and SALE OF GOODS AND SUPPLY OF SERVICES vol 41 (2005 Reissue) PARA 539.

2 See the European Communities Act 1972 s 2(2); and EEC Council Directive 90/396 (OJ L196, 26.7.90, p 15) on the approximation of the laws of member states relating to appliances burning gaseous fuels (as amended) ('the Directive').

3 As to the Secretary of State see PARA 601 note 1 ante.

4 See the Gas Appliances (Safety) Regulations 1995, SI 1995/1629, which came into force generally on 18 July 1995: reg 1(3). For transitional provisions see regs 1(2), (3), 4(2)-(4). Subject to reg 29 (offences relating to domestic animals and to property: see PARA 786 post), the Gas Appliances (Safety) Regulations 1995, SI 1995/1629, are to be treated for all purposes as if they were safety regulations within the meaning of the Consumer Protection Act 1987 s 45(1) (see SALE OF GOODS AND SUPPLY OF SERVICES vol 41 (2005 Reissue) PARA 539): Gas Appliances (Safety) Regulations 1995, SI 1995/1629, reg 32. The Gas Appliances (Safety) Regulations 1995, SI 1995/1629, implement the Directive referred to in note 2 supra.

5 Subject to ibid reg 4(2)-(5), the Gas Appliances (Safety) Regulations 1995, SI 1995/1629, do not apply to (1) any appliance (for the meaning of which see note 8 infra) which does not bear the CE marking (as to which see note 23 infra) or any fitting (for the meaning of which see note 9 infra) in respect of which a fitting certificate has not been issued, and which in either case, was supplied for the first time in the Community before 1 January 1992; (2) any fitting, whenever manufactured, supplied for incorporation in appliances which do not bear the CE marking and were supplied for the first time in the Community before 1 January 1996: reg 4(1). Nor do they have effect in relation to the supply by any person of an appliance or fitting which (a) has at any time been put into service by another person; and (b) is supplied by a person who supplies appliances or fittings in the course of any business whether after repairing or reconditioning them or not: reg 4(5). 'Fitting certificate', in relation to a fitting, means a certificate to the effect that it conforms with the provisions of the Directive which apply to it: reg 2(1). As to the Directive see note 2 supra. For these purposes, 'the Community' means the European Community and other member states; 'member state' means a state which is a contracting party to the EEA Agreement; and 'EEA Agreement' means the Agreement on the European Economic Area signed at Oporto on 2 May 1992 as adjusted by the protocol signed at Brussels on 17 March 1993: Gas Appliances (Safety) Regulations 1995, SI 1995/1629, reg 2(1).

6 Secondhand appliances and fittings to which the 1995 regulations do not apply continue to be governed by the Gas Cooking Appliances (Safety) Regulations 1989, SI 1989/149 and the Heating Appliances (Fireguards) (Safety) Regulations 1991, SI 1991/2693 (otherwise revoked): see the Gas Appliances (Safety) Regulations 1995, SI 1995/1629, reg 1(3). See further SALE OF GOODS AND SUPPLY OF SERVICES vol 41 (2005 Reissue) PARA 613.

7 For these purposes, 'supply', in relation to an appliance or fitting: (1) includes offering to supply, agreeing to supply, exposing for supply and possessing for supply; and (2) except in reg 4(5) (see note 5 supra) or in relation to an appliance which has previously been put into service by any person, includes its first putting into service in the United Kingdom by the manufacturer or by the importer into the United Kingdom: reg 2(1). For the meaning of 'United Kingdom' see PARA 602 note 7 ante.

8 For these purposes, 'appliance' means an appliance burning gaseous fuel, ie any fuel which is in a gaseous state at a temperature of 15°C at a pressure of 1 bar, used for cooking, heating, hot-water production, refrigeration, lighting or washing and having, where applicable, a normal water temperature not exceeding 105°C and includes forced draught burners and heating bodies to be equipped with such burners but does not include an appliance specifically designed for use in an industrial process carried out on industrial premises: ibid reg 2(1).

9 For these purposes, 'fitting' means a safety device, a controlling device or a regulating device, and includes a sub-assembly of an appliance, but does not include a forced draught burner or heating body to be equipped with such a burner which is separately marketed for trade use and is designed to be incorporated into an appliance or assembled to constitute an appliance: ibid reg 2(1).

10 See ibid reg 7(1). 'Essential requirements' means the requirements in EEC Council Directive 90/396 (OJ L196, 26.7.90, p 15) Annex I set out in the Gas Appliances (Safety) Regulations 1995, SI 1995/1629, Sch 3: reg 2(1).

Subject to reg 3(2), an appliance or a fitting is to be taken to satisfy the essential requirements (1) if it satisfies a national standard which implements the relevant harmonised standard; or (2) where there is no relevant harmonised standard, if it satisfies a national standard of which the text is communicated to the European Commission pursuant to EEC Council Directive 90/396 (OJ L196, 26.7.90, p 15) art 5(2) and which, pursuant to that provision, is notified by the Commission to the member states as being presumed to conform to the essential requirements: Gas Appliances (Safety) Regulations 1995, SI 1995/1629, reg 3(1)(a). Regulation 3(1)(a) has effect in any case only where: (a) the national standard in question relates to all matters relevant to the essential requirements; and (b) there are no reasonable grounds for suspecting that the appliance or fitting does not satisfy the essential requirements: reg 3(2). 'Harmonised standard', in relation to appliances and fittings, means a technical specification: (i) which is adopted by one or both of the European Committee for Standardisation and the European Committee for Electrotechnical Standardisation upon a remit from the Commission in accordance with EEC Council Directive 83/189 (OJ L109, 26.4.83, p 8) (as amended) (now repealed and replaced: see European Parliament and EC Council Directive 98/34 (OJ L204, 21.7.98, p 37) laying down a procedure for the provision of information in the field of technical standards and regulations; and (ii) of which the reference number is published in the Official Journal in pursuance of EEC Council Directive 90/396 (OJ L196, 26.7.90, p 15) art 5(1)(a): Gas Appliances (Safety) Regulations 1995, SI 1995/1629, reg 3(3)(a).

11 'EC type-examination certificate' means a certificate issued by a notified body under ibid reg 10(4) (see PARA 784 post) or, as the case may be, issued under a corresponding provision of the law of another member state: reg 2(1). 'Notified body' means a body which is approved by the Secretary of State and whose name and identification number is notified by him to the Commission and to other member states in accordance with reg 5(1) (see PARA 783 post): reg 2(1). In the expression 'a notified body' in regs 24(3)(b) and 24(1)(a) (see PARA 783 post), 'all other notified bodies' in regs 10(6), 12(2)(b), 13(2)(b), 14(6)(b)(ii), 15(2)(b), 'another notified body' in regs 11(2)(b) and 14(1), 'any other notified body' in regs 10(6) and 11(1) and 'relevant notified body' in Sch 2 (specimen form of CE marking), 'notified body' also means a body which is approved for the purposes of the Directive by another member state and whose name and identification number is notified to the European Commission and other member states pursuant to EEC Council Directive 90/396 (OJ L196, 26.7.90, p 15) art 9(1): Gas Appliances (Safety) Regulations 1995, SI 1995/1629, reg 2(1).

12 le made in accordance with ibid reg 23. Where an EC type-examination certificate has been issued in respect of a type and the manufacturer or his authorised representative established in the Community is satisfied (1) that an appliance or a fitting has been manufactured in conformity with that certificate; and (2) that the requirements of reg 7 are satisfied in relation to the appliance or fitting, then subject to reg 24 (surveillance by notified bodies: see PARA 783 post), he may, in the case of an appliance, issue an EC declaration of conformity to type, and in the case of a fitting, supply a fitting certificate: reg 23(1). An EC declaration of conformity to type may relate to more than one appliance or fitting and must be retained by the manufacturer or his authorised representative established in the Community: reg 23(2). If the manufacturer or his authorised representative established in the Community issues an EC declaration of conformity to type he must, in the case of an appliance, affix the CE marking in accordance with reg 25: reg 23(3). 'Fitting certificate', in relation to a fitting, means a certificate to the effect that it conforms with the provisions of the Directive which apply to it: reg 2(1). For the meaning of 'CE marking' see note 22 infra.

13 le made in accordance with ibid reg 16. Where a manufacturer has implemented a quality system which has been approved under reg 14 or under a corresponding provision of the law of another member state and the manufacturer or his authorised representative established in the Community is satisfied that an appliance or a fitting has been manufactured in conformity with an approved type, then in the case of an appliance, he may issue (and if he does so must retain) a declaration that the appliance conforms with the relevant EC type-examination certificate and satisfies the relevant essential requirements (an 'EC declaration of conformity (guarantee of product or production quality)'); and if he does so, he must affix the CE marking in accordance with reg 25: reg 16(a). In the case of a fitting, he must supply a fitting certificate: reg 16(b).

14 le made in accordance with ibid reg 17. Where an EC type-examination certificate has been issued in respect of a type and the manufacturer or his authorised representative established in the Community is satisfied that an appliance or fitting has been manufactured in accordance with an approved type and that the requirements of the Directive that apply to it are satisfied in relation to an appliance or fitting, then, subject to reg 19 or reg 20, (1) in the case of an appliance, he may issue an EC declaration of conformity to type (EC verification), and if he does so, must affix the CE marking in accordance with reg 25; (2) in the case of a fitting, must supply a fitting certificate: reg 17(1). An EC declaration of conformity to type (EC verification) may relate to more than one appliance and must be retained by the manufacturer, or as the case may be, his authorised representative established in the Community: reg 17(2).

15 le issued under ibid reg 19 (EC verification (individual appliances and fittings)) or reg 20 (EC verification by batch (statistical method)): see PARA 784 post.

16 le a fitting certificate issued under ibid reg 25(4). In the case of a fitting, the manufacturer or his authorised representative established in the Community must, in accordance with regs 1-25(3), issue a certificate (which may relate to a number of identical fittings and is called a 'fitting certificate') by way of confirmation that the fitting to which the certificate relates conforms with the provisions of the 1995 Regulations which relate to it; and a fitting certificate must describe the characteristics of the fitting and the manner in which the fitting is to be incorporated into an appliance, or in which it and other fittings are to be assembled, in order to comply with the essential requirements: reg 25(4). It is the duty of the manufacturer or his authorised representative established in the Community to supply a copy of the certificate with the fitting: reg 25(4).

17 le made in accordance with ibid reg 18. Where a manufacturer of an appliance or his authorised representative established in the Community is satisfied that the requirements of the Directive that apply to it are satisfied in relation to the appliance he may issue (and if he does so must retain) an EC declaration of conformity (EC unit verification): reg 18(1). If the manufacturer or his authorised representative established in the Community issues an EC declaration of conformity to type (EC unit verification), he must affix the CE marking in accordance with reg 25 (see note 22 infra) but subject to reg 21 (see note 19 infra): reg 18(2).

18 'EC certificate of conformity' means a certificate of conformity issued under reg 19 or reg 20 (see note 15 supra) or reg 21 (see note 19 infra): reg 2(1). If a notified body is minded to refuse to issue an EC certificate of conformity under any of regs 19, 20 and 21, it must give the applicant the opportunity of making representations within a reasonable period as to why it should not be refused: reg 22(1). Where a notified body, having considered any representations made in accordance with reg 22(1), refuses an EC certificate of conformity, it must, in writing, inform the applicant of its decision and the grounds for its decision: reg 22(2).

19 le under ibid reg 21. Where a manufacturer or his authorised representative established in the Community desires that an EC certificate of conformity is to be issued by a notified body under reg 21, he must: (1) inform the notified body of his desire; (2) provide the design documentation to the notified body; and (3) either (a) submit the appliance to the notified body; or (b) if the notified body so decides, make provision for the notified body to carry out its functions under reg 21 at the place where the appliance is installed; and must undertake to pay the appropriate fee to the notified body: reg 21(1). The notified body must examine the appliance and carry out tests to establish whether it satisfies the essential requirements and the provisions of the 1995 Regulations which apply to it: reg 21(2). If, having carried out the examination and tests, the notified body is satisfied that an EC certificate of conformity should be issued, it must, on payment of the appropriate fee, issue an EC certificate of conformity, which must be retained by the manufacturer or his authorised representative established in the Community, and must affix or cause to be affixed its identification number to the approved appliance: reg 21(3).

20 Ibid reg 8.

21 Ibid reg 7(2). For these purposes, 'normally used' in relation to use means use (1) when correctly installed and regularly serviced in accordance with the manufacturer's instructions referred to in EEC Council Directive 90/396 (OJ L196, 26.7.90, p 15) Annex II para 1(2) (set out in the Gas Appliances (Safety) Regulations 1995, SI 1995/1629, Sch 3); (2) within the normal variations of gas quality and pressure; and (3) in accordance with its intended purpose or in a way which can reasonably be foreseen: reg 7(2). 'Safe' has the same meaning as in the Consumer Protection Act 1987 s 19(1) (as amended) except that the references in that provision to 'risk' are to be construed as including references to any risk of (a) injury or impairment to the health or safety of any domestic animal; and (b) damage to any property: Gas Appliances (Safety) Regulations 1995, SI 1995/1629, reg 2(1).

22 'CE marking' means the CE conformity marking referred to in ibid reg 25, consisting of the initials 'CE' taking the form of the specimen given in Sch 2: reg 2(1). In accordance with regs 1-24, there must be affixed by the manufacturer or his authorised representative established in the Community, to each appliance (or on a data plate securely affixed to the appliance) in a visible, easily legible and indelible form (1) the CE marking by way of confirmation (a) that the appliance conforms with a type in respect of which an EC type-examination certificate is in force in accordance with the 1995 Regulations; or (b) that an EC certificate of conformity has been issued by it in accordance with those regulations in respect of the appliance; (2) the name (or, if it enables him to be identified, the trade name, trade mark or other identification symbol) of (a) the manufacturer of the appliance, if he is established in the Community; or (b) his authorised representative established in the Community, if he is not so established; (3) the trade name of the appliance; (4) the type of any electrical supply to be used in connection with the appliance; (5) the appliance category; and (6) the last two digits of the year in which the CE marking was affixed: reg 25(1). No person must affix to an appliance any markings likely to deceive third parties as to the meaning and form of the CE marking affixed in accordance with the 1995 Regulations or which reduces the visibility or legibility of the CE marking so affixed: reg 25(2). A data plate must be so designed that it cannot be reused: reg 25(3).

Subject to reg 26(2), where the appliance is the subject of Community Directives other than the Directive referred to in note 2 supra ('the Directive'), in addition to the Directive, which provide among other things for the affixing of the CE marking, the CE marking affixed in relation to the Directive must indicate that the appliance conforms to the provisions of those other Community Directives: reg 26(1). Where any of those Community Directives allows the manufacturer, during a transitional period, to choose which arrangements apply, the CE marking must indicate conformity only to the Community Directives applied by the manufacturer; and in this case, particulars of the Community Directives applied, as published in the Official Journal, must be given in the documents, notices or instructions required by the Community Directives and accompanying such appliances: Gas Appliances (Safety) Regulations 1995, SI 1995/1629, reg 26(2).

PARTICULAR PROVISIONS RELATING TO GAS/(2) COGNATE LEGISLATION/ (ii) Gas Appliances/B. SAFETY OF HEATING AND COOKING APPLIANCES/783. Notified bodies.

783. Notified bodies.

The Secretary of State¹ may approve one or more bodies (known as 'notified bodies')² to perform functions under the Gas Appliances (Safety) Regulations 1995³. Any such approval may be given for an unlimited period or for a specified period and may be given subject to conditions, and the Secretary of State may withdraw an approval if the body ceases to satisfy or comply with any such condition⁴. A notified body may:

- 958 (1) carry out or secure the carrying out of examinations and tests and issue EC type-examination certificates in respect of models of appliances and fittings⁵;
- 959 (2) carry out or secure the carrying out of examinations and evaluations and approve quality systems⁶;
- 960 (3) carry out or secure the carrying out of examinations and issue EC certificates of conformity of appliances and fittings⁷;
- 961 (4) carry out or secure the carrying out of examinations and issue EC certificates of conformity in respect of batches of appliances and fittings⁸;
- 962 (5) require an applicant to supply further specimens of the model to which an application for EC type-examination⁹ relates; and
- 963 (6) do such other things as may be required or permitted under those regulations¹⁰.

They may require an applicant to pay fees in connection with the performance of certain of their functions¹¹, and must carry out surveillance as provided for in the 1995 Regulations¹².

11 A notified body may require a fee to be paid by the applicant in connection with the performance of functions under ibid regs 10, 14, 19, 20, 21 (see PARA 782 ante, PARA 784 post) and reg 24 (see note 12 infra) ('the appropriate fee') and the fee in every case must not exceed the sum of: (1) the costs of the notified body of and in connection with the functions carried out or to be carried out by it under the 1995 Regulations ('the relevant service'); and (2) an amount on account of profit which is reasonable in the circumstances having regard to (a) the character and extent of the work done or to be done by the notified body in providing the relevant service; and (b) the commercial rate normally charged on account of profit for that work or similar work: reg 6.

12 Subject to the following provisions, where a manufacturer or his authorised representative established in the Community issues an EC declaration of conformity to type or a fitting certificate under ibid reg 23 (see PARA 782 note 12 ante) he must: (1) appoint a notified body for the purposes of EC surveillance under the Directive; and (2) undertake to pay from time to time the appropriate fee for work done by a notified body under reg 24; and the notified body must carry out checks under this provision: reg 24(1). Where a quality system was approved under reg 14 (see PARA 785 post), the notified body which approved the quality system must be the body to carry out EC surveillance under this provision: reg 24(2). In carrying out EC surveillance under reg 24, the notified body, (a) in the case of surveillance under reg 24(1), must, at intervals of not more than one year, carry out sufficient random examinations and checks in order to ensure that appliances or fittings manufactured by the manufacturer conform to the relevant EC type-examination certificate and the relevant essential requirements; and (b) in the case of surveillance under reg 24(2), must, at intervals of not more than two years, carry out checks in order to ensure that the manufacturer is maintaining and applying the quality system and may, from time to time as it thinks fit, carry out visits at the places of manufacture, inspection, testing and storage and carry out, or have carried out, tests on appliances or fittings to check whether the manufacturer is maintaining and applying the quality system; and must, in each case, provide the manufacturer with a report on its findings: reg 24(3). A manufacturer must, upon request made by it (if it is not the notified body which made the report) provide to the notified body which issues the EC type-examination certificate a copy of any report made to him under reg 24(3) and must permit inspection of the original thereof: reg 24(4). For the purpose of assisting the notified body to carry out EC surveillance under reg 24(2) above, the manufacturer must, in respect of each appliance or fitting, keep available for inspection by the notified body all necessary information, including the documentation of the quality system, the design documentation of the appliance or fitting and the quality records: reg 24(5). For the purposes of reg 24(1)-(5), a duly authorised officer of the notified body responsible for EC surveillance may, on production if requested of his credentials, at all reasonable times enter any premises used for the purpose of manufacture, inspection, testing or storage of any appliance or fitting by or on behalf of the manufacturer: reg 24(6). If the notified body is not satisfied that the appliances or fittings tested by it satisfy the requirements of the relevant EC type-examination certificate or of the 1995 Regulations, it must give to the manufacturer a report advising him of the steps necessary to remedy the non-compliance: reg 24(7). If it is the notified body which issued the EC type-examination certificate, the notified body must consider whether it should exercise its powers under reg 13 (see PARA 784 post) or if it is not the notified body which issued the EC type-examination certificate, it must notify the notified body which issued it: reg 24(7)(a). If, however, it is the notified body which approved the quality system, it must consider whether it should exercise its powers under reg 15 (see PARA 785 post) or if it is not the notified body which approved the quality system, it must notify the notified body which issued it: reg 24(7)(b). Upon receipt of a notification under reg 24(7), it is the duty of a notified body to consider whether it should exercise its powers under reg 13 or reg 15: reg 24(8). A manufacturer must, on demand, pay to the notified body the appropriate fee for work done by it under reg 24: reg 24(9).

Halsbury's Laws of England/FUEL AND ENERGY (VOLUME 19(1) (2007 REISSUE) PARAS 601-775; VOLUME 19(2) (2007 REISSUE) PARAS 776-1328); VOLUME 19(3) (2007 REISSUE) PARAS 1329-1927)/3. PARTICULAR PROVISIONS RELATING TO GAS/(2) COGNATE LEGISLATION/ (ii) Gas Appliances/B. SAFETY OF HEATING AND COOKING APPLIANCES/784. EC type-examination and EC verification.

784. EC type-examination and EC verification.

Where an application to a notified body¹ for EC type-examination is made under the Gas Appliances (Safety) Regulations 1995² by the manufacturer or by his authorised representative established in the Community ('the applicant'), the application must be in writing and must include:

- 964 (1) the name and address of the manufacturer and, if the application is lodged by the authorised representative, his name and address;
- 965 (2) a declaration that an application for EC type-examination in respect of the appliance³ or fitting⁴ has not been made to any other notified body; and
- 966 (3) the design documentation⁵.

The applicant must supply to the notified body:

- 967 (a) an appliance or fitting which, so far as concerns its characteristics relevant to any type of risk relevant to the essential requirements⁶, is representative of the production envisaged ('the type'); and
- 968 (b) such further appliances or fittings as the notified body may reasonably require for these purposes; and must undertake to pay the appropriate fee to the notified body⁷.

On an application so made to it the notified body must examine the design documentation and check that the type⁸ has been manufactured in conformity with that documentation; and must carry out, or have carried out, examinations and tests to check whether the type satisfies the essential requirements⁹. Where the notified body, after carrying out its duties under the above provision, is satisfied that the type complies with the essential requirements which apply to it, the notified body must, on payment of the appropriate fee, issue to the applicant an EC type-examination certificate¹⁰ in respect of that type¹¹. The notified body must forthwith inform all other notified bodies of each EC type-examination certificate issued by it and of particulars of additions and amendments relating to documents already issued, and, on request made by it, must send to any other notified body a copy of any EC type-examination certificate that it has issued and, if any other notified body satisfies the notified body that there is good reason why they should be made available to it, copies of the annexes to the certificate and reports on the examinations and tests which the notified body has carried out¹². Where an EC type-examination certificate so issued is in force in respect of an approved type and the manufacturer or his authorised representative established in the Community proposes to make modifications or additions to the approved type which affect its conformity with the essential requirements or with the prescribed conditions for use of the appliance, the manufacturer or such representative may¹³ make an application in writing to the notified body which issued the certificate for approval of modifications or additions to the approved type; and the above provisions¹⁴ have effect in relation to such an application as they have effect in relation to an application for an EC type-examination¹⁵.

No person must make an application for EC type-examination under the above provisions in respect of a type at any time when there is pending in respect of that type an application for EC type-examination made by any person to any other notified body¹⁶. Where an application for EC type-examination is so made to a notified body in respect of a type and, to the knowledge of the notified body, an application to another notified body for an EC type-examination certificate in respect of that type is pending, the notified body must not consider, or must not further consider, the application until the other application has been determined or withdrawn¹⁷.

If a notified body is minded to refuse to issue an EC type-examination certificate, it must give the applicant the opportunity, within a reasonable period, of making representations as to why it should not be refused¹⁸. Where the notified body, after considering any representations made in accordance with that invitation, refuses to issue an EC type-examination certificate or to extend its period of validity, it must, in writing, inform the applicant and the Secretary of State of its decision and the grounds for its decision and inform all other notified bodies of the decision¹⁹.

If it appears to a notified body either that there has been a breach of any condition subject to which the body issued an EC type-examination certificate, and that the person to whom it was issued is unable or unwilling to effect a sufficient remedy, or that appliances or fittings which conform with the type in respect of which an EC type-examination certificate has been issued do not satisfy the essential requirements, the notified body may withdraw the certificate after giving the person to whom it was issued the opportunity of making representations within a reasonable period as to why it should not be withdrawn²⁰. Where a notified body, having considered any representations so made, withdraws an EC type-examination certificate, it must, in writing, inform the person to whom it was issued and the Secretary of State of the withdrawal of the certificate and of its reasons for the withdrawal and inform all other notified bodies of its withdrawal²¹.

Where a manufacturer or his authorised representative established in the Community submits an appliance or fitting to a notified body for verification²² together with an undertaking to pay the appropriate fee, the notified body must examine the appliance or fitting and carry out tests to establish whether it satisfies the provisions of the 1995 Regulations which apply to it and, in the case of an appliance, whether it conforms with the relevant EC type-examination certificate²³. If, having carried out the examination, the notified body is satisfied that an EC certificate of conformity should be issued, it must, on payment of the appropriate fee, issue an EC certificate of conformity (which may relate to one or more appliance or fitting and must be retained by the manufacturer or his authorised agent established in the Community) and in the case of an appliance must affix or cause to be affixed its identification number on each appliance²⁴.

Where a manufacturer or his authorised representative established in the Community submits a batch²⁵ of appliances or fittings to a notified body for verification²⁶ together with an undertaking to pay the appropriate fee, the approved body must carry out an examination and tests of appliances or fittings in the batch²⁷ to establish whether items in the batch conform with the relevant EC type-examination certificate and, in the case of an appliance, satisfy the provisions of the 1995 Regulations which apply to it²⁸. If, having carried out the examination, the notified body is satisfied that an EC certificate of conformity should be issued it must, on payment of the appropriate fee, issue an EC certificate of conformity which must identify any appliance or fitting in the batch with which the notified body is not satisfied²⁹ and must be retained by the manufacturer or his authorised representative established in the Community; and must, in the case of an appliance, affix or cause to be affixed its identification number³⁰. Where the notified body issues an EC certificate of conformity in respect of a batch, the manufacturer or his authorised agent established in the Community:

- 969 (i) may supply any appliance or fitting in the batch other than one within head
- (ii) below; and

970 (ii) must not supply any appliance or fitting which is identified in the EC certificate of conformity as one with which the notified body was not satisfied³¹.

Where the notified body declines to issue an EC certificate of conformity in respect of a batch, the notified body must take all reasonable steps to ensure that no appliance or fitting in the batch is supplied by any person; and no person must supply any appliance or fitting which was comprised in the batch³². If, having regard to the objectives of the relevant European Directive³³, it appears to the notified body that the number of batches of appliances or fittings to which an EC type-examination certificate applies and in respect of which it has declined to issue an EC certificate of conformity is unsatisfactory, it may suspend verification in respect of appliances or fittings to which that EC type-examination certificate applies³⁴.

PARTICULAR PROVISIONS RELATING TO GAS/(2) COGNATE LEGISLATION/ (ii) Gas Appliances/B. SAFETY OF HEATING AND COOKING APPLIANCES/785. Quality system approval.

785. Quality system approval.

Where an application for approval of a quality system¹ relating to production quality or a quality system relating to product quality is made to a notified body², whether the relevant EC type-examination certificate³ was issued by it or by another notified body, the application must be made in writing and must be accompanied by an undertaking by the manufacturer:

- 971 (1) to carry out the obligations arising from the approved quality system;
- 972 (2) to maintain the approved quality system to ensure its continuing suitability and effectiveness; and
- 973 (3) to pay the appropriate fee⁴;

and such systems must be designed to secure that appliances⁵ and fittings⁶ comply with the essential requirements⁷ which apply to them⁸. The manufacturer must make available to the notified body:

- 974 (a) a copy of the EC type-examination certificate;
- 975 (b) all relevant information including in particular the documentation of the quality system⁹; and
- 976 (c) the design documentation¹⁰ of the appliances or fittings¹¹.

On an application so made to it the notified body must take all necessary steps to examine and evaluate the quality system¹². If the notified body is minded to refuse to approve the quality system, it must give the applicant the opportunity, within a reasonable period, of making representations as to why it should not be refused¹³. Where the notified body, after considering any representations so made to it, refuses to approve a quality system, it must, in writing, inform the Secretary of State¹⁴ of its decision and the grounds for its decision and inform all other notified bodies of the decision¹⁵. The notified body must, in writing, inform the manufacturer of the results of the examination, and of the reasons for the decision, and, if it is satisfied that the quality system satisfies the relevant provisions of the applicable European Directive¹⁶, must, on payment of the appropriate fee, notify the applicant of its approval of the quality system and inform all other notified bodies of its decision¹⁷. Where an approval of a quality system under the above provisions is in force and the manufacturer proposes to make modifications or additions to the approved quality system, the manufacturer may¹⁸ may make an application in writing to the notified body which gave the approval for approval of modifications or additions to the quality system; and the above provisions have effect in relation to such an application as they have effect in relation to an application for approval of a quality system¹⁹.

If it appears to a notified body which approved a quality system under the above provisions that the person to whom it was issued has failed to implement the approved system and is unable or unwilling to effect a sufficient remedy, the notified body may withdraw the approval after giving the person to whom it was issued the opportunity of making representations within a reasonable period as to why it should not be withdrawn²⁰. Where the notified body, having considered any representations so made, withdraws a quality system approval, it must, in writing, inform the person to whom it was issued and the Secretary of State of the withdrawal of the approval and of its reasons for the withdrawal, and inform all other notified bodies of its withdrawal²¹.

PARTICULAR PROVISIONS RELATING TO GAS/(2) COGNATE LEGISLATION/ (ii) Gas Appliances/B. SAFETY OF HEATING AND COOKING APPLIANCES/786. Enforcement.

786. Enforcement.

Except in the case of an appliance¹ or fitting² which in the opinion of the enforcement authority³ is likely to jeopardise the safety or health of any person, where an enforcement authority has reasonable grounds for suspecting that:

977 (1) the affixing of the CE marking⁴ to an appliance to which the Gas Appliances (Safety) Regulations 1995⁵ apply; or

978 (2) in the case of a fitting to which those regulations apply, the issue of a fitting certificate⁶, involves a contravention of those regulations or any part of them, it may serve a notice (a 'compliance notice')⁷ on the manufacturer of that appliance or fitting or his authorised representative established in the Community⁸.

Every authority and council on whom a duty is imposed by virtue of the relevant provision of the Consumer Protection Act 1987⁹ must give immediate notice to the Secretary of State¹⁰ of:

979 (a) any compliance notice served by it in respect of any appliance or fitting to which the 1995 Regulations apply;

980 (b) any suspension notice¹¹ served by it in respect of any appliance or fitting to which those regulations apply;

981 (c) any application made by it for an order for forfeiture of such an appliance or fitting; and 982 (d) any other thing done in respect of any appliance or fitting for the purposes of, or in connection with, the relevant enforcement provisions¹² of that Act¹³.

Any person who without reasonable excuse contravenes or fails to comply with the prohibition on supplying an appliance or a fitting which does not satisfy the essential requirements or which, when normally used, is not safe¹⁴, in so far as it applies to injury or impairment to the health or safety of any domestic animal or damage to any property, is guilty of an offence and punishable on summary conviction with imprisonment for not more than three months or with a fine of not more than level 5 on the standard scale¹⁵. Where the commission by any person of such an offence is due to the act or default of some other person, that other person is guilty of the offence, and a person may be charged with and convicted of the offence by virtue of this provision whether or not proceedings are taken against the first-mentioned person¹⁶. Where such an offence committed by a body corporate is proved to have been committed with the consent or connivance of, or to be attributable to any neglect on the part of, any director, manager, secretary or other similar officer of the body corporate or any person purporting to act in any such capacity, he as well as the body corporate is to be deemed guilty of the offence¹⁷.

A magistrates' court in England and Wales may try an information in respect of an offence committed under the above provision¹⁸ or under the provision of the Consumer Protection Act 1987 relating to offences against safety regulations¹⁹ in relation to a contravention of the 1995 Regulations, if the information is laid within 12 months from the time when the offence is committed²⁰. Without prejudice to that provision, in so far as those regulations apply in relation to:

- 983 (i) appliances or fittings designed for use or operation, whether exclusively or not, by persons at work; and
- 984 (ii) appliances or fittings designed for use, otherwise than at work, in non-domestic premises made available to persons as a place where they may use the appliances or fittings provided for their use there, the Health and Safety Executive²¹ may make arrangements for the enforcement of the 1995 Regulations and the specified provisions of the Health and Safety at Work etc Act 1974²² apply as if those regulations were health and safety regulations and, accordingly, relevant statutory provisions within the meaning of the 1974 Act²³, any reference therein to an enforcing authority were a reference to the Health and Safety Executive and any reference therein to any provision of the 1974 Act were a reference to that provision as, and so far as, it is so applied²⁴. The Health and Safety Executive must, where action has been taken by it to prohibit or restrict the supply of any appliance which bears the CE marking or of any fitting in respect of which a fitting certificate has been issued, forthwith inform the Secretary of State of the action taken, and the reason for it, with a view to this information being passed by him to the European Commission²⁵.

A person who supplies an appliance which does not bear the CE marking or a fitting which is not accompanied by a fitting certificate, must, on his being required at a reasonable time to give such information, give to an enforcement authority, to the Health and Safety Executive or to any of its officers, all the information which he has about the date when the appliance or fitting was first supplied in the Community and the basis on which the appliance is not so marked or the fitting is not accompanied by a fitting certificate²⁶.

7 The notice must (1) specify the description of the appliance or fitting to which the notice relates; (2) state that the enforcement authority suspects that affixing of the CE marking to the appliance, or in the case of a fitting the issue of a fitting certificate, involves a contravention of a provision or provisions of the 1995 Regulations and the reasons for that suspicion; (3) specify the provision or provisions referred to in head (2) supra; (4) require that person (a) to secure that any appliance or fitting to which the notice relates conforms as regards the provisions concerning the CE marking, or issue of a fitting certificate, and to end the infringement within such period as may be specified by the notice; or (b) to provide evidence within that period to the satisfaction of the enforcement authority that all the provisions of the 1995 Regulations have been complied with; and (5) warn that person that if the non-conformity continues (or if satisfactory evidence has not been produced under head (4)(b) supra) within the period specified in the notice, further action may be taken under those regulations in respect of that appliance or fitting or an appliance or fitting of the same type supplied by that person: Gas Appliances (Safety) Regulations 1995, SI 1995/1629, reg 27(2), Sch 4 para 1. The notice may include directions as to the measures to be taken by that person to secure conformity of that appliance or fitting with the provisions of the 1995 Regulations including different ways of securing conformity: Sch 4 para 2.

NOTES--Certain functions under provisions mentioned in this paragraph are 'relevant functions' for the purposes of the Regulatory Enforcement and Sanctions Act 2008 s 4, Sch 3, see LOCAL GOVERNMENT vol 69 (2009) PARA 733.

(iii) Street Lighting

787. Street lighting.

The Secretary of State or the Welsh Ministers¹ and every local highway authority have power to provide lighting for the purposes of any highway or proposed highway² for which they are or will be the highway authority, and may for that purpose contract with any persons for the supply of gas and construct and maintain such lamps, posts and other works as they consider necessary³. These powers may be delegated, by agreement, to a lighting authority⁴. Likewise, a lighting authority may, with the consent of the highway authority⁵, exercise its own similar powers⁶. There are now very few locations where there is gas, as opposed to electric, street lighting⁷.

(iv) Compressed and Liquid Gases

788. Safety provisions.

Whenever a conveyor of flammable gas through a fixed pipe distribution system, or a filler, importer or supplier (other than by means of retail trade) of a refillable container containing liquefied petroleum gas¹ receives notification of any death or any major injury² which has arisen out of or in connection with the gas distributed, filled, imported or supplied, as the case may be, by that person, he must forthwith notify the Health and Safety Executive³ of the incident, and must within 14 days send a report of it to the Executive on a form approved⁴ for these purposes⁵.

The Dangerous Substances and Explosive Atmospheres Regulations 2002⁶ impose duties on employers with respect to dangerous and explosive substances generally⁷. Particular provision has been made with regard to liquid methane⁸ and with regard to any substance in a gaseous state which consists wholly or mainly of methane⁹.

Any person who designs, manufactures, imports or supplies pressure systems must ensure that certain conditions with respect to design, construction and verification thereof are complied with¹⁰. The placing on the market and use at work of transportable pressure equipment is also subject to regulations¹¹, as is the placing on the market of pressure equipment and assemblies with a maximum allowable pressure greater than 0.5 bar¹².

Regulations have also been made for safety precautions to be observed in the use of compressed gas propulsion systems on road vehicles¹³; and regulations made under the merchant shipping legislation¹⁴ require self-propelled cargo ships constructed or adapted and used for the carriage in bulk of certain liquefied gases to comply with international safety standards¹⁵.

The maximum sulphur content of gas oil placed on the market is prescribed by regulations¹⁶.

1 For these purposes, 'liquefied petroleum gas' means commercial butane (that is, a hydrocarbon mixture consisting predominantly of butane, butylene or any mixture thereof) or commercial propane (that is, a hydrocarbon mixture consisting predominantly of propane, propylene or any mixture thereof) or any mixture of commercial butane and commercial propane: Reporting of Injuries, Diseases and Dangerous Occurrences Regulations 1995, SI 1995/3163, reg 6(4).

NOTE 11--SI 2007/1573 replaced: Carriage of Dangerous Goods and Use of Transportable Pressure Equipment Regulations 2009, SI 2009/1348.

Halsbury's Laws of England/FUEL AND ENERGY (VOLUME 19(1) (2007 REISSUE) PARAS 601-775; VOLUME 19(2) (2007 REISSUE) PARAS 776-1328); VOLUME 19(3) (2007 REISSUE) PARAS 1329-1927)/3. PARTICULAR PROVISIONS RELATING TO GAS/ (3) GENERAL DUTIES AND FUNCTIONS OF THE SECRETARY OF STATE AND THE GAS AND ELECTRICITY MARKETS AUTHORITY/789. The principal objective and general duties of the Secretary of State and the Gas and Electricity Markets Authority ('GEMA').

(3) GENERAL DUTIES AND FUNCTIONS OF THE SECRETARY OF STATE AND THE GAS AND ELECTRICITY MARKETS AUTHORITY

789. The principal objective and general duties of the Secretary of State and the Gas and Electricity Markets Authority ('GEMA').

The principal objective of the Secretary of State¹ and the Gas and Electricity Markets Authority ('GEMA')² in carrying out their respective functions under Part I of the Gas Act 1986³ is to protect the interests of consumers⁴ in relation to gas⁵ conveyed through pipes, wherever appropriate by promoting effective competition between persons engaged in, or in commercial activities connected with, the shipping, transportation or supply of gas⁶ so conveyed⁷. The Secretary of State and the Authority must carry out those functions in the manner which he or it considers is best calculated to further the principal objective, having regard to:

- 985 (1) the need to secure that, so far as it is economical to meet them, all reasonable demands in Great Britain⁸ for gas conveyed through pipes are met; and
- 986 (2) the need to secure that licence holders⁹ are able to finance the activities which are the subject of obligations imposed by or under that Part of the 1986 Act or by or under the Utilities Act 2000¹⁰.

In performing that duty, the Secretary of State or the Authority must have regard to the interests of:

- 987 (a) individuals who are disabled or chronically sick;
- 988 (b) individuals of pensionable age¹¹;
- 989 (c) individuals with low incomes; and
- 990 (d) individuals residing in rural areas;

but that is not to be taken as implying that regard may not be had to the interests of other descriptions of consumer¹².

The Secretary of State and the Authority may, in carrying out any function under Part I of the 1986 Act¹³, have regard to:

- 991 (i) the interests of consumers in relation to electricity conveyed by distribution systems or transmission systems within the meaning of the Electricity Act 1989¹⁴; and
- 992 (ii) any interests of consumers in relation to communications services and electronic communications apparatus or in relation to water services or sewerage services within the meaning of the Water Industry Act 1991¹⁵, which are affected by the carrying out of that function¹⁶; and the Secretary of State and the Authority must¹⁷ carry out their respective functions under Part I of the 1986 Act¹⁸ in the manner which he or it considers is best calculated:

- 993 (A) to promote efficiency and economy on the part of persons authorised by licences or exemptions¹⁹ to carry on any activity, and the efficient use of gas conveyed through pipes;
- 994 (B) to protect the public from dangers arising from the conveyance of gas through pipes or from the use of gas conveyed through pipes;
- 995 (C) to contribute to the achievement of sustainable development; and
- 996 (D) to secure a diverse and viable long-term energy supply²⁰.

So far as not otherwise required to do so by heads (A) to (D) above, they must have regard, in carrying out those functions, to the effect on the environment of activities connected with the conveyance of gas through pipes²¹.

In carrying out their respective functions²² in accordance with the above provisions, the Secretary of State and the Authority must each have regard to the principles under which regulatory activities should be transparent, accountable, proportionate, consistent and targeted only at cases in which action is needed²³ and to any other principles appearing to him or, as the case may be, to it to represent the best regulatory practice²⁴.

The above provisions do not apply in relation to the issuing²⁵ by the Secretary of State of guidance on social and environmental matters²⁶. Nor do they apply in relation to anything done by the Authority in the exercise of functions relating to the determination of disputes or in the exercise, concurrently with the Office of Fair Trading²⁷, of certain functions²⁸ with respect to competition²⁹. Furthermore, the duties imposed by the above provisions do not affect the obligations of the Authority or the Secretary of State to perform or comply with any other duty or requirement, whether arising under the Gas Act 1986 or another enactment, by virtue of any Community obligation or otherwise³⁰.

1 As to the Secretary of State see PARA 601 note 1 ante.

PARTICULAR PROVISIONS RELATING TO GAS/ (3) GENERAL DUTIES AND FUNCTIONS OF THE SECRETARY OF STATE AND THE GAS AND ELECTRICITY MARKETS AUTHORITY/790. Guidance on social and environmental matters.

790. Guidance on social and environmental matters.

The Secretary of State¹ must from time to time issue guidance about the making by the Gas and Electricity Markets Authority ('GEMA')² of a contribution towards the attainment of any social or environmental policies set out or referred to in the guidance³; and the Authority must, in carrying out its functions under Part I of the Gas Act 1986⁴, have regard to any guidance so issued⁵. Before issuing such guidance the Secretary of State must consult:

- 997 (1) the Authority;
- 998 (2) the Gas and Electricity Consumer Council⁶;
- 999 (3) licence holders⁷; and
- 1000 (4) such other persons as the Secretary of State considers it appropriate to consult in relation to the guidance⁸.

A draft of any guidance proposed to be issued under these provisions must be laid before each House of Parliament⁹ and guidance must not be issued under them until after the period of 40 days¹⁰ beginning with:

- 1001 (a) the day on which the draft is laid before each House of Parliament; or
- 1002 (b) if the draft is laid before the House of Lords on one day and the House of Commons on another, the later of those two days¹¹.

If, before the end of that period, either House resolves that the guidance should not be issued, the Secretary of State must not issue it¹².

The Secretary of State must arrange for any guidance issued under these provisions to be published in such manner as he considers appropriate¹³.

The duties imposed by the above provisions do not affect the obligations of the Authority or the Secretary of State to perform or comply with any other duty or requirement, whether arising under the Gas Act 1986 or another enactment, by virtue of any Community obligation or otherwise¹⁴.

The above provisions do not, however, apply in relation to anything done by the Authority in the exercise of functions relating to the determination of disputes or in the exercise, concurrently with the Office of Fair Trading⁸, of certain functions⁹ with respect to competition¹⁰. Nor do the duties imposed by the above provisions affect the obligations of the Authority or the Secretary of State to perform or comply with any other duty or requirement, whether arising under the Gas Act 1986 or another enactment, by virtue of any Community obligation or otherwise¹¹.

Halsbury's Laws of England/FUEL AND ENERGY (VOLUME 19(1) (2007 REISSUE) PARAS 601-775; VOLUME 19(2) (2007 REISSUE) PARAS 776-1328); VOLUME 19(3) (2007 REISSUE) PARAS 1329-1927)/3. PARTICULAR PROVISIONS RELATING TO GAS/ (3) GENERAL DUTIES AND FUNCTIONS OF THE SECRETARY OF STATE AND THE GAS AND ELECTRICITY MARKETS AUTHORITY/792. General functions of the Gas and Electricity Markets Authority with regard to gas.

792. General functions of the Gas and Electricity Markets Authority with regard to gas.

It is the duty of the Gas and Electricity Markets Authority ('GEMA')¹, so far as it appears to it practicable from time to time, to keep under review the carrying on both within and outside Great Britain² of:

- 1003 (1) the following activities³, that is the activities of any person who:
- 53
- 75. (a) otherwise than by means of a gas interconnector⁴ conveys gas through pipes to any premises, or to a pipeline system operated by a gas transporter⁵;
 - 76. (b) participates in the operation of a gas interconnector;
 - 77. (c) supplies to any premises gas which has been conveyed to those premises through pipes; or
 - 78. (d) arranges with a gas transporter for gas to be introduced into, conveyed by means of or taken out of a pipeline system operated by that transporter; and
- 54
- 1004 (2) activities ancillary to such activities, including in particular the storage⁶ of gas, the provision and reading of meters and the provision of prepayment facilities⁷.

It is also the duty of the Authority, so far as it appears to it practicable from time to time, to collect information⁸ with respect to the carrying on of such activities as are mentioned in heads (1) and (2) above, and the persons by whom such activities are carried on, with a view to its becoming aware of, and ascertaining the circumstances relating to, matters with respect to which its functions are exercisable⁹.

The Secretary of State¹⁰ may give general directions¹¹ indicating:

- 1005 (i) considerations to which the Authority should have particular regard in determining the order of priority in which matters are to be brought under review in the performance of its duty under the above provisions¹²; and
- 1006 (ii) considerations to which, in cases where it appears to the Authority that any of its functions are exercisable, it should have particular regard in determining whether to exercise those functions¹³.

Additionally, it is the duty of the Authority, where either it considers it expedient or it is requested by the Secretary of State or the Office of Fair Trading¹⁴ to do so, to give information, advice and assistance to the Secretary of State or the Office of Fair Trading with respect to any matter in respect of which any function of the Authority or of the Secretary of State is exercisable¹⁵.

The Authority has power to make agreements with the Health and Safety Commission¹⁶ for the Authority to perform on behalf of that Commission or of the Health and Safety Executive¹⁷, with or without payment, any of the functions of that Commission or, as the case may be, of that Executive¹⁸.

It has been held that the Authority is an expert body with a wide discretion to carry out industry-wide investigations¹⁹.

1 As to the establishment and general functions of the Gas and Electricity Markets Authority see PARA 708 et seq ante; and as to the use of the abbreviation 'GEMA' in this context see PARA 708 note 5 ante.

2 For the meaning of 'Great Britain' see PARA 602 note 7 ante.

3 In such activities as are mentioned in the Gas Act 1986 s 5(1) (as substituted and amended): see PARA 803 post.

4 For the purposes of ibid Pt I (ss 4AA-48) (as amended), 'gas interconnector' means so much of any pipeline system as (1) is situated at a place within the jurisdiction of Great Britain; and (2) subsists wholly or primarily for the purposes of the conveyance of gas (whether in both directions or in only one) between Great Britain and another country or territory: s 5(8) (added by the Energy Act 2004 s 149(1), (3)); Gas Act 1986 s 48(1) (definition added by the Energy Act 2004 s 149(1), (11)). For these purposes, a place is within the jurisdiction of Great Britain if it is in Great Britain, in the territorial sea adjacent to Great Britain or in an area designated under the Continental Shelf Act 1964 s 1(7) (as amended) (see PARA 1636 post); and 'pipeline system' includes the pipes and any associated apparatus comprised in that system: Gas Act 1986 s 5(9), (10) (as so added). As to the territorial sea of the United Kingdom see WATER AND WATERWAYS vol 100 (2009) PARA 31 note 3. For the meaning of 'gas' see PARA 802 post.

5 For the meaning of 'gas transporter' see PARA 805 post.

6 For the purposes of the Gas Act 1986 Pt I (as amended), unless the context otherwise requires, 'storage', in relation to gas, means storage in, or in a facility which is connected (directly or indirectly) to, a pipeline system operated by a gas transporter: s 48(1) (definition amended by the Utilities Act 2000 s 108, Sch 6 Pt I paras 1, 2(1)).

7 Gas Act 1986 s 34(1) (amended by the Gas Act 1995 s 10(1), Sch 3 para 40(1); and by virtue of the Utilities Act 2000 s 3(2)).

Halsbury's Laws of England/FUEL AND ENERGY (VOLUME 19(1) (2007 REISSUE) PARAS 601-775; VOLUME 19(2) (2007 REISSUE) PARAS 776-1328); VOLUME 19(3) (2007 REISSUE) PARAS 1329-1927)/3. PARTICULAR PROVISIONS RELATING TO GAS/ (3) GENERAL DUTIES AND FUNCTIONS OF THE SECRETARY OF STATE AND THE GAS AND ELECTRICITY MARKETS AUTHORITY/793. Publication of advice and information about consumer matters.

793. Publication of advice and information about consumer matters.

If it appears to the Gas and Electricity Markets Authority ('GEMA')¹ that the publication of any advice and information² would promote the interests of consumers³ in relation to gas⁴ conveyed through pipes, the Authority may publish that advice or information in such manner as it thinks fit⁵. In so publishing advice or information the Authority must have regard to the need for excluding, so far as that is practicable, any matter which relates to the affairs of a particular individual or body of persons, corporate or unincorporate, where publication of that matter would or might, in the opinion of the Authority, seriously and prejudicially affect the interests of that individual or body⁶. Before deciding to publish under these provisions any advice or information relating to a particular individual or body of persons the Authority must consult that individual or body⁷. However, nothing in the general statutory restrictions on disclosure of information set out in the Utilities Act 2000⁸ is to be construed either as limiting the matters which may be published under the above provisions or as applying to information which has been so published⁹.

1 As to the establishment and general functions of the Gas and Electricity Markets Authority see PARA 708 et seq ante; and as to the use of the abbreviation 'GEMA' in this context see PARA 708 note 5 ante.

2 For the meaning of 'information' see PARA 792 note 8 ante.

3 For these purposes, 'consumers' includes both existing and future consumers: Gas Act 1986 s 35(4) (s 35 substituted by the Utilities Act 2000 s 6(1)).

4 For the meaning of 'gas' see PARA 802 post.

5 Gas Act 1986 s 35(1) (as substituted: see note 3 supra). Where the Authority is required by any provision of Pt I (ss 4AA-48) (as amended) (see PARA 789 et seq ante, PARA 794 et seq post) to publish a notice or any other document, the Authority must send a copy of the document to the Gas and Electricity Consumer Council: s 41I (added by the Utilities Act 2000 s 18(5)). As to the establishment of the Gas and Electricity Consumer Council see PARA 716 ante. As to the prospective abolition of the Council and the transfer of its functions to the new National Consumer Council to be established under the Consumers, Estate Agents and Redress Act 2007 see PARA 716 the text and notes 12-13 ante.

The Office of Fair Trading must consult the Authority before publishing under the Enterprise Act 2002 s 6 any information or advice which may be published by the Authority under the Gas Act 1986 s 35 (as substituted and amended): s 35(3A) (added by the Enterprise Act 2002 s 278(1), Sch 25 para 15(1), (9)). As to the Office of Fair Trading see COMPETITION vol 18 (2009) PARAS 6-8.

PARTICULAR PROVISIONS RELATING TO GAS/ (3) GENERAL DUTIES AND FUNCTIONS OF THE SECRETARY OF STATE AND THE GAS AND ELECTRICITY MARKETS AUTHORITY/794.
Keeping of register.

794. Keeping of register.

The Gas and Electricity Markets Authority ('GEMA')¹ must keep a register of exemptions granted² to particular persons, of licences granted to gas transporters, suppliers and shippers and for the operation of gas interconnectors³, of final and provisional orders⁴ and of penalties imposed⁵, at such premises and in such form as it may determine⁶. The Authority must⁷ cause to be entered in the register the provisions of:

- 1007 (1) every exemption granted⁸ to a particular person and every revocation of such exemption;
- 1008 (2) every revocation of an exemption granted⁹ to persons of a particular class and every direction withdrawing such a class exemption from any person¹⁰;
- 1009 (3) every licence¹¹ and every modification or revocation of, and every direction or consent given or determination made under, such a licence;
- 1010 (4) every final or provisional order, every revocation of such an order and every notice that it is precluded from, or not required to make, such a notice¹²; and
- 1011 (5) every notice¹³ stating that it has imposed a penalty¹⁴.

The Authority may, however, enter the provisions of anything in the register in a manner that excludes, so far as practicable, so much of the details of those provisions as it considers it appropriate to exclude for the purpose of maintaining the confidentiality of:

- 1012 (a) matters relating to the affairs of an individual the publication of which would or might, in its opinion, seriously and prejudicially affect the interests of that individual; and
- 1013 (b) matters relating specifically to the affairs of a particular body of persons the publication of which would or might, in the Authority's opinion, seriously and prejudicially affect the interests of that body¹⁵;

and if it appears to the Secretary of State¹⁶ that the entry of any provision in the register would be against the public interest or the commercial interests of any person, he may direct the Authority not to enter that provision in the register¹⁷.

The register must be open to public inspection during such hours and subject to payment of such fee as may be prescribed by an order made by the Secretary of State¹⁸. Any person may, on payment of such fee as may be prescribed by an order so made, require the Authority to supply to him a copy of or extract from any part of the register, certified by the Authority to be a true copy or extract¹⁹. Any sums received by the Authority under these provisions must be paid into the Consolidated Fund²⁰.

are concurrent functions of the Gas and Electricity Markets Authority ('GEMA')⁷ and the OFT⁸. Before the OFT or the Authority first exercises in relation to any matter functions which are exercisable concurrently by virtue of the above provisions, it must consult the other⁹; and neither the OFT nor the Authority must exercise in relation to any matter functions which are exercisable concurrently by virtue of the above provisions if functions which are so exercisable have been exercised in relation to that matter by the other¹⁰.

It is the duty of the Authority, for the purpose of assisting the Competition Commission¹¹ in carrying out an investigation on a reference made to the Commission by the Authority by virtue of the above provisions, to give to the Commission:

- 1016 (i) any information¹² which is in its possession and which relates to matters falling within the scope of the investigation and is either requested by the Commission for that purpose or is information which in the Authority's opinion it would be appropriate for that purpose to give to the Commission without any such request; and
- 1017 (ii) any other assistance which the Commission may require and which it is within the Authority's power to give, in relation to any such matters, and the Commission must, for the purposes of carrying out any such investigation, take into account any information so given to it for that purpose¹³.

The Authority is also entitled to exercise, concurrently with the OFT, certain functions of the OFT under Part I of the Competition Act 1998¹⁴ so far as relating to:

- 1018 (A) agreements, decisions or concerted practices preventing, restricting or distorting competition¹⁵;

Such a direction may:

- 1028 (b) provide that, in the event of his failing to do so, the maximum price applicable to the resale is to be such as may be specified in the direction, or is to be reduced by such amount or such percentage as may be so specified⁶.

Different directions may be so given as respects different classes of cases, which may be defined by reference to areas or any other relevant circumstances⁷.

If any person resells any gas supplied by an authorised supplier at a price exceeding the maximum price determined by or under such a direction and applicable to the resale, then the amount of the excess and, if the direction so provides, interest on that amount at a rate specified or described in the direction, is recoverable by the purchaser⁸.

Nothing in the above provisions applies in relation to the resale of gas for use in a motor vehicle which is constructed or adapted to use gas as fuel for its propulsion⁹.

Power to require information.

798. Power to require information.

Where it appears to Gas and Electricity Markets Authority ('GEMA')¹ that a licence holder² may be contravening³, or may have contravened, any relevant condition or requirement⁴, or may be failing, or may have failed, to achieve any prescribed standard of performance⁵, the Authority may, for any purpose connected with the exercise of its relevant enforcement functions⁶ in relation to that matter, by notice in writing:

- 1029 (1) require any person to produce to the Authority or to any person appointed by it for the purpose, at a time and place specified in the notice, any documents which are specified or described in the notice and are in that person's custody or under his control; or
- 1030 (2) require any person carrying on any business to furnish to the Authority such information⁷ as may be specified or described in the notice, and may specify the time, manner and form in which any such information is to be furnished⁸.

Where a licence has been or is to be revoked or suspended, or has expired or is about to expire by effluxion of time, and it appears to the Authority, having regard to the general duties imposed on it⁹, to be requisite or expedient to do so for any purpose connected with the revocation, suspension or expiry, the Authority may, with the consent of the Secretary of State, by notice signed by it:

A person who, without reasonable excuse, fails to do anything duly required of him by a notice under the above provisions¹⁴ is guilty of an offence and liable on summary conviction to a fine not exceeding level 5 on the standard scale¹⁵; and a person who intentionally alters, suppresses or destroys any document or record which he has been required by any such notice to produce is guilty of an offence and liable on summary conviction to a fine not exceeding the statutory maximum or on conviction on indictment to a fine¹⁶. If a person makes default in complying with such a notice, the court may make such order as it thinks fit, on the application of the Authority, for requiring the default to be made good and any such order may provide that all the costs or expenses of and incidental to the application are to be borne by the person in default or by any officers of a company or other association who are responsible for its default¹⁷.

(4) REGULATION OF THE SUPPLY OF GAS

(i) Licensing of Activities relating to Gas

802. Meanings of 'gas' and of references to the supply of gas.

In Part I of the Gas Act 1986¹, 'gas' means any substance in a gaseous state which consists wholly or mainly of methane, ethane, propane, butane, hydrogen or carbon monoxide, or a mixture of two or more of those gases or a combustible mixture of one or more of those gases and air². It also means any other substance in a gaseous state which is gaseous at a temperature of 15°C and a pressure of 1013.25 millibars and is specified in an order made by the Secretary of State³.

References in that Part of the 1986 Act to the supply of gas do not, in general⁴, include references to the supply of gas, directly or indirectly, to a gas transporter⁵, gas supplier⁶ or gas shipper⁷.

Special statutory provisions apply for various purposes to specific gases⁸, to gases of different qualities⁹ or derivations¹⁰, and to gas used for specific purposes¹¹.

8 See PARA 788 ante.

9 As to the power to prescribe standards of pressure and purity see the Gas Act 1986 s 16 (as added); and PARA 899 post.

10 The Energy Act 1976 s 12 (as amended) (see PARA 982 post), applies to all natural gas of the United Kingdom and s 14 (as amended) (see PARAS 1216-1217 post) applies to natural gas of all derivations. For the meaning of 'natural gas' for those purposes see PARA 603 note 3 ante; and for the meaning of 'United Kingdom' see PARA 602 note 7 ante.

11 For the purpose of the construction and use of mechanically propelled vehicles, 'gas' means any fuel which is wholly gaseous at 17.5°C under a pressure of 1.013 bar absolute: Road Vehicles (Construction and Use) Regulations 1986, SI 1986/1078, reg 3(2), Table.

PARTICULAR PROVISIONS RELATING TO GAS/(4) REGULATION OF THE SUPPLY OF GAS/(i) Licensing of Activities relating to Gas/804. Exemptions from prohibition on unlicensed activities.

804. Exemptions from prohibition on unlicensed activities.

The Secretary of State¹ may by order² grant exemption from any of the statutory prohibitions on unlicensed activities³:

- 1074 (1) either to a person or to persons of a class;
- 1075 (2) either generally or to such extent as may be specified in the order; and
- 1076 (3) either unconditionally or subject to such conditions as may be so specified⁴.

An exemption may be granted indefinitely, or for a period specified in, or determined by or under, the exemption⁵.

Before making such an order the Secretary of State must give notice⁶:

- 1077 (a) stating that he proposes to make such an order and setting out the terms of the proposed order;
- 1078 (b) stating the reasons why he proposes to make the order in the terms proposed; and
- 1079 (c) specifying the time, not being less than 28 days from the date of publication of the notice, within which representations with respect to the proposals may be made, and must consider any representations which are duly made in respect of the proposals and not withdrawn⁷. The notice so required must be given by serving a copy of it on the Gas and Electricity Markets Authority ('GEMA')⁸ and the Gas and Electricity Consumer Council⁹ and by publishing it in such manner as the Secretary of State considers appropriate for bringing it to the attention of those likely to be affected by the proposed order¹⁰.

Notice of an exemption granted to a person must be given by serving a copy of the exemption on him and by publishing the exemption in such manner as the Secretary of State considers appropriate for bringing it to the attention of other persons who may be affected by it¹¹; and notice of an exemption granted to persons of a class must be given by publishing the exemption in such manner as the Secretary of State considers appropriate for bringing it to the attention of persons of that class and other persons who may be affected by it¹².

The Secretary of State may by order revoke an order by which an exemption was granted to a person or vary an order by which more than one exemption was so granted so as to terminate any of the exemptions:

- 1080 (i) at the person's request;
- 1081 (ii) in accordance with any provision of the order by which the exemption was granted; or
- 1082 (iii) if it appears to the Secretary of State inappropriate that the exemption should continue to have effect¹³;

and the Secretary of State may by order revoke an order by which an exemption was granted to persons of a class or vary an order by which more than one exemption was so granted so as to terminate any of the exemptions either in accordance with any provision of the order by which the exemption was granted or if it appears to him inappropriate that the exemption should continue to have effect¹⁴.

The Secretary of State may also by direction withdraw an exemption granted to persons of a class from any person of that class:

- 1083 (A) at the person's request;
- 1084 (B) in accordance with any provision of the order by which the exemption was granted; or
- 1085 (C) if it appears to the Secretary of State inappropriate that the exemption should continue to have effect in the case of the person¹⁵.

Before making such an order revoking an exemption, or making such a direction withdrawing an exemption, unless it is at the person in question's request¹⁶, the Secretary of State must consult the Authority and give notice of his proposal to do so, with reasons, and of a period within which representations may be made to him¹⁷.

In addition to the exemptions granted under the above provisions¹⁸, there are, at the date at which this title states the law, statutory exceptions with respect to the conveyance or supply of gas by landlords etc¹⁹, the conveyance or supply of gas to associated companies²⁰, the conveyance or supply of propane or butane²¹, the conveyance of gas for supply to large consumers²² and the supply of gas to very large consumers²³; but the provisions setting out these exceptions are prospectively repealed by the Utilities Act 2000²⁴, as from a day to be appointed under that Act²⁵.

1 As to the Secretary of State see PARA 601 note 1 ante.

2 As to the power to make orders generally see PARA 777 note 15 ante.

Without prejudice to the generality of the Gas Act 1986 s 6A(1)(c) (as substituted) (see head (3) in the text), conditions included by virtue of that head in an exemption may require any person carrying on any activity in pursuance of the exemption (1) to comply with any direction given by the Secretary of State or the Gas and Electricity Markets Authority ('GEMA') as to such matters as are specified in the exemption or are of a description so specified; (2) except in so far as the Secretary of State or the Authority consents to his doing or not doing them, not to do or to do such things as are specified in the exemption or are of a description so specified; and (3) to refer for determination by the Secretary of State or the Authority such questions arising under the exemption as are specified in the exemption or are of a description so specified: s 6A(4) (as so substituted; amended by virtue of the Utilities Act 2000 s 3(2)). 17 Ibid s 6A(8) (as added: see note 13 supra). The notice under s 6A(8) (as so added) must be given (1) where the Secretary of State is proposing to make an order under s 6A(5)(b) or (c) (as substituted), by serving a copy of it on the person to whom the exemption was granted; (2) where he is proposing to make an order under s 6A(6) (as added), by publishing it in such manner as the Secretary of State considers appropriate for bringing it to the attention of persons of the class of persons to whom the exemption was granted; and (3) where he is proposing to give a direction under s 6A(7)(b) or (c) (as added), by serving a copy of it on the person from whom he proposes to withdraw the exemption: s 6A(9) (as so added).

18 See note 5 supra.

19 The Gas Act 1986 s 5(1) (as substituted and amended) (see PARA 803 ante) is not contravened by a person (1) conveying within a building or part of a building in which he has an interest; or (2) supplying for use in such a building or part of a building, gas supplied to the building by a person authorised to supply it by or under s 6A (as added and amended) (see the text and notes 1-17 supra) or s 7A (as added and amended) (see PARA 807 post) or Sch 2A (as so added): s 5(2), Sch 2A para 1 (s 5(2) substituted, and Sch 2A added, by the Gas Act 1995 s 3(1), (2), Sch 1; prospectively repealed (see the text and notes 24-25 infra)).

20 The Gas Act 1986 s 5(1) (as substituted and amended) is not contravened by a company conveying or supplying gas to any premises occupied by a subsidiary or holding company of the company, or by a subsidiary of a holding company of the company: Sch 2A para 2 (as added (see note 19 supra); prospectively repealed (see the text and notes 24-25 infra)). 'Holding company' and 'subsidiary' have the meanings given by the Companies Act 1985 s 736 (as substituted; prospectively repealed by the Companies Act 2006 s 1295, Sch 16, and replaced by s 1159, as from a day to be appointed under s 1300(2); at the date at which this title states the law, no such day had been appointed) (see COMPANIES vol 14 (2009) PARA 25); Gas Act 1986 s 48(1) (definitions amended by the Companies Act 1989 s 144(4), Sch 18 para 44).

21 The Gas Act 1986 s 5(1) (as substituted and amended) is not contravened by a person conveying or supplying to any premises gas which consists wholly or mainly of propane or butane: Sch 2A para 3(1) (as added (see note 19 supra); prospectively repealed (see the text and notes 24-25 infra)). In the case of a supply, however, this does not apply unless (1) the contract for the supply contains provisions empowering a person authorised by the supplier to enter the premises where in his opinion it is necessary to do so for the purpose of averting danger to life or property; (2) those provisions are in terms approved for these purposes by the Secretary of State; and (3) the gas is conveyed to the premises otherwise than by a gas transporter: Sch 2A para 3(2) (as so added; amended by virtue of the Utilities Act 2000 s 76(7); and prospectively repealed (see the text and notes 24-25 infra)).

22 The Gas Act 1986 s 5(1) (as substituted and amended) is not contravened by a person conveying gas to any premises at any time if they are supplied with gas at a rate which, at any time within the period of 12 months immediately preceding that time, he reasonably expected to exceed (1) at any time up to 31 December 1999, 75,000 therms a year; (2) at any time after that date, 2,196,000 kilowatt hours: Sch 2A para 4 (as added (see note 19 supra); amended by virtue of s 48(2A)(a) (added by the Gas Act 1995 s 10(1), Sch 3 para 54(4)); and prospectively repealed (see the text and notes 24-25 infra)). As to the power to modify or remove the limits set out in heads (1)-(2) supra see the Gas Act 1986 s 8A (as added and amended); and PARA 836 note 6 post.

23 Where a person (a 'supplier') notifies the Gas and Electricity Markets Authority ('GEMA'): (1) that he proposes to undertake a supply of gas to any premises at a rate in excess of 58,000,000 kilowatt hours a year ('the required rate'); or (2) that, in such circumstances as may be described in the notification, he would undertake a supply of gas to any premises, at a rate in excess of the required rate, for such period as may be so described, then the Gas Act 1986 s 5(1) (as substituted and amended) is not contravened by a supply of gas to the premises (or, as the case may require, a supply of gas to the premises in the circumstances and for the period described in the notification) unless, within six weeks of receiving the notification, the Authority notifies the supplier either (a) that he is of the opinion that the rate of supply to those premises would be unlikely to exceed the required rate; or (b) that he is unable to form an opinion as to whether the rate of supply to those premises would or would not be likely to exceed the required rate: Sch 2A para 5(1), (2) (as added (see note 19 supra); amended by virtue of s 48(2A)(a) (as added: see note 22 supra) and of the Utilities Act 2000 s 3(2); and prospectively repealed (see the text and notes 24-25 infra)). Where a supplier has given the Authority a notification under head (1) supra and: (i) the rate of supply to the premises to which the notification relates fails to exceed the required rate for three successive periods of 12 months; (ii) the supplier fails to furnish the Authority with such information as he may require for the purpose of determining whether the condition in head (i) supra is fulfilled; or (iii) the supplier fails to afford to the Authority such facilities as he may require for the purpose of verifying any information furnished in pursuance of such a requirement as is mentioned in head (ii) supra, the Authority may direct that the supplier's notification is to be treated as invalid for the purposes of head (1) supra except as regards gas previously supplied: Gas Act 1986 Sch 2A para 5(3) (as so added and amended; prospectively repealed (see the text and notes 24-25 infra)). As soon as practicable after receiving a notification under head (1) or head (2) supra, giving a notification under heads (a)-(b) supra or giving a direction under heads (i)-(iii) supra, the Authority must send a copy of the notification or direction to the Health and Safety Executive: Sch 2A para 5(4) (as so added and amended; prospectively repealed (see the text and notes 24-25 infra)). As to the Health and Safety Executive see HEALTH AND SAFETY AT WORK vol 52 (2009) PARA 361 et seq.

24 See the Utilities Act 2000 ss 75, 108, Sch 8. At the date at which this title states the law, those repeals were not in force.

804 Exemptions from prohibition on unlicensed activities

NOTE 20--In definition of 'holding company' reference to Companies Act s 736 now to Companies Act 2006 s 1159: Gas Act 1986 s 48(1) (definition amended by SI 2009/1841).

Halsbury's Laws of England/FUEL AND ENERGY (VOLUME 19(1) (2007 REISSUE) PARAS 601-775; VOLUME 19(2) (2007 REISSUE) PARAS 776-1328); VOLUME 19(3) (2007 REISSUE) PARAS 1329-1927)/3. PARTICULAR PROVISIONS RELATING TO GAS/(4) REGULATION OF THE SUPPLY OF GAS/(i) Licensing of Activities relating to Gas/805. Licensing of gas transporters.

805. Licensing of gas transporters.

In Part I of the Gas Act 1986¹, 'gas transporter' means the holder of a licence under the following provisions except where the holder is acting otherwise than for purposes connected with:

- 1086 (1) the carrying on of activities authorised by the licence;
- 1087 (2) the conveyance of gas through pipes² which are situated in an authorised area³ of his or are situated in an area which was an authorised area of his, or an authorised area of a previous holder of the licence, and were so situated at a time when it was such an area⁴.

The Gas and Electricity Markets Authority ('GEMA')⁵ may grant a licence authorising any person to do either or both of the following, namely:

- 1088 (a) to convey gas through pipes to any premises in an authorised area of his, that is to say, any area specified in the licence⁶ as it has effect for the time being;
- 1089 (b) to convey gas through pipes either to any pipeline system operated by another gas transporter, or to any pipeline system so operated which is specified in the licence⁷ or an extension of the licence⁸;

but a licence must not be granted under these provisions to a person who is the holder of a licence for the operation of a gas interconnector⁹ or a licence¹⁰ as a gas supplier or gas shipper¹¹.

The Authority may, with the consent of the licence holder, direct that any licence under these provisions is to have effect:

- 1090 (i) as if any area or pipeline system specified in the direction¹² were specified in the licence;
- 1091 (ii) in the case of a licence under head (a) above, as if it were also a licence under head (b) above and any pipeline system specified in the direction were specified in the licence; or
- 1092 (iii) in the case of a licence under head (b) above, as if it were also a licence under head (a) above and any area specified in the direction were specified in the licence¹³.

The Authority may also, with the consent of the licence holder, direct that any licence under these provisions is to have effect as if any area or pipeline system specified in the direction were not specified in the licence¹⁴.

Before granting such a licence, the Authority must give notice¹⁵:

- 1093 (A) stating that it proposes to grant the licence;
- 1094 (B) stating the reasons why it proposes to grant the licence; and

- 1095 (c) specifying the time from the date of publication of the notice, not being less than two months, within which representations or objections with respect to the proposed licence may be made, and must consider any representations or objections which are duly made and not withdrawn¹⁶. The notice must be given by publishing it in such manner as the Authority considers appropriate for bringing it to the attention of persons likely to be affected by the grant of the licence and by sending a copy of the notice to the Secretary of State¹⁷, to the Health and Safety Executive¹⁸ and to any gas transporter whose area includes the whole or any part of the area proposed to be specified in the licence¹⁹.

As soon as practicable after the granting of such a licence, the gas transporter must publish, in such manner as the Authority considers appropriate for bringing it to the attention of persons who are likely to do business with the transporter, a notice stating that the licence has been granted and explaining that, as a result, it might be necessary for those persons to be licensed²⁰ as gas suppliers or gas shippers²¹.

3 In the Gas Act 1986 Pt I (as amended), unless the context otherwise requires, 'authorised area', in relation to a gas transporter, has the meaning given by s 7(2) (as substituted and amended) (see the text and notes 5-8 infra): s 48(1) (definition amended by the Utilities Act 2000 s 108, Sch 6 Pt I paras 1, 2(1)).

Until a day to be appointed under the Energy Act 2004 s 198(2), 'gas transporter' also excludes the holder of a licence who is acting otherwise than for purposes connected with the conveyance through pipes of gas which is in the course of being conveyed to or from a country or territory outside Great Britain: see the Gas Act 1986 s 7(1)(c) (as so substituted and amended; prospectively repealed by the Energy Act 2004 s 197(9), Sch 23 Pt 1, as from such a day; at the date at which this title states the law, no such day had been appointed).

The effect of the Utilities Act 2000 s 76 was to end the previous exclusivity of the authorised areas of persons holding gas transportation licences: see s 76(1). References in any enactment in force immediately before the commencement of s 76 (ie 1 October 2001: see the Utilities Act 2000 (Commencement No 6 and Transitional Provisions) Order 2001, SI 2001/3266, art 2, Schedule) to a public gas transporter or to the holder of a licence under the Gas Act 1986 s 7 (as substituted) have effect after that commencement as if they were references to a gas transporter: Utilities Act 2000 s 76(7).

UPDATE

805 Licensing of gas transporters

TEXT AND NOTES--The Secretary of State may modify (1) a condition of a particular licence under the Gas Act 1986 s 7; (2) the standard conditions incorporated in licences under those provisions by virtue of the Gas Act 1986 s 8 (see PARA 810); (3) a document maintained in accordance with the conditions of licences under the Gas Act 1986 s 7, or an agreement that gives effect to a document so maintained: Energy Act 2008 s 88(1)(c)-(e). The Secretary of State may exercise the power in the Energy Act 2008 s 88(1) for the purpose only of (a) requiring the holder of a licence to provide or install, or facilitate the provision, installation or operation of, meters of a particular kind, or (b) requiring the holder of a licence to make arrangements related to the matters mentioned in head (a): s 88(2). See further s 88(3)-(7). The procedure that the Secretary of State must comply with in order to exercise the modification powers conferred by s 88 is set out: see Energy Act 2008 s 89. Supplemental provision is made: see Energy Act 2008 s 90.

The Secretary of State may modify (1) the conditions of a particular licence under the Gas Act 1986 s 7; (2) the standard conditions incorporated in licences under s 7 by virtue of the Gas Act 1986 s 8 (see PARA 810): Energy Act 2008 s 94(1). The Secretary of State may exercise the power in s 94(1) for the purpose only of enabling the Gas and Electricity Markets Authority to recover and pay into the Consolidated Fund amounts in respect of (a) payments made by the Secretary of State by virtue of the Gas Act 1986 s 17(7) or (7A); (b) other costs incurred by the Secretary of State in performing a function conferred by the Gas Act 1986 s 17 or by gas meter regulations (within the meaning of the Energy Act 2008 s 92: see PARAS 947-949): Energy Act 2008 s 94(2). See further s 94(3)-(9).

PARTICULAR PROVISIONS RELATING TO GAS/(4) REGULATION OF THE SUPPLY OF GAS/(i) Licensing of Activities relating to Gas/806. Licences for operation of gas interconnectors.

806. Licences for operation of gas interconnectors.

The Gas and Electricity Markets Authority ('GEMA')¹ may grant a licence authorising any person to participate in the operation of a gas interconnector²; but a licence must not be so granted to a person who is the holder of a licence as a gas transporter³ or the holder of a licence⁴ as a gas supplier or gas shipper⁵.

A licence under these provisions:

- 1096 (1) must specify the interconnector or interconnectors in relation to which participation is authorised; and
- 1097 (2) may limit the forms of participation in the operation of an interconnector which are authorised by the licence⁶.

The Energy Act 2004 confers transitional powers on the Secretary of State⁷ to grant a gas interconnector licence to a person who was participating in the operation of a gas interconnector at the time when the power of GEMA to grant licences under the above provisions came into force⁸.

1 As to the establishment and general functions of the Gas and Electricity Markets Authority see PARA 708 et seq ante; and as to the use of the abbreviation 'GEMA' in this context see PARA 708 note 5 ante.

2 Gas Act 1986 s 7ZA(1) (s 7ZA added by the Energy Act 2004 s 149(1), (6)). 7 As to the Secretary of State see PARA 601 note 1 ante.

8 See the Energy Act 2004 s 152(1), (2), (6). Before granting a licence to a person by virtue of s 152, the Secretary of State must consult (1) that person; (2) GEMA; and (3) such other persons as the Secretary of State considers appropriate: s 152(4). Section 152(4) may be satisfied by consultation that took place wholly or partly before 1 December 2004 (ie the date when the Gas Act 1986 s 7ZA (as added) and the Energy Act 2004 s 152 came into force: see the Energy Act 2004 (Commencement No 3) Order 2004, SI 2004/2575, art 2(2), Sch 2): Energy Act 2004 s 152(5).

The Gas Act 1986 s 7B (as added and amended) (see PARAS 808-809 post) and s 8 (as substituted and amended) (see PARA 810 post) (general provisions relating to licences and licence conditions) have effect in relation to the grant of licences by the Secretary of State by virtue of the Energy Act 2004 s 152 as if (a) references in those provisions to GEMA included references to the Secretary of State; (b) the Gas Act 1986 s 7B(1), (2) and (2A) (as added and amended) were omitted; and (c) in s 8 (as substituted and amended), the words 'the Secretary of State, to' in s 8(5)(b) (as substituted) and s 8(6) (as substituted and amended) were omitted: Energy Act 2004 s 152(3).

Halsbury's Laws of England/FUEL AND ENERGY (VOLUME 19(1) (2007 REISSUE) PARAS 601-775; VOLUME 19(2) (2007 REISSUE) PARAS 776-1328); VOLUME 19(3) (2007 REISSUE) PARAS 1329-1927)/3. PARTICULAR PROVISIONS RELATING TO GAS/(4) REGULATION OF THE SUPPLY OF GAS/(i) Licensing of Activities relating to Gas/807. Licensing of gas suppliers and gas shippers.

807. Licensing of gas suppliers and gas shippers.

The Gas and Electricity Markets Authority ('GEMA')¹ may² grant a licence authorising any person to do either or both of the following, namely:

- 1098 (1) to supply, to any premises specified in the licence³, gas⁴ which has been conveyed through pipes⁵ to those premises; and
- 1099 (2) to supply, to any premises at a rate which, at the time when he undertakes to give the supply, he reasonably expects to exceed 73,200 kilowatt hours⁶ a year, gas which has been conveyed through pipes to those premises⁷.

In Part I of the Gas Act 1986⁸, 'gas supplier' means the holder of such a licence, except where the holder is acting otherwise than for purposes connected with the carrying on of activities authorised by the licence⁹.

The Authority may also grant a licence authorising any person to arrange with any gas transporter¹⁰ for gas to be introduced into, conveyed by means of or taken out of a pipeline system operated by that transporter, either generally or for purposes connected with the supply of gas to any premises specified in the licence¹¹; and in Part I of the 1986 Act, 'gas shipper' means holder of such a licence, except where the holder is acting otherwise than for purposes connected with the carrying on of activities authorised by the licence¹².

A licence must not, however, be granted under either of the above provisions to a person who is the holder of a gas transporter licence¹³ or the holder of a licence¹⁴ for the operation of a gas interconnector¹⁵.

The Authority may, with the consent of the licence holder, direct that any licence under these provision is to have effect:

- 1100 (a) as if any premises specified in the direction¹⁶ were specified in the licence;
- or
- 1101 (b) in the case of a licence under head (2) above, as if it were also a licence under head (1) above and any premises specified in the direction were specified in the licence¹⁷;

but this does not apply in relation to a licence as a gas supplier¹⁸ which authorises only the supply to premises of gas which has been conveyed to the premises otherwise than by a gas transporter¹⁹.

The Authority may also, with the consent of the licence holder, direct that any licence under these provisions is to have effect as if any premises specified in the direction were not specified in the licence²⁰.

If the holder of a licence as a gas supplier²¹ applies to the Authority for a restriction of the licence, or for the revocation of the licence in accordance with any term contained in it, the Authority must²² accede to the application if it is satisfied that such arrangements have been made as:

- 1102 (i) will secure continuity of supply for all relevant consumers²³; and 1103 (ii) in the case of each such consumer who is supplied with gas in pursuance of a contract, will secure such continuity on the same terms as nearly as may be as the terms of the contract²⁴.

The Gas Act 1995 provided that, subject to certain exceptions²⁵, no domestic supply licence²⁶ might authorise the supply of gas to any premises before the relevant date, that is to say, 1 January 1999 or, if the Secretary of State by order so provided, such earlier date (not earlier than 1 January 1998) as might be determined by or under the order²⁷. The 1995 Act also contains provisions for managing the transition from the previous system of authorisations of public gas suppliers to the system of licensing of gas transporters, gas suppliers and gas shippers²⁸.

2 le subject to the Gas Act 1986 s 7A(3) (as added and amended): see the text and notes 13-15 infra.

3 For these purposes, references to premises specified in a licence or direction include references to premises of a description, or situated in an area, so specified: ibid s 7A(7) (s 7A added by the Gas Act 1995 s 6(1)). The Authority must not, in any licence under the Gas Act 1986 s 7A(1) (as added and amended) (see the text and notes 1-2 supra, 4-7 infra), or in any extension or restriction of such a licence, specify any premises by description or area if it is of the opinion that the description or area has been so framed as (1) in the case of a licence or extension, artificially to exclude from the licence or extension; or (2) in the case of a restriction, artificially to include in the restriction, premises likely to be owned or occupied by persons who are chronically sick, disabled or of pensionable age, or who are likely to default in the payment of charges: s 7A(8) (as so added; amended by virtue of the Utilities Act 2000 s 3(2)). Any reference in the Gas Act 1986 Pt I (as amended) (however expressed) to activities authorised by a licence under s 7A(1) (as added and amended) is to be construed without regard to any exception contained in Sch 2A (as added and amended; prospectively repealed) (see PARA 804 ante): s 7A(12) (as so added; prospectively repealed by the Utilities Act 2000 s 108, Sch 8, as from a day to be appointed under s 110(2); at the date at which this title states the law, no such day had been appointed).

References in Pt I (as amended) to, or to the grant of, an extension under s 7A (as added and amended), or an extension of such a licence, are to be construed as references to, or to the giving of, such a direction: s 7A(4) (as so added).

References in Pt I (as amended) to, or to the grant of, a restriction under s 7A (as added and amended), or a restriction of such a licence, are to be construed as references to, or to the giving of, such a direction: s 7A(6) (as so added).

21 See note 18 supra.

22 Ie subject to the Gas Act 1986 s 7A(8) (as added and amended): see note 3 supra.

23 A person is a relevant consumer for these purposes if (1) immediately before the restriction or revocation takes effect, he is being supplied with gas by the holder of the licence; and (2) in the case of a restriction, his premises are excluded from the licence by the restriction: ibid s 7A(10) (as added: see note 3 supra).

24 Ibid s 7A(9) (as added (see note 3 supra); amended by virtue of the Utilities Act 2000 s 3(2)). For these purposes, 'contract' does not include any contract which, by virtue of the Gas Act 1986 Sch 2B para 8 (as added and amended) (see PARA 859 post), is deemed to have been made: s 7A(10) (as added: see note 3 supra).

25 Ie subject to the Gas Act 1995 s 6(3)-(6) (now amended by virtue of the Utilities Act 2000 ss 3(1), (2), 76(7)): see note 27 infra.

26 For these purposes, 'domestic supply licence' means a licence granted under the Gas Act 1986 s 7A(1)(a) (as added) (see head (1) in the text), a licence having effect as such a licence by virtue of a direction given under s 7A(4)(b) (as added), or a licence treated as so granted by virtue of a scheme made under the Gas Act 1995 Sch 5 para 4 or Sch 5 para 16: s 6(8). Any reference for these purposes to a domestic supply licence includes a reference to an extension of such a licence (within the meaning of the Gas Act 1986 Pt I (as amended)): Gas Act 1995 s 6(7).

27 Ibid s 6(2). Section 6(2) did not apply in relation to a domestic supply licence in so far as it related to (1) any premises at any time if, at that time, the gas transporter in whose authorised area the premises were situated was an associate of the holder of the domestic supply licence in question; or (2) any premises to which that provision had ceased to apply at any time and which were situated in an area which had not, at that or any later time, ceased to be an authorised area of a particular gas transporter: see s 6(3), (4) (amended by virtue of the Utilities Act 2000 s 76(7)). Nor did the Gas Act 1995 s 6(2) apply in relation to a domestic supply licence in so far as it related to any premises to which gas was conveyed otherwise than by a gas transporter: see s 6(5) (as so amended). In so far as a domestic supply licence relates to premises which are situated in any area specified in an order made by the Secretary of State, s 6(2) applied in relation to the licence as if for the relevant date there were substituted such earlier date as might be determined, in relation to that area, by or under the order: see s 6(6). For these purposes, a gas transporter is an associate of the holder of a domestic supply licence if (a) both of them are companies registered under the Companies Act 1985 or the Companies Act 2006 and are limited by shares; and (b) either one company is wholly owned by the other or both companies are wholly owned by the same person: Gas Act 1995 s 6(9); Companies Act 2006 s 1297(5). 'Gas transporter' and 'authorised area' in relation to such a transporter have the same meanings as in the Gas Act 1986 Pt I (as amended): Gas Act 1995 s 6(8) (as so amended).

An order under s 6 (now as amended) might provide for anything falling to be determined under the order to be determined by the former Director General of Gas Supply (now by the Gas and Electricity Markets Authority) and might make such supplementary or incidental provision as the Secretary of State considered necessary or expedient (s 6(10) (as so amended)); and was to be made by statutory instrument subject to annulment in pursuance of a resolution of either House of Parliament (s 6(11)). For the orders so made see the Gas (Extent of Domestic Supply Licences) Order 1996, SI 1996/752 (amended by SI 1996/3275; SI 1997/826); the Gas (Extent of Domestic Supply Licences) Order 1997, SI 1997/826 (amended by virtue of the Utilities Act 2000 s 3(2)).

28 See the Gas Act 1995 s 17(1), Sch 5 Pt I (paras 1-12) (amended by the Finance Act 1998 s 165, Sch 27 Pt V(3)).

UPDATE

807 Licensing of gas suppliers and gas shippers

TEXT AND NOTES 1-24--The Secretary of State may modify (1) a condition of a particular licence under the Gas Act 1986 s 7A; (2) the standard conditions incorporated in licences under those provisions by virtue of the Gas Act 1986 s 8 (see PARA 810); (3) a document maintained in accordance with the conditions of licences under the Gas Act 1986 s 7A, or an agreement that gives effect to a document so maintained: Energy Act 2008 s 88(1)(c)-(e). The Secretary of State may exercise the power in the Energy Act 2008 s 88(1) for the purpose only of (a) requiring the holder of a licence to provide or install, or facilitate the provision, installation or operation of, meters of a particular kind, or (b) requiring the holder of a licence to make arrangements related to the matters mentioned in head (a): s 88(2). See further s 88(3)-(7). The procedure that the Secretary of State must comply with in order to exercise the modification powers conferred by s 88 is set out: see Energy Act 2008 s 89. Supplemental provision is made: see Energy Act 2008 s 90.

PARTICULAR PROVISIONS RELATING TO GAS/(4) REGULATION OF THE SUPPLY OF GAS/(i) Licensing of Activities relating to Gas/808. Application for a licence or for an extension or restriction of a licence.

808. Application for a licence or for an extension or restriction of a licence.

An application for a licence¹ or for an extension or restriction of a licence² must be made in such form and manner, and must contain, or be accompanied by, such information³ and documents and such fee, if any, as may be prescribed in regulations made by the Gas and Electricity Markets Authority ('GEMA')⁴. Such an application must be:

- 1104 (1) made in writing, addressed to the Authority and delivered or sent by prepaid post to the Authority at its principal office; and
- 1105 (2) signed and dated by or on behalf of the applicant, stating, where signed on behalf of the applicant, the capacity of the signatory⁵.

An application must be in the specified form⁶ or a form to the like effect, and must contain the specified⁷ information⁸. It must be accompanied by the information and documents which are specified⁹ in relation to:

- 1106 (a) gas supplier licences¹⁰;
- 1107 (b) gas shipper licences¹¹;
- 1108 (c) gas transporter licences¹²; and
- 1109 (d) interconnector licences¹³.

Within the prescribed period¹⁴ after the making of an application for a licence or for an extension or restriction of a licence, the applicant must:

- 1110 (i) publish a notice of the application in the prescribed manner¹⁵; and
- 1111 (ii) in the case of an application for a gas transporter licence or the extension of such a licence¹⁶, give notice of the application to any gas transporter whose authorised area¹⁷ includes the whole or any part of the area to which the application relates¹⁸.

Where the Authority proposes to refuse the application, it must give to the applicant a notice:

- 1112 (A) stating that it proposes to refuse the application;
- 1113 (B) stating the reasons why it proposes to refuse the application; and
- 1114 (C) specifying the time within which representations with respect to the proposed refusal may be made, and must consider any representations which are duly made and not withdrawn¹⁹.

As soon as practicable after granting a licence or an extension or restriction of a licence, the Authority must send a copy of the licence or extension or restriction to the Health and Safety Executive²⁰. In the case of a gas transporter licence or an extension or restriction of such a licence, it must also send a copy to any gas transporter whose authorised area includes the whole or any part of the area specified in the licence, extension or restriction²¹. The Authority must also send a copy of any licence or extension or restriction to any other person who holds a licence and whose interests may, in the opinion of the Authority, be affected by the grant²².

Where more than one fee would otherwise be payable in respect of a particular application, the prescribed fee is the higher or highest such fee: reg 7(2). Any sums received by the Authority under or by virtue of the Gas Act 1986 s 7B (as added and amended) must be paid into the Consolidated Fund: s 7B(10) (added by the Gas Act 1995 s 7; amended by virtue of the Utilities Act 2000 s 3(2)). 6 For the prescribed form see ibid reg 5, Sch 1.

7 Ie the information specified in ibid Sch 1.

8 Ibid reg 5.

9 An application in respect of (1) a gas supplier licence must be accompanied by the information and documents specified in ibid Sch 2 Pt 1; (2) a gas shipper licence must be accompanied by the information and documents specified in Sch 2 Pt 2; (3) a gas transporter licence must be accompanied by the information and documents specified in Sch 2 Pt 3; and (4) an interconnector licence must be accompanied by the information and documents specified in Sch 2 Pt 4: reg 6(1)(a)-(d). For these purposes, 'interconnector licence' means a licence granted or to be granted under the Gas Act 1986 s 7ZA(1) (as added) (see PARA 806 ante); 'shipper licence' means a licence granted or to be granted under s 7A(2) (as added and amended) (see PARA 807 ante); 'supplier licence' means a licence granted or to be granted under s 7A(1) (as added and amended) (see PARA 807 ante); and 'transporter licence' means a licence granted or to be granted under s 7 (as substituted and amended) (see PARA 805 ante): Gas (Applications for Licences and Extensions and Restrictions of Licences) Regulations 2007, SI 2007/1971, reg 3(1).

The obligation imposed by reg 6(1) applies, to the extent that information and documents are specified in Sch 2 by reference to, or in relation to, a standard condition: (a) subject to reg 6(3), in the case of an application for a licence, other than for a gas supplier licence of the type described in the Gas Act 1986 s 8(2) (as substituted and amended), as if the standard condition in question were to be included and have effect in any licence granted as a result of the application; and (b) in the case of an application for an extension or restriction of a licence, in relation to such of the standard conditions in question as have been included and have effect in that licence: Gas (Applications for Licences and Extensions and Restrictions of Licences) Regulations 2007, SI 2007/1971, reg 6(2). Where a modification to any standard condition is requested in accordance with Sch 1 para 4(1), the obligation imposed by reg 6(2)(a) (see head (a) supra) is modified accordingly: reg 6(3). Unless the context otherwise requires, a reference to a standard condition is a reference (i) in relation to a shipper licence, a supplier licence or a transporter licence, to a standard condition which is determined under the Utilities Act 2000 s 81(2) (as amended) (see PARA 810 post); or (ii) in relation to an interconnector licence, to a standard condition which is determined under the Energy Act 2004 s 150(1) (see PARA 810 post), subject to any modifications of the standard conditions made under the Gas Act 1986 Pt I (ss 4AA-48) (as amended), the Utilities Act 2000 or the Energy Act 2004, after the determination under those provisions: Gas (Applications for Licences and Extensions and Restrictions of Licences) Regulations 2007, SI 2007/1971, reg 3(1).

10 An applicant for a gas supplier licence must specify whether the application is for a licence to supply gas (1) to any premises; (2) only to premises specified in the licence, or to premises of a description so specified; or (3) only to any premises situated in a specified area, or to premises of a specified description which are so situated; and must provide a sufficient description adequately specifying the premises or a description of the premises and the location of the premises intended to be supplied, and, in the case of an application that relates to head (3) supra, also the specified area: ibid Sch 2 Pt 1 para 1. The description should enable the areas, location or premises concerned to be adequately and readily identified by map, if the applicant so desires, or by any other convenient means: Sch 2 Pt 1 note (b). The applicant must also state whether the application relates to domestic premises: Sch 2 Pt 1 para 1. 'Domestic premises' means premises used wholly or mainly for domestic purposes: reg 3(1).

For all applications for gas supplier licences, or extensions of such licences, the applicant must state whether the licence or extension is to authorise the supply of gas to premises to which it is conveyed by a gas transporter, and if not give details of any exemption under the Gas Act 1986 s 6A (as added and amended) (see PARA 804 ante) under which the gas is or will be conveyed: Gas (Applications for Licences and Extensions and Restrictions of Licences) Regulations 2007, SI 2007/1971, Sch 2 Pt 1 para 2. If the application is for an extension or restriction of a licence, information and documents need only be given in so far as, in any material respect, they differ from or add to the most recent information or documents which were provided in relation to the same requirement either with an application made by the applicant in accordance with the relevant regulations, or subsequent to such an application in pursuance of a condition of the applicant's licence: Sch 2 Pt 1 note (a).

If the application is for a restriction of a gas supplier licence, the applicant must provide (a) an estimate of the total number of premises to which the applicant supplies gas at the time of the application and to which the applicant would cease to supply gas if the application were acceded to ('relevant premises'); and (b) unless there are, at the date of the application, no relevant consumers (within the meaning of the Gas Act 1986 s 7A(10) (as added) (see PARA 807 ante) in relation to the applicant, a description of the applicant's proposed arrangements under s 7A(9) (as added and amended) for (i) ensuring continuity of supply for all such relevant consumers; and (ii) in the case of each such consumer who is supplied with gas in pursuance of a contract (within the meaning of s 7A (as added and amended)), securing such continuity on the same terms as nearly as may be as the terms of the contract: Gas (Applications for Licences and Extensions and Restrictions of Licences) Regulations 2007, SI 2007/1971, Sch 2 Pt 1 para 3.

11 An applicant for a gas shipper licence must provide a sufficient description adequately specifying the premises or a description of the premises, and also the specified area, if any, to which the application relates: ibid Sch 2 Pt 2 para 1. The description should enable the areas, location or premises concerned to be adequately and readily identified by map, if the applicant so desires, or by other means: Sch 2 Pt 2 note (b). If the application is for an extension or restriction of a licence, information and documents need only be given in so far as, in any material respect, they differ from or add to the most recent information or documents which were provided in relation to the same requirement either with an application made by the applicant in accordance with the relevant regulations, or subsequent to such an application in pursuance of a condition of the applicant's licence: Sch 2 Pt 2 note (a).

12 An applicant for a gas transporter licence must specify whether it is an application for a licence to convey gas (1) to any premises; and/or (2) to any pipeline system operated by another gas transporter; and if head (2) supra applies, whether that pipeline system is operated throughout Great Britain or within a specified area or areas. If in the case of a specified area or areas, the applicant must provide a sufficient description adequately specifying the area to which it relates: ibid Sch 2 Pt 3 para 1. The description should enable the areas, location or premises concerned to be adequately and readily identified by map, if the applicant so desires, or by other means: Sch 2 Pt 3 note (b). The applicant must also state whether the application relates to domestic premises; and if it falls within head (2) supra, the applicant must also specify the description of pipeline system to which the application relates (stating, in particular, whether it relates only to any system which is designed to receive gas at an operating pressure not exceeding 7 bar gauge): ibid Sch 2 Pt 3 para 1. The applicant must also provide particulars of the applicant's proposed arrangements for compliance with the applicable requirements of standard conditions 18 (Provision of Services for Persons who are Blind or Deaf), 19 (Arrangements in Respect of Powers of Entry), 19A (Authorisation of Officers), 19B (Exercise of Powers of Entry) and 21 (Complaint Handling Procedure): Gas (Applications for Licences and Extensions and Restrictions of Licences) Regulations 2007, SI 2007/1971, Sch 2 Pt 3 para 2. If the application is for an extension or restriction of a licence, information and documents need only be given in so far as, in any material respect, they differ from or add to the most recent information or documents which were provided in relation to the same requirement either with an application made by the applicant in accordance with the relevant regulations, or subsequent to such an application in pursuance of a condition of the applicant's licence: Sch 2 Pt 3 note (a).

If the application is for a restriction of a gas transporter licence, the applicant must provide (a) an estimate of the total number of premises to which the applicant conveys gas at the time of the application and to which the applicant would cease to convey gas if the application were acceded to ('the relevant premises'); (b) unless there are, at the date of the application, no relevant consumers (within the meaning set out in Sch 2 Pt 3 para 3(c)) in relation to the applicant, a description of the applicant's proposed arrangements to ensure compliance with the Gas Act 1986 s 10 (as substituted and amended) (ensuring the connection of all such relevant consumers is maintained: see PARAS 836-838 post): Gas (Applications for Licences and Extensions and Restrictions of Licences) (No 2) Regulations 2007, SI 2007/1971, Sch 2 Pt 3 para 3(a), (b). For the purposes of head (b) supra, a person is a relevant consumer if (i) immediately before the restriction takes effect, he is connected to the pipeline system of the holder of the licence; and (ii) his premises are to be excluded from the licence by the restriction: Sch 2 Pt 3 para 3(c).

13 An application in respect of a gas interconnector licence must specify the actual or proposed point of connection to a gas transportation or gas distribution network. Where the applicant is unable to specify a point of connection the applicant should provide Ordnance Survey Grid Reference co-ordinates for the proposed point of connection: ibid Sch 2 Pt 4 para 1. In relation to an application for a licence in respect of an interconnector that was not completed by 3 August 2003, the applicant must state whether he seeks not to have applied to the licence any or all of the following standard licence conditions (1) conditions relating to the charging methodology to apply to third party access to the licensee's interconnector; (2) conditions relating to the requirement to offer terms to an applicant for access to the licensee's interconnector: Sch 2 Pt 4 para 2. Where the applicant so seeks for any or all of the licence conditions relating to the matters referred to in heads (1)-(2) supra not to be in effect the following additional information must be provided in respect of those licence conditions: (a) the period of time for which the applicant seeks that the licence condition or conditions not be in effect; (b) a statement setting out the evidence and reasoning as to why the applicant considers (i) the investment in the interconnector enhances competition in gas supply and enhances security of supply; (ii) the level of risk attached to the investment to be made in relation to the interconnector is such that the investment would not be or would not have been made unless those licence conditions were not in effect; (iii) that, should the licence conditions not be in effect for the period of time sought, this will not be detrimental to competition or the effective functioning of the internal gas market, or the efficient functioning of the regulated system to which the interconnector is connected; and (c) a further statement that (i) the interconnector will be owned by a natural or legal person who is separate, at least in terms of its legal form, from the system operators in whose systems the interconnector to which the application relates will be built; and (ii) charges will be levied on users of the interconnector: Sch 2 Pt 4 para 3.

14 The prescribed period is ten working days: ibid reg 8(1). For these purposes, 'working day' means any day other than a Saturday, a Sunday, Christmas Day, Good Friday or a day which is a bank holiday within the meaning of the Banking and Financial Dealings Act 1971: Electricity Act 1989 s 64(1) (definition applied by the Gas (Applications for Licences and Extensions and Restrictions of Licences) Regulations 2007, SI 2007/1971, reg 8(4)).

15 The prescribed manner of publication for these purposes is either by (1) requesting the Authority to place the notice on the website address of the Authority (at 'www.ofgem.gov.uk' or such other website address as may be notified to the applicant by the Authority in writing); or (2) publishing the notice on the website address of the applicant and requesting the Authority to place a link to the applicant's website address on the website address of the Authority (at 'www.ofgem.gov.uk' or such other website address as may be notified to the applicant by the Authority in writing): ibid reg 8(2). Where an application is for the restriction of a licence, the applicant must also ensure that notice of application is published within the prescribed period in such newspapers as are calculated to ensure that the notice is circulated throughout the area to which the proposed restriction relates: reg 8(3).

808 Application for a licence or for an extension or restriction of a licence

TEXT AND NOTES 1-15--SI 2007/1971 now replaced by Gas (Applications for Licences and Extensions and Restrictions of Licences) Regulations 2009, SI 2009/3190.

Halsbury's Laws of England/FUEL AND ENERGY (VOLUME 19(1) (2007 REISSUE) PARAS 601-775; VOLUME 19(2) (2007 REISSUE) PARAS 776-1328); VOLUME 19(3) (2007 REISSUE) PARAS 1329-1927)/3. PARTICULAR PROVISIONS RELATING TO GAS/(4) REGULATION OF THE SUPPLY OF GAS/(i) Licensing of Activities relating to Gas/809. Content of licences etc; in general.

809. Content of licences etc; in general.

A licence¹ or an extension or restriction of a licence² must be in writing and, unless revoked or suspended in accordance with any term contained in it, a licence is to continue in force for such period as may be specified in or determined by or under the licence³.

A licence may include:

- 1115 (1) such conditions, whether or not relating to the activities authorised by the licence⁴, as appear to the Gas and Electricity Markets Authority ('GEMA')⁵ to be requisite or expedient having regard to the Authority's general duties in relation to gas⁶;
- 1116 (2) conditions requiring the rendering to the Authority of a payment on the grant of the licence or payments during the currency of the licence or both of such amount or amounts as may be determined by or under the licence⁷.

Without prejudice to the generality of head (1) above:

- 1117 (a) conditions included in a gas transporter licence⁸ by virtue of that provision:
57
 - 83. (i) may require the licence holder⁹ to enter into agreements with other persons for the use of any pipeline system of his, wherever situated and whether or not used for the purpose of carrying on the activities authorised by the licence, for such purposes as may be specified in the conditions¹⁰;
 - 84. (ii) may include provision for determining the terms on which such agreements are to be entered into¹¹;
- 58
1118 (b) conditions included by virtue of that provision in a licence may:
59
 - 85. (i) require the holder to comply with any direction given by the Authority or the Secretary of State¹² as to such matters as are specified in the licence or are of a description so specified¹³;
 - 86. (ii) require the holder, except in so far as the Authority or the Secretary of State consents to his doing or not doing them, not to do or to do such things as are specified in the licence or are of a description so specified¹⁴; and
 - 87. (iii) provide for the determination by the Authority, the Secretary of State or the Health and Safety Executive¹⁵ of such questions arising under the licence, or under any document referred to in the licence, as are specified in the licence or are of a description so specified¹⁶; and
- 60
1119 (c) conditions included by virtue of that provision in a gas transporter licence¹⁷ may require the holder, in such circumstances as are specified in the licence:
61
 - 88. (i) so to increase his charges for the conveyance of gas¹⁸ as to raise such amounts as may be determined by or under the conditions¹⁹; and
 - 89. (ii) to pay the amounts so raised to such holders of gas supplier and gas shipper licences²⁰ as may be so determined²¹.

Conditions included in a licence may also:

- 1120 (A) impose requirements by reference to designation, acceptance or approval by the Authority, the Secretary of State or the Health and Safety Executive and provide for references in the conditions to any document to operate as references to that document as revised or reissued from time to time²²;
- 1121 (B) contain provision for the conditions to have effect or cease to have effect at such times and in such circumstances as may be determined by or under the conditions, or to be modified in such manner as may be specified in the conditions at such times and in such circumstances as may be so determined²³;

and any provision included in a licence by virtue of head (B) above is to have effect in addition to the provision made by Part I of the Gas Act 1986²⁴ with respect to the modification²⁵ of the conditions of a licence²⁶.

PARTICULAR PROVISIONS RELATING TO GAS/(4) REGULATION OF THE SUPPLY OF GAS/(i) Licensing of Activities relating to Gas/810. Standard conditions of licences.

810. Standard conditions of licences.

The Utilities Act 2000 makes provision with regard to the standard conditions that may be included in gas transporter, gas supplier and gas shipper licences¹ and the Energy Act 2004 makes provisions with regard to the standard conditions that may be included in gas interconnector licences². Each condition which by virtue of the relevant provisions of the 2000 or the 2004 Act³ is a standard condition for the purposes of such licences must be incorporated by reference in each such licence⁴; but this does not apply in relation to a gas supplier licence⁵ which authorises only the supply to premises of gas⁶ which has been conveyed to the premises otherwise than by a gas transporter⁷.

Subject to the following provisions, the Gas and Electricity Markets Authority ('GEMA')⁸ may, in granting a licence, modify⁹ any of the standard conditions to such extent as it considers requisite to meet the circumstances of the particular case¹⁰. The Authority must not, however, so make any modifications of a condition of a gas interconnector licence¹¹ unless it is of the opinion that the modifications are such that:

- 1122 (1) the licence holder would not be unduly disadvantaged in competing with one or more other holders of such licences; and
- 1123 (2) no other holder of such a licence would be unduly disadvantaged in competing with the holder of the licence to be modified or with any one or more other holders of such licences¹².

Nor must the Authority so make any modifications of a condition of a gas supplier or gas shipper licence¹³ unless it is of the opinion that the modifications are such that:

- 1124 (a) the licence holder would not be unduly disadvantaged in competing with other holders of such a licence; and
- 1125 (b) no other holder of such a licence would be unduly disadvantaged in competing with other holders of such licences, including the holder of the licence being modified¹⁴.

Before so making any modifications, the Authority must give notice¹⁵;

- 1126 (i) stating that it proposes to make the modifications and setting out their effect;
- 1127 (ii) stating the reasons why it proposes to make the modifications; and
- 1128 (iii) specifying the time, not being less than 28 days from the date of publication of the notice, within which representations or objections with respect to the proposed modifications may be made, and must consider any representations or objections which are duly made and not withdrawn¹⁶. Such a notice must be given:

- 1129 (A) by publishing the notice in such manner as the Authority considers appropriate for the purpose of bringing the notice to the attention of persons likely to be affected by the making of the modifications; and
- 1130 (B) by sending a copy of the notice to the Secretary of State, to the Health and Safety Executive¹⁷ and to the Gas and Electricity Consumer Council¹⁸.

If, within the time specified in that notice, the Secretary of State directs the Authority not to make any modification, the Authority must comply with the direction¹⁹.

The modification under the above provisions of a condition of a licence does not prevent so much of the condition as is not so modified being regarded as a standard condition for the purposes of Part I²⁰ of the Gas Act 1986²¹.

1 The standard conditions for the purposes of gas licences of any type (that is to say, licences under the Gas Act 1986 s 7 (as substituted and amended) (see PARA 805 ante), s 7A(1) (as added and amended) (see PARA 807 ante) or s 7A(2) (as added and amended) (see PARA 807 ante) may contain provision (1) for any standard condition included in a licence of that type not to have effect until brought into operation in such manner and in such circumstances as may be specified in or determined under the standard conditions; (2) for the effect of any standard condition included in such a licence to be suspended in such manner, and in such circumstances, as may be so specified or determined; or (3) for any standard condition included in such a licence which is for the time being suspended to be brought back into operation in such manner and in such circumstances as may be so specified or determined: Utilities Act 2000 s 81(1). Such conditions as might be determined by the Secretary of State before 1 October 2001 (ie the commencement of s 81(3), which amends the Gas Act 1986 s 8(1) (as substituted): see the Utilities Act 2000 (Commencement No 6 and Transitional Provisions) Order 2001, SI 2001/3266, art 2, Schedule) and published by him in such manner as he considered appropriate, in relation to gas licences of any type are, subject to any modifications made under the Gas Act 1986 Pt I (ss 4AA-48) (as amended) (see PARA 789 et seq ante, PARA 811 et seq post) or under the Energy Act 2004 after the determination under this provision, to be standard conditions for the purposes of licences of that type (in place of the standard conditions which would otherwise be incorporated in licences of that type granted immediately before that date): Utilities Act 2000 s 81(2). As to the Secretary of State see PARA 601 note 1 ante.

2 Before 1 April 2005 (ie the commencement of the Energy Act 2004 s 150(6), which amends the Gas Act 1986 s 8(1) (as substituted and amended): see the Energy Act 2004 (Commencement No 5) Order 2005, SI 2005/877, art 2(1), Sch 1), the Secretary of State was to determine standard conditions for licences under the Gas Act 1986 s 7ZA (as added) (see PARA 806 ante): Energy Act 2004 s 150(1). Those standard conditions might contain provision (1) for a standard condition included in a licence under the Gas Act 1986 s 7ZA (as added) not to have effect until brought into operation in such manner, and in such circumstances, as may be specified in or determined under the standard conditions; (2) for the effect of a standard condition included in such a licence to be suspended in such manner, and in such circumstances, as may be so specified or determined; or (3) for a standard condition included in such a licence the effect of which is for the time being suspended to be brought back into operation in such manner, and in such circumstances, as may be so specified or determined: Energy Act 2004 s 150(2). The Secretary of State must publish the standard conditions so determined by him (s 150(3)) and the publication must be in such manner as the Secretary of State considers appropriate (s 150(4)). The standard conditions determined by the Secretary of State have effect subject to any modifications made under the Gas Act 1986 Pt I (as amended) or under the Energy Act 2004: s 150(5). As to the exercise of these powers see also s 191, cited in PARA 764 note 6 ante.

The Energy Act 2004 also conferred transitional power on the Secretary of State to modify certain standard conditions of gas licences in order to fund modification references under the Gas Act 1986 s 24 (as amended) (see PARA 813 post): see the Energy Act 2004 s 177; and PARA 742 ante.

NOTE 1--Utilities Act 2000 s 81(2) amended: Energy Act 2008 Sch 5 para 14.

Halsbury's Laws of England/FUEL AND ENERGY (VOLUME 19(1) (2007 REISSUE) PARAS 601-775; VOLUME 19(2) (2007 REISSUE) PARAS 776-1328); VOLUME 19(3) (2007 REISSUE) PARAS 1329-1927)/3. PARTICULAR PROVISIONS RELATING TO GAS/(4) REGULATION OF THE SUPPLY OF GAS/(i) Licensing of Activities relating to Gas/811. Transfer of licences.

811. Transfer of licences.

A licence¹ is to be capable of being transferred by the licence holder², with the consent of the Gas and Electricity Markets Authority ('GEMA')³, in accordance with the following provisions and subject to any term of the licence relating to its transfer⁴. It may however, include conditions which must be complied with before the licence can be transferred⁵. A transfer may relate to the whole or any part of the licence⁶; and this reference to part of a licence is a reference to a part of the activities authorised by the licence⁷, whether described by reference to activities being carried on by the licence holder or to activities which he is authorised to carry on⁸.

The Authority's consent may be given subject to compliance with such modification or other conditions⁹ as the Authority considers necessary or expedient¹⁰. In the case of a partial transfer, conditions so imposed may make as respects so much of the licence as is proposed to be retained by the transferor provision different from that made as respects so much of the licence as is proposed to be transferred¹¹.

In deciding whether to give its consent to a proposed transfer, the Authority must apply the same criteria as it would apply if the Authority were deciding whether:

- 1131 (1) in the case of a general transfer, to grant a corresponding licence to the transferee; or
- 1132 (2) in the case of a partial transfer:
- 63 90. (a) to grant to the transferee a licence corresponding to so much of the licence as is proposed to be transferred; and
- 91. (b) to grant to the transferor a licence corresponding to so much of the licence as is proposed to be retained¹².
- 64

The Authority must give the Health and Safety Executive¹³ not less than 28 days' notice¹⁴ of any proposal to consent to any proposed transfer and must give that Executive and the Secretary of State¹⁵ not less than 28 days' notice of any proposal to impose a modification condition¹⁶. If, before the expiry of the time specified in a notice so given to the Secretary of State, the Secretary of State directs the Authority not to impose the condition, the Authority must comply with the direction¹⁷.

Before giving consent to the transfer of a licence, the Authority must give notice:

- 1133 (i) stating that it proposes to grant consent to the transfer;
- 1134 (ii) stating the reasons why it proposes to give consent; and
- 1135 (iii) specifying the time from the date of publication of the notice, not being less than two months, within which representations or objections with respect to the transfer may be made, and must consider any representations or objections that are duly made and not withdrawn¹⁸. Such a notice must be given by publishing the notice in such manner as the Authority considers appropriate for bringing it to the attention of persons likely to be affected by the transfer¹⁹.

A purported transfer of a licence is void:

- 1136 (A) if the licence is not capable of transfer or the Authority has not given its consent;
- 1137 (B) if the purported transfer is in breach of a condition of the licence; or
- 1138 (C) if there has, before the purported transfer, been a contravention²⁰ of a condition subject to compliance with which the Authority's consent is given²¹.

PARTICULAR PROVISIONS RELATING TO GAS/(4) REGULATION OF THE SUPPLY OF GAS/(ii) Modification of Licences/812. Modification by agreement.

(ii) Modification of Licences

812. Modification by agreement.

Subject to the following provisions, the Gas and Electricity Markets Authority ('GEMA')¹ may either modify² the conditions of a particular licence³ or modify the standard conditions of gas transporter licences⁴, gas interconnector licences⁵, gas supplier licences⁶ or gas shipper licences⁷. Where at any time the Authority so modifies⁸ the standard conditions of gas transporter, gas interconnector, gas supplier or gas shipper licences, it must also make, as nearly as may be, the same modifications of those conditions for the purposes of their incorporation in such licences granted after that time⁹. It may also may make such incidental or consequential modifications as it considers necessary or expedient of any conditions of such licences granted before that time¹⁰.

Before making modifications under these provisions, the Authority must give notice¹¹:

- 1139 (1) stating that it proposes to make the modifications and setting out their effect;
- 1140 (2) stating the reasons why it proposes to make the modifications; and
- 1141 (3) specifying the time, not being less than 28 days from the date of publication of the notice, within which representations or objections with respect to the proposed modifications may be made, and must consider any representations or objections which are duly made and not withdrawn¹². Such a notice must be given by publishing the notice in such manner as the Authority considers appropriate for the purpose of bringing the notice to the attention of persons likely to be affected by the making of the modifications and by sending a copy of the notice to the holder of the licence or, as the case may be, the relevant licence holders¹³, to the Secretary of State¹⁴, to the Health and Safety Executive¹⁵ and to the Gas and Electricity Consumer Council¹⁶. If, within the time specified in the notice, the Secretary of State directs the Authority not to make any modification, the Authority must comply with the direction¹⁷.

The Authority must not make any modifications of a particular licence¹⁸ unless the licence holder has consented to the modifications and, in the case of standard conditions of a gas supplier or gas shipper licence¹⁹, the Authority is of the opinion that the modifications are requisite to meet the circumstances of the particular case and are such that:

- 1142 (a) the licence holder would not be unduly disadvantaged in competing with other holders of such licences; and
- 1143 (b) no other holder of such a licence would be unduly disadvantaged in competing with other holders of such licences, including the holder of the licence being modified²⁰.

The modification, in the case of a particular licence²¹, of part of a standard condition of a licence does not prevent any other part of the condition from continuing to be regarded as a standard condition for the purposes of Part I²² of the Gas Act 1986²³.

The Authority may not make²⁴ any modifications of the standard conditions of any licences unless:

- 1144 (i) no notice of objection to those modifications is given to the Authority within the time specified in the notice setting out the Authority's proposals²⁵ by any relevant licence holder²⁶;
- 1145 (ii) if one or more relevant licence holders gives or give notice of objection to the Authority within that time, the proportion, expressed as a percentage, of the relevant licence holders who have given notice of objection is less than such percentage as may be prescribed²⁷ and the proportion, expressed as a percentage, of the relevant licence holders who have given notice of objection, weighted according to their market share in such manner as may be prescribed²⁸, is less than such percentage as may be prescribed²⁹; or
- 1146 (iii) heads (A) to (C) below apply to the case³⁰, and those heads so apply where the Authority is of the opinion:

- 92. (A) that the effect of the standard conditions is such as to impose a burden affecting relevant licence holders in the carrying on of activities to which the modifications relate;
- 93. (B) that the modifications would remove or reduce the burden without removing any necessary protection; and
- 94. (C) in the case of a gas supplier or gas shipper licence³¹, that the modifications are such that no holder of such a licence would be unduly disadvantaged in competing with other holders of such licences³².

27 For these purposes, 'prescribed' means prescribed by order made by the Secretary of State: Gas Act 1986 s 23(12) (as substituted: see note 13 supra). A statutory instrument containing an order under s 23 (as substituted and amended) must not be made unless a draft of the instrument has been laid before and approved by a resolution of each House of Parliament: s 23(13) (added by the Utilities Act 2000 s 82(4)). As to the exercise of this power see note 29 infra.

28 Ie the percentage given by the Gas Act 1986 s 23(8) (as substituted; see note 26 supra). For the purposes of s 23(8) (as so substituted), 'weighted according to market share' means multiplied by a factor which is (1) in the case of gas suppliers who are relevant licence holders and who have given notice of objection, the total number of consumers contracted at the relevant time to those suppliers for the supply of gas divided by the total number of consumers contracted at the relevant time for the supply of gas to gas suppliers who are relevant licence holders; (2) in the case of gas shippers who are relevant licence holders and who have given notice of objection, the sum of the aggregated daily average of NTS input and NTS offtake of those shippers at the relevant time divided by the sum of the aggregated daily average of NTS input and NTS offtake at the relevant time of gas shippers who are relevant licence holders; (3) in the case of gas transporters who are relevant licence holders and who have given notice of objection, the total quantity of gas conveyed to the premises of consumers by those transporters during the 12 month period ending at the relevant time divided by the total quantity of gas conveyed to the premises of consumers during the 12 month period ending at the relevant time by gas transporters who are relevant licence holders; as calculated (in each case) by the Authority on the basis of the information available to it: Electricity and Gas (Modification of Standard Conditions of Licences) Order 2003, SI 2003/1746, art 4(2). For these purposes, 'the relevant time': (a) in art 4(2)(a) (see head (1) supra) is 23.59 hours on the last day of the calendar month preceding the day on which the Authority gives a relevant notice; and (b) in art 4(2)(b) and (c) (see heads (2)-(3) supra) is 06.00 hours on the day which is 30 days prior to the day on which the Authority gives a relevant notice (art 4(3)); and 'a relevant notice' is a notice given by the Authority pursuant to the Gas Act 1986 s 23(3) (as substituted and amended) which makes proposals in respect of the conditions included or to be included in a licence of the type held by the relevant licence holder and in relation to which the Authority is making a calculation under art 4 (Electricity and Gas (Modification of Standard Conditions of Licences) Order 2003, SI 2003/1746, art 4(4)). A gas shipper's aggregated daily average NTS input and NTS offtake must be calculated by reference to that shipper's total NTS input and NTS offtake in the 12 month period which ends at the relevant time: art 4(5). 'NTS' means the high pressure pipeline system (excluding any regional distribution system for the conveyance of gas) owned and operated by Transco plc; 'NTS input' means the quantity of gas introduced at an entry point into the NTS; 'NTS offtake' means the quantity of gas taken out at an exit point from the NTS; and 'Transco plc' means the company registered in England and Wales under number 02006000: art 2.

29 Gas Act 1986 s 23(7)(b), (8) (as substituted; see note 26 supra). For these purposes, the prescribed percentage is 20%: Electricity and Gas (Modification of Standard Conditions of Licences) Order 2003, SI 2003/1746, art 4(1).

PARTICULAR PROVISIONS RELATING TO GAS/(4) REGULATION OF THE SUPPLY OF GAS/(ii) Modification of Licences/813. Modification references to the Competition Commission.

813. Modification references to the Competition Commission.

The Gas and Electricity Markets Authority ('GEMA')¹ may make to the Competition Commission² a reference which is so framed as to require the Commission to investigate and report on the questions:

- 1147 (1) whether any matters which relate to:
- 67
95. (a) the carrying on of activities authorised or regulated by a particular licence³;
- or
96. (b) the storage⁴ of gas⁵ on terms which have been determined by the holder of a particular gas transporter licence⁶, or could have been determined by the holder if he had thought fit or had been required to determine them by or under a condition of the licence,
- 68
- 1148 and which are specified in the reference operate, or may be expected to operate, against the public interest⁷; and
- 1149 (2) if so, whether the effects adverse to the public interest which those matters have or may be expected to have could be remedied or prevented by modifications⁸ of the relevant conditions, that is to say, the conditions of the licence⁹.

The Authority may also make to the Commission a reference which is so framed as to require the Commission to investigate and report on the questions:

- 1150 (i) whether any matters which relate to the carrying on of activities authorised or regulated by gas transporter licences¹⁰, gas interconnector licences¹¹, gas supplier licences¹² which incorporate the standard conditions¹³, or gas shipper licences¹⁴, and which are specified in the reference operate, or may be expected to operate, against the public interest; and
- 1151 (ii) if so, whether the effects adverse to the public interest which those matters have or may be expected to have could be remedied or prevented by modifications of the relevant conditions, that is to say, the standard conditions of such licences¹⁵.

The Authority may, at any time, by notice¹⁶ given to the Commission, vary a reference under the above provisions by adding to the matters specified in the reference or by excluding from the reference some of the matters so specified; and on receipt of such notice the Commission must give effect to the variation¹⁷.

The Authority may specify in a reference under these provisions, or a variation of such a reference, for the purpose of assisting the Commission in carrying out the investigation on the reference, any effects adverse to the public interest which, in its opinion, the matters specified in the reference or variation have or may be expected to have¹⁸ and any modifications of the relevant conditions¹⁹ by which, in its opinion, those effects could be remedied or prevented²⁰.

Every such reference must specify a period, not longer than six months beginning with the date of the reference, within which a report on the reference is to be made²¹.

As soon as practicable after making such a reference or a variation of such a reference, the Authority:

- 1152 (A) must send a copy of the reference or variation to the holder of the licence or, as the case may be, the relevant licence holders²² and to the Gas and Electricity Consumer Council²³; and
- 1153 (B) publish particulars of the reference or variation in such manner as it considers appropriate for the purpose of bringing the reference or variation to the attention of persons likely to be affected by it²⁴.

The Authority must also send a copy of a reference under heads (i) and (ii) above, or a variation of such a reference, to the Secretary of State²⁵; and if, before the end of the period of 28 days beginning with the day on which he receives the copy of the reference or variation, the Secretary of State directs the Commission not to proceed with the reference or, as the case may require, not to give effect to the variation, the Commission must comply with the direction²⁶.

PARTICULAR PROVISIONS RELATING TO GAS/(4) REGULATION OF THE SUPPLY OF GAS/(ii) Modification of Licences/814. Procedure on modification references.

814. Procedure on modification references.

It is the duty of the Gas and Electricity Markets Authority ('GEMA')¹, for the purpose of assisting the Competition Commission² in carrying out an investigation on a modification reference³ or in carrying out its functions in the exercise of its power to veto modifications⁴, to give to the Commission:

- 1154 (1) any information⁵ which is in its possession and which relates to matters falling within the scope of the investigation or the carrying out of those functions, and which is either requested by the Commission for that purpose or is information which in its opinion it would be appropriate for that purpose to give to the Commission without any such request; and
- 1155 (2) any other assistance which the Commission may require, and which it is within its power to give, in relation to any such matters⁶.

The Commission, for the purpose of carrying out any such investigation or such functions, must take account of any information so given to it for that purpose⁷.

In determining for the purposes of a modification reference whether any particular matter operates, or may be expected to operate, against the public interest, the Commission must have regard to the matters as respects which general duties are imposed⁸ on the Secretary of State⁹ and the Authority¹⁰.

The provisions of Part 3 of the Enterprise Act 2002¹¹ which set out the Commission's powers of investigation relating to:

- 1156 (a) the attendance of witnesses and the production of documents etc¹²;
- 1157 (b) general enforcement of the powers under head (a) above¹³;
- 1158 (c) penalties¹⁴;
- 1159 (d) the main procedural requirements with regard to penalties¹⁵;
- 1160 (e) payments and interest by instalments¹⁶;
- 1161 (f) appeals in relation to penalties¹⁷;
- 1162 (g) the recovery of penalties¹⁸; and
- 1163 (h) statement of policy in relation to the enforcement of notices under the provisions mentioned in head (a) above¹⁹, apply, with specified modifications²⁰, for the purposes of modification references as they apply for the purposes of references under that Part of the 2002 Act²¹.

Provisions of Part 3 of the 2002 Act which have effect for the purposes of the provisions referred to in heads (a) to (h) above, including, in particular, provisions relating to offences and the making of orders, have effect for the purposes of the application of those provisions as mentioned above, in relation to those provisions as so applied²²; and accordingly, corresponding provisions of the Gas Act 1986 do not have effect in relation to those provisions as so applied²³.

A report of the Commission on a modification reference²⁴ does not have effect, and no action is to be taken by the Authority to make modifications in relation to it²⁵, unless the report is made before the end of the period specified in the reference²⁶ or such further period, if any, as may be allowed²⁷ by the Authority²⁸. The Authority may, if it has received representations on the subject from the Commission and is satisfied that there are special reasons why the report cannot be made within the period specified in the reference, extend that period by no more than six months²⁹. No more than one such extension is possible in relation to the same reference³⁰. The Authority must, in the case of an extension so made by it, publish that extension in such manner as it considers appropriate for the purpose of bringing it to the attention of persons likely to be affected by it, and send a copy of what has been so published by it to the holder of the licence³¹ or, as the case may be, the relevant licence holders³².

PARTICULAR PROVISIONS RELATING TO GAS/(4) REGULATION OF THE SUPPLY OF GAS/(ii) Modification of Licences/815. Reports on modification references.

815. Reports on modification references.

The report by the Competition Commission¹ on a modification reference² must be made to the Gas and Electricity Markets Authority ('GEMA')³. In making such a report the Commission:

- 1164 (1) must include in it definite conclusions on the questions comprised in the reference together with such account of the Commission's reasons for them as is expedient, in its opinion, for facilitating proper understanding of those questions and of its conclusions⁴;
- 1165 (2) where the Commission concludes that any of the matters specified in the reference operate or may be expected to operate against the public interest⁵, must specify in the report the effects adverse to the public interest which those matters have or may be expected to have⁶;
- 1166 (3) where the Commission concludes that any adverse effects so specified could be remedied or prevented by modifications of the relevant conditions⁷, must specify in the report modifications by which those effects could be remedied or prevented⁸.

For the purposes of subsequent action⁹, a conclusion contained in a report of the Commission is to be disregarded if the conclusion is not that of at least two-thirds of the members of the group constituted in accordance with the relevant statutory provision¹⁰ in connection with the reference concerned¹¹; and if a member of a group so constituted disagrees with any conclusions contained in such a report as the conclusions of the Commission, the report must, if the member so wishes, include a statement of his disagreement and of his reasons for disagreeing¹².

Absolute privilege attaches to any such report for the purposes of the law relating to defamation¹³. In making any such report, however, the Commission must have regard to the following considerations before disclosing any information¹⁴:

- 1167 (a) the need to exclude from disclosure, so far as practicable, any information whose disclosure the Commission thinks is contrary to the public interest¹⁵;
- 1168 (b) the need to exclude from disclosure, so far as practicable, either commercial information whose disclosure the Commission thinks might significantly harm the legitimate business interests of the undertaking to which it relates, or information relating to the private affairs of an individual whose disclosure the Commission thinks might significantly harm the individual's interests¹⁶;
- 1169 (c) the extent to which the disclosure of the information mentioned in head (b) above is necessary for the purposes of the report¹⁷.

The Authority must¹⁸:

- 1170 (i) on receiving a report on a reference with regard to a particular licence¹⁹, send a copy of it to the licence holder²⁰ and to the Secretary of State²¹ and, not less than 14 days after that copy is received by the Secretary of State, send another copy to the Gas and Electricity Consumer Council²² and publish that other copy in

- such manner as the Authority considers appropriate for bringing the report to the attention of persons likely to be affected by it²³;
- 1171 (ii) on receiving a report on a reference with regard to matters relating to the carrying on of activities authorised or regulated by gas transporter, gas interconnector, gas supplier or gas shipper licences²⁴, send a copy of it to the Secretary of State and, not less than 14 days after that copy is received by the Secretary of State:
- 69
97. (A) send another copy to the Council and to each relevant licence holder²⁵; and
98. (B) not less than 24 hours after complying with head (A) above, publish the copy sent to the Council in such manner as the Authority considers appropriate for bringing the report to the attention of persons likely to be affected by it²⁶.
- 70

If, however, it appears to the Secretary of State that the publication of any matter in such a report would be against the public interest or the commercial interests of any person, he may, before the end of the period of 14 days mentioned in head (i) or head (ii) above, direct the Authority to exclude that matter from the copy of the report, or (as the case may be) each copy of the report, to be sent to the Council, or to the Council and the relevant licence holders, and published as there mentioned²⁷.

PARTICULAR PROVISIONS RELATING TO GAS/(4) REGULATION OF THE SUPPLY OF GAS/(ii) Modification of Licences/816. Modification following report.

816. Modification following report.

Where a report of the Competition Commission¹ on a modification reference²:

- 1172 (1) includes conclusions to the effect that any of the matters specified in the reference operate or may be expected to operate against the public interest³;
- 1173 (2) specifies effects adverse to the public interest which those matters have or may be expected to have;
- 1174 (3) includes conclusions to the effect that those effects could be remedied or prevented by modifications of the relevant conditions⁴; and
- 1175 (4) specifies modifications by which those effects could be remedied or prevented, the Gas and Electricity Markets Authority ('GEMA')⁵ must, subject to the following provisions, make such modifications of the relevant conditions as appear to it requisite for the purpose of remedying or preventing the adverse effects specified in the report⁶ and must, before making such modifications, have regard to the modifications specified in the report⁷.

Where at any time the Authority so modifies⁸ the standard conditions⁹ of gas transporter licences¹⁰, gas interconnector licences¹¹, gas supplier licences¹² or gas shipper licences¹³, it must also make, as nearly as may be, the same modifications of those conditions for the purposes of their incorporation in such licences granted after that time¹⁴ and may make such incidental or consequential modifications as it considers necessary or expedient of any conditions of such licences granted before that time¹⁵. Before making such modifications, the Authority must have regard to the modifications specified in the report¹⁶.

Before making modifications under the above provisions, the Authority must give notice¹⁷:

- 1176 (a) stating that it proposes to make the modifications and setting out their effect;
- 1177 (b) stating the reasons why it proposes to make the modifications; and
- 1178 (c) specifying the time, not being less than 28 days from the date of publication of the notice, within which representations or objections with respect to the proposed modifications may be made, and must consider any representations or objections which are duly made and not withdrawn¹⁸. Such a notice must be given:

- 1179 (i) by publishing the notice in such manner as the Authority considers appropriate for the purpose of bringing the matters to which the notice relates to the attention of persons likely to be affected by the making of the modifications; and
- 1180 (ii) by sending a copy of the notice to the holder of the licence or, as the case may be, the relevant licence holders¹⁹, to the Health and Safety Executive²⁰ and to the Gas and Electricity Consumer Council²¹.

After considering any representations or objections made in response to proposals set out in such a notice, the Authority must give notice to the Commission setting out the modifications it proposes to make to remedy or prevent the adverse effects specified in the report and stating the reasons for making the modifications²²; and the Authority must include with that notice a copy of any representations or objections received in relation to the earlier notice²³ of its proposals²⁴. If the period of four weeks from the date on which that notice to the Commission is given elapses without a direction not to make the modifications set out in that notice²⁵ having been given to it, the Authority must either:

- 1181 (A) make the modifications set out in the notice; or
- 1182 (B) if a direction not to make specified modifications²⁶ has been given, make the modifications which are not specified in the direction²⁷.

PARTICULAR PROVISIONS RELATING TO GAS/(4) REGULATION OF THE SUPPLY OF GAS/(ii) Modification of Licences/817. Competition Commission's power to veto modifications following report.

817. Competition Commission's power to veto modifications following report.

The Competition Commission¹ may, within the period of four weeks after the date on which it is given a notice of proposed modifications², direct the Gas and Electricity Markets Authority ('GEMA')³ either:

- 1183 (1) not to make the modifications set out in that notice⁴; or
- 1184 (2) not to make such of the modifications as may be specified in the direction⁵;

and the Authority must comply with any such direction⁶. The power to give such a direction may only be exercised in respect of such of the modifications set out in the notice of proposals⁷ as appear to the Commission not to be the modifications which are requisite for the purpose of remedying or preventing all or any of the adverse effects specified in the report as effects which could be remedied or prevented by modifications⁸.

If the Commission gives such a direction, the Commission must give notice⁹ setting out the modifications proposed by the Authority, the terms of the direction and the reasons for giving it¹⁰; and must itself make such modifications of the relevant conditions¹¹ as appear to it to be requisite for the purpose of remedying or preventing:

- 1185 (a) if the direction was given under head (1) above, the adverse effects specified in the report as effects which could be remedied or prevented by modifications;
- 1186 (b) if the direction was given under head (2) above, such of those adverse effects as are not remedied or prevented by the modifications made¹² by the Authority¹³.

In exercising its function to make such modifications, the Commission must have regard to the matters to which the Authority is required to have regard when determining the conditions of a licence¹⁴; and before so making modifications the Commission must give notice¹⁵:

- 1187 (i) stating that it proposes to make the modifications and setting them out;
- 1188 (ii) stating the reason why it proposes to make them;
- 1189 (iii) specifying the period, not being less than 28 days from the date of publication of the notice, within which representations or objections with respect to the proposed modifications may be made, and must consider any representations or objections which are duly made and not withdrawn¹⁶.

Where, in consequence of a reference with regard to matters relating to the carrying on of activities authorised or regulated by gas transporter, gas interconnector, gas supplier or gas shipper licences¹⁷, the Commission so modifies¹⁸ the standard conditions¹⁹ of licences of any type²⁰, the Authority may make such incidental and consequential modifications as it considers necessary or expedient of any conditions of licences of that type granted before that time²¹; and where the Commission modifies the standard conditions of licences of any type as mentioned above, it must make, as nearly as may be, the same modifications of those conditions for the purposes of their incorporation in licences of that type granted after that time²² and must publish the modifications made for those purposes in such manner as it considers appropriate²³.

After making modifications under these provisions the Commission must publish a notice stating that the modifications have been made and setting them out, with the reasons for making them²⁴.

For the purposes of the law relating to defamation, absolute privilege attaches to any notice under the above provisions²⁵. In giving²⁶ or publishing²⁷ any such notice, however, the Commission must have regard to the following considerations before disclosing any information²⁸:

- 1190 (A) the need to exclude from disclosure, so far as practicable, any information whose disclosure the Commission thinks is contrary to the public interest²⁹;
- 1191 (B) the need to exclude from disclosure, so far as practicable, either commercial information whose disclosure the Commission thinks might significantly harm the legitimate business interests of the undertaking to which it relates, or information relating to the private affairs of an individual whose disclosure the Commission thinks might significantly harm the individual's interests³⁰;
- 1192 (C) the extent to which the disclosure of the information mentioned in head (B) above is necessary for the purposes of the notice³¹.

PARTICULAR PROVISIONS RELATING TO GAS/(4) REGULATION OF THE SUPPLY OF GAS/(ii) Modification of Licences/818. Modification by order under other enactments.

818. Modification by order under other enactments.

Where the Office of Fair Trading¹, the Competition Commission² or, as the case may be, the Secretary of State³ ('the relevant authority') makes a relevant order⁴, the order may also provide for the modification⁵ of:

- 1193 (1) the conditions of a particular licence⁶; or
- 1194 (2) the standard conditions⁷ of gas transporter licences⁸, gas interconnector licences⁹, gas supplier licences¹⁰ or gas shipper licences¹¹, to such extent as may appear to the relevant authority to be requisite or expedient for the purpose of giving effect to, or taking account of, any provision made by the order¹².

The modification under head (1) above of part of a standard condition of a particular licence¹³ does not prevent any other part of the condition from continuing to be regarded as a standard condition for the purposes of Part I¹⁴ of the Gas Act 1986¹⁵.

Where at any time the relevant authority modifies under head (2) above the standard conditions of gas transporter licences, gas interconnector licences, gas supplier licences or gas shipper licences, the relevant authority:

- 1195 (a) must also make, as nearly as may be, the same modifications of those conditions for the purposes of their incorporation in such licences granted after that time; and
- 1196 (b) may, after consultation with the Gas and Electricity Markets Authority ('GEMA')¹⁶, make such incidental or consequential modifications as the relevant authority considers necessary or expedient of any conditions of such licences granted before that time¹⁷; and where at any time the relevant authority modifies standard conditions under head (a) above for the purposes of their incorporation in licences granted after that time, the relevant authority must publish those modifications in such manner as the relevant authority considers appropriate¹⁸.

UPDATE

819 Power to alter activities requiring licence

TEXT AND NOTES--The Gas Act 1986 s 41HA (ss 41HA-41HC added by Energy Act 2008 Sch 4 para 1) gives the Secretary of State an order-making power to both create new licensable activities under the Gas Act 1986 s 41C in relation to smart metering and to order that such new licensable activities will cease to be licensable. Supplemental provision with respect to procedure is made: see Gas Act 1986 s 41HB. The Secretary of State may by regulations make provision for a determination on a competitive basis of the person to whom a licence in respect of new licensable activities is to be granted: see Gas Act 1986 s 41HC.

Halsbury's Laws of England/FUEL AND ENERGY (VOLUME 19(1) (2007 REISSUE) PARAS 601-775; VOLUME 19(2) (2007 REISSUE) PARAS 776-1328); VOLUME 19(3) (2007 REISSUE) PARAS 1329-1927)/3. PARTICULAR PROVISIONS RELATING TO GAS/(4) REGULATION OF THE SUPPLY OF GAS/(iii) Alteration of Activities requiring Licence/820. Application by the Gas and Electricity Markets Authority for an order including new activities.

820. Application by the Gas and Electricity Markets Authority for an order including new activities.

If the Gas and Electricity Markets Authority ('GEMA')¹ proposes to make an application for an order providing for activities to become licensable activities², it must give notice³:

- 1207 (1) stating that it proposes to make an application for an order providing for the activities to become licensable activities;
- 1208 (2) setting out the conditions which it would expect such an order to determine to be standard conditions⁴ for the purposes of licences⁵ authorising the undertaking of the activities and any other conditions which it would expect to be included in such licences; and
- 1209 (3) specifying a reasonable period, not being less than 28 days from the date of publication of the notice, within which representations or objections may be made with respect to the proposal, and must consider any representations or objections which are duly made and not withdrawn⁶. The notice must be given by serving a copy on the Gas and Electricity Consumer Council⁷ and by publishing it in such manner as the Authority considers appropriate for bringing it to the attention of persons appearing to it to be carrying on, or be intending to carry on, the activities, and of any other persons appearing to it to be likely to be affected by an order providing for the activities to become licensable activities⁸.

If an objection has been duly made, and not withdrawn, by a person who is carrying on or intends to carry on the activities, the Authority must make a reference⁹ to the Competition Commission¹⁰ before making the application¹¹; and in any other case where the Authority considers it appropriate to make a reference to the Commission¹² before making the application, the Authority may make such a reference¹³. If a reference is made to the Commission, the application must not be made unless the Commission has reported on the reference that the fact that the activities to which the application relates are not licensable activities operates, or may be expected to operate, against the public interest¹⁴.

The application must set out:

- 1210 (a) the activities which the Authority considers should become licensable activities; and
- 1211 (b) the conditions which the Authority would expect to be determined to be standard conditions for the purposes of licences authorising the undertaking of the activities in question and any other conditions which the Authority would expect to be included in such licences¹⁵.

PARTICULAR PROVISIONS RELATING TO GAS/(4) REGULATION OF THE SUPPLY OF GAS/(iii) Alteration of Activities requiring Licence/821. References to the Competition Commission before application for an order including new licensable activities.

821. References to the Competition Commission before application for an order including new licensable activities.

A reference to the Competition Commission¹ before the Gas and Electricity Markets Authority ('GEMA')² makes an application for an order including new licensable activities³ must require the Commission to investigate and report on whether the fact that the activities specified in the reference are not licensable activities operates, or may be expected to operate, against the public interest⁴. Every such reference must specify a period, not longer than six months beginning with the date of the reference, within which a report on the reference is to be made⁵. The Authority may, at any time, by notice⁶ given to the Commission vary the reference by adding to the activities specified in the reference or by excluding from the reference some of the activities so specified; and on receipt of such notice the Commission must give effect to the variation⁷.

The Authority must specify in the reference, or a variation of the reference, for the purpose of assisting the Commission in carrying out the investigation on the reference⁸:

- 1212 (1) the conditions which the Authority would expect to be determined to be standard conditions⁹ for the purposes of licences¹⁰ authorising the undertaking of the activities specified in the reference and any other conditions which the Authority would expect to be included in such licences; and
- 1213 (2) any effects adverse to the public interest which, in its opinion, the fact that the activities so specified are not licensable activities has or may be expected to have¹¹.

As soon as practicable after making the reference, or a variation of the reference, the Authority must serve a copy of it on the Gas and Electricity Consumer Council¹² and must publish particulars of it in such manner as the Authority considers appropriate for bringing it to the attention of persons appearing to the Authority to be carrying on, or be intending to carry on, the activities specified in it, and of any other persons appearing to the Authority to be likely to be affected by it¹³.

PARTICULAR PROVISIONS RELATING TO GAS/(4) REGULATION OF THE SUPPLY OF GAS/(iii) Alteration of Activities requiring Licence/822. Procedure on a reference before application for an order including new licensable activities.

822. Procedure on a reference before application for an order including new licensable activities.

The Gas and Electricity Markets Authority ('GEMA')¹ must, for the purpose of assisting the Competition Commission² in carrying out the investigation on the reference before the Authority makes an application for an order including new licensable activities³, give to the Commission:

- 1214 (1) any information⁴ which is in its possession and which relates to matters falling within the scope of the investigation, and which is either requested by the Commission for that purpose or is information which in its opinion it would be appropriate for that purpose to give to the Commission without any such request; and
- 1215 (2) any other assistance which the Commission may require, and which it is within its power to give, in relation to any such matters, and the Commission must take account of the information for the purpose of carrying out the investigation⁵. In determining for these purposes whether the fact that particular activities are not licensable activities operates, or may be expected to operate, against the public interest, the Commission must have regard to:

- 1216 (a) the matters referred to in the statutory provision setting out the principal objective and general duties of the Secretary of State⁶ and the Authority⁷;
- 1217 (b) any social or environmental policies set out or referred to in guidance issued⁸ by the Secretary of State; and
- 1218 (c) any advice about health and safety in relation to gas⁹ given¹⁰ by the Health and Safety Commission¹¹.

The provisions of Part 3 of the Enterprise Act 2002¹² which set out the Commission's powers of investigation relating to:

- 1219 (i) the attendance of witnesses and the production of documents etc¹³;
- 1220 (ii) general enforcement of the powers under head (i) above¹⁴;
- 1221 (iii) penalties¹⁵;
- 1222 (iv) the main procedural requirements with regard to penalties¹⁶;
- 1223 (v) payments and interest by instalments¹⁷;
- 1224 (vi) appeals in relation to penalties¹⁸;
- 1225 (vii) the recovery of penalties¹⁹; and
- 1226 (viii) statement of policy in relation to the enforcement of notices under the provisions mentioned in head (i) above²⁰, apply, with specified modifications²¹, for the purposes of such references as they apply for the purposes of references under that Part of the 2002 Act²². The provision of that Part of the 2002 Act relating to false or misleading information²³ also applies, with modifications²⁴ in relation to functions of the Commission in connection with such references as it applies in relation to its functions under Part 3 of that 2002 Act²⁵.

Provisions of Part 3 of the Enterprise Act 2002 which have effect for the purposes of the provisions of that Act mentioned above²⁶, including, in particular, provisions relating to offences and the making of orders, have effect for the purposes of the application of those provisions as mentioned above, in relation to those provisions as so applied²⁷; and accordingly, corresponding provisions of the Gas Act 1986 do not have effect in relation to those provisions as so applied²⁸.

A report of the Commission on a such a reference²⁹ does not have effect³⁰ unless the report is made before the end of the period specified in the reference³¹ or such further period, if any, as may be allowed³² by the Authority³³. The Authority may, if it has received representations on the subject from the Commission and is satisfied that there are special reasons why the report cannot be made within the period specified in the reference, extend that period by no more than six months³⁴; but no more than one such extension is possible in relation to the same reference³⁵. The Authority must publish such an extension in such manner as it considers appropriate for the purpose of bringing it to the attention of persons likely to be affected by it³⁶.

UPDATE

822 Procedure on a reference before application for an order including new licensable activities

TEXT AND NOTE 11--1986 Act s 41E(6)(c) amended: SI 2008/960.

Halsbury's Laws of England/FUEL AND ENERGY (VOLUME 19(1) (2007 REISSUE) PARAS 601-775; VOLUME 19(2) (2007 REISSUE) PARAS 776-1328); VOLUME 19(3) (2007 REISSUE) PARAS 1329-1927)/3. PARTICULAR PROVISIONS RELATING TO GAS/(4) REGULATION OF THE SUPPLY OF GAS/(iii) Alteration of Activities requiring Licence/823. Reports on references before application for an order including new licensable activities.

823. Reports on references before application for an order including new licensable activities.

A report of the Competition Commission¹ on a reference before the Gas and Electricity Markets Authority ('GEMA')² makes an application for an order including new licensable activities³ must be made to the Authority⁴. In making a report on such a reference the Commission must include in the report definite conclusions on whether the fact that the activities specified in the reference, or the reference as varied, are not licensable activities operates, or may be expected to operate, against the public interest⁵. The Commission must also include in the report such an account of its reasons for those conclusions as in its opinion is expedient for facilitating proper understanding of the questions raised by the reference and of its conclusions⁶.

Where the Commission concludes that the fact that particular activities are not licensable activities operates, or may be expected to operate, against the public interest, it must specify in the report:

- 1227 (1) the effects adverse to the public interest which that fact has or may be expected to have; and
- 1228 (2) any modifications⁷ to the conditions specified in the reference⁸ which the Commission considers appropriate⁹.

A conclusion contained in a report of the Commission is to be disregarded¹⁰ if the conclusion is not that of at least two-thirds of the members of the group constituted¹¹ in connection with the reference concerned in accordance with the relevant statutory provision¹²; and if a member of a group so constituted disagrees with any conclusions contained in a report made on such a reference as the conclusions of the Commission, the report must, if the member so wishes, include a statement of his disagreement and of his reasons for disagreeing¹³.

For the purposes of the law relating to defamation, absolute privilege attaches to any report made by the Commission on such a reference¹⁴; but in making any report on such a reference the Commission must have regard to the following considerations before disclosing any information¹⁵:

- 1229 (a) the need to exclude from disclosure, so far as practicable, any information whose disclosure the Commission thinks is contrary to the public interest¹⁶;
- 1230 (b) the need to exclude from disclosure, so far as practicable, either commercial information whose disclosure the Commission thinks might significantly harm the legitimate business interests of the undertaking to which it relates, or information relating to the private affairs of an individual whose disclosure the Commission thinks might significantly harm the individual's interests¹⁷;
- 1231 (c) the extent to which the disclosure of the information mentioned in head (b) above is necessary for the purposes of the report¹⁸.

On receiving the report, the Authority must send a copy of it to the Secretary of State¹⁹ and must²⁰, not less than 14 days after the copy is received by the Secretary of State, send another copy to the Gas and Electricity Consumer Council²¹ and publish that other copy in such manner as the Authority considers appropriate for bringing the report to the attention of persons likely to be affected by it²². If, however, it appears to the Secretary of State that the publication of any matter in the report would be against the public interest or the commercial interests of any person, he may, before the end of that period of 14 days, direct the Authority to exclude that matter from the copy of the report to be so sent to the Council and published²³.

Application by the Gas and Electricity Markets Authority for an order excluding activities.

824. Application by the Gas and Electricity Markets Authority for an order excluding activities.

Before making an application for an order providing for activities to cease to be licensable activities¹, the Gas and Electricity Markets Authority ('GEMA')² must give notice³:

- 1232 (1) stating that it proposes to make an application for an order providing for the activities to cease to be licensable activities; and
- 1233 (2) specifying a reasonable period, not being less than 28 days from the date of publication of the notice, within which representations or objections may be made with respect to the proposal, and must consider any representations or objections duly made and not withdrawn⁴. The notice must be given:

- 1234 (a) by serving a copy on the Secretary of State⁵, the Health and Safety Executive⁶ and the Gas and Electricity Consumer Council⁷; and
- 1235 (b) by publishing it in such manner as the Authority considers appropriate for bringing it to the attention of persons likely to be affected by such an order⁸.

An application under these provisions must set out:

- 1236 (i) the activities which the Authority considers should cease to be licensable activities; and
- 1237 (ii) the Authority's reasons for proposing that the order be made⁹.

PARTICULAR PROVISIONS RELATING TO GAS/(4) REGULATION OF THE SUPPLY OF GAS/(iii) Alteration of Activities requiring Licence/825. Consultation by Secretary of State about order excluding activities.

825. Consultation by Secretary of State about order excluding activities.

If the Secretary of State¹ proposes to make an order providing for activities to cease to be licensable activities², otherwise than on an application³ by the Gas and Electricity Markets Authority ('GEMA')⁴, he must give notice⁵:

- 1238 (1) stating that he proposes to make an order providing for the activities to cease to be licensable activities; and
- 1239 (2) specifying a reasonable period, not being less than 28 days from the date of publication of the notice, within which representations or objections may be made with respect to the proposal, and must consider any representations or objections duly made and not withdrawn⁶. The notice must be given:

- 1240 (a) by serving a copy on the Authority, the Health and Safety Executive⁷ and the Gas and Electricity Consumer Council⁸; and
- 1241 (b) by publishing it in such manner as the Secretary of State considers appropriate for bringing it to the attention of persons likely to be affected by such an order⁹.

9 Gas Act 1986 s 41H(2) (as added: see note 6 supra).

Halsbury's Laws of England/FUEL AND ENERGY (VOLUME 19(1) (2007 REISSUE) PARAS 601-775; VOLUME 19(2) (2007 REISSUE) PARAS 776-1328); VOLUME 19(3) (2007 REISSUE) PARAS 1329-1927)/3. PARTICULAR PROVISIONS RELATING TO GAS/(4) REGULATION OF THE SUPPLY OF GAS/(iv) Third Party Rights with regard to Pipeline Systems and Relevant Facilities/826. Acquisition of rights to use pipeline systems.

(iv) Third Party Rights with regard to Pipeline Systems and Relevant Facilities

826. Acquisition of rights to use pipeline systems.

In the case of a pipeline system operated by a gas transporter¹, any person may, after giving the transporter not less than 28 days' notice², apply to the Gas and Electricity Markets Authority ('GEMA')³ for directions under these provisions which would secure to the applicant a right of a description specified in the application to have conveyed by the system gas⁴ which is of a kind so specified and which is of, or of a kind similar to, the kind which the system is designed to convey⁵. Where such an application is made, it is the duty of the Authority:

- 1242 (1) to decide whether the application is to be adjourned, so as to enable negotiations or further negotiations to take place, to be considered further or to be rejected;
- 1243 (2) to give notice of its decision to the applicant;
- 1244 (3) in the case of a decision that the application is to be considered further, to give to the transporter, to the Health and Safety Executive⁶ and to any person who has a right to have gas conveyed by the pipeline system, notice that the application is to be so considered and an opportunity of being heard about the matter⁷.

Where, after further considering such an application, the Authority is satisfied that the giving of directions under these provisions would not prejudice the efficient operation of the pipeline system, or the conveyance by the system of:

- 1245 (a) the quantities of gas which the gas transporter requires or may reasonably be expected to require to be conveyed by the system to enable the transporter to comply with the conditions of his licence⁸ and to perform his contractual obligations;
- 1246 (b) the quantities of gas which any person who has a right to have gas conveyed by the system is entitled to require to be so conveyed in the exercise of that right, the Authority may give such directions to the transporter⁹. Such directions may:

- 1247 (i) specify the terms on which the Authority considers the gas transporter should enter into an agreement with the applicant for all or any of the following purposes:
- 71
- 99. (A) for securing to the applicant the right to have conveyed by the pipeline system, for the period specified in the directions and in the quantities so specified or determined by or under the directions, gas which is of a kind so specified;
 - 100. (B) for securing that the exercise of that right is not prevented or impeded;

- 101. (c) for regulating the charges which may be made for the conveyance of gas by virtue of that right;
 - 102. (d) for securing to the applicant such ancillary or incidental rights as the Authority considers necessary or expedient, which may include the right to have a pipeline of his connected to the pipeline system by the transporter;
- 72
- 1248 (ii) specify the sums or the method of determining the sums which the Authority considers should be paid by way of consideration for any such right; and
 - 1249 (iii) require the transporter, if the applicant pays or agrees to pay those sums within a period specified in that behalf in the directions, to enter into an agreement with him on the terms so specified¹⁰.

In giving any such directions, the Authority must apply the principle that the gas transporter should be entitled to receive by way of charges for the conveyance of gas by virtue of the right both the appropriate proportion¹¹ of the costs incurred by the transporter in administering, maintaining and operating his pipeline system¹² and a return equal to the appropriate proportion¹³ of the return received by the transporter, otherwise than by virtue of the right, on the capital value of the system, including so much of that return as is set aside to meet the need from time to time to renew the system¹⁴.

1 For the meaning of 'gas transporter' see PARA 805 ante.

2 For the meaning of 'notice' see PARA 804 note 6 ante.

3 As to the establishment and general functions of the Gas and Electricity Markets Authority see PARA 708 et seq ante; and as to the use of the abbreviation 'GEMA' in this context see PARA 708 note 5 ante.

4 For these purposes, any reference to a right to have gas of any kind conveyed by a pipeline system includes a reference to a right to introduce into, or take out of, such a system gas of that kind: Gas Act 1986 s 19(7) (s 19 substituted by the Gas Act 1995 s 10(1), Sch 3 para 16). For the meaning of 'gas' see PARA 802 ante.

5 Gas Act 1986 s 19(1) (as substituted (see note 4 supra); s 19(1), (3)-(5) amended by the Utilities Act 2000 s 108, Sch 6 Pt I paras 1, 2(1); and by virtue of s 3(2)).

6 As to the Health and Safety Executive see HEALTH AND SAFETY AT WORK vol 52 (2009) PARA 361 et seq.

7 Gas Act 1986 s 19(2) (as substituted (see note 4 supra); amended by virtue of the Utilities Act 2000 s 3(2)).

8 For the meaning of 'licence' see PARA 789 note 9 ante.

9 Gas Act 1986 s 19(3) (as substituted and amended: see notes 4-5 supra).

10 Ibid s 19(4) (as substituted and amended: see notes 4-5 supra).

11 For these purposes, 'the appropriate proportion' means such proportion as properly (1) reflects the use made of the gas transporter's pipeline system by virtue of the right as compared with the use made of that system for other purposes; and (2) takes into account the sums paid by way of consideration for the right and any sums paid in respect of the pipeline system (whether by the applicant or by any other person) in pursuance of directions under ibid s 21(1) (as substituted and amended) (see PARA 831 post): s 19(6) (as substituted (see note 4 supra); amended by the Utilities Act 2000 s 108, Sch 6 Pt I paras 1, 2(2)).

12 Gas Act 1986 s 19(5)(a) (as substituted and amended: see notes 4-5 supra).

13 See note 11 supra.

14 Gas Act 1986 s 19(5)(b) (as substituted and amended: see notes 4-5 supra).

Halsbury's Laws of England/FUEL AND ENERGY (VOLUME 19(1) (2007 REISSUE) PARAS 601-775; VOLUME 19(2) (2007 REISSUE) PARAS 776-1328); VOLUME 19(3) (2007 REISSUE) PARAS 1329-1927)/3. PARTICULAR PROVISIONS RELATING TO GAS/(4) REGULATION OF THE SUPPLY OF GAS/(iv) Third Party Rights with regard to Pipeline Systems and Relevant Facilities/827. Acquisition of rights to use storage facilities.

827. Acquisition of rights to use storage facilities.

The owner¹ of a storage facility² to which the following provisions apply³ (a 'relevant facility'):

- 1250 (1) must publish at least once in every year⁴ the main commercial conditions⁵ relating to the grant to another person of a right to have gas or liquid gas stored in the facility⁶ on that person's behalf; and
- 1251 (2) must publish any changes to the published conditions as soon as they become effective⁷.

The owner of a relevant facility must ensure that the conditions which he is so required to publish do not discriminate against any applicants or descriptions of applicants, or any potential applicants or descriptions of potential applicants, for a right to have gas or liquid gas stored in the facility⁸.

Any person who seeks a right to have gas or liquid gas stored on his behalf in a relevant facility ('the applicant') must, before making an application⁹ to the Gas and Electricity Markets Authority ('GEMA')¹⁰, apply to the owner of the facility for the right¹¹. Such an application must be made by giving notice¹² to the owner specifying what is being sought¹³; and such a notice must, in particular, specify:

- 1252 (a) the period during which the gas or liquid gas is to be stored in the facility;
- 1253 (b) the kind of gas or liquid gas to be stored, which must be of, or similar to, the kind which the facility is designed to store; and
- 1254 (c) the quantities of gas or liquid gas to be stored¹⁴.

Where an applicant gives such notice, he and the owner of the facility must negotiate in good faith and endeavour to reach agreement on the application¹⁵.

If the owner and the applicant do not reach any such agreement, the applicant may apply to the Authority for directions¹⁶ which would secure to the applicant the right specified in his notice¹⁷. The Authority must not, however, entertain such an application unless it is satisfied that the parties have had a reasonable time in which to fulfil their duties¹⁸ to negotiate and endeavour to reach agreement¹⁹.

Where a person so applies to the Authority and the Authority is satisfied that the parties have had such reasonable time, the Authority must decide whether the application is to be adjourned, so as to enable further negotiations to take place, to be considered further or to be rejected²⁰, and must give notice of its decision to the applicant²¹. In the case of a decision that the application is to be considered further, the Authority must give to the owner of the facility, the Health and Safety Executive²² and any person who has a right to have gas or liquid gas stored in the facility notice that the application is to be so considered and an opportunity of being heard on the matter²³.

Where, after considering such an application, the Authority is satisfied that the giving of directions under this provision would not prejudice the efficient operation of the facility, or the storage in the facility of the quantities of gas or liquid gas which the owner of the facility requires or may reasonably be expected to require to be stored in the facility²⁴ and the quantities of gas or liquid gas which any person who has a right to have gas or liquid gas stored in the facility is entitled to require to be so stored in the exercise of that right²⁵, the Authority may give such directions to the owner of the facility²⁶. Such directions may:

1255 (i) specify the terms on which the Authority considers the owner of the facility should enter into an agreement with the applicant for all or any of the following purposes:

103. (A) for securing to the applicant the right to have stored in the facility, for the period specified in the directions and in the quantities so specified or determined by or under the directions, gas or liquid gas which is of a kind so specified;

104. (B) for securing that the exercise of that right is not prevented or impeded;

105. (C) for regulating the charges which may be made for the storage of gas or liquid gas by virtue of that right;

106. (D) for securing to the applicant such ancillary or incidental rights as the Authority considers necessary or expedient, which may include, in particular, a right to have a pipeline of his connected to the facility by the owner;

1256 (ii) specify the sums or the method of determining the sums which the Authority considers should be paid by way of consideration for any such right; and

1257 (iii) require the owner, if the applicant pays or agrees to pay those sums within a period specified in that behalf in the directions, to enter into an agreement with him on the terms so specified²⁷.

1 For these purposes, 'owner' includes any person occupying or having control of the facility: see the Gas Act 1986 s 19E(1) (s 19E added by the Gas (Third Party Access and Accounts) Regulations 2000, SI 2000/1937, reg 2(2), Sch 2 para 1; the Gas Act 1986 s 19E(1) amended by the Gas (Third Party Access) Regulations 2004, SI 2004/2043, reg 2(2), Sch 2 para 6(a); definition of 'owner' amended by Sch 2 para 6(g)). For the meaning of 'owner' generally see PARA 836 note 3 post.

2 For the meaning of 'storage' generally see PARA 792 note 6 ante. For these purposes, 'storage', in relation to liquid gas in a storage facility, includes any liquefaction of gas or regasification of liquid gas ancillary to the storage of liquid gas, and 'stored', in relation to liquid gas in a storage facility, is to be construed accordingly; and 'storage facility' means a facility in Great Britain (excluding the territorial sea adjacent to the United Kingdom) for either or both of the following: (1) the storage of gas in cavities in strata or in porous strata, provided that the facility is or will be used for the storage of gas which has previously been conveyed in a pipeline system operated by a gas transporter; (2) the storage of liquid gas; but the reference in head (2) supra to the storage of liquid gas does not include such temporary storage as is mentioned in PARA (c) of the definition of 'LNG import facility' (as to that definition see PARA 829 note 2 post): Gas Act 1986 s 19E(1) (as added and amended (see note 1 supra); definition of 'storage' added, and definition of 'storage facility' substituted, by the Gas (Third Party Access) Regulations 2004, SI 2004/2043, reg 2(2), Sch 2 para 6(i), (j)). For the meaning of 'gas' see PARA 802 ante.

3 As to the application of the Gas Act 1986 s 19B (as added and amended) see PARA 828 post.

4 For this purpose, 'year' means any year ending with 9 August: ibid s 19B(2) (s 19B added by the Gas (Third Party Access and Accounts) Regulations 2000, SI 2000/1937, SI 2000/1937, Sch 2 para 1).

5 'Main commercial conditions' means (1) in the case of a storage facility, such information as would enable a potential applicant for a right to have gas or liquid gas stored in the facility to make a reasonable assessment of the cost of, or the method of calculating the cost of, acquiring that right; (2) the other significant terms on which such a right would be granted; and (3) such additional information as the Authority may from time to time specify by notice: Gas Act 1986 s 19E(1) (as added and amended (see note 1 supra); definition amended by the Gas (Third Party Access) Regulations 2004, SI 2004/2043, Sch 2 para 6(d), (e); and by virtue of the Utilities Act 2000 s 3(2)).

6 Any reference for these purposes to a right to have gas or gas of any kind, or liquid gas or liquid gas of any kind, stored in a storage facility includes a reference to a right to introduce into, or take out of, such a facility gas or gas of that kind, or liquid gas or liquid gas of that kind: Gas Act 1986 s 19E(5) (as added (see note 1 supra); amended by the Gas (Third Party Access) Regulations 2004, SI 2004/2043, Sch 2 para 6(l)).

7 Gas Act 1986 s 19B(1) (as added (see note 4 supra); s 19B(1), (3), (4), (6), (10)-(12) amended by the Gas (Third Party Access) Regulations 2004, SI 2004/2043, Sch 2 para 2).

8 Gas Act 1986 s 19B(3) (as added and amended: see notes 4, 7 supra).

For the purpose of considering an application under the Gas Act 1986 s 19B(8) (as so added and amended), the Authority may by notice require the owner of the relevant facility to provide him with accounting information and details of the main commercial terms of any significant transactions with associated undertakings: s 19E(2) (as added (see note 1 supra); amended by virtue of the Utilities Act 2000 s 3(2)). Owners of relevant facilities must keep their internal accounts in such manner as will enable them to provide accounting information if required to do so by such a notice: Gas Act 1986 s 19E(3) (as so added). For these purposes, an undertaking is an associated undertaking of another undertaking if one of the undertakings has control of the other, or both undertakings are under the control of the same person or persons; and the Income and Corporation Taxes Act 1988 s 416(2)-(5) (see INCOME TAXATION vol 23(2) (Reissue) PARA 1299) applies with any necessary modifications for these purposes as it applies for the purposes of Pt XI (ss 414-422) (as amended) (close companies: see INCOME TAXATION vol 23(2) (Reissue) PARA 1296 et seq): Gas Act 1986 s 19E(4) (as so added). 'Accounting information' means such accounting records as would be required by the Companies Act 1985 s 221 (prospectively repealed by the Companies Act 2006 s 1295, Sch 16, and replaced by ss 386, 387, as from a day to be appointed under s 1300(2); at the date at which this title states the law, no such day had been appointed) in respect of each of the storage activities undertaken by the owner of the facility if those activities were the only business undertaken by the owner and the owner were a person to whom that provision applied; and 'significant transaction' means any transaction which relates to rights to have gas or liquid gas stored in a storage facility and any other transaction which is of a description specified from time to time by the Authority by notice: see the Gas Act 1986 s 19E(1) (as added and amended (see note 1 supra); definition of 'significant transaction' amended for these purposes by the Gas (Third Party Access) Regulations 2004, SI 2004/2043, Sch 2 para 6(h)(i); and by virtue of the Utilities Act 2000 s 3(2)).

UPDATE

827 Acquisition of rights to use storage facilities

NOTE 17--Day now appointed for repeal of 1985 Act s 221 and replacement by Companies Act 2006 ss 386, 387: SI 2007/3495. Definition of 'accounting information' amended to take account of coming into force of Companies Act 2006: SI 2008/948.

Halsbury's Laws of England/FUEL AND ENERGY (VOLUME 19(1) (2007 REISSUE) PARAS 601-775; VOLUME 19(2) (2007 REISSUE) PARAS 776-1328); VOLUME 19(3) (2007 REISSUE) PARAS 1329-1927)/3. PARTICULAR PROVISIONS RELATING TO GAS/(4) REGULATION OF THE SUPPLY OF GAS/(iv) Third Party Rights with regard to Pipeline Systems and Relevant Facilities/828. Relevant storage facilities for the purposes of the acquisition of rights.

828. Relevant storage facilities for the purposes of the acquisition of rights.

The provisions set out in the previous paragraph whereby third parties may acquire rights to use storage facilities¹ apply to a storage facility² unless, or except to the extent that, its capacity is exempt under the following provisions³.

A person who is or expects to be an owner⁴ of a storage facility may apply in writing to the Gas and Electricity Markets Authority ('GEMA')⁵ for an exemption with respect to the facility⁶. An exemption must be given in writing and may be given:

- 1258 (1) so as to have effect for an indefinite period or for a period specified in, or determined under, the exemption;
- 1259 (2) unconditionally or subject to such conditions as the Authority considers appropriate;
- 1260 (3) so as to have effect, in the case of a facility other than a new facility⁷, in relation to the whole of the capacity of the facility, or, in the case of a new facility, in relation to the whole of the capacity of the facility or any significant increase in the capacity of the facility⁸.

The Authority must give an exemption with respect to a facility, other than a new facility, where it is satisfied that use of the facility by other persons is not necessary for the operation of an economically efficient gas market⁹. It must give an exemption with respect to a new facility where it is satisfied that either:

- 1261 (a) use of the facility by other persons is not necessary for the operation of an economically efficient gas market; or
- 1262 (b) the following requirements are met¹⁰, namely that:
 - 75 107. (i) the facility or, as the case may be, the significant increase in its capacity will promote security of supply;
 - 108. (ii) the level of risk is such that the investment to construct the facility or, as the case may be, to modify the facility to provide for a significant increase in its capacity would not be or would not have been made without the exemption;
 - 109. (iii) the facility is or is to be owned by a person other than the gas transporter¹¹ who operates or will operate the pipeline system connected or to be connected to the facility;
 - 110. (iv) charges will be levied on users of the facility or, as the case may be, the increase in its capacity;
 - 111. (v) the exemption will not be detrimental to competition, the operation of an economically efficient gas market or the efficient functioning of the pipeline system connected or to be connected to the facility; and
 - 112. (vi) the European Commission is or will be content with the exemption¹².

In respect of a facility which is or is to be modified to provide for a significant increase in its capacity, an exemption by virtue of head (b) above may only be given in relation to that increase in its capacity¹³. An exemption may not be given by virtue of head (b) above more than once in respect of the same facility¹⁴; but this does not prevent a further exemption being given by virtue of that head in respect of a facility if:

- 1263 (A) the facility is or is to be modified to provide for a significant increase in its capacity;
- 1264 (B) the exemption has effect only in relation to that increase in its capacity; and
- 1265 (C) no previous exemption has been given by virtue of that head in relation to that increase in its capacity¹⁵.

The Authority must publish its decision to give or refuse to give an exemption together with the reasons for its decision in such manner as it considers appropriate¹⁶.

An exemption may be revoked in accordance with its provisions and, in any event, may be revoked by giving a notice of revocation to the owner of the facility concerned not less than four months before the coming into force of the revocation¹⁷.

UPDATE

828 Relevant storage facilities for the purposes of the acquisition of rights

TEXT AND NOTE 17--An exemption may contain provision for its revocation: Gas Act 1986 s 19A(4) (substituted by SI 2009/1349).

Halsbury's Laws of England/FUEL AND ENERGY (VOLUME 19(1) (2007 REISSUE) PARAS 601-775; VOLUME 19(2) (2007 REISSUE) PARAS 776-1328); VOLUME 19(3) (2007 REISSUE) PARAS 1329-1927)/3. PARTICULAR PROVISIONS RELATING TO GAS/(4) REGULATION OF THE SUPPLY OF GAS/(iv) Third Party Rights with regard to Pipeline Systems and Relevant Facilities/829. Acquisition of rights to use LNG facilities and owner's duty to provide information.

829. Acquisition of rights to use LNG facilities and owner's duty to provide information.

The owner¹ of an LNG import facility² to which the following provisions apply³ (a 'relevant facility') must⁴:

- 1266 (1) publish prior to their entry into force the main commercial conditions⁵ relating to the grant to another person of a right to have liquid gas treated⁶ in the facility on that person's behalf; and
- 1267 (2) publish any changes to the published conditions as soon as they become effective⁷.

The cost or the method of determining the cost of acquiring the right to have liquid gas treated in a relevant facility and any changes thereto must be approved by the Gas and Electricity Markets Authority ('GEMA')⁸ prior to their publication; and such approval may be given on condition that certain modifications⁹ are made to the cost or methodology¹⁰. Before the owner of a relevant facility seeks such approval he must carry out such consultation as the Authority may require¹¹.

The owner of a relevant facility must ensure that the conditions which he is required to publish under heads (1) and (2) above do not discriminate against any applicants or descriptions of applicants, or any potential applicants or descriptions of potential applicants, for a right to have liquid gas treated in the facility¹².

Any person who seeks a right to have liquid gas treated on his behalf in a relevant facility ('the applicant') must, before making an application¹³ to the Authority, apply to the owner of the facility for the right¹⁴. Such an application must be made by giving notice¹⁵ to the owner specifying what is being sought¹⁶; and the notice must, in particular, specify the kind of liquid gas to be treated, which must be of, or similar to, the kind which the facility is designed to treat, and the quantities of liquid gas to be treated¹⁷. The owner must notify the applicant of his decision giving reasons for any refusal¹⁸.

If the owner refuses the application, the applicant may apply to the Authority for directions¹⁹ which would secure to the applicant the right specified in his notice²⁰. Where a person so applies to the Authority, the Authority must decide whether to give such directions²¹, to consider the application further or to reject the application, and must give notice of its decision to the applicant²². In the case of a decision that the application is to be considered further, the Authority must give to the owner of the facility, the Health and Safety Executive²³ and any person who has a right to have liquid gas treated in the facility, notice that the application is to be so considered and an opportunity of being heard about the matter²⁴ and must, after so considering the matter, decide whether to give such directions or to reject the application and must give notice of its decision to the applicant²⁵. Where, after considering such an application, the Authority is satisfied that the giving of directions under this provision would not prejudice the efficient operation of the facility, or the treatment in the facility of:

- 1268 (a) the quantities of liquid gas which the owner of the facility requires or may reasonably be expected to require to be treated in the facility; and

- 1269 (b) the quantities of liquid gas which any person who has a right to have liquid gas treated in the facility is entitled to require to be so treated in the exercise of that right, the Authority may give such directions to the owner of the facility²⁶. Such directions may:

- 1270 (i) specify the terms on which the Authority considers the owner of the facility should enter into an agreement with the applicant for all or any of the following purposes:
- 77
113. (A) for securing to the applicant the right to have treated in the facility, and in the quantities so specified or determined by or under the directions, liquid gas which is of a kind so specified;
114. (B) for securing that the exercise of that right is not prevented or impeded;
115. (C) for regulating the charges which may be made for the treatment of liquid gas by virtue of that right;
116. (D) for securing to the applicant such ancillary or incidental rights as the Authority considers necessary or expedient;
- 78
- 1271 (ii) specify the sums or the method of determining the sums which the Authority considers should be paid by way of consideration for any such right; and
- 1272 (iii) require the owner, if the applicant pays or agrees to pay those sums within a period specified in that behalf in the directions, to enter into an agreement with him on the terms so specified²⁷.

A person who is or expects to be the owner of an LNG import facility must provide the Authority with such information²⁸ in such manner and at such times as the Authority may reasonably require to facilitate the performance of its functions under the Gas Act 1986²⁹.

1 For the meaning of 'owner' for these purposes see PARA 827 note 3 ante.

2 For these purposes, 'LNG import facility' means a facility for the following: (1) the importation of liquid gas; (2) the regasification of liquid gas following its importation and prior to its conveyance to a pipeline system operated by a gas transporter; and (3) any temporary storage of liquid gas which is necessary for the operation of the facility: Gas Act 1986 s 19E(1) (s 19E added by the Gas (Third Party Access and Accounts) Regulations 2000, SI 2000/1937, reg 2(2), Sch 2 para 1; the Gas Act 1986 s 19E(1) amended by the Gas (Third Party Access) Regulations 2004, SI 2004/2043, reg 2(2), Sch 2 para 6(a); definition of 'LNG import facility' substituted by Sch 2 para 6(c)).

4 ie subject to ibid s 19D(2A) (as added): see the text and notes 8-10 infra.

5 For these purposes, 'main commercial conditions' means, in the case of an LNG import facility, (1) the terms setting out the cost or the method of determining the cost of acquiring the right to have liquid gas treated in the facility; (2) the other significant terms on which such a right would be granted; and (3) such additional information as the Gas and Electricity Markets Authority ('GEMA') may from time to time specify by notice: ibid s 19E(1) (as added and amended (see note 1 supra); definition of 'main commercial conditions' amended for these purposes by the Gas (Third Party Access) Regulations 2004, SI 2004/2043, Sch 2 para 6(d), (e); and by virtue of the Utilities Act 2000 s 3(2)).

6 For these purposes, 'treatment', in relation to liquid gas in an LNG import facility, includes importation, temporary storage and regasification, and 'treat' is to be construed accordingly: Gas Act 1986 s 19E(1) (as added and amended (see note 1 supra); definition of 'treatment' substituted by the Gas (Third Party Access) Regulations 2004, SI 2004/2043, Sch 2 para 6(k)).

For the purpose of considering an application under the Gas Act 1986 s 19B(8) (as so added and amended), the Authority may by notice require the owner of the relevant facility to provide him with accounting information and details of the main commercial terms of any significant transactions with associated undertakings: s 19E(2) (as added (see note 1 supra); amended by virtue of the Utilities Act 2000 s 3(2)). UPDATE

829 Acquisition of rights to use LNG facilities and owner's duty to provide information

NOTE 20--Day now appointed for repeal of 1985 Act s 221 and replacement by Companies Act 2006 ss 386, 387: SI 2007/3495. Definition of 'accounting information' amended to take account of coming into force of Companies Act 2006: SI 2008/948.

Halsbury's Laws of England/FUEL AND ENERGY (VOLUME 19(1) (2007 REISSUE) PARAS 601-775; VOLUME 19(2) (2007 REISSUE) PARAS 776-1328); VOLUME 19(3) (2007 REISSUE) PARAS 1329-1927)/3. PARTICULAR PROVISIONS RELATING TO GAS/(4) REGULATION OF THE SUPPLY OF GAS/(iv) Third Party Rights with regard to Pipeline Systems and Relevant Facilities/830. Relevant LNG facilities for the purposes of the acquisition of rights.

830. Relevant LNG facilities for the purposes of the acquisition of rights.

The provisions set out in the previous paragraph whereby third parties may acquire rights to use LNG facilities¹ apply to an LNG import facility² unless, or except to the extent that, its capacity is exempt under the following provisions³.

A person who is or expects to be an owner⁴ of an LNG import facility may apply in writing to the Gas and Electricity Markets Authority ('GEMA')⁵ for an exemption with respect to the facility⁶. An exemption must be given in writing and may be given:

- 1273 (1) so as to have effect for an indefinite period or for a period specified in, or determined under, the exemption;
- 1274 (2) unconditionally or subject to such conditions as the Authority considers appropriate;
- 1275 (3) so as to have effect in relation to the whole of the capacity of the facility or any significant increase in the capacity of the facility⁷.

The Authority must give an exemption with respect to a facility where it is satisfied that the following requirements are met⁸, namely that:

- 1276 (a) the facility or, as the case may be, the significant increase in its capacity will promote security of supply;
- 1277 (b) the level of risk is such that the investment to construct the facility or, as the case may be, to modify the facility to provide for a significant increase in its capacity would not be or would not have been made without the exemption;
- 1278 (c) the facility is or is to be owned by a person other than the gas transporter⁹ who operates or will operate the pipeline system connected or to be connected to the facility;
- 1279 (d) charges will be levied on users of the facility or, as the case may be, the increase in its capacity;
- 1280 (e) the exemption will not be detrimental to competition, the operation of an economically efficient gas market or the efficient functioning of the pipeline system connected or to be connected to the facility; and
- 1281 (f) the European Commission is or will be content with the exemption¹⁰.

In respect of a facility which is or is to be modified to provide for a significant increase in its capacity, an exemption by virtue of the above provisions may only be given in relation to that increase in its capacity¹¹. An exemption may not be given¹² more than once in respect of the same facility¹³; but this does not prevent a further exemption being given in respect of a facility if:

- 1282 (i) the facility is or is to be modified to provide for a significant increase in its capacity;
- 1283 (ii) the exemption has effect only in relation to that increase in its capacity; and 1284 (iii) no previous exemption has been given in relation to that increase in its capacity¹⁴.

The Authority must publish its decision to give or refuse to give an exemption together with the reasons for its decision in such manner as it considers appropriate¹⁵.

An exemption may be revoked in accordance with its provisions and, in any event, may be revoked by giving a notice¹⁶ of revocation to the owner of the facility concerned not less than four months before the coming into force of the revocation¹⁷.

UPDATE

830 Relevant LNG facilities for the purposes of the acquisition of rights

TEXT AND NOTE 17--An exemption may contain provision for its revocation: Gas Act 1986 s 19C(4) (substituted by SI 2009/1349).

Halsbury's Laws of England/FUEL AND ENERGY (VOLUME 19(1) (2007 REISSUE) PARAS 601-775; VOLUME 19(2) (2007 REISSUE) PARAS 776-1328); VOLUME 19(3) (2007 REISSUE) PARAS 1329-1927)/3. PARTICULAR PROVISIONS RELATING TO GAS/(4) REGULATION OF THE SUPPLY OF GAS/(iv) Third Party Rights with regard to Pipeline Systems and Relevant Facilities/831. Increase of capacity etc of pipelines.

831. Increase of capacity etc of pipelines.

If in the case of a pipeline system operated by a gas transporter¹ it appears to the Gas and Electricity Markets Authority ('GEMA')², on the application of a person other than the transporter, that the system can and should be modified:

- 1285 (1) by installing in it a junction through which another pipeline³ may be connected to the system; or
- 1286 (2) by modifying apparatus and works⁴ associated with a high pressure pipeline⁵ so as to increase the capacity of the pipeline, then the Authority may⁶, after giving to the transporter an opportunity of being heard about the matter and giving to the Health and Safety Executive⁷ notice⁸ of its proposed directions, give directions to the transporter in accordance with heads (a) to (d) below in consequence of the application⁹. Where the Authority proposes to give such directions, it is its duty before doing so to give to the applicant particulars of the modifications¹⁰ which it proposes to specify in the directions¹¹ and an opportunity of making an application to acquire rights¹² in respect of the pipeline system¹³.

Directions under these provisions may:

- 1287 (a) specify the modifications which the Authority considers should be made in consequence of the application;
- 1288 (b) specify the sums or the method of determining the sums which the Authority considers should be paid to the gas transporter by the applicant by way of consideration for the modifications;
- 1289 (c) specify the arrangements which the Authority considers should be made by the applicant, within a period specified in that behalf in the directions, for the purpose of securing that those sums will be paid to the transporter if he carries out the modifications;
- 1290 (d) require the transporter, if the applicant makes those arrangements within that period, to carry out the modifications within a period specified in that behalf in the directions¹⁴.

In giving any such directions, the Authority must apply the principle that, in so far as the following, namely:

- 1291 (i) the cost of carrying out the modifications; and
- 1292 (ii) a reasonable element of profit, will not be recoverable by the gas transporter from elsewhere, the transporter should be entitled to receive them by way of consideration for carrying out the modifications¹⁵.

1 For the meaning of 'gas transporter' see PARA 805 ante.

2 As to the establishment and general functions of the Gas and Electricity Markets Authority see PARA 708 et seq ante; and as to the use of the abbreviation 'GEMA' in this context see PARA 708 note 5 ante.

3 For these purposes, 'pipeline' has the same meaning as in the Pipe-lines Act 1962 (see s 65 (as amended); and RAILWAYS, INLAND WATERWAYS AND CROSS-COUNTRY PIPELINES vol 39(1A) (Reissue) PARA 559): Gas Act 1986 s 21(5) (added by the Gas Act 1995 s 10(1), Sch 3 para 18(5)).

4 The reference in head (2) in the text to apparatus and works associated with a pipeline is to be construed in accordance with the Pipe-lines Act 1962 s 65(2) (as amended) (see RAILWAYS, INLAND WATERWAYS AND CROSS-COUNTRY PIPELINES vol 39(1A) (Reissue) PARA 559): Gas Act 1986 s 21(4).

5 For these purposes, 'high pressure pipeline' means any pipeline which has a design operating pressure exceeding 7 bar gauge: ibid s 21(5) (as added: see note 3 supra).

6 Ie subject to ibid s 21(3) (as amended): see the text and notes 10-13 infra.

10 References for these purposes to modifications include, in the case of modifications to any apparatus and works, references to changes in, substitutions for and additions to the apparatus and works: Gas Act 1986 s 21(4). For the meaning of 'modifications' generally see PARA 778 note 7 ante.

11 Ibid s 21(3)(a) (amended by virtue of the Utilities Act 2000 s 3(2)).

13 Ibid s 21(3)(b) (as amended (see note 11 supra); also amended by the Gas Act 1995 Sch 3 para 18(3)). The Gas Act 1986 s 19 (as substituted and amended) has effect in relation to such an application made by virtue of s 21(3)(b) (as amended) as if for references to a pipeline system there were substituted references to the pipeline system as it would be with those modifications and the reference in s 19(2) (as substituted and amended) to the Authority deciding whether the application is to be adjourned were omitted: s 21(3) (as so amended).

14 Ibid s 21(2) (as amended (see note 9 supra); also amended by the Gas Act 1995 Sch 3 para 18(2)).

PARTICULAR PROVISIONS RELATING TO GAS/(4) REGULATION OF THE SUPPLY OF GAS/(iv) Third Party Rights with regard to Pipeline Systems and Relevant Facilities/832. Enforcement of rights in respect of pipelines and relevant facilities.

832. Enforcement of rights in respect of pipelines and relevant facilities.

The obligation to comply with any directions concerning the right to use pipelines¹, the right to use storage facilities² or LNG transport facilities³ or the modification of pipelines⁴ ('relevant directions') and the obligation to comply with any duty to negotiate in respect of rights to use storage facilities⁵ or to notify an applicant of the refusal of an application to use LNG storage facilities⁶ ('relevant duties') are duties owed to any person who may be affected by a contravention⁷ of them⁸. Where a duty is so owed to any person, any breach of the duty which causes that person to sustain loss or damage is actionable at the suit or instance of that person⁹. In any such proceedings brought¹⁰ against any person, it is a defence for him to prove that he took all reasonable steps and exercised all due diligence to avoid contravening the relevant directions or relevant duties¹¹.

Without prejudice to any rights which any person may have¹² to bring civil proceedings in respect of any contravention or apprehended contravention of any relevant directions, compliance with any such directions is enforceable by civil proceedings by the Gas and Electricity Markets Authority ('GEMA')¹³ for an injunction or for any other appropriate relief¹⁴. Compliance with the duties relating to the publication of the main commercial conditions relating to the grant of third party rights to use storage facilities¹⁵ and LNG import facilities¹⁶, and the duties of the owners of such facilities with regard to the keeping of their internal accounts¹⁷ is also enforceable by civil proceedings by the Authority for an injunction or for any other appropriate relief¹⁸.

PARTICULAR PROVISIONS RELATING TO GAS/(4) REGULATION OF THE SUPPLY OF GAS/(v) Transit of Natural Gas/833. Transit of natural gas between transmission grids.

(v) Transit of Natural Gas

833. Transit of natural gas between transmission grids.

Regulations have been made¹ to facilitate the transit of natural gas between high pressure transmission grids in the European Community². When a grid operator³ receives a request for gas transit⁴, it must without delay notify the EC Commission, the Secretary of State⁵ and the Gas and Electricity Markets Authority ('GEMA')⁶ of the request⁷ and open negotiations on the conditions of the gas transit requested⁸. When a gas transit contract⁹ has been concluded, it must then notify the same authorities¹⁰ or, if such a contract is not concluded within 12 months of receipt of the request for gas transit, inform them of the reasons for the failure of the negotiations to result in the conclusion of a contract¹¹. Compliance with any of these obligations is enforceable by civil proceedings by the Authority for an injunction or for any other appropriate relief¹².

The conditions to be included in a gas transit contract must be non-discriminatory and fair for all parties concerned and must not include unfair clauses or unjustified restrictions¹³. They must also not endanger the security of supply nor quality of service and, in particular, must take full account of the utilisation of reserve production and storage capacity and the most efficient operation of existing systems¹⁴. The conditions to be included in such a contract may be subject to conciliation, at the request of either the entity seeking the gas transit or the grid operator, by the body set up for that purpose¹⁵.

1 In accordance with EC Council Directive 91/296 (OJ L147, 12.6.91, p 37) (as amended; now repealed and replaced by European Parliament and EC Council Directive 2003/55 (OJ L176, 15.7.2003, p 57) on the transit of natural gas through grids. See further PARA 653 ante.

2 See the Gas Transit (EEC Requirements) Regulations 1992, SI 1992/1190 (as amended); and the text and notes 3-15 infra.

3 'Grid operator' means an entity responsible for operating a high pressure transmission grid in the United Kingdom; 'entity' means a body specified in EC Council Directive 91/296 (OJ L147, 12.6.91, p 37), Annex (as amended from time to time and now repealed: see note 1 supra); and 'high pressure transmission grid', in the case of a grid situated in the Community, means a grid so specified: Gas Transit (EEC Requirements) Regulations 1992, SI 1992/1190, reg 2.

4 'Gas transit' means the transport by a grid operator of natural gas between high pressure transmission grids, at least one of which is situated in the Community, and across at least one frontier between member states: ibid reg 2.

5 As to the Secretary of State see PARA 601 note 1 ante.

Halsbury's Laws of England/FUEL AND ENERGY (VOLUME 19(1) (2007 REISSUE) PARAS 601-775; VOLUME 19(2) (2007 REISSUE) PARAS 776-1328); VOLUME 19(3) (2007 REISSUE) PARAS 1329-1927)/3. PARTICULAR PROVISIONS RELATING TO GAS/(4) REGULATION OF THE SUPPLY OF GAS/(vi) Acquisition of Rights to Use Gas Processing Facilities/834. Acquisition of rights to use gas processing facilities.

(vi) Acquisition of Rights to Use Gas Processing Facilities

834. Acquisition of rights to use gas processing facilities.

The owner¹ of a gas processing facility²:

- 1293 (1) must publish at least once in every year³ the main commercial conditions⁴ relating to the grant to another person of a right to have gas processed by the facility on that person's behalf; and
- 1294 (2) must publish any changes to the published conditions as soon as they become effective⁵.

Compliance with this duty is enforceable by civil proceedings by the Secretary of State⁶ for an injunction or for any other appropriate relief or remedy⁷.

Any person who seeks a right to have gas processed on his behalf by a gas processing facility ('the applicant') must, before making an application to the Secretary of State⁸, apply to the owner of the facility for the right⁹. Such an application must be made by giving notice in writing to the owner specifying what is being sought¹⁰; and the notice must, in particular, specify:

- 1295 (a) the period during which the gas is to be processed by the facility;
- 1296 (b) the kind of gas to be processed, which must be of, or similar to, the kind which the facility is designed to process; and
- 1297 (c) the quantities of gas to be processed¹¹.

Where a person gives such notice, he and the owner of the gas processing facility must negotiate in good faith and endeavour to reach agreement on the application¹².

If the owner and the applicant do not reach any such agreement, the applicant may apply to the Secretary of State for directions¹³ which would secure to the applicant the right specified in his notice¹⁴. The Secretary of State must not, however, entertain such an application unless he is satisfied that the parties have had a reasonable time in which to fulfil their duties¹⁵ to negotiate and endeavour to reach agreement¹⁶. Where an application is so made, it is the duty of the Secretary of State to decide whether the application is to be adjourned so as to enable further negotiations to take place, to be considered further or to be rejected¹⁷ and to give notice of his decision to the applicant¹⁸. In the case of a decision that the application is to be considered further, it is the duty of the Secretary of State to give to the owner of the facility, to any person who has a right to have gas processed by the facility, and to the Health and Safety Executive¹⁹, notice that the application is to be so considered and an opportunity of being heard about the matter²⁰.

Where, after further considering such an application, the Secretary of State is satisfied that the giving of such directions would not prejudice the efficient operation of the facility, or the processing by the facility of the quantities of gas which the owner of the facility or any associate of the owner²¹ requires or may reasonably be expected to require to be processed by the facility for the purposes of any business carried on by him²² and the quantities of gas which any person who is not such an associate and has a right to have gas processed by the facility is entitled to require to be so processed in the exercise of that right²³, the Secretary of State may give such directions to the owner of the facility²⁴. Such directions may:

- 1298 (i) specify the terms on which the Secretary of State considers the owner of the facility should enter into an agreement with the applicant for all or any of the following purposes:
- 79
117. (A) for securing to the applicant the right to have processed by the facility, during the period specified in the directions and in the quantities so specified, gas which is of a kind so specified;
118. (B) for securing that the exercise of that right is not prevented or impeded;
119. (C) for regulating the charges which may be made for the processing of gas by virtue of that right;
120. (D) for securing to the applicant such ancillary or incidental rights as the Secretary of State considers necessary or expedient, which may include the right to have a pipeline²⁵ of his connected to the facility by the owner;
- 80
- 1299 (ii) specify the sums or the method of determining the sums which the Secretary of State considers should be paid by way of consideration for any such right; and
- 1300 (iii) require the owner, if the applicant pays or agrees to pay those sums within a period specified in that behalf in the directions, to enter into an agreement with him on the terms so specified²⁶.

The obligation to comply with any such directions and any obligation to comply with the duty to negotiate²⁷ are duties owed to any person who may be affected by a contravention²⁸ of them²⁹. Where a duty is so owed to any person, any breach of the duty which causes that person to sustain loss or damage is actionable at the suit or instance of that person³⁰. In any such proceedings brought³¹ against any person, it is a defence for him to prove that he took all reasonable steps and exercised all due diligence to avoid contravening the relevant directions or relevant duties³².

Without prejudice to any rights which any person may have³³ to bring civil proceedings in respect of any contravention or apprehended contravention of any such directions, compliance with any such directions is enforceable by civil proceedings by the Secretary of State for an injunction or for any other appropriate relief³⁴.

1 For these purposes, 'owner', in relation to a gas processing facility, includes a lessee and any person occupying or having control of the facility: Gas Act 1995 s 12(6). For the meaning of 'owner' generally see PARA 836 note 3 post.

2 For these purposes, 'gas processing facility' means any facility which carries out gas processing operations and which is operated otherwise than by a gas transporter; 'gas' means any substance which is or (if it were in a gaseous state) would be gas within the meaning of the Gas Act 1986 Pt I (ss 4AA-48) (as amended) (see PARA 802 ante); 'gas processing operation' means any of the following operations, namely (1) purifying, blending, odourising or compressing gas for the purpose of enabling it to be introduced into a pipeline system operated by a gas transporter or to be conveyed to an electricity generating station, a gas storage facility or any place outside Great Britain; (2) removing from gas for that purpose any of its constituent gases, or separating from gas for that purpose any oil or water; and (3) determining the quantity or quality of gas which is or is to be so introduced, or so conveyed, whether generally or by or on behalf of a particular person, and 'process', in relation to gas, is to be construed accordingly; and 'gas transporter' has the same meaning as in the Gas Act 1986 Pt I (as amended) (see PARA 805 ante): Gas Act 1995 s 12(6) (definitions amended by the Gas (Third Party Access and Accounts) Regulations 2000, SI 2000/1937, reg 2(3), Sch 3 para 5(a); and by virtue of the Utilities Act 2000 s 76(7)).

3 In head (1) in the text, 'year' means any year ending with 9 August: Gas Act 1995 s 12(1A) (s 12(1A)-(1G) added by the Gas (Third Party Access and Accounts) Regulations 2000, SI 2000/1937, reg 2(3), Sch 3 para 1).

4 For these purposes, 'main commercial conditions' means (1) such information as would enable a potential applicant for a right to have gas processed by a gas processing facility to make a reasonable assessment of the cost of, or the method of calculating the cost of, acquiring that right; (2) the other significant terms on which such a right would be granted; and (3) such other information as the Secretary of State may from time to time specify by notice: Gas Act 1995 s 12(6) (definition added by the Gas (Third Party Access and Accounts) Regulations 2000, SI 2000/1937, Sch 3 para 5(b)). Any document required or authorised the Gas Act 1995 s 12 (as amended) to be given to or served on any person may be given or served either by delivering it to that person, or by leaving it at his proper address, or by the recorded delivery service: Pipe-lines Act 1962 s 49(1) (applied for these purposes by the Gas Act 1995 s 6A (added by the Gas (Third Party Access and Accounts) Regulations 2000, SI 2000/1937, Sch 3 para 6)). Any such document required or authorised to be given to or served on an authority or body being a corporation is duly given or served if it is given to or served on the secretary or clerk of the authority or body; and for these purposes the proper address of any person to or on whom any such document is to be given or served is, in the case of the secretary or clerk of a corporation, that of the registered or principal office of the corporation, and in any other case the last-known address of the person to be served, provided that, where the person to or on whom the document is to be given or served has, in accordance with arrangements agreed, furnished an address for the giving or service of the document, being an address in the United Kingdom, his proper address for these purposes is the address furnished: Pipe-lines Act 1962 s 49(2), (3) (as so applied).

5 Gas Act 1995 s 12(1) (substituted by the Gas (Third Party Access and Accounts) Regulations 2000, SI 2000/1937, Sch 3 para 1).

6 It is the duty of the Gas and Electricity Markets Authority ('GEMA'), where either it considers it expedient or it is requested by the Secretary of State to do so, to give information, advice and assistance to the Secretary of State with respect to any matter in respect of which any function of the Secretary of State under the Gas Act 1995 is exercisable: s 13 (amended by virtue of the Utilities Act 2000 s 3(2)). (5) SUPPLY AND USE OF GAS

(i) Powers and Duties of Gas Transporters

A. GENERAL DUTIES

835. General duties of gas transporters.

It is the duty of a gas transporter¹ as respects each authorised area² of his:

1301 (1) to develop and maintain an efficient and economical pipeline system for the conveyance of gas³; and

1302 (2) subject to head (1) above, to comply, so far as it is economical to do so, with any reasonable request for him:

81

121. (a) to connect to that system, and convey gas by means of that system to, any premises⁴; or

122. (b) to connect to that system a pipeline system operated by an authorised transporter⁵.

82

It is also the duty of a gas transporter:

1303 (i) to facilitate competition in the supply of gas⁶;

1304 (ii) to avoid any undue preference or undue discrimination:

83

123. (A) in the connection of premises, or a pipeline system operated by an authorised transporter, to any pipeline system operated by him; or

124. (B) in the terms on which he undertakes the conveyance of gas by means of such a system⁷.

'Authorised transporter' means a person authorised by a licence or exemption to convey gas through pipes to any premises or to a pipeline system operated by a gas transporter: Gas Act 1986 s 48(1) (definition added by the Utilities Act 2000 s 108, Sch 6 Pt I paras 1, 19(a)). PARTICULAR PROVISIONS RELATING TO GAS/(5) SUPPLY AND USE OF GAS/(i) Powers and Duties of Gas Transporters/B. DUTY TO CONNECT CERTAIN PREMISES/836. The duty to connect certain premises.

B. DUTY TO CONNECT CERTAIN PREMISES

836. The duty to connect certain premises.

Subject to the provisions of Part I of the Gas Act 1986¹ and any regulations made under those provisions, a gas transporter², on being required to do so by the owner³ or occupier⁴ of any premises in an authorised area⁵ of a gas transporter which:

- 1305 (1) are situated within 23 metres from a relevant main⁶ of the transporter; or
- 1306 (2) could be connected to any such main by a pipe supplied and laid, or proposed to be supplied and laid, by the owner or occupier of the premises, must, in the case of premises:

- 1307 (a) falling within head (1) above, connect the premises to the relevant main, and supply and lay any pipe that may be necessary for that purpose; and
- 1308 (b) in the case of premises falling within head (2) above, connect the premises to the relevant main by the pipe there mentioned⁷.

Subject to the provisions of that Part of the 1986 Act and to any such regulations, where any premises are connected⁸, whether by virtue of the above provisions or otherwise, the gas transporter must maintain the connection until such time as it is no longer required by the owner or occupier of the premises⁹.

Where any person requires a connection in pursuance of the above provisions¹⁰, he must serve on the gas transporter a notice¹¹ specifying the premises in respect of which the connection is required and the day, not being earlier than a reasonable time after the service of the notice, upon which the connection is required to be made¹².

Where any pipe is supplied and laid by a gas transporter in pursuance of head (a) above, the cost of supplying and laying the pipe must, if and to the extent that the transporter so requires and the conditions of his licence¹³ so allow, be defrayed by the person requiring the connection¹⁴.

A gas transporter may require any person who requires a connection under head (b) above to accept any terms:

- 1309 (i) indemnifying the transporter in respect of any liability connected with the laying of the pipe;
- 1310 (ii) which it is reasonable in all the circumstances for that person to be required to accept¹⁵.

Where in pursuance of subsection (b) above a gas transporter connects any premises to a relevant main by a pipe supplied and laid by the owner or occupier of the premises, the cost of making the connection must, if and to the extent that the transporter so requires and the conditions of his licence so allow, be defrayed by the person supplying and laying the pipe¹⁶. Where at any time a gas transporter connects any premises under head (b) above:

- 1311 (A) the pipe supplied and laid by the owner or occupier of the premises; and
- 1312 (B) any rights or liabilities of the owner or occupier which relate to the laying, maintenance, repair, alteration or removal of the pipe, at that time vest in and become property, rights or liabilities of the transporter¹⁷.

It is the duty of a gas transporter to avoid any undue preference or undue discrimination in the connection of premises in pursuance of these provisions¹⁸.

1 The subject to the Gas Act 1986 Pt I (ss 4AA-48) (as amended): see PARA 789 et seq ante; the text and notes 2-18 infra; and PARA 837 post.

2 For the meaning of 'gas transporter' see PARA 805 ante.

3 'Owner', in relation to any premises or other property, includes a lessee, and cognate expressions are to be construed accordingly: Gas Act 1986 s 48(1).

4 There is no statutory definition of 'occupier' for these purposes; but it is apprehended that a person whose original entry onto premises was unlawful and forcible is not to be treated as an 'occupier', by analogy with the former duty to supply imposed by the Electric Lighting (Clauses) Act 1899: see Woodcock v South Western Electricity Board [1975] 2 All ER 545, [1975] 1 WLR 983.

5 For the meaning of 'authorised area' see PARA 805 note 3 ante.

6 Subject to the Gas Act 1986 s 10(13) (as substituted and amended), for these purposes 'relevant main', in relation to a gas transporter, means any distribution main in an authorised area of his which is being used for the purpose of giving a supply of gas to any premises in that area at a rate not exceeding 2,196,000 kilowatt hours a year: Gas Act 1986 ss 10(12), 48(2A)(a) (s 10 substituted by the Gas Act 1995 s 10(1), Sch 3 para 4; the Gas Act 1986 s 10(12)-(14) amended by the Utilities Act 2000 ss 80(1), (6), 108, Sch 6 Pt I paras 1, 2(1); the Gas Act 1986 s 48(2A)(a) added by the Gas Act 1995 Sch 3 para 54(4)). 'Distribution main', in relation to a gas transporter, means any main of the transporter through which the transporter is for the time being distributing gas and which is not being used only for the purpose of conveying gas in bulk: Gas Act 1986 s 48(1) (definition amended by the Gas Act 1995 Sch 3 para 54(1)(b)). The Secretary of State may by order amend the Gas Act 1986 s 10(8) (as substituted and amended) (see PARA 837 post) or s 10(12) (as so substituted and amended), Sch 2A para 4 (as added; prospectively repealed) (see PARA 804 ante) or Sch 2B para 4, 8 or 16 (as added and amended) (see PARAS 857, 859, 864 post) by substituting such lower number of kilowatt hours as he considers appropriate: s 8A(1)(b) (added by the Competition and Service (Utilities) Act 1992 s 37; amended by the Gas Act 1995 Sch 3 para 2(1); prospectively amended, so as to remove the reference to the Gas Act 1986 Sch 2A para 4, by the Utilities Act 2000 s 108, Sch 8, as from a day to be appointed under s 110(2); at the date at which this title states the law, no such day had been appointed). Such an order may be made so as to provide for the number specified in one provision to differ from that for the time being specified in any of the other provisions: Gas Act 1986 s 8A(2) (as so added). As to the Secretary of State see PARA 601 note 1 ante; and as to the power to make orders generally see PARA 777 note 15 ante. For the meaning of 'kilowatt hour' see PARA 807 note 6 ante.

Any pipe which (1) vests in and becomes the property of a gas transporter by virtue of s 10(6) (as substituted and amended) (see the text and note 17 infra; and (2) would otherwise be a relevant main for these purposes, is to be such a main if, and only if, it has been declared to be such a main by the transporter: s 10(13) (as so substituted and amended). A gas transporter must make such a declaration in respect of each such pipe which is fit for the purpose of being a relevant main; and such a declaration is not capable of being revoked: s 10(14) (as so substituted and amended). As to the enforcement of this requirement see PARA 968 et seq post; and as to penalties for the contravention of this requirement see PARA 972 et seq post.

7 Ibid s 10(1), (2) (as substituted (see note 6 supra); s 10(1)-(3), (4), (5), (6), (7) amended by the Utilities Act 2000 s 108, Sch 6 Pt I paras 1, 2(1)). As to the determination of disputes under these provisions see PARA 965 post; as to the enforcement of requirements imposed under them see PARA 968 et seq post; and as to penalties for the contravention of such requirements see PARA 972 et seq post.

8 For these purposes, 'connect', in relation to any premises, means connect to a relevant main of a gas transporter and 'connection' is to be construed accordingly: Gas Act 1986 s 10(2) (as substituted and amended: see notes 6-7 supra).

9 Ibid s 10(3) (as substituted and amended: see notes 6-7 supra). PARTICULAR PROVISIONS RELATING TO GAS/(5) SUPPLY AND USE OF GAS/(i) Powers and Duties of Gas Transporters/B. DUTY TO CONNECT CERTAIN PREMISES/837. Exceptions to the duty to connect.

837. Exceptions to the duty to connect.

A gas transporter¹ is not required² to connect³, or maintain the connection of, any premises if:

- 1313 (1) the supply of gas⁴ to those premises is likely to exceed 2,196,000 kilowatt hours⁵ in any period of 12 months⁶;
- 1314 (2) he is prevented from doing so by circumstances not within his control⁷;
- 1315 (3) circumstances exist by reason of which his doing so would or might involve danger to the public, and he has taken all such steps as it was reasonable to take both to prevent the circumstances from occurring and to prevent them from having that effect⁸; or
- 1316 (4) in the case of premises more than 23 metres from a relevant main of the transporter but which could be connected to any such main by a pipe supplied and laid, or proposed to be supplied and laid, by the owner⁹ or occupier¹⁰, the pipe supplied and laid by the owner or occupier of the premises is not fit for the purpose¹¹.

Where:

- 1317 (a) any person requires a connection to be made or maintained in pursuance of the gas transporter's statutory duty in that regard¹²;
- 1318 (b) the making or maintenance of the connection would involve a new or increased supply of gas to the premises in question;
- 1319 (c) the gas transporter reasonably expects that, if the connection were made or maintained, gas would be supplied to the premises in question at a rate exceeding 73,200 kilowatt hours a year¹³; and
- 1320 (d) the new or increased supply is such that the connection cannot be made or maintained without the laying of a new main, or the enlarging of an existing main, or the construction or enlarging of any other works required for the conveyance of gas, the transporter may, if he thinks fit, refuse to make or maintain the connection unless that person enters into a written contract with the transporter to make such payments to him as he may reasonably require having regard to the expense to be incurred in laying or enlarging the main or constructing or enlarging the other works and the extent to which it is reasonable to expect that the transporter will recover that expense from elsewhere¹⁴. If and to the extent that regulations made by the Gas and Electricity Markets Authority ('GEMA')¹⁵ with the consent of the Secretary of State so provide, this exception is to have effect as if:

- 1321 (i) the reference in head (d) above to the laying of a new main, the enlarging of an existing main or the construction or enlarging of any other works required for the conveyance of gas included a reference to a new main which had previously been laid, an existing main which had previously been enlarged or any other works required for the conveyance of gas which had previously been constructed or enlarged;

1322 (ii) the reference to the expense to be incurred in laying or enlarging the main or constructing or enlarging the other works included a reference to the expense which had been so incurred; and 1323 (iii) the reference to the extent to which it is reasonable to expect that the transporter will recover that expense from elsewhere included a reference to the extent to which the transporter had been able so to recover that expense¹⁶.

Certain powers may in certain circumstances be conferred on the Secretary of State in relation to the supply of gas in an emergency¹⁷.

PARTICULAR PROVISIONS RELATING TO GAS/(5) SUPPLY AND USE OF GAS/(i) Powers and Duties of Gas Transporters/B. DUTY TO CONNECT CERTAIN PREMISES/838. Payment of charges for connection.

838. Payment of charges for connection.

The Gas and Electricity Markets Authority ('GEMA')¹ may, with the consent of the Secretary of State², make provision by regulations for entitling a gas transporter³ to require a person requiring a connection⁴ to pay to the transporter an amount in respect of the expenses of the laying of the main used for the purpose of making that connection if:

- 1324 (1) the connection is required within the prescribed period⁵ after the laying of the main;
- 1325 (2) a person for the purpose of connecting whose premises the main was laid has made a payment to the transporter in respect of those expenses;
- 1326 (3) the amount required does not exceed any amount paid in respect of those expenses by such a person or by any person previously required to make a payment under the regulations; and
- 1327 (4) the transporter has not recovered those expenses in full⁶.

A gas transporter may require such a person to pay to the transporter such an amount if heads (1) to (4) above apply and if the gas transporter has made available to the person requiring the connection to a relevant main such information as may have been reasonably requested by that person for the purpose of ascertaining:

- 1328 (a) the expenses of the laying of the main;
- 1329 (b) the date of the laying of the main; and
- 1330 (c) the amounts paid in respect of those expenses by the persons for whom the main was laid, or by persons previously required to make a payment under the relevant regulations⁷.

In certain circumstances, a gas transporter may refuse to make or maintain a connection unless the person requiring it agrees to make reasonable payments towards the expenses of doing so⁸.

PARTICULAR PROVISIONS RELATING TO GAS/(5) SUPPLY AND USE OF GAS/(i) Powers and Duties of Gas Transporters/B. DUTY TO CONNECT CERTAIN PREMISES/839. Power to require security.

839. Power to require security.

Where any person requires a connection¹ to any premises situated within 23 metres from a relevant main² and a pipe falls to be supplied and laid³ by the gas transporter⁴, the transporter may require that person to give him reasonable security for the payment to the transporter of all money which may become due to him in respect of the supply and laying of the pipe⁵. If that person fails to give such security or, where any security given by him has become invalid or insufficient, fails to provide alternative or additional security, the transporter may if he thinks fit refuse to supply and lay the pipe for so long as the failure continues⁶.

Where any amount is deposited with a gas transporter by way of security in pursuance of these provisions, the transporter must pay interest on that amount, at such rate as may from time to time be fixed by the transporter with the approval of the Gas and Electricity Markets Authority ('GEMA')⁷, in respect of the period during which it remains in the hands of the transporter⁸.

C. RESTRICTION ON USE OF CERTAIN PIPELINES

840. Restriction on use of certain pipelines for providing a supply.

Any pipeline¹ of a gas transporter² for the construction of which the execution of works had begun before the abolition of geographical exclusivity of the authorised areas of gas transporters³ and which is situated in an area which, immediately before that date, was the authorised area of a public gas transporter⁴ (the 'other transporter'), must not be used for the purpose of giving a supply of gas⁵ to any premises in that area at a rate less than 2,196,000 kilowatt hours⁶ per year unless the other transporter consents in writing to such use⁷. If the other transporter refuses or fails to give such consent, consent may instead be given in writing by the Gas and Electricity Markets Authority ('GEMA')⁸ where it considers it appropriate to do so⁹. Consent given under these provisions may not be withdrawn¹⁰.

1 For these purposes, 'pipeline' has the same meaning as in the Pipe-lines Act 1962 (see s 65 (as amended); and RAILWAYS, INLAND WATERWAYS AND CROSS-COUNTRY PIPELINES vol 39(1A) (Reissue) PARA 559): Gas Act 1986 s 10A(4) (s 10A added by the Utilities Act 2000 s 77(1)).

D. WORKS, PIPELINES AND RIGHTS OVER LAND

(A) IN GENERAL

841. Compulsory acquisition of land by gas transporters.

The Secretary of State¹, after consultation with the Gas and Electricity Markets Authority ('GEMA')², may authorise a gas transporter³ to purchase compulsorily any land⁴, including any right over land, by the creation of new rights as well as the acquisition of existing ones⁵. Where any land has been so acquired, the gas transporter may not dispose of that land or of any interest in or right over it except with the consent of the Authority⁶. Where a gas transporter has acquired or proposes to acquire land or any right over land which is or forms part of a common, open space or a fuel or field garden allotment⁷ and other land is required for the purposes of being given in exchange for the land or right in question, the Secretary of State may authorise the transporter to purchase that other land compulsorily⁸. The Secretary of State also has specific powers to authorise the purchase by a gas transporter of land and rights for the purpose of underground gas storages⁹.

Statutory provisions relevant to compensation for the compulsory purchase of land apply to the compulsory acquisition by a gas transporter of a new right over land, with the necessary modifications, as they apply to compensation on the compulsory purchase of land and interests in land¹⁰.

The Acquisition of Land Act 1981 applies to a compulsory purchase by a gas transporter of land or rights subject, in the case of compulsory acquisition of a right by the creation of a new right, to s 28, Sch 3 (as amended): Gas Act 1986 Sch 3 para 4 (amended by virtue of the Utilities Act 2000 s 76(7)). The Compulsory Purchase Act 1965 has effect with the modifications necessary to make it applicable to the compulsory acquisition by a gas transporter of rights over land: see the Gas Act 1986 Sch 3 para 5 (amended by the Utilities Act 2000 Sch 6 Pt I paras 1, 2(2)). For this purpose, specific adaptations are made of the Compulsory Purchase Act 1965 ss 7-9 (as amended), s 11 (as amended), s 20 (as amended), s 22, Sch 1 para 10(3), Sch 2 para 2(3), Sch 4 paras 2(3), 7(2): see the Gas Act 1986 Sch 3 paras 6-12 (amended by the Utilities Act 2000 Sch 6 Pt I paras 1, 2(2)); and see generally COMPULSORY ACQUISITION OF LAND vol 18 (2009) PARA 501 et seq.

supra). The Secretary of State could properly consider the planned or likely developments or future occurrences which it was intended or predicted would or might affect either the acquired land or the land given up in deciding whether or not to issue a certificate under s 19: Greenwich London Borough Council v Secretary of State for the Environment, Yates v Secretary of State for the Environment [1993] Env LR 344, (1993) Times, 2 March. PARTICULAR PROVISIONS RELATING TO GAS/(5) SUPPLY AND USE OF GAS/(i) Powers and Duties of Gas Transporters/D. WORKS, PIPELINES AND RIGHTS OVER LAND/(A) In general/842. Gas mains and other works in streets, etc.

842. Gas mains and other works in streets, etc.

A gas transporter¹ may² execute the following kinds of works, that is to say:

- 1331 (1) placing pipes, conduits, service pipes³, cables, sewers and other works, and pressure governors⁴, ventilators and other apparatus, in or under any street⁵; and
- 1332 (2) from time to time repairing, altering or removing any such works or apparatus placed in or under any street, whether by him or by any other person⁶.

A gas transporter may⁷ also execute any works requisite for or incidental to the purposes of any such works, including opening or breaking up any street or any sewers, drains or tunnels within or under any street and removing or using all earth and materials in or under any street⁸. In the exercise of these powers a gas transporter is required to do as little damage as possible and to make compensation for any damage which is done⁹; and the Secretary of State¹⁰ must by regulations provide that, in such cases and to such extent as may be provided by the regulations, a gas transporter must pay, by way of compensation for any loss sustained by any person in consequence of the exercise of those powers, such sum as may be determined in accordance with the regulations¹¹.

A gas transporter may erect any one or more structures for housing any apparatus in any street with the consent of the street authority¹² and such consent may not be unreasonably withheld¹³. Any question as to whether or not such consent is unreasonably withheld is to be determined by arbitration¹⁴. For this purpose, consent is treated as being unreasonably withheld to the extent that the withholding is based on the ground that the structure ought to be erected elsewhere than in a street, if the transporter shows either that there is no reasonably practicable alternative to erecting it in a street or that all such alternatives would, on the balance of probabilities, involve greater danger to life or property¹⁵.

These provisions do not, however, empower a gas transporter to lay down or place any pipe or other works into, through or against any building or in any land not dedicated to the public use¹⁶, except, in relation to any street which has been laid out but not dedicated to the public use, for the sole purpose of conveying gas to any premises which abut on the street¹⁷. Except in cases of emergency arising from defects in any pipes or other works, certain streets¹⁸ may not be opened or broken up without the consent of the relevant authority¹⁹. The consent is not to be unreasonably withheld²⁰ and any question as to whether it has been is to be determined by arbitration²¹. Gas transporters may exercise these emergency powers notwithstanding that they involve a temporary or permanent alteration of any electric line or electrical plant²². Other authorities²³, when carrying out their own works which may interfere with the works or property of a gas transporter, may only do so with that transporter's consent²⁴.

The existence of these statutory powers does not entitle a gas transporter to construct works or carry out certain other operations²⁵ under or over any part of the seashore lying below high water mark of ordinary spring tides in such a way that obstruction or danger to navigation is caused or is likely to result, unless the necessary statutory consent²⁶ has been obtained²⁷.

1 For the meaning of 'gas transporter' see PARA 805 ante.

2 le subject to the Gas Act 1986 s 9(3)(b), Sch 4 paras 1(2)-6 (as amended): see the text and notes 3-27 infra.

3 'Service pipe' means a pipe, other than a distribution main of a gas transporter, which is used for the purpose of conveying gas from such a main to any premises, and includes part of any such pipe: ibid s 48(1) (definition added by the Gas Act 1995 s 10(1), Sch 3 para 54(1)(j); amended by the Utilities Act 2000 s 108, Sch 6 Pt I paras 1, 2(1)).

4 'Pressure governors' are not defined in the Gas Act 1986; but see the Town and Country Planning (General Permitted Development) Order 1995, SI 1995/418, art 3(1), Sch 2 Pt 17, Class F(b) (as amended), referring to 'apparatus for measuring, recording, controlling or varying the pressure, flow or volume of gas'; and TOWN AND COUNTRY PLANNING vol 46(1) (Reissue) PARA 341.

5 'Street' means, irrespective of whether it is a thoroughfare, the whole or any part of any highway, road, lane, footway, alley or passage, any square or court and any land laid out as a way whether it is for the time being formed as a way or not: see the New Roads and Street Works Act 1991 s 48(1) (definition applied by the Gas Act 1986 s 9(3)(b), Sch 4 para 6 (respectively amended by the Utilities Act 2000 s 108, Sch 6 Pt I paras 1, 2(1); and the New Roads and Street Works Act 1991 s 168(1), Sch 8 para 119(1), (6)).

9 Gas Act 1986 Sch 4 para 1(3) (amended by the Utilities Act 2000 Sch 6 Pt I paras 1, 2(1)).

10 As to the Secretary of State see PARA 601 note 1 ante.

11 Gas Act 1986 Sch 4 para 1(4) (Sch 4 para 1(4), (5) added by the Gas Act 1995 Sch 3 para 57(3); amended by the Utilities Act 2000 Sch 6 Pt I paras 1, 2(1)). No regulations may be so made which amend, or re-enact with modifications, regulations previously so made: Gas Act 1986 Sch 4 para 1(5) (as so added). In the exercise of this power, the Secretary of State has made the Gas (Street Works) (Compensation of Small Businesses) Regulations 1996, SI 1996/491, which came into force on 22 March 1996 and have effect in relation to relevant works begun on or after that date: reg 1. Those regulations provide that where a gas transporter executes any relevant works which are not completed within the period of 28 days beginning with the day on which they were begun ('the works in question'), and any person conducting a small business, as respects that business, sustains, in consequence of the works in question, a loss of turnover during the period mentioned in reg 5(2), the gas transporter must pay to that person, by way of compensation for such loss, an amount calculated as provided in reg 5(3) unless the amount so calculated is less than £500 or does not exceed 2.5% of the annual turnover of the business: reg 5(1) (amended by virtue of the Utilities Act 2000 s 76(7)). The period referred to is a period of not less than 28 days beginning with the day on which the works in question were begun or, if later, either the day on which such loss was first so sustained or, where different, which immediately followed that on which the small business was last open for business before the day on which such loss was first so sustained, and ending with the day on which such loss was last so sustained or, where different, which immediately preceded that on which the small business was first open for business after the day on which such loss was last so sustained or, if earlier, the day ten days after the completion of the works in question: Gas (Street Works) (Compensation of Small Businesses) Regulations 1996, SI 1996/491, reg 5(2). The amount of the compensation must be calculated by determining A and B and then subtracting B from A, the amount so arrived at being the amount of the compensation, where (1) 'A' is the amount of the profit or loss that could reasonably have been expected to accrue to the small business during the period mentioned in reg 5(2) if the works in question had not been executed; and (2) 'B' is the amount of the profit or loss that accrued to that business during that period, a loss being treated as a negative amount: reg 5(3). No compensation referable to particular relevant works is so payable to a person unless (a) within three months of the completion of those works, he has reserved the right to claim such compensation by written notice, identifying the works in question, given to the transporter by which those works were executed; and (b) within six months of the completion of those works, he has provided that transporter with a statement of facts and a summary of evidence (including, where appropriate, extracts from accounts and other documents) sufficient to establish, prima facie: (i) that the person claiming compensation was such a person as is mentioned in reg 5(1)(b) who, as respects a small business, sustained such loss as is there mentioned; (ii) the annual turnover of the small business as respects which that loss was sustained and the annual turnover of any like business referred to in reg 3(2)(a); (iii) the period satisfying the criteria in reg 5(2) during which that loss was sustained; and (iv) the amount of the compensation for that loss calculated as provided in reg 5(3): reg 5(4). 'Relevant works' means street works within the meaning of the New Roads and Street Works Act 1991 s 48(3) (ie works of any of the following kinds (other than works for road purposes) executed in a street in pursuance of a statutory right or a street works licence, namely placing apparatus, or inspecting, maintaining, adjusting, repairing, altering or renewing apparatus, changing the position of apparatus or removing it, or works required for or incidental to any such works (including, in particular, breaking up or opening the street, or any sewer, drain or tunnel under it, or tunnelling or boring under the street), including works in respect of the reinstatement of a street required by s 70 (as amended); except that, where works in respect of the interim reinstatement of a street have been completed, it does not include any subsequent works in respect of the permanent reinstatement of the street: see the Gas (Street Works) (Compensation of Small Businesses) Regulations 1996, SI 1996/491, reg 2(1).

For these purposes, 'small business' means a business conducted at particular premises the annual turnover of which (determined as provided in reg 4) does not exceed the amount determined as mentioned in reg 3(4): reg 3(1). A business is not a small business for these purposes if the person conducting that business ('the business in question'), or any related person, conducts one or more like businesses at premises other than those at which the business in question is conducted, and the annual turnover of the business in question, when aggregated with the annual turnovers of each of the like businesses, exceeds the amount determined as mentioned in reg 3(4): reg 3(2). For the meaning of 'related person' see reg 3(3). For the purposes of the application of the 1996 Regulations in relation to particular relevant works, the amount referred to in reg 3(1) or (2) must be determined by reference to the year beginning with 1 March within which the date on which the relevant works in question were completed falls ('the year in question') and is to be, in the case of the year beginning with 1 March 1996, £1,000,000, or in the case of a subsequent year, that amount multiplied by the appropriate factor mentioned in reg 3(5) except that any fraction of £1,000 in that product is to be disregarded; and that factor is to be obtained by dividing the retail price index for the first month of the year in question by the retail price index for March 1996: reg 3(4), (5). As to the retail price index see reg 3(6). The annual turnover of a business must be determined (A) in the case of a business conducted by a person other than a company, by reference to the period of a year in respect of which the accounts of the business (or, if the business is part of a larger business and there are no separate accounts, the accounts of that larger business) are drawn up last ending before the date on which the relevant works in question were completed; or (B) in the case of a business conducted by a company, by reference to the financial year of that company last ending before that date, except that, in the case of a business conducted by a person other than a company, if the accounts for the period last ending before the date on which the relevant works in question were completed were for a period longer or shorter than a year or, in the case of a business conducted by a company, the financial year of that company last so ending was a period longer or shorter than a year, the annual turnover of the business must be determined proportionately by reference to the longer or shorter period in question; and where the business was not conducted throughout the period by reference to which the annual turnover would otherwise fall to be determined, or there were no accounts for a period ending, or no financial year ending, before the relevant works in question were completed, the annual turnover thereof must be taken to be such as, on reasonable assumptions and having regard to such information as is available, appears to be likely to be the annual turnover of the business: reg 4.

12 'Street authority' means the highway authority if the street is a maintainable highway and the street managers if it is not: New Roads and Street Works Act 1991 s 49(1) (applied by the Gas Act 1986 Sch 4 para 6 (as amended: see note 5 supra)). For the meanings of 'maintainable highway' and 'street managers' see the New Roads and Street Works Act 1991 ss 49(4), 86(1); and HIGHWAYS, STREETS AND BRIDGES.

14 See the Gas Act 1986 Sch 4 para 2(2). Arbitration is to be by a single arbitrator appointed by the parties or, in default of agreement, by the Gas and Electricity Markets Authority ('GEMA'): Sch 4 para 2(2) (amended by virtue of the Utilities Act 2000 s 3(2)). 18 Is a street which (1) does not constitute for the purposes of the Highways Act 1980 a highway or part of a highway maintainable at the public expense; and (2) is under the control or management of, or maintainable by, any railway authority or navigation authority: Gas Act 1986 Sch 4 para 4(1) (Sch 4 para 4(1), (2) amended by the New Roads and Street Works Act 1991 Sch 8 para 119(2)).

19 Is the street, railway or navigation authorities: Gas Act 1986 Sch 4 para 4(1) (as amended: see note 18 supra). For the meaning of 'street authority' see note 12 supra. 'Railway authority' means any person or body of persons, whether incorporated or not, authorised by any enactment to construct, work or carry on a railway; and 'navigation authority' means any person or body of persons, whether incorporated or not, authorised by or

PARTICULAR PROVISIONS RELATING TO GAS/(5) SUPPLY AND USE OF GAS/(i) Powers and Duties of Gas Transporters/D. WORKS, PIPELINES AND RIGHTS OVER LAND/(A) In general/843. Restrictions on construction of pipelines.

843. Restrictions on construction of pipelines.

A gas transporter¹ must not at any time execute within 23 metres from a pipeline² of another gas transporter (the 'other transporter') any works for the construction of a pipeline³ unless:

- 1333 (1) he has given the other transporter a notice⁴ stating that he intends to construct the pipeline;
- 1334 (2) he has consulted with that transporter as to exactly where the proposed pipeline is to be located, having regard to the location of other pipelines;
- 1335 (3) he has consulted with that transporter as to the manner in which the safety of the pipeline is to be secured and any escapes of gas, actual or suspected, from the pipeline are to be dealt with; and
- 1336 (4) where the existing pipeline is a relevant main⁵ of the other transporter, that transporter has consented in writing to the construction of the proposed pipeline, either unconditionally or subject to conditions⁶; and conditions imposed under head (4) above may relate to matters arising after the construction of the proposed pipeline, including the use to be made of the pipeline⁷.

The above provisions do not apply if the proposed pipeline is required to enable a gas transporter to comply with any duty to connect premises imposed⁸ by the relevant statutory provision⁹.

If the other transporter:

- 1337 (a) refuses or fails to give consent under head (4) above; or
- 1338 (b) gives such consent subject to conditions, consent may instead be given in writing by the Gas and Electricity Markets Authority ('GEMA')¹⁰ where it considers it appropriate to do so¹¹. Such consent may only be given unconditionally or, in a case falling within head (b) above, subject to the same conditions as were imposed by the other transporter¹².

A condition imposed on a gas transporter under the above provisions is enforceable by civil proceedings by the other transporter for an injunction or for any other appropriate relief¹³.

1 For the meaning of 'gas transporter' see PARA 805 ante.

2 For these purposes, 'pipeline' has the same meaning as in the Pipe-lines Act 1962 (see s 65 (as amended); and RAILWAYS, INLAND WATERWAYS AND CROSS-COUNTRY PIPELINES vol 39(1A) (Reissue) PARA 559); Gas Act 1986 s 22A(3) (s 22A added by the Gas Act 1995 s 10(1), Sch 3 para 20).

3 For these purposes, 'construction', in relation to a pipeline, includes placing (Gas Act 1986 s 22A(3) (as added: see note 2 supra)); but the execution of works in land for the purpose of determining whether or not it is suitable for the placing in it of a pipeline and the carrying out of surveying operations for the purpose of settling the route of a proposed pipeline is to be deemed not to constitute the execution of works for the construction of a pipeline (s 22A(4) (as so added)).

4 Such a notice must (1) specify the points between which the proposed pipeline is to run and be accompanied by a map (drawn to an appropriate scale) on which is delineated the route which it is proposed to take; (2) specify the length, diameter and operating pressure of the proposed pipeline and the kind of gas which it is designed to convey; and (3) contain such other particulars (if any) as may be prescribed: ibid s 22A(2) (as added: see note 2 supra). For the meaning of 'notice' see PARA 804 note 6 ante; for the meaning of 'gas' see PARA 802 ante; and for the meaning of 'prescribed' see PARA 798 note 5 ante. At the date at which this title states the law, no particulars had been prescribed for these purposes.

5 For these purposes, 'relevant main' has the meaning given by ibid s 10(12) (as substituted and amended) (see PARA 836 note 6 ante): s 22A(3) (as added (see note 2 supra); definition amended by the Utilities Act 2000 s 78(1), (4)).

(B) ENVIRONMENTAL IMPACT ASSESSMENT OF PIPELINE WORKS

844. Introduction.

Pipeline works¹ by a gas transporter² required for the purposes of its undertaking and consisting of the laying underground of mains, pipes or other apparatus³ may require environmental impact assessment under the Gas Transporter Pipeline Works (Environmental Impact Assessment) Regulations 1999⁴, as discussed below⁵. Other pipeline works⁶ may require such assessment under the Pipeline Works (Environmental Impact Assessment) Regulations 2000⁷ or the Town and Country Planning (Environmental Impact Assessment) (England and Wales) Regulations 1999⁸, which are discussed elsewhere in this work⁹.

1 For these purposes, 'pipeline works' means the carrying out of building, engineering or other operations in land for the construction of a pipeline, not being emergency works; 'pipeline' means a pipeline, other than a small service pipe, within the meaning of the Pipe-lines Act 1962 s 65 (as amended) (see RAILWAYS, INLAND WATERWAYS AND CROSS-COUNTRY PIPELINES vol 39(1A) (Reissue) PARA 559) which is intended to convey gas; 'construction', in relation to a pipeline, includes placing and cognate expressions are to be construed accordingly; 'in', in a context referring to a pipeline or works or operations in land, includes a reference to a pipeline, works or operations under, over, across, along or upon it; 'small service pipe' means a pipeline, other than a distribution main of a gas transporter, not exceeding 500 metres in length which has a design operating pressure not exceeding 2 bar gauge and the purpose of which is the conveyance of gas from such a main to any premises, and includes part of any such pipeline; and 'distribution main', in relation to a gas transporter, means any main of the transporter through which the transporter is for the time being distributing gas and which is not being used only for the purpose of conveying gas in bulk: Gas Transporter Pipeline Works (Environmental Impact Assessment) Regulations 1999, SI 1999/1672, reg 2(1) (amended by virtue of the Utilities Act 2000 s 76(7)). 'Emergency works' means any works whose execution at the time when they are executed is required in order to put an end to, or to prevent the occurrence of, circumstances then existing or imminent which are likely to cause danger to persons or property: Gas Transporter Pipeline Works (Environmental Impact Assessment) Regulations 1999, SI 1999/1672, reg 2(1).

'Gas' means (1) any substance in a gaseous state which consists wholly or mainly of (a) methane, ethane, propane, butane, hydrogen or carbon monoxide; (b) a mixture of two or more of those gases; or (c) a combustible mixture of one or more of those gases and air; and (2) any other substance in a gaseous state which is gaseous at a temperature of 15°C and a pressure of 1013.25 millibars and is specified in an order made by the Secretary of State under the Gas Act 1986: Gas Transporter Pipeline Works (Environmental Impact Assessment) Regulations 1999, SI 1999/1672, reg 2(1). As to the Secretary of State see PARA 601 note 1 ante.

2 For the purposes of the Gas Transporter Pipeline Works (Environmental Impact Assessment) Regulations 1999, SI 1999/1672 (as amended), 'gas transporter' means the holder of a licence under the Gas Act 1986 s 7(1) (as substituted and amended) (see PARA 805 ante) except where the holder is acting otherwise than for purposes connected with (1) the carrying on of activities authorised by the licence; (2) the conveyance of gas through pipes which (a) are situated in an authorised area of his; or (b) are situated in an area which was an authorised area of his, or an authorised area of a previous holder of the licence, and were so situated at a time when it was such an area; or (3) the conveyance through pipes of gas which is in the course of being conveyed to or from a country or territory outside Great Britain: Gas Transporter Pipeline Works (Environmental Impact Assessment) Regulations 1999, SI 1999/1672, reg 2(1) (as amended: see note 1 supra). 'Authorised area', in relation to a gas transporter, means so much of any area specified in the licence granted to the transporter concerned under the Gas Act 1986 s 7 (as substituted and amended) or an extension of such licence as is not specified in a subsequent licence or extension granted under s 7 (as substituted and amended) to another person: Gas Transporter Pipeline Works (Environmental Impact Assessment) Regulations 1999, SI 1999/1672, reg 2(1) (as so amended).

3 ie pipeline works which fall within the class of development described as permitted development in the Town and Country Planning (General Permitted Development) Order 1995, SI 1995/418, art 3(1), Sch 2 Pt 17,

Class F(a) (as amended): see TOWN AND COUNTRY PLANNING vol 46(1) (Reissue) PARA 341. As to development not permitted by Sch 2 Pt 17, Class F (as amended) see TOWN AND COUNTRY PLANNING vol 46(1) (Reissue) PARA 343; as to the general conditions subject to which such development is permitted see TOWN AND COUNTRY PLANNING vol 46(1) (Reissue) PARA 255; as to the special conditions subject to which such development is permitted see TOWN AND COUNTRY PLANNING vol 46(1) (Reissue) PARA 342; and as to directions restricting permitted development see TOWN AND COUNTRY PLANNING vol 46(1) (Reissue) PARA 258 et seq.

4 See the Gas Transporter Pipeline Works (Environmental Impact Assessment) Regulations 1999, SI 1999/1672 (as amended); and PARA 845 et seq post. The 1999 Regulations in their amended form implement EEC Council Directive 85/337 (OJ L175, 5.7.85, p 40) (as amended by EC Council Directive 97/11/EC (OJ L73, 3.3.97, p 5) and European Parliament and EC Council Directive 2003/35 (OJ L156, 25.6.2003, p 17)) on the assessment of the effects of certain public and private projects on the environment in so far as it relates to proposed pipeline works by a gas transporter. The 1999 Regulations were made as the Public Gas Transporter Pipeline Works (Environmental Impact Assessment) Regulations 1999, SI 1999/1672, but are retitled as the Gas Transporter Pipeline Works (Environmental Impact Assessment) Regulations 1999, SI 1999/1672, by virtue of the Utilities Act 2000 s 76(7): see PARA 805 ante.

The Gas Transporter Pipeline Works (Environmental Impact Assessment) Regulations 1999, SI 1999/1672 (as so amended) apply to pipeline works which fall within the class of development described as permitted development in the Town and Country Planning (General Permitted Development) Order 1995, SI 1995/418, art 3(1), Sch 2 Pt 17, Class F(a) (as amended) (see note 3 supra) unless they were commenced by a gas transporter, or a gas transporter had invited tenders for their execution, before 15 July 1999 (see the Gas Transporter Pipeline Works (Environmental Impact Assessment) Regulations 1999, SI 1999/1672, reg 1(1), (3)(a) (as so amended)) and except to the extent specified by reg 4 (pipeline works subject to planning permission in England and Wales: see PARA 845 post) (see reg 1(3)(b)). They do not extend to Northern Ireland: reg 1(2).

5 See PARA 845 et seq post.

6 For the purposes of the Pipeline Works (Environmental Impact Assessment) Regulations 2000, SI 2000/1928, 'pipeline works' means the carrying out of building, engineering or other operations in land for the construction of a pipeline; 'pipeline' means a pipeline within the meaning of the Pipe-lines Act 1962 s 65 (as amended) the purpose of which is the conveyance of oil, gas or chemicals; 'in', in a context referring to a pipeline or works or operations in land, includes a reference to a pipeline, works or operations under, over, across, along or upon it; and 'construction', in relation to a pipeline, includes placing: Pipeline Works (Environmental Impact Assessment) Regulations 2000, SI 2000/1928, reg 2.

7 Ie under ibid regs 3-15, Schs 1, 2 (amended by SI 2007/1992): see RAILWAYS, INLAND WATERWAYS AND CROSS-COUNTRY PIPELINES vol 39(1A) PARA 567.

Pipelines for the transport of gas, oil or chemicals with a diameter of more than 800 millimetres and a length of more than 40 kilometres are 'Schedule 1 developments' for the purposes of those regulations (see TOWN AND COUNTRY PLANNING vol 46(1) (Reissue) PARA 489 at head (16) in the text); and oil and gas pipeline installations, unless they are Schedule 1 developments, where the area of the works exceeds 1 hectare or, in the case of a gas pipeline, the installation has a design operating pressure exceeding 7 bar gauge, are 'Schedule 2 developments' for those purposes (see TOWN AND COUNTRY PLANNING vol 46(1) (Reissue) PARA 490 at head (10)(k) in the text).

As to the interaction between those regulations and the Gas Transporter Pipeline Works (Environmental Impact Assessment) Regulations 1999, SI 1999/1672 (as amended) see PARA 845 the text and notes 26-34 post.

UPDATE

844 Introduction

NOTE 4--Directive 85/337 further amended: European Parliament and EC Council Directive 2009/31 (OJ L140, 5.6.2009, p 114).

Halsbury's Laws of England/FUEL AND ENERGY (VOLUME 19(1) (2007 REISSUE) PARAS 601-775; VOLUME 19(2) (2007 REISSUE) PARAS 776-1328); VOLUME 19(3) (2007 REISSUE) PARAS 1329-1927)/3. PARTICULAR PROVISIONS RELATING TO GAS/(5) SUPPLY AND USE OF GAS/(i) Powers and Duties of Gas Transporters/D. WORKS, PIPELINES AND RIGHTS OVER LAND/(B) Environmental Impact Assessment of Pipeline Works/845. Requirement for environmental statement.

845. Requirement for environmental statement.

Where a gas transporter¹ proposes to carry out any pipeline works²:

1339 (1) in respect of a pipeline with a diameter of more than 800 millimetres and a length of more than 40 kilometres or an extension to a pipeline which in itself meets those thresholds³, he must not⁴ commence such works without first giving the Secretary of State⁵ a notice of preparation of environmental statement⁶;

1340 (2) other than works of the kind described in head (1) above, in respect of a pipeline the whole or any part of which, or the whole or any part of any working width⁷ for which, will be within a sensitive area⁸, or which will have a design operating pressure exceeding 7 bar gauge⁹, he must not¹⁰ commence such works unless either:

85

125. (a) in response to a request from the gas transporter, the Secretary of State has made an environmental determination¹¹ and that determination has not at the time of commencement of such works ceased to have effect¹²; or

126. (b) the gas transporter has given the Secretary of State a notice of preparation of environmental statement¹³.

86

In any case, other than in response to a request for an environmental determination¹⁴, where it appears to the Secretary of State, having taken into account the selection criteria¹⁵, that a gas transporter proposes to carry out or is carrying out any pipeline works which are EIA development, and the gas transporter has not given a notice of preparation of environmental statement, the Secretary of State must¹⁶, giving his reasons for his opinion, in writing direct the gas transporter to prepare an environmental statement¹⁷, and must send a copy of the direction to the relevant planning authority¹⁸ and to such other persons as he thinks fit, together with, where necessary, documents sufficient to identify the proposed pipeline works and the land in which¹⁹ the proposed pipeline works would be carried out²⁰. Before making such a direction, the Secretary of State must consult the gas transporter who is proposing to carry out or is carrying out such works and such other persons as he thinks fit²¹.

Where:

1341 (i) the Secretary of State determines in response to a request for an environmental determination that the pipeline works in question are EIA development;

1342 (ii) the Secretary of State directs that an environmental statement be prepared²²; or

1343 (iii) the gas transporter gives the Secretary of State a notice of preparation of environmental statement, the gas transporter must not commence or continue the pipeline works in question without first making an application for and obtaining the consent of the Secretary of State²³ to the carrying out of those works²⁴. Such an application for the consent of the Secretary of State to the carrying out of proposed pipeline works must be made by letter addressed to the Secretary of State, must be accompanied by a copy of the environmental statement and must include, or be accompanied by documents containing, the following information:

- 1344 (A) the name and address of the gas transporter;
- 1345 (B) the location of the proposed pipeline works; and
- 1346 (C) a brief description of the nature and purpose of the proposed pipeline works and of the main environmental consequences referred to in the environmental statement relating to the works²⁵.

The above provisions do not, however, apply, or will, as the case may be, cease to apply, in respect of any pipeline works in relation to which a direction has been given²⁶ that the deemed planning permission granted in respect of them²⁷ is not to apply²⁸. Where, in relation to proposed pipeline works, the Secretary of State makes an environmental determination or gives a direction that an environmental statement is required²⁹ before the date on which a direction is given that such deemed planning permission is not to apply³⁰, that determination or that direction that an environmental statement is required is, notwithstanding any provisions to the contrary in the Town and Country Planning (Environmental Impact Assessment) (England and Wales) Regulations 1999³¹, conclusive for the purposes of those regulations of the question of whether the pipeline works in question are, or are not, EIA development within the meaning of those regulations³² and is to be treated for the purposes of those regulations as if it were a direction by the Secretary of State under the relevant provision³³ of those regulations³⁴.

1 For the meaning of 'gas transporter' for these purposes see PARA 844 note 2 ante.

2 For the meaning of 'pipeline works' see PARA 844 note 1 ante; and as to the pipeline works to which these provisions apply see PARA 844 note 4 ante. See also, however, the text and notes 26-34 infra.

3 I.e. pipeline works of the kind described in the Gas Transporter Pipeline Works (Environmental Impact Assessment) Regulations 1999, SI 1999/1672, Sch 3 Pt 1 (substituted by SI 2007/1996) (the 1999 Regulations retitled and amended by virtue of the Utilities Act 2000 s 76(7)).

4 I.e. subject to the Gas Transporter Pipeline Works (Environmental Impact Assessment) Regulations 1999, SI 1999/1672, regs 3(5), 4 (as amended): see the text and notes 22-24, 26-34 infra.

'Notice of preparation of environmental statement', in relation to proposed pipeline works, means a notice to the Secretary of State (1) stating that the gas transporter proposing to carry out the works in question will prepare and submit to the Secretary of State an environmental statement relating to those works; (2) including the information necessary to identify, or being accompanied by documents identifying, the proposed pipeline works, the land in which (see PARA 844 note 1 ante) the proposed pipeline works would be carried out and the nature and purpose of the works; and (3) indicating the main environmental consequences to which the gas transporter proposes to refer in his environmental statement: reg 2(1) (as so amended). 'Notice' means notice in writing and cognate expressions are to be construed accordingly (reg 2(1)); and references in the 1999 Regulations to proposed pipeline works include, in the case of pipeline works in respect of which the Secretary of State has made a direction under reg 3(3) (as amended) (direction that an environmental statement is required: see the text and notes 14-20 infra) after the works in question have already been commenced, references to any pipeline works necessary for the completion of those works (reg 2(2)). For the meaning of 'environmental statement', and as to the contents of such statements, see PARA 846 post.

Any notice or other document required or authorised to be given to or served on any person under the Gas Transporter Pipeline Works (Environmental Impact Assessment) Regulations 1999, SI 1999/1672 (as amended) may be given or served by (a) delivering it to that person; or (b) leaving it at his proper address; or (c) sending it to his proper address by the recorded delivery service: reg 19(1). partnership is to be duly given to or served on the secretary or clerk or other similar officer of that body: reg 19(2). Any notice or other document required or authorised to be given to or served on any partnership may be given to or served on a partner or a person having the control or management of the partnership business: reg 19(3). Subject to reg 19(5), (6), for these purposes the proper address of any person to whom or on whom any such notice or document is to be given or served is his last known address except that such address is to be (i) in the case of a body corporate or its secretary or clerk, the address of the registered office or principal office of the body corporate; (ii) in the case of an unincorporated association (other than a partnership) or its secretary or clerk, the address of the principal office of the association; and (iii) in the case of a partnership or a person having control or the management of the partnership business, the address of the principal office of the partnership; and for these purposes the principal office of a company registered outside Great Britain or of a partnership carrying on business outside Great Britain is its principal office within Great Britain: reg 19(4). If the person to be given or served with any such notice or document has furnished the person by whom the notice or document is to be given or served with an address pursuant to any provision of the 1999 Regulations, that address must also be treated for these purposes as his proper address: reg 19(5). Any notice or other document relating to pipeline works which is to be given to or served on a gas transporter, who has for the purposes of the Gas Act 1986 s 46 (as amended) (see PARA 980 post) fixed particular offices as appropriate offices in relation to notices concerning matters arising in particular areas, may be given or served by delivering it at or sending it in a prepaid letter to any office which is an appropriate office in relation to notices concerning matters arising in an area in which any part of the pipeline works is to be carried out: reg 19(6) (as so amended).

7 'Working width' means, in relation to a proposed pipeline, the area occupied by apparatus, equipment, machinery, materials, plant, spoil heaps or other facilities or stores required for the construction or installation of the pipeline: ibid reg 2(1). 10 See note 4 supra.

11 'Environmental determination', in relation to any proposed pipeline works, means a determination by the Secretary of State as to whether the proposed works are EIA development; and 'EIA development' means pipeline works which are likely to have significant effects on the environment by virtue of factors such as their nature, size or location: Gas Transporter Pipeline Works (Environmental Impact Assessment) Regulations 1999, SI 1999/1672, reg 2(1). As to such determinations see PARA 846 post. 'Effect' includes, except where the context otherwise requires, any direct, indirect, secondary, cumulative, short, medium or long-term, permanent or temporary, or positive or negative effect: reg 2(1).

see note 3 supra). The gas transporter making the request must supply the Secretary of State with such number of additional copies of the plan accompanying the request as the Secretary of State may reasonably require: regs 6(3), 7(4) (as so amended).

PARTICULAR PROVISIONS RELATING TO GAS/(5) SUPPLY AND USE OF GAS/(i) Powers and Duties of Gas Transporters/D. WORKS, PIPELINES AND RIGHTS OVER LAND/(B) Environmental Impact Assessment of Pipeline Works/846. Requests to the Secretary of State for an environmental determination.

846. Requests to the Secretary of State for an environmental determination.

The following provisions apply where a gas transporter¹:

- 1347 (1) makes a request for an environmental determination before carrying out works of a specified kind²;
- 1348 (2) proposes to carry out pipeline works³ which are not of a specified kind⁴ but nevertheless, before commencing such works, makes a request for an environmental determination⁵.

The Secretary of State⁶ must⁷, having (a) taken into account the selection criteria⁸ and (b) consulted the relevant planning authority⁹, unless the gas transporter making the request has already conveyed the written views of the relevant planning authority concerned to the Secretary of State, make such environmental determination as he thinks fit and send a copy to the gas transporter who made the request¹⁰.

On receiving a request for an environmental determination the Secretary of State must, if he considers that he has not been provided with sufficient information to enable him to make a determination or to consult in accordance with head (b) above, notify the gas transporter making the request of the particular points on which he requires further information¹¹. If the relevant planning authority wishes to give any views to the Secretary of State, it must do so by a date no later than four weeks after the date on which it was consulted under head (b) above¹².

The Secretary of State must make an environmental determination in response to a request for it by a date no later than four weeks after whichever is the latest of:

- 1349 (i) the date of the receipt of the request by the Secretary of State;
- 1350 (ii) the date of receipt by him of further information pursuant to a notice requesting such information from the gas transporter¹³; or
- 1351 (iii) if the Secretary of State has consulted the relevant planning authority under head (b) above, the expiry of the period for the relevant planning authority to give its views to the Secretary of State¹⁴ or, if earlier, the date by which he has received the views of the relevant planning authority, or by such later date as may be agreed in writing with the gas transporter¹⁵.

Where, in response to a request for an environmental determination, the Secretary of State determines that proposed pipeline works¹⁶ are EIA development¹⁷, he must provide with the determination a written statement of the reasons for his determination¹⁸. A determination made by the Secretary of State in response to a request for an environmental determination that proposed pipeline works are not EIA development ceases to have effect after the expiration of five years from the date on which the determination is made, unless the pipeline works to which it relates have been substantially begun before the expiration of that period¹⁹. Where the Secretary of State makes an environmental determination, he must forthwith send a copy of the determination and the statement of reasons, if any, accompanying the determination to the relevant planning authority and to such other persons as he considers should receive a copy and must also send a copy of the relevant request and the documents which accompanied it²⁰.

847. Contents of environmental statement.

An 'environmental statement' means a statement prepared in respect of proposed pipeline works¹ which includes such information of the following descriptions² as is relevant, taking into account the specific characteristics of the pipeline works or type of pipeline works proposed and the environmental features likely to be affected, and which the gas transporter³ can, having regard in particular to current knowledge and methods of assessment, reasonably be required to compile⁴, namely:

- 1352 (1) a description of the proposed pipeline works, including in particular:
87
 127. (a) a description of the physical characteristics of the proposed pipeline works and the proposed pipeline, and the land-use requirements during the construction⁵ and operational phases;
 128. (b) a description of the main characteristics of the production processes proposed, for instance, the nature and quality of the materials to be used;
 129. (c) an estimate, by type and quantity, of expected residues and emissions (including, without limitation, water, air and soil pollution, noise, vibration, light, heat, and radiation) resulting from the proposed pipeline works and the proposed pipeline when in operation⁶;
- 881353 (2) a description of the aspects of the environment likely to be significantly affected by the proposed pipeline works, including in particular population, fauna, flora, soil, water, air, climatic factors, material assets, including the architectural and archaeological heritage, landscape and the inter-relationship between the above factors⁷;
- 1354 (3) a description of the likely significant effects⁸ of the proposed pipeline works on the environment which may result from:
89
 130. (a) the existence of the proposed pipeline works or the proposed pipeline;
 131. (b) the use of natural resources;
 132. (c) the emission of pollutants, the creation of nuisances and the elimination of waste,
- 901355 and a description of the forecasting methods used to assess the effects on the environment⁹;
- 1356 (4) a non-technical summary of the information provided under heads (1) to (3) above¹⁰;
- 1357 (5) an indication of any difficulties¹¹ encountered by the gas transporter in compiling the required information¹².

In every case, an environmental statement must include the following:

- 1358 (i) a description of the pipeline works proposed, comprising information about the route, the design and size of the pipeline works;
- 1359 (ii) a description of the measures envisaged in order to prevent, reduce and, if possible, offset significant adverse effects;
- 1360 (iii) the data required to identify and assess the main effects which the pipeline works are likely to have on the environment;
- 1361 (iv) an outline of the main alternatives studied by the gas transporter and an indication of the main reasons for choosing the pipeline works proposed, taking into account the environmental effects;
- 1362 (v) a non-technical summary of the information provided under heads (i) to (iv) above¹³.

WORKS, PIPELINES AND RIGHTS OVER LAND/(B) Environmental Impact Assessment of Pipeline Works/848. Pre-application requests to the Secretary of State for an opinion as to content of environmental statement.

848. Pre-application requests to the Secretary of State for an opinion as to content of environmental statement.

The following provisions apply where a gas transporter¹, either at the same time as making a request for an environmental determination² or at any other time before applying to the Secretary of State³ for his consent to the carrying out of proposed pipeline works⁴, makes a request to the Secretary of State accompanied by the appropriate particulars⁵ for the Secretary of State's opinion in writing as to the information to be provided in the environmental statement⁶ to be submitted⁷ by the gas transporter to the Secretary of State⁸. The Secretary of State must⁹ give an opinion in response to such a request, having first:

- 1363 (1) taken into account:
- 91
- 133. (a) the specific characteristics of the particular proposed pipeline works;
- 134. (b) the specific characteristics of pipeline works of the type concerned;
- 135. (c) the environmental features likely to be affected by the pipeline works; and
- 136. (d) the extent to which the gas transporter who made the request may reasonably be required to compile the information, having regard, inter alia, to current knowledge and methods of assessment; and
- 92
- 1364 (2) consulted the gas transporter who made the request and the consultation bodies¹⁰.

On receiving such a request the Secretary of State must, if he considers that he has not been provided with sufficient information to enable him to give an opinion on the questions raised or to consult in accordance with head (2) above, notify the gas transporter making the request of the particular points on which he requires further information¹¹. If the gas transporter and the consultation bodies wish to give any views to the Secretary of State, they must do so by a date no later than four weeks after the date on which they were consulted under head (2) above¹².

The Secretary of State must give an opinion in response to such a request no later than four weeks after whichever is the latest of:

- 1365 (i) the date of the receipt of the request by the Secretary of State;
- 1366 (ii) the date of receipt by him of further information pursuant to a notice to the gas transporter requesting such information¹³; or
- 1367 (iii) the expiry of the period for the gas transporter and the consultation bodies to give their views to the Secretary of State¹⁴ or, if earlier, the date by which he has received the views of the gas transporter and all the consultation bodies consulted under head (2) above, or by such later date as may be agreed in writing with the gas transporter¹⁵.

Where the Secretary of State has given an opinion in response to such a request, he is not precluded from requiring of the gas transporter to whom that opinion was given further information in connection with any environmental statement that may be submitted by the gas transporter in connection with the same, or substantially the same, pipeline works as were referred to in the request¹⁶.

PARTICULAR PROVISIONS RELATING TO GAS/(5) SUPPLY AND USE OF GAS/(i) Powers and Duties of Gas Transporters/D. WORKS, PIPELINES AND RIGHTS OVER LAND/(B) Environmental Impact Assessment of Pipeline Works/849. Information and publicity.

849. Information and publicity.

Where the Secretary of State¹ determines in response to a request for an environmental determination² that proposed pipeline works³ are EIA development⁴, receives a notice of preparation of environmental statement⁵ or directs that such a statement be prepared⁶, he must:

- 1368 (1) notify the consultation bodies⁷ of the name and address of the gas transporter⁸ concerned and of the duty imposed on them⁹ to make information available to the gas transporter; and
- 1369 (2) inform the gas transporter in writing of the names and addresses of the consultation bodies so notified¹⁰.

Any consultation body so notified that a gas transporter is to submit an environmental statement¹¹ must¹², if so requested in writing by the gas transporter, enter into consultation with the gas transporter to determine whether the body has in its possession any information which it or the gas transporter considers relevant to the preparation of an environmental statement and which, but for these provisions, could not readily be obtained by the gas transporter, and if it has such information, the body must make it available to the gas transporter¹³. A reasonable charge reflecting the cost of making the relevant information available may be made by any body supplying it¹⁴. Nothing in these provisions, however, requires the disclosure of any information which is by virtue of any rule of the law of any part of Great Britain subject to any obligation of confidentiality¹⁵.

In any case where a gas transporter has made an application to the Secretary of State for consent to the carrying out of proposed pipeline works, accompanied by an environmental statement relating to those works, the following provisions apply¹⁶. The gas transporter must serve on the consultation bodies as soon as is reasonably practicable:

- 1370 (a) a copy of the application for consent¹⁷, the environmental statement and any supplementary information¹⁸; and
- 1371 (b) a notice stating that representations may be made to the Secretary of State by a date specified in the notice which must be at least 28 days after the date on which the application for consent, the environmental statement and any supplementary information were served on the body, and he must inform the Secretary of State in writing of the names and addresses of every such body on whom he has served copies, and the dates on which they were served, in each case no later than seven days after the date of such service¹⁹. The gas transporter must also, as soon as is reasonably practicable, publish a notice²⁰ containing the prescribed information²¹.

The gas transporter must:

- 1372 (i) at least seven days before the date on which the above-mentioned notice is to be first published, supply free of charge to the relevant planning authority²² a copy of the application for consent, the environmental statement and any

- supplementary information for the purposes of inspection by members of the public²³ and notify the authority of the intended date of first publication;
- 1373 (ii) make available at an address in Great Britain enough copies of the application for consent, the environmental statement and any supplementary information to be likely to satisfy all reasonable demands for copies²⁴; and
- 1374 (iii) subject to head (ii) above and to the receipt by the gas transporter of any sum by way of charge²⁵, supply during the prescribed period²⁶ to any person on request a copy of the application for consent, the environmental statement and any supplementary information²⁷.

The relevant planning authority must make available premises at which copies of the application for consent, the environmental statement and any supplementary information may be inspected by members of the public free of charge at all reasonable hours for a period commencing on the date of first publication notified to it by the gas transporter in accordance with head (i) above and expiring²⁸ on the prescribed date²⁹.

850. Further information and evidence respecting environmental statements.

Where the Secretary of State¹ has been provided with an environmental statement² he may in writing require the gas transporter³ to provide in respect of such statement such further information as he may specify ('further information')⁴; and where, in the opinion of the Secretary of State, any further information ought to have been included in the environmental statement in question, the Secretary of State must notify the gas transporter and the relevant planning authority⁵ in writing accordingly, specifying the information in question, and the following provisions apply in respect of such further information⁶:

- 1375 (1) the gas transporter must serve a copy of the further information on the consultation bodies⁷, together with a notice⁸ referring to the material previously served on that body and stating that further representations may be made in writing to the Secretary of State by a date specified in the notice which must be at least 28 days after the date on which the further information and notice were served on the body and the gas transporter must inform the Secretary of State in writing of the names and addresses of every such body on whom he has served those documents, and the dates on which they were served⁹;
- 1376 (2) the gas transporter and the relevant planning authority must make available to the public copies of the application for consent¹⁰, the environmental statement and any supplementary information¹¹ in the same way as they each previously made available the application, the environmental statement and any supplementary information for the period commencing on the date of first publication of the notice referred to in head (3) below and expiring on a date not less than 28 days after the date on which the notice is to be last published, in each case pursuant to head (3) below¹²;
- 1377 (3) the gas transporter must publish a notice containing the prescribed information¹³ in two successive weeks in the Gazette¹⁴ and in one or more local newspapers circulating in each area in which the proposed pipeline works would be carried out¹⁵;

WORKS, PIPELINES AND RIGHTS OVER LAND/(B) Environmental Impact Assessment of Pipeline Works/851. Projects affecting other states.

851. Projects affecting other states.

Where in the case of any pipeline works¹ proposed to be carried out in Great Britain² the Secretary of State³ determines in response to a request for an environmental determination⁴ that proposed pipeline works⁵ are EIA development⁶, or receives a notice of preparation of environmental statement⁷ or directs that an environmental statement be prepared⁸ and:

1379 (1) it appears to the Secretary of State that such works are likely to have significant effects⁹ on the environment of another member state; or

1380 (2) another member state which considers its environment is likely to be significantly affected by such works so requests, the Secretary of State must send the member state in question as soon as possible, and no later than the date on which the environmental statement in respect of the proposed pipeline works is made available to the public (except in a case where a request is made by a member state after that date):

1381 (a) a description of the proposed pipeline works, together with any available information on the possible significant effects of the proposed pipeline works on the environment of the other member state; and 1382 (b) a notice¹⁰ explaining the nature of the decision to be taken as to whether or not to grant consent for the carrying out of the proposed pipeline works and informing the member state in question that it may within such reasonable period as may be specified in the notice request to participate in the procedure relating to the taking of the decision pursuant to the relevant¹¹ regulations¹².

Where another member state requests to participate in the procedure¹³ in relation to particular proposed pipeline works, the Secretary of State must, save to the extent that he has not already done so, send that member state:

1383 (i) a copy of the application for consent¹⁴;

1384 (ii) the environmental statement in respect of the proposed pipeline works; and 1385 (iii) to the extent that it is not included in the items referred to in head (i) or head (ii) above, and subject to the exception relating to confidentiality¹⁵, any other available information which is relevant to that procedure¹⁶.

He must also enter into consultations with the member state concerned, for such reasonable period as may have been agreed with that member state, regarding, inter alia, the possible significant effects of the proposed pipeline works on the environment of that member state and the measures envisaged to reduce or eliminate such effects¹⁷.

Where it appears to the Secretary of State that the carrying out of any proposed pipeline works of the kind referred to above¹⁸ would be likely to have a significant effect on the environment of an EEA state¹⁹ other than a member state, or such EEA state which considers that its environment is likely to be significantly affected by such works so requests, the Secretary of State must send the state in question the environmental statement relating to the pipeline works in question at the same time as it is made available to the public²⁰ or, where a request is made after the date on which the environmental statement is made available to the public, as soon as reasonably practicable after receipt of the request by the Secretary of State²¹.

Nothing in the above provisions requires the disclosure by the Secretary of State of any information which is by virtue of any rule of the law of any part of Great Britain subject to any obligation of confidentiality²².

Where the Secretary of State notifies a gas transporter²³ that the above requirements to notify either a member state or an EEA state which is not a member state apply²⁴ in respect of a particular application for consent, the gas transporter, in any case where he has not already done so, must not make available to the public²⁵ the items referred to in the provision regarding publicity for an environmental statement²⁶ until the Secretary of State has notified the gas transporter that he has sent to the EEA state concerned the appropriate²⁷ information²⁸.

852. Additional information and publicity.

Where additional information¹ is received by the Secretary of State², he must serve a copy of the additional information on the consultation bodies³ and either:

- 1386 (1) in any case where the additional information is provided to the Secretary of State by the applicant, notify the applicant that the information has been served on the consultation bodies; or
- 1387 (2) in any case where the additional information is provided to the Secretary of State by a person other than the applicant, serve a copy of the additional information on the applicant⁴.

Where the applicant has been notified that additional information has been served on the consultation bodies in accordance with head (1) above, or has been served with a copy of the additional information pursuant to head (2) above, the applicant must:

- 1388 (a) publish a notice⁵ containing the prescribed information⁶; and
- 1389 (b) serve a copy of that notice on the Secretary of State⁷.

Where the Secretary of State receives a notice which has been served on him by the gas transporter⁸ pursuant to head (b) above, he must serve a copy of that notice on the consultation bodies⁹. The Secretary of State must not determine the application for consent until the later of:

- 1390 (i) 14 days after the last date on which a copy of the notice published pursuant to head (a) above was so served by the Secretary of State; or

The gas transporter must provide the Secretary of State with copies of each of the newspapers and Gazettes in which that notice appeared in each case no later than seven days after the date of publication of that newspaper or Gazette: reg 11A(7) (as so added). For the meaning of 'the Gazette' see PARA 849 note 20 ante.

6 The notice must: (1) describe the application for consent in question and state that the Secretary of State has received additional information; (2) identify the relevant planning authority on whom the Secretary of State is required to serve a copy of the additional information; (3) state that that relevant planning authority is required to take steps to ensure that the additional information is made available for inspection by the public at all reasonable hours; (4) state that requests for copies of the additional information may be sent to the Secretary of State and specify an address for that purpose; (5) state a date not less than four weeks after the date on which the notice is to be last published in accordance with ibid reg 11A(4) (as added) (see note 5 supra) by which any person may make representations to the Secretary of State in relation to the additional information and specify the address to which any such representations are to be sent; and (6) state that the requirements set out in heads (2)-(4) supra will also apply in respect of any additional information received by the Secretary of State after the date of the notice: reg 11A(5) (as added: see note 4 supra). PARTICULAR PROVISIONS RELATING TO GAS/(5) SUPPLY AND USE OF GAS/(i) Powers and Duties of Gas Transporters/D. WORKS, PIPELINES AND RIGHTS OVER LAND/(B) Environmental Impact Assessment of Pipeline Works/853. Consent to pipeline works.

853. Consent to pipeline works.

In any case where a gas transporter¹ has made an application to the Secretary of State², accompanied by an environmental statement³, for his consent to the carrying out of proposed pipeline works⁴, the Secretary of State may⁵:

- 1392 (1) being satisfied that the prescribed requirements as to consultation and publicity, further information and additional information⁶ have been substantially met; and
- 1393 (2) after considering:
 - 93 137. (a) the environmental statement and any supplementary information⁷;
 - 138. (b) any further information or additional information;
 - 139. (c) any representations made by the consultation bodies⁸ in respect of the proposed pipeline works; and
 - 140. (d) any opinions expressed by the public; and
- 94 1394 (3) after having regard both to the effect⁹ of the proposed pipeline works on the environment and to the desirability of those works being carried out in the interests of the development and maintenance of an efficient and economical system for the conveyance of gas¹⁰ as respects the gas transporter's authorised area¹¹, consent to the carrying out of the proposed pipeline works either unconditionally or subject to such conditions as he considers appropriate or refuse consent to such works; and he must state in his decision that he has taken the matters mentioned in head (2) above into consideration¹².

In any case where another member state has, in relation to an application for consent¹³, requested¹⁴ to participate in the procedure under the relevant regulations¹⁵, the Secretary of State must not grant any consent for such works pursuant to the above provisions unless he:

- 1395 (i) is satisfied that the prescribed requirements regarding projects affecting other states¹⁶ have been complied with;
- 1396 (ii) has communicated to that member state the response that he proposes to make to the application for consent, including information as to any measures envisaged to reduce or eliminate any possible significant effects of the proposed pipeline works on the environment of the other member state;
- 1397 (iii) is satisfied that the member state concerned has been consulted regarding the proposed pipeline works for such reasonable period as may have been agreed with that member state¹⁷ and in particular that it has been afforded a reasonable opportunity to make representations regarding the pipeline works in question and the proposed response referred to in head (ii) above, and that an opportunity has been afforded to the public in that member state and to those authorities which by reason of their particular environmental responsibilities in that member state are likely to be interested in the proposed pipeline works to forward

- to the Secretary of State within a reasonable time representations regarding the prescribed information¹⁸; and
- 1398 (iv) has taken into consideration any representations made by the member state, members of the public and authorities in that member state and any information regarding the proposed pipeline works supplied by any of them¹⁹.

Any consent given by the Secretary of State²⁰ to the carrying out of the proposed works ceases to have effect after the expiration of five years beginning with the date on which the consent is given unless the pipeline works to which it relates have been substantially begun before the expiration of that period²¹.

The Secretary of State must notify the gas transporter, the relevant planning authority²², other consultation bodies, any EEA state²³ which has been sent a copy of the environmental statement²⁴ and such other persons as the Secretary of State considers appropriate, in writing of his decision²⁵; and must provide to such persons together with that notification a statement containing:

- 1399 (A) the content of the decision and any conditions attached to it;
- 1400 (B) a summary of the concerns and opinions expressed by the persons affected or likely to be affected by, or having an interest in, the procedure for consent to development;
- 1401 (C) in the light of those concerns and opinions, the main reasons and considerations upon which the Secretary of State's decision is based;
- 1402 (D) a description, where necessary, of the main measures to avoid, reduce and, if possible, offset the major adverse effects of the proposed pipeline works; and
- 1403 (E) an explanation of the right of a person aggrieved by a decision of the Secretary of State to make an application²⁶ to the court²⁷.

The gas transporter must, no later than 14 days after the date of that notification, inform the public of the decision by publishing a notice containing the prescribed information²⁸ in the Gazette²⁹ and in one or more local newspapers circulating in each area in which the proposed pipeline works would be carried out³⁰. The gas transporter must satisfy all reasonable requests made during the prescribed period³¹ for copies of the statement³². The gas transporter must also provide the Secretary of State with copies of each of the newspapers and the Gazettes in which the above-mentioned notices appeared, in each case by a date no later than seven days after the date of publication of those newspapers or the Gazettes³³.

Where the Secretary of State sends a relevant planning authority the statement referred to above³⁴, the relevant planning authority must take steps to ensure that a copy of the statement is as soon as reasonably practicable made available for public inspection at all reasonable hours and free of charge at the place where the appropriate register³⁵, or relevant section of that register, is kept and that that copy remains so available for a period of two years³⁶.

PARTICULAR PROVISIONS RELATING TO GAS/(5) SUPPLY AND USE OF GAS/(i) Powers and Duties of Gas Transporters/D. WORKS, PIPELINES AND RIGHTS OVER LAND/(B) Environmental Impact Assessment of Pipeline Works/854. Applications to the court by persons aggrieved or by the Secretary of State.

854. Applications to the court by persons aggrieved or by the Secretary of State.

On the application of any person aggrieved¹ by:

- 1404 (1) the grant of consent² in respect of any proposed pipeline works³; or
- 1405 (2) the attaching by the Secretary of State⁴ of a condition to such a consent⁵, the court⁶ may grant an order quashing the grant of consent or, as the case may be, the attaching by the Secretary of State of the condition where it is satisfied that the consent was granted or, as the case may be, the condition was attached in contravention of the requirement to consider the environmental statement and other matters⁷ or that the interests of the applicant have been substantially prejudiced⁸ by a failure to comply with any other requirement⁹ of the relevant regulations¹⁰. Such an application to the court must be made no later than six weeks after the date of last publication¹¹ by the gas transporter¹² of details of the consent or, as the case may be, the relevant condition¹³.

The court may by interim order, pending the determination of any question referred to above, stay the operation of the consent or, as the case may be, the relevant condition on such terms as it may think fit¹⁴.

If a gas transporter carries out pipeline works:

- 1406 (a) without all applicable requirements of the relevant regulations¹⁵ having first been complied with; or
- 1407 (b) without any necessary consent of the Secretary of State¹⁶, or in breach of a condition attached¹⁷ to such a consent, the court may, on the application of the Secretary of State, make an order restraining the gas transporter from proceeding or continuing with the works or compelling him to the performance of any act required of him by any such condition¹⁸. The court may¹⁹, in addition to making such an order, make an order requiring:

- 1408 (i) the removal, so far as is practicable in all the circumstances, of any pipeline works already carried out without any such requirements as are mentioned in head (a) above having been complied with, or without any such consent or in breach of any such condition as is mentioned in head (b) above; and
- 1409 (ii) where it orders the removal of any works, the reinstatement of the site where the works had been carried out²⁰;

but the court must not make such an order in respect of a breach of any such condition as is mentioned in head (b) above where it is satisfied that:

- 1410 (A) the breach in question was due to circumstances beyond the control of the gas transporter and the breach could not reasonably have been prevented by the gas transporter; or
- 1411 (B) the breach occurred as a result of anything required to be done as a matter of urgency for the purposes of securing the safety of any person²¹.

Where the gas transporter fails to comply with an order made pursuant to this power to order removal and reinstatement²² within such time as may be specified in it or, in default of such specification, within a reasonable time of the making of the order, the Secretary of State may himself take the action required by the order and the reasonable costs and expenses of doing so are recoverable as a debt from the gas transporter²³. Where the Secretary of State takes such action, that action is to be without prejudice to any consequences which may flow from the gas transporter's failure to comply with the order²⁴.

Any person who intentionally or recklessly¹ submits to the Secretary of State²:

- 1412 (1) an environmental statement³;
- 1413 (2) supplementary information⁴;
- 1414 (3) appropriate particulars⁵;
- 1415 (4) additional information⁶; or
- 1416 (5) any information required to be submitted by virtue of any provision of the relevant regulations⁷, which is false or misleading in a material particular is guilty of an offence⁸.

A gas transporter⁹ who:

- 1417 (a) intentionally acts in breach of the terms of a condition imposed on a consent¹⁰; or
- 1418 (b) carries out any proposed pipeline works¹¹ without any necessary consent of the Secretary of State granted in accordance with the relevant regulations¹², is guilty of an offence¹³; but it is a defence to a charge under head (a) above for the gas transporter to show:

- 1419 (i) that he took all reasonable steps and exercised all due diligence to avoid committing the offence; or
- 1420 (ii) that the acts in question were attributable to anything required to be done as a matter of urgency for the purposes of securing the safety of any person¹⁴.

No proceedings for any such offence may be instituted in England and Wales except by or with the consent of the Director of Public Prosecutions, or by the Secretary of State or a person authorised by him in that behalf¹⁵. A person guilty of such an offence is liable on summary conviction to a fine not exceeding the statutory maximum, and on conviction on indictment to a fine¹⁶.

Where any such offence committed by a body corporate is proved to have been committed with the consent or connivance of, or to have been attributable to any neglect on the part of, any director, manager, secretary or other similar officer of the body corporate or a person who was purporting to act in such capacity, he as well as the body corporate is guilty of that offence and is liable to be proceeded against and punished accordingly¹⁷.

(ii) The Gas Code

856. Introduction.

The gas code which is set out in Schedule 2B to the Gas Act 1986¹ makes provision with regard to the rights and obligations of licence holders² and consumers³ and other related matters⁴. In so far as those provisions apply in relation to a gas transporter, gas supplier⁵ or gas shipper⁶, they have effect subject to any conditions of his licence⁷.

1 le the Gas Act 1986 s 8B, Sch 2B (paras 1-29) (as added and amended): see PARA 857 et seq post.

2 For the meaning of 'licence holder' see PARA 789 note 9 ante.

3 For the purposes of the gas code, 'consumer' means a person who is supplied with gas conveyed to particular premises ('his premises') by a gas transporter: Gas Act 1986 Sch 2B para 1(1) (added by the Gas Act 1995 s 9(2), Sch 2; amended by the Utilities Act 2000 s 108, Sch 6 Pt I paras 1, 2(1)). For the meanings of 'gas', and references to the supply of gas, see PARA 802 ante; and for the meaning of references to the conveyance of gas through pipes to premises see PARA 803 note 4 ante. For the meaning of 'gas transporter' see PARA 805 ante.

4 See the Gas Act 1986 s 8B (added by the Gas Act 1995 s 9(1)).

5 For the meaning of 'gas supplier' see PARA 807 ante.

6 For the meaning of 'gas shipper' see PARA 807 ante.

7 Gas Act 1986 Sch 2B para 1(2) (as added and amended: see note 3 supra).

Halsbury's Laws of England/FUEL AND ENERGY (VOLUME 19(1) (2007 REISSUE) PARAS 601-775; VOLUME 19(2) (2007 REISSUE) PARAS 776-1328); VOLUME 19(3) (2007 REISSUE) PARAS 1329-1927)/3. PARTICULAR PROVISIONS RELATING TO GAS/(5) SUPPLY AND USE OF GAS/(ii) The Gas Code/857. General provisions of the gas code relating to meters.

857. General provisions of the gas code relating to meters.

Every consumer¹ must take his supply through a meter the use of which does not contravene² the statutory requirements for testing and stamping³ and which is of a type appropriate for registering the quantity of gas supplied⁴. In default of the consumer's doing so or agreeing to do so, the gas transporter⁵ may disconnect⁶ or, as the case may be, refuse to connect his premises and any relevant gas supplier⁷ may cut off the supply of gas⁸ to his premises⁹.

Every consumer must at all times, at his own expense, keep all meters which belong to him, or which are lent or hired to him and are owned otherwise than by the gas transporter or a relevant gas supplier, and by which the quantity of gas supplied is registered, in proper order for correctly registering the quantity of gas¹⁰. In default of the consumer's doing so, the gas transporter may disconnect his premises and any relevant gas supplier may cut off the supply of gas to his premises¹¹.

In the case of any consumer, the gas transporter or any relevant gas supplier must at all times, without charge to the consumer, keep any meter which is owned by him and is lent or hired to the consumer in proper order for correctly registering the quantity of gas supplied¹²; but this is without prejudice to any remedy the transporter or supplier may have against the consumer for failure to take proper care of the meter¹³.

In the case of any consumer, the gas transporter, any relevant gas supplier and any relevant gas shipper¹⁴ has power to remove, inspect and reinstall any meter by which the quantity of gas supplied is registered and must, while any such meter is removed, fix a substitute meter on the premises¹⁵. The cost of removing, inspecting and reinstalling a meter and of fixing a substitute meter must¹⁶ be defrayed by the transporter, supplier or shipper¹⁷. Where, however, such a meter is removed for the purpose of being examined by a meter examiner¹⁸, the expenses incurred in removing, examining and reinstalling the meter and fixing a substitute meter are to be defrayed as follows:

- 1421 (1) if the examination is carried out at the request of any person and the meter is found in proper order¹⁹, by that person;
- 1422 (2) if the meter is not so found, by the person required²⁰ to keep the meter in proper order²¹.

Where a consumer is supplied with gas through a meter at a rate not exceeding 2,196,000 kilowatt hours²² a year, the register of the meter is to be prima facie evidence of the quantity of gas supplied²³; but where the meter is found, when examined by a meter examiner²⁴, to register erroneously to a degree exceeding the degree permitted by the relevant regulations²⁵, the meter is to be deemed to have registered erroneously to the degree so found since the relevant date²⁶, except in a case where it is proved to have begun to do so on some later date²⁷.

Where a meter is to be used to register the quantity of gas supplied to a consumer and:

- 1423 (a) gas has not previously been conveyed by the gas transporter to the consumer's premises;
- 1424 (b) a new or substituted pipe is to be laid between the transporter's main and the meter; or

1425 (c) the meter is to be installed in a different position, the meter must²⁸ be installed as near as practicable to the gas transporter's main, but within a building comprised in the premises²⁹. The meter may, however, be installed otherwise than within a building comprised in the premises if it is installed either in accommodation of a type and construction approved by the gas transporter by an approval given in relation to premises generally, or to any class or description of premises, or in a separate meter house or other accommodation outside a building comprised in the premises which is approved by the transporter in the case of those particular premises³⁰. If these requirements are not complied with, the gas transporter may refuse to connect or, as the case may be, disconnect the consumer's premises³¹.

Where, in the case of any consumer, the gas transporter or a relevant gas supplier, for the purpose of meeting the needs of a disabled person, alters the position of any gas meter which is owned by the transporter or supplier and is lent or hired to the consumer, or replaces such a meter with one which has been specially adapted, the transporter or supplier must not charge the consumer for the alteration or replacement³².

2 For the meaning of 'contravention' and cognate expressions see PARA 779 note 3 ante.

3 I.e. the requirements of the Gas Act 1986 s 17 (as substituted and amended): see PARAS 947-949 post.

In the absence of the consumer's evidence to the contrary the court must accept the accuracy of the meter: Cresswell v Gas Light and Coke Co (1897) 61 JP 699. As to the determination of disputes under these provisions see now para 965 post.

5 For the meaning of 'gas transporter' see PARA 805 ante.

6 For these purposes, 'connect', in relation to any premises, means connect to a main of a gas transporter, whether directly or by means of a service pipe, and 'disconnect' and 'reconnect' have corresponding meanings except that they also include discontinuing or, as the case may be, resuming the conveyance of gas to the premises: Gas Act 1986 Sch 2B para 1(1) (as added and amended: see note 4 supra).

7 'Relevant gas supplier', in relation to a consumer, means any gas supplier who is supplying him with gas conveyed to his premises: ibid Sch 2B para 1(1) (as added: see note 4 supra). For the meaning of 'gas supplier' see PARA 807 ante.

10 Ibid Sch 2B para 3(1) (as added and amended: see note 4 supra). Nothing in Sch 2B para 3 (as added and amended) applies in relation to any meter which, in pursuance of an agreement falling within s 17(14) (as substituted) (see PARA 947 post), is used for ascertaining the quantity of gas supplied to a consumer if either (1) the agreement was entered into before the appointed day; or (2) the gas transporter and each relevant gas shipper have agreed that the meter should be kept in proper order by a person other than the consumer: Sch 2B para 3(8) (as so added and amended). 'The appointed day' means the day appointed under the Gas Act 1995 s 18(2) (ie 1 March 1996: see the Gas Act 1995 (Appointed Day and Commencement) Order 1996, SI 1996/218, art 2): Gas Act 1986 Sch 2B para 1(1) (as so added). PARTICULAR PROVISIONS RELATING TO GAS/(5) SUPPLY AND USE OF GAS/(ii) The Gas Code/858. Recovery of gas charges etc; use of prepayment meters.

858. Recovery of gas charges etc; use of prepayment meters.

Where a demand in writing is made by a gas supplier¹ for the payment of any of the charges due to him from a consumer² in respect of the supply of gas³ to any premises of his ('the premises') and the consumer does not pay those charges within 28 days after the making of the demand, then if the supplier is a relevant supplier⁴, he may, after giving not less than seven days' notice of his intention, either install a prepayment meter on the premises in place of the existing meter or cut off the supply to the premises by disconnecting the service pipe⁵ at the meter or by such other means as he thinks fit⁶. The supplier may recover any expenses incurred in so doing from the consumer⁷. If the supplier is not a relevant supplier but another supplier ('the new supplier') is such a supplier, and the supplier has assigned to the new supplier his right to recover any of the charges due to him from the consumer, the above powers apply as if any reference to the supplier were a reference to the new supplier⁸. The powers conferred by the above provisions are not, however, exercisable as respects any charges or deposit the amount of which is genuinely in dispute⁹.

A prepayment meter installed by an authorised supplier¹⁰ through which a consumer takes his supply of gas must not be used to recover a sum unless:

- 1426 (1) the sum is owed to an authorised supplier in respect of the supply of gas to the premises on which the meter is installed or in respect of the provision of the meter; or
- 1427 (2) the recovery of the sum in that manner is permitted by both regulations made by the Gas and Electricity Markets Authority ('GEMA')¹¹ and such an agreement as is described below¹² between the consumer and the person to whom the sum is owed¹³.

An agreement is such an agreement if:

- 1428 (a) the person to whom the sum is owed is a person who is authorised by regulations made by the Authority to enter into such agreements¹⁴;
- 1429 (b) the agreement permits that person to use the meter in question to recover such sums as may be specified in or determined under the agreement; and
- 1430 (c) the agreement complies with the requirements specified for these purposes by regulations made by the Authority¹⁵.

The agreement must state in writing:

- 1431 (i) the name of the customer;
- 1432 (ii) any charges that the customer will be required to pay in addition to those recovered under the relevant regulation¹⁶;
- 1433 (iii) the amount of each element of the sum owed¹⁷ and to what it relates;
- 1434 (iv) the repayment rate¹⁸ and repayment amount¹⁹;
- 1435 (v) the date at which the sum owed would be fully repaid if each repayment amount is made at the repayment rate; and 1436 (vi) that the gas supplier warrants that he has, orally, provided the customer with the required²⁰ details²¹; and must include written terms to the following effect:

- 1437 (A) that the customer can give a notice of cancellation to the gas supplier;
- 1438 (B) where notice of cancellation is given the agreement is to be treated as if it had not been made;
- 1439 (C) notice of cancellation can be given orally or in writing and must be given within seven working days beginning with the day on which the customer receives written terms of the agreement;
- 1440 (D) that the repayment rate and repayment amount has been calculated by the gas supplier to take into account the customer's ability to pay the total of all charges to be recovered through the prepayment meter;
- 1441 (E) that the customer has agreed to the repayment rate and repayment amount;
- 1442 (F) that the repayment rate and repayment amount can be varied either at the customer's request and if agreed by the gas supplier, or by the supplier in accordance with head (D) above and with prior notice given to the customer; and
- 1443 (G) either party can terminate the agreement on provision of 30 days' oral or written notice²².

The sums that regulations under these provisions may permit the recovery of through a prepayment meter include sums owed to a person other than an authorised supplier, sums owed in respect of premises other than the premises on which the meter is installed and sums owed in respect of matters other than the supply of gas²³. A prepayment meter may be used to recover a sum that is owed to a gas supplier by a customer in respect of any of the following, namely the supply of gas to any premises previously owned or occupied by the customer and the provision of a gas meter at any premises previously owned or occupied by the customer²⁴; and any sum recoverable through a prepayment meter by virtue of head (1) above may be consolidated with a sum so specified and recovered under the relevant²⁵ regulations²⁶.

PARTICULAR PROVISIONS RELATING TO GAS/(5) SUPPLY AND USE OF GAS/(ii) The Gas Code/859. Deemed contracts in certain cases.

859. Deemed contracts in certain cases.

Where a gas supplier¹ supplies gas² to a consumer³ otherwise than in pursuance of a contract, the supplier is to be deemed to have contracted with the consumer for the supply of gas as from the time ('the relevant time') when he began so to supply gas to the consumer⁴.

Where:

- 1444 (1) the owner⁵ or occupier of any premises takes a supply of gas which has been conveyed to those premises by a gas transporter⁶ in pursuance of arrangements made with the transporter by a gas shipper⁷, or by a person authorised to make the arrangements by an exemption⁸;
- 1445 (2) that supply is not made by a gas supplier, or by a person authorised to make it by an exemption⁹; and
- 1446 (3) a supply of gas so conveyed has been previously made by a gas supplier, the owner or occupier is to be deemed to have contracted with the appropriate supplier¹⁰ for the supply of gas as from the time ('the relevant time') when he began to take such a supply; but nothing in this provision is to be taken to afford a defence in any criminal proceedings¹¹.

The express terms and conditions of a contract which, by virtue of the above provisions¹², is deemed to have been made must be provided for by a scheme made under these provisions¹³. Each gas supplier must make, and from time to time revise, a scheme for determining the terms and conditions which are to be incorporated in the contracts which are to be deemed¹⁴ to have been made¹⁵. The terms and conditions so determined may include terms and conditions for enabling the gas supplier to determine, in any case where the meter is not read immediately before the relevant time, the number of kilowatt hours¹⁶ which are to be treated as supplied to the consumer, or taken by the owner or occupier of the premises, during the period beginning with the relevant time and ending with:

- 1447 (a) the time when the meter is first read after the relevant time; or
- 1448 (b) the time when the supplier ceases to supply gas to the consumer, or the owner or occupier ceases to take a supply of gas, whichever is the earlier¹⁷. Such a scheme may make different provisions for different cases or classes of cases, or for different areas, determined by, or in accordance with, the provisions of the scheme¹⁸.

As soon as practicable after a gas supplier makes such a scheme, or a revision of such a scheme, he must:

- 1449 (i) publish, in such manner as he considers appropriate for bringing it to the attention of persons likely to be affected by it, a notice stating the effect of the scheme or revision;
- 1450 (ii) send a copy of the scheme or revision to the Gas and Electricity Markets Authority ('GEMA')¹⁹ and to the Gas and Electricity Consumer Council²⁰; and 1451 (iii) if so requested by any other person, send such a copy to that person without charge to him²¹.

PARTICULAR PROVISIONS RELATING TO GAS/(5) SUPPLY AND USE OF GAS/(ii) The Gas Code/860. Wrongful taking of gas or restoration of supply; improper use of gas.

860. Wrongful taking of gas or restoration of supply; improper use of gas.

Where any person takes a supply of gas¹ which is in the course of being conveyed by a gas transporter², the transporter is entitled to recover from that person the value³ of the gas so taken⁴.

Where:

- 1452 (1) any person at premises which have been reconnected⁵ in contravention of the prohibition on doing so without the relevant consent⁶ takes a supply of gas which has been conveyed to those premises⁷ by the gas transporter; and
- 1453 (2) the supply is taken otherwise than in pursuance of a contract made with a gas supplier⁸, or deemed to have been made with such a supplier⁹, the transporter is entitled to recover from that person the value of the gas so taken¹⁰.

Each gas transporter must make, and from time to time revise, a scheme providing for the manner in which, and the persons by whom, the number of kilowatt hours¹¹ represented by a supply of gas taken in such circumstances as are mentioned above¹² is to be determined for the relevant statutory¹³ purposes¹⁴.

Where a consumer's¹⁵ premises have been disconnected¹⁶ by a gas transporter, or a supply of gas to a consumer's premises has been cut off by a gas supplier¹⁷, otherwise than in the exercise of a specified statutory power relating to safety¹⁸, no person must, without the relevant consent¹⁹, reconnect the premises or restore the supply²⁰. If any person acts in contravention of this provision, he is guilty of an offence and liable on summary conviction to a fine not exceeding level 3 on the standard scale²¹; and the transporter or supplier may again disconnect the premises or, as the case may be, cut off the supply²².

If a consumer improperly uses or deals with gas so as to interfere with the efficient conveyance of gas by the gas transporter, whether to the consumer or to any other person, the transporter may, if he thinks fit, disconnect the consumer's premises²³.

4 Gas Act 1986 Sch 2B para 9(1) (as added (see note 3 supra); Sch 2B paras 9(1)-(3), 11(1), 18 amended by the Utilities Act 2000 s 108, Sch 6 Pt I paras 1, 2(1)).

860 Wrongful taking of gas or restoration of supply; improper use of gas

NOTES--Certain functions under provisions mentioned in this paragraph are 'relevant functions' for the purposes of the Regulatory Enforcement and Sanctions Act 2008 s 4, Sch 3, see LOCAL GOVERNMENT vol 69 (2009) PARA 733.

Halsbury's Laws of England/FUEL AND ENERGY (VOLUME 19(1) (2007 REISSUE) PARAS 601-775; VOLUME 19(2) (2007 REISSUE) PARAS 776-1328); VOLUME 19(3) (2007 REISSUE) PARAS 1329-1927)/3. PARTICULAR PROVISIONS RELATING TO GAS/(5) SUPPLY AND USE OF GAS/(ii) The Gas Code/861. Injury to gas fittings and interference with meters.

861. Injury to gas fittings and interference with meters.

If any person intentionally or by culpable negligence:

1454 (1) injures or allows to be injured any gas fitting¹ provided by a gas transporter² or gas supplier³, or any service pipe⁴ by which any premises are connected to such a transporter's main;

1455 (2) alters the index to any meter used for measuring the quantity of gas conveyed or supplied⁵ by such a transporter or supplier; or

1456 (3) prevents any such meter from duly registering the quantity of gas conveyed or supplied, he is guilty of an offence and liable on summary conviction to a fine not exceeding level 3 on the standard scale⁶.

In the case of any such offence, the transporter or supplier may disconnect⁷ the premises of, or cut off the supply of gas to, the person so offending⁸.

Where any person is prosecuted for an offence under head (2) or head (3) above, the possession by him of artificial means for causing an alteration of the index of the meter or, as the case may be, for preventing the meter from duly registering is, if the meter was in his custody or under his control, to be prima facie evidence that the alteration or prevention was intentionally caused by him⁹.

1 'Gas fittings' means gas pipes and meters, and fittings, apparatus and appliances designed for use by consumers of gas for heating, lighting, motive power and other purposes for which gas can be used: Gas Act 1986 s 48(1). For the meaning of 'gas' see PARA 802 ante.

PARTICULAR PROVISIONS RELATING TO GAS/(5) SUPPLY AND USE OF GAS/(ii) The Gas Code/862. Failure to notify connection or disconnection of service pipe or disconnection of meter.

862. Failure to notify connection or disconnection of service pipe or disconnection of meter.

No person must connect¹ any meter with a service pipe² through which gas³ is conveyed to any premises⁴ by a gas transporter⁵, or disconnect⁶ any meter from any such pipe, unless he has given:

- 1457 (1) in a case where gas is supplied⁷ to the premises by a relevant gas supplier⁸ whose name and address are known to him, to the supplier; and
- 1458 (2) in any other case, to the transporter, so that it is received by the supplier or transporter at least 48 hours before he does so, notice⁹ in the prescribed form¹⁰ of his intention to do so¹¹. Such a notice must¹² contain:

- 1459 (a) details of the time and place of the proposed connection or disconnection; and
- 1460 (b) such other information as may be prescribed¹³.

In so far, however, as it is not reasonably practicable for such a notice to contain any information required by head (b) above, it is to be a sufficient compliance with that requirement if the information is given to the relevant gas supplier or, as the case may be, the gas transporter within 48 hours after the connection or disconnection is effected¹⁴.

If any person acts in contravention¹⁵ of these provisions, he is guilty of an offence and liable on summary conviction to a fine not exceeding level 3 on the standard scale¹⁶.

Where any meter through which gas has been supplied to any premises is completely disconnected, that is to say, is disconnected both from the service pipe and from all other pipes within the premises, then except in so far as it is not reasonably practicable for him to do so, the person making the disconnection must¹⁷:

- 1461 (i) ascertain the name and address of the owner¹⁸ of the meter; and
- 1462 (ii) inform that owner of the disconnection and of the address at which the meter will be available for collection¹⁹.

If any person fails to comply with this requirement, he is guilty of an offence and liable on summary conviction to a fine not exceeding level 2 on the standard scale²⁰. These provisions do not, however, apply where the meter:

- 1463 (A) is disconnected for the purposes of an examination²¹ or an inspection²²; or
- 1464 (B) is disconnected for a particular purpose, whether repair or repositioning of the meter, detection of a gas leak or otherwise, and is intended to be reconnected²³.

863. Disconnection on failure to maintain shipping arrangements.

Where:

- 1465 (1) any arrangements for the conveyance of gas¹ by a gas transporter² to a consumer's³ premises at a rate reasonably expected to exceed 73,200 kilowatt hours⁴ a year have been made by a gas shipper⁵, or by a person authorised to make the arrangements by an exemption⁶; and
- 1466 (2) those arrangements have ceased to operate and have not been replaced by arrangements made for the like purpose, the transporter may, after giving 21 days' notice⁷ to the relevant persons, disconnect⁸ the premises⁹. The relevant persons for these purposes are:

- 1467 (a) the occupier, or the owner¹⁰ of the premises if they are unoccupied; and
- 1468 (b) any gas supplier¹¹ who, to the knowledge of the transporter, has contracted to supply gas to the premises¹².

In the case of unoccupied premises the owner of which is unknown to the gas transporter and cannot be ascertained after diligent inquiry, the notice so required to be given to the occupier or owner may given by affixing it upon a conspicuous part of the premises¹³.

PARTICULAR PROVISIONS RELATING TO GAS/(5) SUPPLY AND USE OF GAS/(ii) The Gas Code/864. Gas transporter's duties to maintain service pipes and alter, adjust or replace burners.

864. Gas transporter's duties to maintain service pipes and alter, adjust or replace burners.

A gas transporter¹ must carry out any necessary work of maintenance, repair or renewal of any service pipe² by which gas³ is conveyed by him to a consumer's⁴ premises⁵, whether or not the service pipe was supplied and laid at the transporter's expense⁶. The cost of any work carried out in accordance with this provision is to be defrayed as follows:

- 1469 (1) if the work was made necessary by any intentional act or culpable negligence of the consumer and the transporter so requires, by the consumer;
1470 (2) in any other case, by the transporter⁷.

Where there is a change in the properties of any gas which is conveyed by a gas transporter to a consumer's premises at a rate not exceeding 2,196,000 kilowatt hours⁸ a year, it is the duty of the gas transporter to take without charge to the consumer such steps as may be necessary to alter, adjust or replace the burners in appliances at the premises which burn that gas in such manner as to secure that the gas can be burned with safety and efficiency⁹.

PARTICULAR PROVISIONS RELATING TO GAS/(5) SUPPLY AND USE OF GAS/(ii) The Gas Code/865. Use of antifluatuators and valves.

865. Use of antifluatuators and valves.

A consumer¹ is not entitled to use a compressor, or any apparatus for using compressed air² or extraneous gas³, unless he has given to the gas transporter⁴ not less than 14 days' notice⁵ of his intention to do so; but this does not apply to the use of any compressor or apparatus which was lawfully in use immediately before the appointed day⁶.

Where a consumer uses gas⁷ for working or supplying a compressor, that is to say:

- 1471 (1) an engine, gas compressor or other similar apparatus; or
- 1472 (2) any apparatus liable to produce in any main of the gas transporter a pressure less than atmospheric pressure, he must, if so required by the transporter by notice, fix in a suitable position and keep in use an appliance provided by him which will effectually prevent inconvenience being caused to persons by reason that he and they are supplied with gas conveyed through the same system⁸.

Where a consumer uses for or in connection with the consumption of gas:

- 1473 (a) any air at high pressure ('compressed air'); or
- 1474 (b) any gaseous substance not conveyed by the gas transporter ('extraneous gas'), he must, if so required (other than for the purpose of preventing danger) by the transporter by notice, fix in a suitable position and keep in use an appliance provided by him which will effectually prevent the admission of the compressed air or extraneous gas into the service pipe⁹ or into any main through which gas is conveyed by the transporter¹⁰.

Where a person is required by the above provisions to keep in use any appliance, he must at his own expense keep it in proper order and repair, and repair, renew or replace it if it is not in proper order or repair¹¹.

If a consumer makes default in complying with any of the above provisions, or with the relevant safety regulation¹² or directions made thereunder, the gas transporter may disconnect¹³ the consumer's premises¹⁴. The gas transporter also has power to disconnect, remove, test and replace any appliance which a consumer is so required¹⁵ to keep in use; and any expenses incurred by the transporter under this provision must, if the appliance is found in proper order and repair, be paid by the transporter, but otherwise must be paid by the consumer¹⁶.

PARTICULAR PROVISIONS RELATING TO GAS/(5) SUPPLY AND USE OF GAS/(ii) The Gas Code/866. Restoration of supply where consumer in default.

866. Restoration of supply where consumer in default.

Where:

- 1475 (1) a consumer's¹ premises have been disconnected² by a gas transporter³ in pursuance of specified provisions of the gas code⁴; or
- 1476 (2) a supply of gas⁵ to a consumer's premises has been cut off by a gas supplier⁶ in pursuance of other specified provisions of that code⁷, the transporter or supplier is not to be under any obligation to reconnect⁸ the consumer's premises or, as the case may be, resume the supply of gas to the consumer's premises until the consumer either is no longer an owner⁹ or occupier of the premises or he has:

- 1477 (a) made good the default, or remedied the matter, in consequence of which the premises were disconnected or the supply was cut off; and
- 1478 (b) paid the reasonable expenses of disconnecting and reconnecting the premises or, as the case may be, of cutting off the supply and restoring the supply¹⁰.

1 For these purposes, 'consumer', in relation to a disconnection or cutting off under the Gas Act 1986 s 8B, Sch 2B para 11(2)(b) (as added) (see PARA 860 ante), means (1) the owner of the premises at the time when the reconnection was made, or the supply was restored, without the relevant consent (a) if the premises were unoccupied at that time; or (b) if that reconnection or restoration of supply was made by him or on his behalf; and (2) the occupier of the premises at that time in any other case; and 'relevant consent' has the same meaning as in Sch 2B para 11 (as added and amended): Sch 2B para 19(3) (Sch 2B para 19 added by the Gas Act 1995 s 9(2), Sch 2). PARTICULAR PROVISIONS RELATING TO GAS/(5) SUPPLY AND USE OF GAS/(ii) The Gas Code/867. Powers of entry under the gas code.

867. Powers of entry under the gas code.

Any officer¹ authorised by a gas transporter² may at all reasonable times, on the production of some duly authenticated document showing his authority, enter a consumer's³ premises for the purpose of:

- 1479 (1) inspecting gas fittings⁴;
- 1480 (2) ascertaining the quantity of gas conveyed to the premises⁵;
- 1481 (3) exercising the power conferred on the transporter to remove, inspect and reinstall a meter⁶;
- 1482 (4) performing the duty imposed on the transporter to maintain service pipes⁷ or alter, adjust or replace burners⁸;
- 1483 (5) exercising the power conferred on the transporter to disconnect, remove, test and replace any antifluctuator or valve⁹;
- 1484 (6) in the case of premises where the transporter has reason to believe that a compressor or compressed air or extraneous gas¹⁰ is being used, inspecting the premises and ascertaining whether the relevant statutory requirements¹¹ are being complied with¹².

Any officer authorised by a relevant gas supplier¹³ or relevant gas shipper¹⁴ may at all reasonable times, on the production of some duly authenticated document showing his authority, enter a consumer's premises for the purpose of:

- 1485 (a) inspecting gas fittings;
- 1486 (b) ascertaining the quantity of gas supplied or conveyed to the premises; or
- 1487 (c) exercising a power to remove, inspect and reinstall a meter¹⁵ or to install a prepayment meter¹⁶ and testing gas fittings, and making any adjustments required for their safe operation, after the exercise of the power¹⁷.

Where:

- 1488 (i) a gas transporter or gas supplier¹⁸ is authorised by any provision of the Gas Act 1986 to disconnect¹⁹ any premises, or, as the case may be, to cut off or discontinue the supply of gas²⁰ to any premises;
- 1489 (ii) a person occupying premises supplied with gas by a gas supplier ceases to require a supply of gas; or
- 1490 (iii) a person entering into occupation of any premises previously supplied with gas by a gas supplier does not take a supply of gas, any officer authorised by the gas transporter or gas supplier may, after 24 hours' notice²¹ to the occupier, or to the owner of the premises if they are unoccupied, at all reasonable times, on production of some duly authenticated document showing his authority, enter the premises for the purpose of either disconnecting the premises, or cutting off or discontinuing the supply of gas to the premises, or removing any meter or other gas fitting owned by the transporter or supplier²². The notice so required to be given may, in the case of unoccupied premises the owner of which is unknown to the gas transporter or gas supplier and cannot be ascertained after diligent inquiry, be given by affixing it upon a conspicuous part of the premises not less than 48 hours before the premises are entered²³.

Where a consumer's premises have been disconnected by a gas transporter, or a supply of gas to a consumer's premises has been cut off by a gas supplier, otherwise than in the exercise of a power conferred by specified safety regulations²⁴, any officer authorised by the gas transporter or gas supplier may at all reasonable times, on production of some duly authenticated document showing his authority, enter the premises for the purpose of ascertaining whether the premises have been reconnected, or the supply has been restored, without the relevant consent²⁵.

Where:

1491 (A) a person occupying premises supplied with gas through a meter or other gas fitting owned by a gas transporter or gas supplier ceases to take a supply through that meter or fitting; or

1492 (B) a person entering into occupation of any premises previously supplied with gas through a meter or other gas fitting so owned does not take a supply of gas through that meter or fitting, any officer authorised by the gas transporter or gas supplier may, after 24 hours' notice to the occupier, or to the owner of the premises if they are unoccupied, at all reasonable times and on production of some duly authenticated document showing his authority, enter the premises for the purpose of removing the meter or other gas fitting²⁶.

Any officer authorised by a gas transporter may, after seven clear days' notice to the occupier of any premises, or to the owner of any premises which are unoccupied, at all reasonable times and on production of some duly authenticated document showing his authority, enter the premises for the purpose of either placing a new pipe in the place of any existing pipe which has already been lawfully placed or repairing or altering any such existing pipe²⁷. The notice so required to be given may, in the case of unoccupied premises the owner of which is unknown to the gas transporter and cannot be ascertained after diligent inquiry, be given by affixing it upon a conspicuous part of the premises²⁸. In cases of emergency arising from defects in any pipes entry may be made under the above power without the notice so required to be given, but notice of the entry and the justification for it must then be given as soon as possible after the occurrence of the emergency²⁹.

No officer must be authorised by a gas transporter, gas supplier or gas shipper to exercise any of the above powers of entry unless either the transporter, supplier or shipper has taken all reasonable steps to ensure that he is a fit and proper person to exercise those powers³⁰. Where in pursuance of any powers of entry so conferred, entry is made on any premises by an officer authorised by a gas transporter, gas supplier or gas shipper, the officer must ensure that the premises are left no less secure by reason of the entry and the transporter, supplier or shipper must make good, or pay compensation for, any damage caused by the officer, or by any person accompanying him in entering the premises, in taking any authorised action³¹ therein or in making the premises secure³². Any officer exercising such powers of entry may be accompanied by such persons as may be necessary or expedient for the purpose for which the entry is made, or for the purposes³³ of securing the premises³⁴.

If any person intentionally obstructs any officer exercising such powers of entry, he is guilty of an offence and liable on summary conviction to a fine not exceeding level 3 on the standard scale³⁵.

The Rights of Entry (Gas and Electricity Boards) Act 1954, which restricts rights of entry to premises, except in a case of emergency, so that either the occupier's consent or a justice's warrant is required³⁶, applies in relation to any of the above powers of entry³⁷.

Halsbury's Laws of England/FUEL AND ENERGY (VOLUME 19(1) (2007 REISSUE) PARAS 601-775; VOLUME 19(2) (2007 REISSUE) PARAS 776-1328); VOLUME 19(3) (2007 REISSUE) PARAS 1329-1927)/3. PARTICULAR PROVISIONS RELATING TO GAS/(5) SUPPLY AND USE OF GAS/(iii) Charges for Gas/A. CALORIFIC VALUES OF GAS CONVEYED BY GAS TRANSPORTERS/869. Methods of calculating kilowatt hours.

(iii) Charges for Gas

A. CALORIFIC VALUES OF GAS CONVEYED BY GAS TRANSPORTERS

869. Methods of calculating kilowatt hours.

Except in prescribed cases¹, the number of kilowatt hours² conveyed by a gas transporter³ to premises⁴, or to pipeline systems operated by other gas transporters, must be calculated in the prescribed manner⁵:

- 1495 (1) on the basis of calorific values of the gas⁶ determined by the transporter in accordance with regulations under these provisions, or so determined by another gas transporter and adopted by the transporter in accordance with such regulations⁷; or
- 1496 (2) if and to the extent that regulations under these provisions so provide and the transporter thinks fit, on the basis of declared calorific values⁸ of the gas⁹.

Regulations under these provisions must be made by the Gas and Electricity Markets Authority ('GEMA')¹⁰ with the consent of the Secretary of State¹¹. They may make provision as to the manner in which prescribed information with respect to the making of calculations in accordance with the regulations is to be made available to other licence holders¹² and to the public¹³.

Such regulations made for the purposes of head (1) above may make provision:

- 1497 (a) for requiring determinations of calorific values of gas conveyed by gas transporters to be made on the basis of samples of gas taken at such places or premises, at such times and in such manner as the Authority may direct¹⁴;
- 1498 (b) for requiring such determinations to be made at such places or premises, at such times and in such manner as the Authority may direct¹⁵;
- 1499 (c) as to the manner in which the results of such determinations are to be made available to other licence holders and to the public¹⁶;
- 1500 (d) for requiring such premises, apparatus and equipment as the Authority may direct to be provided and maintained by gas transporters for the purpose of making such determinations¹⁷;
- 1501 (e) for requiring gas transporters to carry out tests of apparatus and equipment so provided and maintained by them¹⁸; and
- 1502 (f) for requiring the results of such tests to be notified to the Authority or to any person appointed for the relevant statutory purposes¹⁹, and to be made available to other licence holders and to the public²⁰.

Such regulations made for the purposes of head (2) above may make provision:

- 1503 (i) for requiring declarations of calorific values of gas conveyed by gas transporters to be made at such times and in such manner as the Authority may direct²¹;
 - 1504 (ii) as to the times when such declarations are to take effect, and as to the manner in which the calorific values declared are to be made available to other licence holders and to the public²²;
 - 1505 (iii) for imposing requirements on gas transporters as to the correlation between:
- 95
- 141. (A) the calorific values of the gas conveyed by them for any period; and
 - 142. (B) the calorific values declared by them for that period²³;
- 96
- 1506 (iv) for requiring gas transporters to carry out tests of gas for the purpose of ascertaining whether they are complying with the requirements of regulations made by virtue of head (iii) above²⁴;
 - 1507 (v) for requiring such tests to be carried out at such places or premises, at such times and in such manner as the Authority may direct²⁵; and
 - 1508 (vi) for requiring the results of such tests to be notified to the Authority or to any person appointed for the relevant statutory purposes²⁶, and to be made available to other licence holders and to the public²⁷.

The Authority may by notice in writing require a gas transporter to give to the Authority, or to any person appointed by it for the purpose, within such time and at such place as may be specified in the notice, such information²⁸ as the Authority may reasonably require for the purpose of making regulations under the above provisions, or under the provisions relating to the appointment of persons to test apparatus and gas conveyed by gas transporters²⁹ or of giving directions under such regulations³⁰. A gas transporter is not, however, to be so required to give any information which he could not be compelled to give in evidence in civil proceedings before the High Court³¹.

Any gas transporter contravening any provision of the relevant regulations³² is guilty of an offence and liable on summary conviction to a fine not exceeding level 5 on the standard scale³³.

1 For the meaning of 'prescribed' see PARA 798 note 5 ante. The cases so prescribed are the following cases, namely (1) where gas continues to be conveyed through a pipe to particular premises and the number of therms or kilowatt hours conveyed through that pipe to those premises was, immediately before the commencement of the relevant regulations (ie 1 March 1996: see the Gas (Calculation of Thermal Energy) Regulations 1996, SI 1996/439, reg 1), calculated on the basis of calorific values determined by means of apparatus provided and maintained only for purposes connected with the conveyance of gas through that pipe to those premises; (2) where an agreement between a gas transporter and a relevant licence holder or the owner or occupier of particular premises provides for the number of kilowatt hours conveyed through a pipe to those premises to be calculated on the basis of calorific values determined by means of apparatus provided and maintained only for purposes connected with the conveyance of gas through that pipe to those premises: reg 2(4) (regs 2-14 amended by virtue of the Utilities Act 2000 ss 3(2), 76(7)). 'Relevant licence holder', in relation to a gas transporter, means (a) another gas transporter operating a pipeline system to which gas is conveyed through pipes by the transporter; or (b) a gas shipper who has arranged with the transporter for gas to be introduced into, conveyed by means of or taken out of a pipeline system operated by the transporter: Gas (Calculation of Thermal Energy) Regulations 1996, SI 1996/439, reg 2(1) (as so amended).

2 For the meaning of 'kilowatt hour' see PARA 807 note 6 ante.

3 For the meaning of 'gas transporter' see PARA 805 ante.

4 For the meaning of references to the conveyance of gas through pipes to premises see PARA 803 note 4 ante.

5 Ie in accordance with the Gas (Calculation of Thermal Energy) Regulations 1996, SI 1996/439 (as amended). Except in the cases prescribed by reg 2(4) (as amended) (see note 1 supra), the number of kilowatt hours conveyed by a gas transporter to a take off point must be calculated in accordance with Pt II (regs 3-6) (as amended) or, where a gas transporter makes or adopts a declaration of calorific value in accordance with reg 8(1) (as amended) in respect of an area in which the take off point is situated, Pt III (regs 7-10) (as amended): reg 2(3) (as amended (see note 1 supra); also amended by SI 1997/937). 'Take off point', in relation to a gas transporter, means any premises to which gas is conveyed by the transporter or any point at which gas conveyed by the transporter enters any pipeline system operated by another gas transporter: Gas (Calculation of Thermal Energy) Regulations 1996, SI 1996/439, reg 2(1).

7 Gas Act 1986 s 12(1)(a) (as substituted (see note 6 supra); s 12(1), (2), (4)-(7) amended by the Utilities Act 2000 s 108, Sch 6 Pt I paras 1, 2(1)). As to the enforcement of the requirements so imposed see PARA 968 et seq post; and as to penalties for the contravention of such requirements see PARA 972 et seq post. As to such determination see the Gas (Calculation of Thermal Energy) Regulations 1996, SI 1996/439, Pt II (regs 3-6) (as amended (see note 1 supra); also amended by SI 1997/937).

8 'Declared calorific value', in relation to any gas conveyed by a gas transporter, means a calorific value declared by the transporter in accordance with regulations under the Gas Act 1986 s 12 (as substituted and amended), or so declared by another gas transporter and adopted by the transporter in accordance with such regulations: s 12(2) (as substituted and amended: see notes 6-7 supra).

9 Ibid s 12(1)(b) (as substituted: see note 6 supra). As to such declaration see the Gas (Calculation of Thermal Energy) Regulations 1996, SI 1996/439, Pt III (regs 7-10) (as amended (see note 1 supra); also amended by SI 1997/937). PARTICULAR PROVISIONS RELATING TO GAS/(5) SUPPLY AND USE OF GAS/(iii) Charges for Gas/A. CALORIFIC VALUES OF GAS CONVEYED BY GAS TRANSPORTERS/870. Calorific values; tests of apparatus etc.

870. Calorific values; tests of apparatus etc.

The Gas and Electricity Markets Authority ('GEMA')¹ must appoint competent and impartial persons:

- 1509 (1) to carry out tests of apparatus and equipment provided and maintained by gas transporters² in pursuance of regulations made for the relevant statutory purposes³ for the purpose of ascertaining whether they comply with the regulations;
- 1510 (2) to carry out tests of gas conveyed by gas transporters⁴ where the number of kilowatt hours⁵ falls to be calculated on the basis of declared calorific values⁶ for the purpose of ascertaining whether the transporters are complying with the requirements of the relevant regulations⁷; and
- 1511 (3) generally to assist the Authority in exercising its relevant⁸ statutory functions⁹.

Regulations under these provisions, which must be made by the Authority with the consent of the Secretary of State¹⁰, may make provision:

- 1512 (a) for requiring such tests as are mentioned in head (2) above to be carried out at such places or premises as the Authority may direct¹¹;
- 1513 (b) for requiring such premises, apparatus and equipment as the Authority may direct to be provided and maintained by gas transporters for the purpose of carrying out such tests¹²;
- 1514 (c) for requiring samples of gas to be taken by gas transporters at such places or premises, at such times and in such manner as the Authority may direct¹³; and
- 1515 (d) for requiring samples of gas so taken to be provided by gas transporters, for the purpose of carrying out such tests, at such places or premises, at such times and in such manner as the Authority may direct¹⁴.

Such regulations may also make provision:

- 1516 (i) for persons representing the gas transporter concerned to be present during the carrying out of such tests as are mentioned in heads (1) and (2) above¹⁵;
- 1517 (ii) as to the manner in which the results of such tests are to be made available to other licence holders¹⁶ and to the public¹⁷; and
- 1518 (iii) for conferring powers of entry on property owned or occupied by gas transporters for the purpose of carrying out such tests and otherwise for the relevant statutory purposes¹⁸.

There must be paid out of money provided by Parliament to persons appointed to carry out the functions under heads (1) to (3) above who are members of the Authority's staff such remuneration and such allowances as may be determined by the Authority with the approval of the Treasury, and such pensions as may be so determined may be paid out of money provided by Parliament to or in respect of such persons¹⁹. Every person who is a gas transporter during any period must pay to the Authority such proportion (if any) as the Authority may determine of:

- 1519 (A) any sums so paid by the Authority in respect of that period; and
- 1520 (B) such part of the Authority's other expenses for that period as it may with the consent of the Treasury determine to be attributable to its relevant statutory functions²⁰; and any such liability to pay to the Authority sums on account of pensions²¹ must, if the Authority so determines, be satisfied by way of contributions calculated, at such rate as may be determined by the Treasury, by reference to remuneration²². Any sums received by the Authority under these provisions must be paid into the Consolidated Fund²³.

PARTICULAR PROVISIONS RELATING TO GAS/(5) SUPPLY AND USE OF GAS/(iii) Charges for Gas/B. ADJUSTMENT OF CHARGES/871. Adjustment of charges to help disadvantaged groups of customers.

B. ADJUSTMENT OF CHARGES

871. Adjustment of charges to help disadvantaged groups of customers.

If the Secretary of State¹ considers that members of any group (a 'disadvantaged group') of customers² of authorised suppliers³ are treated less favourably than other customers of theirs as respects charges for gas⁴, he may make an order containing a scheme for the adjustment of charges for gas with a view to eliminating or reducing the less favourable treatment⁵. The scheme may include:

- 1521 (1) provision for the adjustment of charges by authorised shippers⁶ or authorised transporters⁷, as well as by suppliers; and
- 1522 (2) in relation to charges payable to suppliers, provision for the adjustment of charges payable by customers who are not members of the disadvantaged group, as well as by persons who are⁸.

The scheme must:

- 1523 (a) describe the disadvantaged group;
- 1524 (b) specify the persons whose charges are covered by the scheme; and
- 1525 (c) set out the basis of the adjustment of the charges⁹;

and if the scheme does not relate to the whole of Great Britain¹⁰, it must specify the area or areas to which it relates¹¹.

The scheme may:

- 1526 (i) require authorised suppliers, authorised shippers or authorised transporters to supply information¹² of any specified description, in any specified form, to any other such persons; and
- 1527 (ii) provide for the modification¹³ of conditions of licences¹⁴, for the purpose of facilitating the implementation of the scheme¹⁵.

Before making such an order, the Secretary of State must give notice¹⁶:

- 1528 (A) stating that he proposes to make an order and setting out its effect;
- 1529 (B) stating the reasons why he proposes to make the order; and
- 1530 (C) specifying the time, not being less than 28 days from the date of publication of the notice, within which representations or objections with respect to the proposed order may be made, and must consider any representations or objections which are duly made and not withdrawn¹⁷. The notice must be given by serving a copy of it on the persons whose charges are covered by the proposed order and by publishing it in such manner as the Secretary of State considers appropriate for bringing the proposed order to the attention of other persons likely to be affected by it¹⁸. An order may not be made under these provisions unless a draft of the statutory instrument containing it has been laid before, and approved by a resolution of, each House of Parliament¹⁹. The Secretary of State may by order require authorised suppliers, authorised shippers or authorised transporters to supply information of any specified description, in any specified form, to any other such persons for the purpose of enabling the making of such an order²⁰.

Such an order is to continue in force for such period not exceeding three years as is specified in the order; but that does not prevent the making of another order to come into force at the end of that period²¹.

The Gas and Electricity Markets Authority ('GEMA')²² must monitor the effect of such orders and report its findings to the Secretary of State whenever he directs it to do so²³. It may require authorised suppliers, authorised shippers or authorised transporters to supply to the Authority, in any specified form, such information as it requires for carrying out that duty²⁴.

PARTICULAR PROVISIONS RELATING TO GAS/(5) SUPPLY AND USE OF GAS/(iii) Charges for Gas/C. BILLING DISPUTES/872. Billing disputes.

C. BILLING DISPUTES

872. Billing disputes.

Power is prospectively conferred on the Secretary of State¹ to make provision by regulations² for billing disputes³ to be referred to the Gas and Electricity Markets Authority ('GEMA')⁴ for determination in accordance with the regulations⁵. Such regulations may only be made after consulting the Authority and persons or bodies appearing to the Secretary of State to be representative of persons likely to be affected by the regulations⁶.

Such regulations may provide that where a billing dispute is referred to the Authority it may either determine the dispute or appoint an arbitrator to determine it⁷. Any person so determining a billing dispute must give his reasons for reaching his decision with respect to the dispute in such manner as may be specified in the regulations⁸. The regulations may also provide that disputes may be so referred to the Authority only by prescribed persons⁹ and for any determination to be final and enforceable as if it were a judgment of a county court¹⁰.

Except in such circumstances, if any, as may be prescribed, the Authority or an arbitrator appointed by it must not determine any billing dispute which is the subject of proceedings before any court or with respect to which judgment has been given by any court; and neither party to a billing dispute which has been referred to the Authority for determination¹¹ may commence proceedings before any court in respect of that dispute pending its determination in accordance with the regulations¹².

The Authority's powers to require information¹³ are also to be exercisable for any purpose connected with the determination of any billing dispute referred¹⁴ to the Authority¹⁵.

As from a day to be appointed¹⁶, no gas supplier may commence proceedings before any court in respect of any charge in connection with the provision by him of gas supply services unless, not less than 28 days before doing so, the customer concerned was informed by him, in such form and manner as may be prescribed, of his intention to commence proceedings, the customer's rights by virtue of the above provisions, and such other matters, if any, as may be prescribed¹⁷.

At the date at which this title states the law, no such day had been appointed and these provisions had not been brought into force. As to the Secretary of State see PARA 601 note 1 ante.

2 As to the making of regulations generally see PARA 778 ante.

3 For these purposes, 'billing dispute' means a dispute between a gas supplier and a customer of his concerning the amount of the charge which the supplier is entitled to recover from the customer in connection with the provision of gas supply services: Gas Act 1986 s 15A(2) (as added (see note 1 supra); amended by the Gas Act 1995 s 10(1), Sch 3 para 10(1), (2); and by the Utilities Act 2000 s 108, Sch 6 Pt I paras 1, 7(a)). (iv) Standards of Performance; Service Standards and Remuneration

A. PROCEDURES FOR PRESCRIBING OR DETERMINING STANDARDS OF PERFORMANCE

873. Procedures to be followed by the Gas and Electricity Markets Authority.

Before prescribing standards of performance in regulations with regard to individual cases¹, or determining overall standards of performance², the Gas and Electricity Markets Authority ('GEMA')³ must:

- 1531 (1) arrange for such research as the Authority considers appropriate with a view to discovering the views of a representative sample of persons likely to be affected and consider the results;
 - 1532 (2) publish a notice⁴ of its proposals and consider any representations which are duly made in respect of those proposals; and
 - 1533 (3) consult the Gas and Electricity Consumer Council⁵ and the following persons or bodies⁶, namely:
- 97
- 143. (a) gas suppliers⁷ in the case of standards of performance relating to them⁸, or gas transporters⁹ and gas suppliers, in the case of standards of performance relating to gas transporters¹⁰; and
 - 144. (b) persons or bodies appearing to the Authority to be representative of persons likely to be affected by the regulations or determination¹¹.
- 98

The notice required by head (2) above is a notice:

- 1534 (i) stating that the Authority proposes to prescribe or determine standards of performance and setting out the standards of performance proposed;
- 1535 (ii) stating the reasons why it proposes to prescribe or determine those standards of performance; and
- 1536 (iii) specifying the time, not being less than 28 days from the date of publication of the notice, within which representations with respect to the proposals may be made¹².

A notice so required must be published in such manner as the Authority considers appropriate for the purpose of bringing it to the attention of those likely to be affected by the proposals¹³.

The Authority must make arrangements for securing that such notices and relevant regulations¹⁴ and determinations¹⁵ are made available to the public by whatever means it considers appropriate¹⁶.

B. STANDARDS OF PERFORMANCE IN INDIVIDUAL CASES

(A) POWERS TO PRESCRIBE STANDARDS

874. Power to prescribe standards of performance in individual cases in relation to gas suppliers.

The Gas and Electricity Markets Authority ('GEMA')¹ may make regulations prescribing such standards of performance in connection with the activities of gas suppliers², so far as affecting customers or potential customers of theirs, as in the Authority's opinion ought to be achieved in individual cases³. Such regulations may only be made with the consent of the Secretary of State⁴.

Such regulations may:

- 1537 (1) prescribe circumstances in which gas suppliers are to inform customers or potential customers of their rights under these provisions or their rights under the provisions⁵ relating to standards of performance in individual cases with regard to gas transporters⁶;
- 1538 (2) prescribe such standards of performance in relation to any duty arising under head (1) above as, in the Authority's opinion, ought to be achieved in all cases⁷;
- 1539 (3) prescribe circumstances in which gas suppliers are to be exempted from any requirements of the regulations or of these provisions⁸; and
- 1540 (4) if the Authority is of the opinion that the differences are such that no gas supplier would be unduly disadvantaged in competing with other gas suppliers, make different provision with respect to different gas suppliers⁹.

If a gas supplier fails to meet a prescribed¹⁰ standard, that supplier must make to any customer or potential customer who is affected by the failure and is of a prescribed description such compensation as may be determined by or under the regulations¹¹. The making of such compensation in respect of any failure to meet a prescribed standard does not, however, prejudice any other remedy which may be available in respect of the act or omission which constituted that failure¹².

(B) PRESCRIBED STANDARDS

876. Meter disputes.

The following provisions apply where a gas supplier¹ is notified by a domestic customer²:

- 1546 (1) that the customer considers that an appropriate meter³ is or may have been operating outside the margins of error⁴; or
- 1547 (2) that circumstances exist which a gas supplier might reasonably expect to have been caused by the meter operating outside the margins of error⁵.

In such a case, where the gas supplier is reasonably satisfied that he is unable to provide an explanation to the customer of the probable reason for the matters so notified without visiting the customer's premises⁶, and the gas supplier:

- 1548 (a) fails within the prescribed period⁷ from the applicable date⁸ to offer to visit the customer's premises to investigate the matter during a specified time⁹; or
- 1549 (b) fails to visit the customer's premises during the specified time¹⁰, the gas supplier must, except in any of the specified circumstances¹¹, pay¹² to the customer the prescribed sum¹³.

In such a case where the gas supplier is not reasonably satisfied as mentioned above¹⁴, and the supplier fails to dispatch to the customer¹⁵ an explanation of the probable reason for the matter so notified within the prescribed period¹⁶ from the receipt of the notification, he must pay to the customer the prescribed sum¹⁷, except in any of the specified circumstances¹⁸.

1 For these purposes, 'gas supplier' means, in relation to any premises, a gas supplier who supplies to those premises gas which is conveyed thereto (or, where the premises are secondary sub-deduct premises, to the relevant primary sub-deduct premises) by a gas transporter; 'gas transporter' means the holder of a licence under the Gas Act 1986 s 7 (as substituted and amended) (see PARA 805 ante); 'primary sub-deduct premises' means premises to which gas is conveyed by a gas transporter before being conveyed to secondary sub-deduct premises; and 'secondary sub-deduct premises' means premises to which gas is conveyed in pursuance of an exemption from s 5(1)(a) (as substituted and amended) (see PARA 803 ante) granted under s 6A (as added and amended) (see PARA 804 ante), for supply by the gas supplier: Gas (Standards of Performance) Regulations 2005, SI 2005/1135, reg 3(1).

2 'Customer' means an owner or occupier of premises in Great Britain who is supplied or requires to be supplied with gas conveyed to those premises through pipes; 'domestic customer' means a customer supplied or requiring to be supplied with gas at domestic premises (but excluding such customer in so far as he is supplied or requires to be supplied at premises other than domestic premises); and 'domestic premises' means premises at which a supply is taken or to be taken wholly or mainly for domestic purposes: ibid reg 3(1). For the meaning of 'Great Britain' see PARA 602 note 7 ante.

For these purposes, where a person is a customer in respect of more than one premises, a reference in a regulation to 'customer' is a reference to that person in respect of each of the premises in relation to which he is a customer to which the regulation applies (reg 3(4)(b)); and any reference to a customer includes, except in relation to the entitlement to any payment due from a relevant operator under the 2005 Regulations, any person having apparent authority to represent the customer unless the context otherwise requires (reg 3(4)(d)).

'Apparent authority' means that the name and address of the customer has been provided to the relevant operator together with confirmation that the relevant person is acting on behalf of the customer: reg 3(1).

3 'Appropriate meter' means a meter stamped in accordance with the provisions of the Gas Act 1986 s 17 (as substituted and amended) (see PARAS 947-949 post) or regulations made pursuant to that provision: Gas (Standards of Performance) Regulations 2005, SI 2005/1135, reg 3(1).

4 'Margins of error' means, in relation to a meter, its operation outside the standards prescribed pursuant to the Gas (Meters) Regulations 1983, SI 1983/684 (as amended) (see PARAS 947-949 post): Gas (Standards of Performance) Regulations 2005, SI 2005/1135, reg 3(1).

5 Ibid reg 4(1). For the purpose of reg 4, where the requirements of reg 4(1) are satisfied after 4 pm on a working day or at any time on any other day, they are to be deemed to have been satisfied on the next following working day: reg 14. 'Working day' means any day other than a Saturday, a Sunday, Christmas Day, Good Friday or a day which is a bank holiday within the meaning of the Banking and Financial Dealings Act 1971: Gas (Standards of Performance) Regulations 2005, SI 2005/1135, reg 3(1).

6 Ie where ibid reg 4(3) applies.

7 'Prescribed period' means in relation to any paragraph or sub-paragraph of the Gas (Standards of Performance) Regulations 2005, SI 2005/1135 (as amended) the period specified in Sch 1 Pt I col 2 opposite the reference to that paragraph or sub-paragraph in Sch 1 Pt I col 1: reg 3(1). The prescribed period for the purposes of head (a) in the text is seven working days: see Sch 1 Pt I cols 1, 2.

8 'Applicable date' means, in relation to each occasion upon which a regulation applies, the day upon which that regulation first applies, or, where a prescribed period in a paragraph of a regulation is expressed in hours, the time on that day when that regulation first applies: ibid reg 3(1).

9 See ibid reg 4(2), (3). 'Specified time' means (1) unless head (2) infra applies, a part (which has been specified by the relevant operator) of a day (which has also been specified by the relevant operator) within the prescribed period from the applicable date, being either a part which falls either wholly before one o'clock in the afternoon or wholly after noon or, in respect of a gas supplier only, a part not exceeding two hours; or (2) such part of a day (whether or not within that period) as is requested by the customer and agreed with the relevant operator, such agreement not to be unreasonably withheld; provided that (a) a part of a day may be a specified time for the purpose of a regulation notwithstanding that it was requested, agreed or specified prior to the time at which that regulation first applied; and (b) the gas supplier is not obliged to agree part of a day less than two hours: ibid reg 3(1).

10 See ibid reg 4(3), (4)(a).

11 Ie any of the circumstances described in ibid reg 4(5). Those circumstances are each of the circumstances described in reg 13 (see PARA 877 post) provided that, in relation to reg 13(6) (see PARA 877 post at head (4) in the text), the gas supplier gave the customer not less than one working day's prior warning (whether or not in writing) that he would be unable to visit during the specified time or the circumstances referred to in reg 13(6) occurred at a time when it was not reasonably practicable to give such a warning: reg 4(5).

12 'Pay' includes crediting the account of the customer for charges incurred or to be incurred in respect of the supply of gas or in respect of the provision of any gas meter, and 'payment' is to be construed accordingly: ibid reg 3(1).

13 Ibid reg 4(2), (3), (4)(a). For the purposes of the Gas (Standards of Performance) Regulations 2005, SI 2005/1135 (as amended), 'prescribed sum' means where the customer is a domestic customer, the amount in Sch 1 Pt I col 3, or where the customer is a non-domestic customer, the amount in Sch 1 Pt I col 4: reg 3(1). The prescribed sum for the purposes of heads (a), (b) in the text is £20: see Sch 1 Pt I col 3.

14 Ie where ibid reg 4(3) does not apply.

15 For these purposes, any reference to the dispatch by a relevant operator of an explanation or reply within a particular period does not require that the explanation or reply (if in writing) is received by the customer within that period and is satisfied if the relevant operator provides the explanation or reply orally to the customer within that period: ibid reg 3(4)(c). 'Relevant operator' means the relevant gas transporter or, as the case may be, gas supplier according to the circumstances of the relevant customer's case; and 'relevant gas transporter' means, in relation to a customer, the gas transporter to whose pipeline system the premises of the customer are directly connected, or who has a duty to connect those premises under the Gas Act 1986 s 10 (as substituted and amended) (see PARAS 836-837 ante), or in relation to secondary sub-deduct premises, the gas transporter to whose pipeline system the primary sub-deduct premises are directly connected, or would be directly connected in accordance with the duty to connect under s 10 (as substituted and amended): Gas

(Standards of Performance) Regulations 2005, SI 2005/1135, reg 3(1). 'Pipeline system' means pipes upstream of any emergency control valve owned by the relevant gas transporter and used for the purpose of conveying gas: reg 3(1).

16 The prescribed period for this purpose is five working days: ibid Sch 1 Pt I cols 1, 2.

17 The prescribed period for this purpose is £20: see ibid Sch 1 Pt I col 3.

18 Ibid reg 4(4)(b). As to the specified circumstances see note 11 supra.

- 1561 (1) a domestic customer¹ informs the gas supplier² that the customer wishes the gas supplier to visit the customer's premises; or
- 1562 (2) the gas supplier informs a domestic customer that the gas supplier wishes to visit the customer's premises, being in either case a visit in connection with the activities which the gas supplier is required or authorised to carry on under his licence which requires access to be afforded to his representative or for which it would otherwise be reasonable to expect the customer to be present, then where the gas supplier:

- 1563 (a) fails within a reasonable period from the applicable date³ to offer a timed appointment⁴; or
- 1564 (b) fails to keep a timed appointment, the gas supplier must, except in any of the specified circumstances⁵, pay to the customer the prescribed sum⁶.

Where the conveyance of gas to a domestic customer's¹ premises is discontinued as a result of a failure of, fault in or damage to the pipeline system² operated by the relevant gas transporter³, then the relevant gas transporter must, except in any of the specified circumstances⁴, pay the prescribed sum⁵ to the customer:

- 1565 (1) where the conveyance of gas is not resumed to the customer's premises within the prescribed period⁶ from the applicable date⁷; and
- 1566 (2) in respect of each succeeding period of 24 hours upon the expiry of which the conveyance of gas is not resumed⁸.

The following additional provisions apply where the conveyance of gas to a priority domestic customer's⁹ premises or to gas fittings¹⁰ at those premises is discontinued¹¹. In such a case, the relevant gas transporter must, except in any of the specified circumstances¹², pay the prescribed sum¹³ to the customer where it does not provide to the customer at the customer's premises alternative heating and cooking facilities¹⁴:

4 Ie except in any of the circumstances described in the Gas (Standards of Performance) Regulations 2005, SI 2005/1135, reg 7(3). Those circumstances are (1) each of the circumstances described in reg 13 (see PARA 877 ante); (2) that the relevant event was caused by the act or default of the customer; (3) that the relevant event resulted in the discontinuance of conveyance of gas to more than 50,000 premises of customers (whether domestic or non-domestic) of the relevant gas transporter; (4) that the prescribed sum is not to be payable in respect of any period for which the making of that payment would cause the aggregate of the prescribed payments to the customer in respect of the relevant event to exceed £1,000; (5) that the damage to the pipeline system was caused by the act or default of a person other than an officer, employee or agent of the gas transporter or a person acting on behalf of a gas transporter or by water which has escaped from a pipe owned by a water undertaker; and (6) that the relevant event was caused by severe weather conditions or other circumstances of an exceptional nature beyond the control of the gas transporter and the gas transporter had taken all such steps as it was reasonable to take both to prevent the circumstances from occurring and to prevent them from having that effect: reg 7(3). 'Non-domestic customer' means any customer other than a domestic customer; 'relevant event' means the occurrence as a result of which a regulation applies; and 'water undertaker' has the same meaning as in the Water Industry Act 1991 (see WATER AND WATERWAYS vol 100 (2009) PARA 137 et seq): Gas (Standards of Performance) Regulations 2005, SI 2005/1135, reg 3(1). 9 'Priority domestic customer' means a domestic customer in respect of whom the relevant details included on the Priority Service Register maintained by gas suppliers in accordance with standard licence condition 37 of the gas suppliers' licence have been provided to the relevant gas transporter: Gas (Standards of Performance) Regulations 2005, SI 2005/1135, reg 3(1).

10 For the meaning of 'gas fittings' see PARA 861 note 1 ante.

11 Gas (Standards of Performance) Regulations 2005, SI 2005/1135, reg 9(1).

12 Ie except in any of the circumstances described in ibid reg 9(3). Those circumstances are: (1) each of the circumstances described in reg 13 (see PARA 877 ante); (2) that the customer had alternative heating or cooking facilities (as the case may be) (for the meaning of which see note 14 infra); (3) that (a) alternative heating and cooking facilities were made available for collection from a place reasonably conveniently situated to the customer's premises; (b) the location of that place was notified to the customer within the prescribed period from the applicable date or the relevant time (for the meaning of which see note 18 infra) (as the case may be); and (c) that it was reasonable for the relevant gas transporter to expect the customer to collect or arrange for the collection of the alternative heating and cooking facilities from that place having regard to all relevant circumstances, including the information which was available, or could reasonably have been obtained by, the relevant gas transporter in relation to the customer: reg 9(3).

13 The prescribed sum for these purposes is £24: see ibid Sch 1 Pt I col 3.

14 For these purposes, alternative heating and cooking facilities means (1) in respect of heating, an electric fan heater; and (2) in respect of cooking, a single ring electric or bottled gas appliance, or, in either case, any reasonably equivalent appliance, having regard to the expected duration of the discontinuance and the weather conditions expected during that period: ibid reg 9(4)(a).

15 Where more than one person is a customer in respect of particular premises, a notice given by a relevant operator to one person who is a customer in respect of those premises is a sufficient notice to any other person who is a customer in respect of those premises at the time the notice is given: ibid reg 3(4)(a).

16 For these purposes, the prescribed period is four hours: see ibid Sch 1 Pt I col 2. In calculating the prescribed period for the purposes of reg 9, the period between 8.00 pm and 8.00 am must be ignored: ibid reg 9(4)(b).

In the event that the customer challenges a quotation provided by the relevant gas transporter in accordance with any published accuracy scheme and that quotation is found not to be accurate, the quotation will be deemed invalid and the provisions of heads (a) and (b) above apply until the relevant gas transporter issues a revised quotation to the customer²⁷. Notwithstanding this provision, the relevant transporter must refund to the customer any overcharge²⁸.

1 For the meaning of 'relevant gas transporter' see PARA 876 note 15 ante.

2 For these purposes, where the relevant gas transporter receives a request for a quotation, a land inquiry or the acceptance of a quotation after 5 pm on a working day or at any time on any other day, the request for a quotation, land inquiry or acceptance of the quotation is to be deemed to have been received on the next following working day: Gas (Standards of Performance) Regulations 2005, SI 2005/1135, reg 10(2). 25 (2) that the prescribed sum payable in respect of the continuation of any one breach under reg 10(3)(a) and (b) (see heads (a)-(b) in the text) is not to be payable where the making of that additional payment would cause the aggregate of the prescribed payments to the customer in respect of that breach under that sub-paragraph to exceed (a) the lesser of £250 or the quotation sum for the provision of a new connection or altering an existing quotation up to and including 275 kWh per hour; (b) the lesser of £500 or the quotation sum for the provision of a new connection or altering an existing quotation greater than 275 kWh per hour;

26 (3) that the prescribed sum payable in respect of any one breach under reg 10(3)(d) (see head (d) in the text) is not to be payable where the making of that payment would cause the aggregate of the prescribed payments to the customer in respect of that breach under reg 10(3)(d) to exceed (a) in respect of a new connection or altering an existing connection up to and including 275 kWh per hour £250; and (b) in respect of a new connection or altering an existing connection greater than 275kWh per hour £500;

884. Notice of rights.

In respect of the rights prescribed for the benefit of domestic customers¹ with regard to meter disputes, prepayment meters and appointments² and disputes, payments, exemptions and the timing of notification³, a gas supplier⁴ must prepare and from time to time revise a statement describing the rights prescribed for the benefit of domestic customers under the relevant regulations⁵ and the effect of the statutory provision requiring a gas supplier to pay compensation⁶ in a form and having a content which a gas supplier could reasonably expect would be within the understanding of customers to whom the statement relates⁷. The gas supplier must:

- 1589 (1) give a copy of the statement, and of any revision of the statement, to the Gas and Electricity Markets Authority ('GEMA')⁸ and to the Gas and Electricity Consumer Council⁹, before he makes it available to customers;
- 1590 (2) at least once in any period of 12 months dispatch to each domestic customer of the gas supplier a copy of the statement, in the form current at the time it is provided, provided that where in relation to any premises more than one person is a domestic customer, the obligation is to be satisfied by dispatching a copy of each such statement to any one of them;
- 1591 (3) make a copy of the statement, in its current form, available for inspection by any person at any premises of or occupied by the supplier open to the public in the normal course of the supplier's business during the normal opening hours of the premises; and
- 1592 (4) dispatch a copy of the statement, in its current form, to any person who requests it¹⁰.

A gas supplier may satisfy his obligation under head (2) or head (4) above by dispatching the statement he has prepared to the class of customer to whom it relates¹¹.

In respect of the rights prescribed for the benefit of customers with regard to supply restoration, reinstatement of the customer's premises, priority domestic customers, connections, disputes, payments, exemptions and the timing of notification¹², a relevant gas transporter¹³ must prepare and from time to time revise a statement describing those rights and the effect of the statutory provision requiring a gas transporter to pay compensation¹⁴ in a form and having a content which a gas transporter could reasonably expect would be within the understanding of customers to whom the statement relates¹⁵. The gas transporter must:

- 1593 (a) give a copy of the statement and of any revision of the statement to the Authority and to the Council, before he sends it to the gas suppliers referred to in head (b) below;
- 1594 (b) at least once in any period of 12 months dispatch to each gas supplier which supplies gas to customers connected to the relevant gas transporter's pipeline system¹⁶ for onward transmission to the gas supplier's customers a copy of the statement, in the form current at the time it is provided;
- 1595 (c) make a copy of the statement, in its current form, available for inspection by any person at any offices fixed as appropriate by the relevant gas transporter for the statutory purposes¹⁷ or, if none, at any premises of or occupied by the relevant gas transporter open to the public in the normal course of the relevant gas transporter's business during the normal opening hours of the premises; and 1596 (d) dispatch a copy of the statement, in its current form, to any person who requests it¹⁸.

A gas supplier must at least once in any period of 12 months dispatch to each customer of the gas supplier the information in any statement sent to him by a relevant gas transporter pursuant to the above provisions in respect of the relevant gas transporter to whose pipeline system the customer's premises are connected¹⁹.

885. Reference of disputes to the Gas and Electricity Markets Authority.

Any dispute arising under the statutory powers to prescribe standards of performance in individual cases¹ or regulations made thereunder² may be referred to the Gas and Electricity Markets Authority ('GEMA')³ by either party or, with the agreement of either party, by the Gas and Electricity Consumer Council⁴. On such a reference, the dispute must be determined by order made by the Authority or, if it thinks fit, by such person, other than the Council, as may be prescribed⁵. A person making such an order must include in the order his reasons for reaching his decision with respect to the dispute⁶. Such an order is final and is enforceable as if it were a judgment of a county court⁷.

The practice and procedure to be followed in connection with any such determination is to be such as may be prescribed⁸.

Where such a dispute has arisen between a relevant operator⁶ and a customer⁷, or between relevant operators, it may be referred to the Authority by any party or, with the agreement of any party, by the Gas and Electricity Consumer Council⁸ and it must, on such reference, be determined by order made by the Authority⁹. PARTICULAR PROVISIONS RELATING TO GAS/(5) SUPPLY AND USE OF GAS/(iv) Standards of Performance; Service Standards and Remuneration/B. STANDARDS OF PERFORMANCE IN INDIVIDUAL CASES/(C) Disputes relating to Standards of Performance/887. Determination of individual disputes.

887. Determination of individual disputes.

The Gas and Electricity Markets Authority ('GEMA')¹ must determine a dispute between a relevant operator and a customer or between relevant operators² before the end of 80 working days³ from the date when the dispute was referred to it⁴; but if the Authority is satisfied that there are good reasons for departing from that requirement, the period in which a dispute may be determined may be extended with the consent of the referring party or parties⁵.

Where an individual dispute is referred to the Authority, the Authority must, at the outset, send to the parties a notice of procedure for the determination of individual disputes⁶. Upon receipt of such a notice, the parties to the dispute must provide the Authority with any specific information that the Authority is requesting as part of the written statement prepared in accordance with the prescribed procedure⁷ and with any other information that they consider relevant to the dispute⁸. If the Authority decides it is necessary to obtain third party advice in relation to technical issues or any other issues that may arise during the determination, it must request it and inform the parties to the dispute of that request and indicate in writing how that request will affect the timetable outlined in the notice of procedure which it has⁹ issued¹⁰.

At any time after receiving a written statement¹¹ the Authority may, if it considers it appropriate to do so, request¹² an oral hearing¹³. If the Authority is satisfied that it has sufficient information to determine a dispute, it must prepare a draft determination statement containing the submissions of the parties and then send that statement to the parties for comment¹⁴. When the Authority has received comments from the parties, and is satisfied that it has sufficient information to make the determination decision, it must prepare and then issue to the parties a final determination statement¹⁵.

The parties must, within one week of receiving a final determination statement, notify the Authority of any issue or information within that statement that should be excluded because such issue or information is of a confidential nature¹⁶. The Authority must, upon receipt of any such notification, make the necessary adjustments to the final determination statement and then publish¹⁷ that statement on its website¹⁸.

classed as confidential by the party to whom it belongs before the date expressly stated in the notice; (3) inform the parties of any specific information that the Authority is requesting as part of the written statement prepared in accordance with Sch 2 para 7 (see PARA 889 post); and (4) explain the manner in which the Authority intends to publish the determination decision: Sch 2 para 3(2).

PARTICULAR PROVISIONS RELATING TO GAS/(5) SUPPLY AND USE OF GAS/(iv) Standards of Performance; Service Standards and Remuneration/B. STANDARDS OF PERFORMANCE IN INDIVIDUAL CASES/(C) Disputes relating to Standards of Performance/888. Determination of multiple disputes.

888. Determination of multiple disputes.

The Gas and Electricity Markets Authority ('GEMA')¹ may, if it considers it appropriate to do so, consolidate into one or more categories (in each case a 'consolidated group') similar or related disputes² for the purposes of determining those disputes³. A determination made by the Authority for one or more consolidated groups is to apply, in respect of each consolidated group, to each individual dispute in that group⁴. When determining disputes falling within a consolidated group, the Authority must determine those disputes before the end of six months from the date when they were so consolidated into that group by the Authority⁵. If, however, the Authority is satisfied that there are good reasons for departing from this requirement, the period in which disputes falling within a consolidated group may be determined may be extended by notice to the nominated representatives⁶ of any such group⁷.

Where the Authority considers it appropriate to consolidate disputes, the Authority must send to the parties a notice of procedure for the determination of those disputes⁸. Upon receipt of such a notice, the parties to the dispute must provide the Authority with any specific information that the Authority is requesting⁹ and with any other information that they consider relevant to the dispute¹⁰. Upon receipt of the information so provided, the Authority may, if it considers it fitting to do so, prepare a list of consolidated groups and then consult as to whether those consolidated groups are appropriate¹¹. When so consulting, the Authority must publish¹² and explain its proposals in a manner which it believes will bring them to the attention of persons most likely to be affected and must invite those persons to comment to the Authority within a period from the publication of the proposals that is specified therein¹³. Upon receipt of responses to that consultation, the Authority must have regard to those responses before finalising the consolidated groups¹⁴.

When the Authority has decided on the consolidated groups for the purpose of determining multiple disputes, it must appoint¹⁵ customer representatives¹⁶. Following the appointment of the customer representatives for the consolidated groups, those customer representatives and the relevant operators¹⁷ must prepare a written statement¹⁸. Upon receipt of the written statements, the Authority may decide that it is necessary to obtain third party advice in relation to technical issues or any other issues that may arise during the determination; and if third party advice is requested, then the Authority must inform the customer representatives and the relevant operators of that request and must indicate in writing how that request will affect the timetable outlined in the notice it has¹⁹ issued²⁰.

At any time after receiving the written statement, the Authority may request²¹ an oral hearing²². If the Authority is satisfied that it has the necessary information, it must prepare a draft determination statement containing the submissions of the customer representatives and the relevant operators and then send that statement to the customer representatives and the relevant operators for comment²³. When the Authority has received comments from the customer representatives and the relevant operators, and is satisfied that it has sufficient information to make the determination decision, it must issue a final determination statement for a consolidated group, or for each consolidated group where there is more than one²⁴. The customer representatives and the relevant operators must within one week of receiving a final determination statement notify the Authority of any issue or information within that statement that should be excluded because such issue or information is of a confidential nature²⁵. The Authority must, upon receipt of any such notification, make the necessary adjustments to the final determination statement and then publish²⁶ that statement on its website²⁷.

At any oral hearing, the Authority may request the customer or a person attending the hearing as a representative of the relevant operator⁵ to give evidence or make representations or observations⁶; and if any party fails to attend a hearing to be subjected to such a requirement, the Authority may determine the dispute without hearing his evidence, representations, or observations⁷.

No person is, however, to be compelled under these provisions to give evidence which he could not be compelled to give in civil proceedings in the High Court⁸.

891. Payments to customers; set-off and costs.

An order determining a dispute¹ does not, where there is more than one customer² at the premises, determine who is beneficially entitled to any payment³ required to be made by the order⁴.

Where a dispute is determined by an order requiring a relevant operator⁵ to make a payment to the customer and the relevant operator fails to make that payment, the customer may set off the amount so ordered to be paid against any charges that are owed by the customer to the relevant operator⁶.

An order determining a dispute may include a provision requiring the relevant operator or the customer to pay a sum in respect of the costs or expenses incurred by the Gas and Electricity Markets Authority ('GEMA')⁷. In including in such an order any such provision as to costs, the Authority must have regard to the conduct and means of the parties and any other relevant circumstances⁸.

The Gas and Electricity Markets Authority ('GEMA')¹ may from time to time determine such standards of overall performance in connection with the provision of gas supply² services by gas suppliers³ as ought in its opinion to be achieved by them⁴ and may arrange for the publication of the standards so determined in such form and in such manner as the Authority considers appropriate⁵. Different standards may be determined for different gas suppliers if the Authority is of the opinion that the differences are such that no gas supplier would be unduly disadvantaged in competing with other gas suppliers⁶; and standards may be determined either as respects the provision of gas supply services generally or as respects the provision of such services to customers of a particular class or description⁷.

PARTICULAR PROVISIONS RELATING TO GAS/(5) SUPPLY AND USE OF GAS/(iv) Standards of Performance; Service Standards and Remuneration/C. OVERALL STANDARDS OF PERFORMANCE/894. Information to be given to customers about overall performance.

894. Information to be given to customers about overall performance.

The Gas and Electricity Markets Authority ('GEMA')¹ may make regulations requiring such information as may be specified or described in the regulations about:

- 1602 (1) the standards of overall performance determined in relation to gas suppliers and gas transporters²;
- 1603 (2) the levels of performance achieved as respects those standards, to be given by gas suppliers or gas transporters to customers or potential customers of gas suppliers³. Such regulations may include provision:

- 1604 (a) as to the form and manner in which and the frequency with which information is to be given; and
- 1605 (b) requiring information about the matters mentioned in head (1) or head (2) above and relating to gas transporters to be given by gas transporters to gas suppliers and by gas suppliers to their customers or potential customers⁴.

In respect of the overall standards of performance determined by the Authority in relation to gas suppliers⁵, a gas supplier⁶ must prepare and from time to time revise a statement describing those standards and the levels of performance achieved as respects those standards in a form and having a content which a gas supplier could reasonably expect would be within the understanding of customers⁷ to which the statement relates and must:

- 1606 (i) give a copy of the statement, and of any revision of the statement, to the Authority and to the Gas and Electricity Consumer Council⁸ before he makes it available to customers;
- 1607 (ii) at least once in any period of 12 months dispatch to each domestic customer⁹ of the gas supplier a copy of the statement, in the form current at the time it is provided; but where in relation to any premises more than one person is a domestic customer, the obligation is satisfied by dispatching a copy of each statement to any one of those persons;
- 1608 (iii) make a copy of the statement, in its current form, available for inspection by any person at any premises of or occupied by the supplier open to customers in the normal course of the supplier's business during the normal opening hours of the premises; and
- 1609 (iv) dispatch a copy of the statement, in its current form, to any person who requests it¹⁰.

A gas supplier may satisfy his obligation under head (ii) or head (iv) above by dispatching the statement he has prepared to the class of customer to whom it relates¹¹.

In respect of the overall standards of performance determined by the Authority in relation to gas transporters¹², a relevant gas transporter¹³ must prepare and from time to time revise a statement describing those standards and the levels or performance achieved in respect of those standards in a form and having a content which a relevant gas transporter could reasonably expect would be within the understanding of customers to which the statement relates; and must:

- 1610 (A) give a copy of the statement, and of any revision of the statement, to the Authority and to the Council, before he sends it to the gas suppliers referred to in head (B) below;
- 1611 (B) at least once in any period of 12 months dispatch to each gas supplier which supplies gas to premises connected to the relevant gas transporter's pipeline system¹⁴ for onward transmission to the gas supplier's customers a copy of the statement, in the form current at the time it is provided;
- 1612 (C) make a copy of the statement, in its current form, available for inspection by any person at any offices fixed as appropriate by the relevant gas transporter for the statutory purposes¹⁵ or, if none, at any premises of or occupied by the relevant gas transporter open to the public in the normal course of the relevant gas transporter's business during the normal opening hours of the premises; and
- 1613 (D) dispatch a copy of the statement, in its current form, to any person who requests it¹⁶.

A gas supplier must at least once in any period of 12 months dispatch to each customer of the gas supplier the information in any statement sent to him by a relevant gas transporter pursuant to heads (A) to (D) above in respect of the relevant gas transporter to whose pipeline system the customer's premises are connected, provided that where in relation to any premises more than one person is a domestic customer, the obligation is satisfied by dispatching such information to any one of those persons¹⁷.

A relevant operator¹⁸ may prepare a separate statement for domestic and non-domestic customers¹⁹.

894 Information to be given to customers about overall performance

TEXT AND NOTES 11-19--Replaced. SI 2005/1135 reg 16 (2)-(5) now reg 16(2), (3) (substituted by SI 2008/696) by virtue of which a gas supplier may satisfy his obligation under head (2) or (4) in the text by dispatching the statement he has prepared to the class of customer to whom it relates, and may prepare a separate statement for domestic and non-domestic customers.

Halsbury's Laws of England/FUEL AND ENERGY (VOLUME 19(1) (2007 REISSUE) PARAS 601-775; VOLUME 19(2) (2007 REISSUE) PARAS 776-1328); VOLUME 19(3) (2007 REISSUE) PARAS 1329-1927)/3. PARTICULAR PROVISIONS RELATING TO GAS/(5) SUPPLY AND USE OF GAS/(iv) Standards of Performance; Service Standards and Remuneration/D. CARBON EMISSIONS REDUCTION TARGETS/895. Promotion of reductions in carbon emissions; gas transporters and gas suppliers.

D. CARBON EMISSIONS REDUCTION TARGETS

895. Promotion of reductions in carbon emissions; gas transporters and gas suppliers.

The Secretary of State¹ may by order impose on each gas transporter² (or each gas transporter of a specified description), and on each gas supplier³ (or each gas supplier of a specified description), an obligation to achieve, within a specified period and in accordance with the order, the carbon emissions reduction target to be determined by the Gas and Electricity Markets Authority ('GEMA')⁴ under the order for that transporter or supplier (and that obligation is referred to as a 'carbon emissions reduction obligation')⁵. Before making such an order the Secretary of State must consult the Authority, the Gas and Electricity Consumer Council⁶, gas transporters and gas suppliers and such other persons as he considers appropriate⁷; and no such order may be made unless a draft of the instrument containing it has been laid before, and approved by a resolution of, each House of Parliament⁸.

For these purposes, 'carbon emissions reduction target' means a target for the promotion of any of the following:

- 1614 (1) measures for improving energy efficiency, that is to say, efficiency in the use by consumers of electricity, gas conveyed through pipes⁹ or any other source of energy which is specified in the order;
- 1615 (2) if the order so provides:
- 117 173. (a) measures for increasing the amount of electricity generated, or heat produced, by microgeneration¹⁰;
- 174. (b) any other measures of a description specified in the order for increasing the amount of electricity generated, or heat produced, using low-emissions sources or technologies¹¹;
- 175. (c) measures for reducing the consumption of such energy as is mentioned in head (1) above¹².
- 118

An order under these provisions may specify criteria by reference to which the Authority is to determine carbon emissions reduction targets for the gas transporters and gas suppliers on whom obligations are imposed by the order¹³. The order:

- 1616 (i) may make provision generally in relation to the carbon emissions reduction obligations which it imposes, including in particular provision:
- 119 176. (A) as to the treatment of persons who become gas transporters or gas suppliers after the beginning of the period to which the order relates;
- 177. (B) as to the action which qualifies for the purpose of meeting the whole or any part of a carbon emissions reduction target;

178. (c) as to the method by which improvements in energy efficiency, increases in the amount of electricity generated, or heat produced, by microgeneration or otherwise using low-emissions sources or technologies or reductions in energy consumption attributable to any qualifying action are to be assessed;
 179. (D) requiring transporters and suppliers to give to the Authority specified information, or information of a specified nature, about their proposals for complying with their carbon emissions reduction obligations¹⁴;
 180. (E) requiring the Authority to determine whether any proposed action qualifies for the purpose of achieving the whole or any part of a person's carbon emissions reduction target and, if so, what improvement in energy efficiency, increase in the amount of electricity generated, or heat produced, by microgeneration or otherwise using low-emissions sources or technologies or reduction in energy consumption is to be attributed for that purpose to the proposed action or to any result of that action specified in the determination; and
 181. (F) requiring transporters or suppliers to produce to the Authority evidence of a specified kind demonstrating that they have complied with their carbon emissions reduction obligations¹⁵;
- 120
- 1617 (ii) may make provision authorising the Authority to require a transporter or supplier to provide it with specified information, or information of a specified nature, relating to his proposals for complying with his carbon emissions reduction obligation, or the question whether he has complied with that obligation¹⁶;
 - 1618 (iii) may make provision as to circumstances in which:
- 121
182. (A) a person's carbon emissions reduction target may be altered during the period to which the order relates;
 183. (B) the whole or any part of a person's carbon emissions reduction target may be treated as having been achieved by action taken otherwise than by or on behalf of that person;
 184. (C) any action taken before the period to which the order relates may be treated as qualifying action taken during that period;
 185. (D) the whole or any part of a person's carbon emissions reduction target may be transferred to another gas transporter or gas supplier or to an electricity distributor or electricity supplier¹⁷; or
 186. (E) a person may carry forward the whole or any part of his carbon emissions reduction target for the period to which the order relates to a subsequent period¹⁸;
- 122
- 1619 (iv) may:
- 123
187. (A) provide for exceptions from any requirement of the order;
 188. (B) provide that any specified requirement contained in it is to be treated as a relevant requirement for the purposes of Part I of the Gas Act 1986¹⁹;
 189. (C) make supplementary, incidental and transitional provision; and
 190. (D) make²⁰ different provision for different cases, including different provision in relation to different transporters or suppliers²¹;
- 124
- 1620 (v) may include provision for treating the promotion of the supply to premises of:
- 125
191. (A) electricity generated by a generating station which is operated for the purposes of producing heat, or a cooling effect, in association with electricity;
 192. (B) heat produced in association with electricity or steam produced from, or air or water heated by, such heat; or
 193. (C) any gas or liquid subjected to a cooling effect produced in association with electricity,

1621 as promotion of improvements in energy efficiency²².

The Secretary of State and the Authority must carry out their respective functions under these provisions in the manner he or it considers is best calculated to ensure that no gas transporter is unduly disadvantaged in competing with other gas transporters and no gas supplier is unduly disadvantaged in competing with other gas suppliers²³.

Prior to 28 February 2007²⁴, the above provisions referred to 'energy efficiency obligations' and 'energy efficiency targets'²⁵. The orders setting out such obligations and targets are discussed in an earlier part of this title²⁶, as is the Secretary of State's power to specify an overall target for the promotion of the above-mentioned measures²⁷.

PARTICULAR PROVISIONS RELATING TO GAS/(5) SUPPLY AND USE OF GAS/(iv) Standards of Performance; Service Standards and Remuneration/E. INFORMATION AND PUBLICITY ABOUT STANDARDS AND TARGETS/896. Information as to levels of performance.

E. INFORMATION AND PUBLICITY ABOUT STANDARDS AND TARGETS

896. Information as to levels of performance.

The Gas and Electricity Markets Authority ('GEMA')¹ must from time to time collect information with respect to:

- 1622 (1) the compensation made by gas suppliers² under the standards of performance for individual cases³;
- 1623 (2) the levels of overall performance achieved by gas suppliers in connection with the provision of gas supply services⁴;
- 1624 (3) the compensation made by gas transporters⁵ under the standards of performance for individual cases⁶;
- 1625 (4) the levels of overall performance achieved by gas transporters⁷.

At such times as the Authority may direct, each gas supplier must give the following information to the Authority:

- 1626 (a) as respects each prescribed standard for individual cases⁸, the number of cases in which compensation was made and the aggregate amount or value of that compensation; and
- 1627 (b) as respects each standard determined⁹ in relation to overall performance, such information with respect to the level of performance achieved by the supplier as the Authority may direct¹⁰.

Similarly, at such times as the Authority may direct, each gas transporter must give the following information to the Authority:

- 1628 (i) as respects each prescribed standard for individual cases¹¹, the number of cases in which compensation was made and the aggregate amount or value of that compensation; and
- 1629 (ii) as respects each standard determined¹² in relation to overall performance, such information with respect to the level of performance achieved by the transporter as the Authority may direct¹³.

The provision of information about overall performance by gas transporters and gas suppliers to customers or potential customers of gas suppliers has already been discussed¹⁴.

PARTICULAR PROVISIONS RELATING TO GAS/(5) SUPPLY AND USE OF GAS/(iv) Standards of Performance; Service Standards and Remuneration/F. SERVICE STANDARDS AND REMUNERATION/898. Service standards and remuneration of company directors.

F. SERVICE STANDARDS AND REMUNERATION

898. Service standards and remuneration of company directors.

The following provisions apply to any company¹ which is authorised by a licence² to carry on activities subject to price regulation³.

As soon as reasonably practicable after the end of each financial year of the company it must make a statement to the Gas and Electricity Markets Authority ('GEMA')⁴:

- 1632 (1) disclosing whether or not remuneration⁵ has been paid or become due during that financial year to the directors of the company as a result of arrangements for linking the remuneration of the directors of the company to levels of performance as respects service standards⁶ in connection with activities subject to price regulation⁷; and
- 1633 (2) where such remuneration has been paid or become due, describing the arrangements and the remuneration⁸.

A description under head (2) above must include in particular:

- 1634 (a) a statement of when the arrangements were made;
- 1635 (b) a description of the service standards in question;
- 1636 (c) an explanation of the means by which the levels of performance as respects those service standards are assessed; and
- 1637 (d) an explanation of how the remuneration was calculated⁹.

The required statement must also state:

- 1638 (i) whether or not there are in force in respect of the financial year during which the statement is made arrangements such as are described in head (1) above¹⁰; or
- 1639 (ii) if not, whether the company intends that such arrangements will be in force at some time during that financial year, and if there are, or it is intended that there will be, such arrangements in force the statement must describe those arrangements¹¹. Such a description must:

- 1640 (A) include in particular the matters listed in heads (a) to (c) above; and
- 1641 (B) where the arrangements described are different from any arrangements described under head (2) above, state the likely effect of those differences on the remuneration of each director of the company¹².

The required statement must be made to the Authority in such manner as may be required by the Authority¹³. It must be published by the company making the statement in such manner as it reasonably considers will secure adequate publicity for it¹⁴. It may also be published by the Authority in such manner as it may consider appropriate¹⁵.

1 For these purposes, 'company' means a company within the meaning of the Companies Act 1985 or the Companies Act 2006 which is limited by shares: Gas Act 1986 s 33F(10) (s 33F added by the Utilities Act 2000 s 97); Companies Act 2006 s 1297(5).

2 For the meaning of 'licence' see PARA 789 note 9 ante.

3 Gas Act 1986 s 33F(1) (as added: see note 1 supra). 'Activities subject to price regulation', in relation to any company, are activities for which (1) a maximum price which may be charged by the company, or a method for calculating such a maximum price; or (2) a maximum revenue which may be received by the company, or a method for calculating such a maximum revenue, is determined by or under the licence granted under Pt I (ss 4AA-48) (as amended) (see PARA 789 et seq ante, PARA 899 et seq post): s 33F(10) (as so added). As to the enforcement of the requirements so imposed see PARA 968 et seq post; and as to penalties for the contravention of such requirements see PARA 972 et seq post.

4 As to the establishment and general functions of the Gas and Electricity Markets Authority see PARA 708 et seq ante; and as to the use of the abbreviation 'GEMA' in this context see PARA 708 note 5 ante.

5 For these purposes, 'remuneration' in relation to a director of a company (1) means any form of payment, consideration or other benefit (including pension benefit), paid or due to or in respect of the director; and (2) includes remuneration in respect of any of his services while a director of the company: Gas Act 1986 s 33F(10) (as added: see note 1 supra). The duty of a company under s 33F (as so added) applies in respect of any person who has at any time been a director of the company: s 33F(9) (as so added).

6 For these purposes, 'service standards' in relation to any company, means standards relating to the quality of service received by customers or potential customers of the company, including any such standards which are (1) set by or under any conditions included in a licence granted under ibid Pt I (as amended); (2) prescribed by the Authority in regulations made under s 33A (as added and amended) and s 33AA (as added) (standards of performance in individual cases: see PARAS 874-875 ante); (3) determined by the Authority under s 33B (as added and amended) or s 33BA (as added) (overall standards of performance: see PARAS 892-893 ante); or (4) set or agreed to by the company: s 33F(10) (as added: see note 1 supra).

UPDATE

898 Service standards and remuneration of company directors

NOTE 1--Definition of 'company' substituted: SI 2009/1941.

Halsbury's Laws of England/FUEL AND ENERGY (VOLUME 19(1) (2007 REISSUE) PARAS 601-775; VOLUME 19(2) (2007 REISSUE) PARAS 776-1328); VOLUME 19(3) (2007 REISSUE) PARAS 1329-1927)/3. PARTICULAR PROVISIONS RELATING TO GAS/(5) SUPPLY AND USE OF GAS/(v) Gas Standards and Safety/A. STANDARDS OF GAS QUALITY/899. Power to prescribe standards of gas quality.

(v) Gas Standards and Safety

A. STANDARDS OF GAS QUALITY

899. Power to prescribe standards of gas quality.

The Gas and Electricity Markets Authority ('GEMA')¹ may, with the consent of the Secretary of State², prescribe³:

- 1642 (1) standards of pressure and purity to be complied with by gas transporters⁴ in conveying gas to premises⁵ or to pipeline systems operated by other gas transporters; and
- 1643 (2) other standards with respect to the properties, condition and composition of gas so conveyed⁶.

Before making any regulations under these provisions the Authority must consult such persons and organisations as it considers appropriate and such gas transporters as appear to it to be affected by the regulations⁷. The Authority may by notice in writing require a gas transporter to give to the Authority, or to any person appointed by it for the purpose, within such time and at such place as may be specified in the notice, such information⁸ as the Authority may reasonably require for the purpose of making such regulations or of giving directions under such regulations⁹; but a gas transporter is not to be so required to give any information which he could not be compelled to give in evidence in civil proceedings before the High Court¹⁰.

Such regulations may make provision:

- 1644 (a) for requiring tests of gas conveyed by gas transporters to be carried out by persons appointed by the Authority¹¹ or by gas transporters for the purpose of ascertaining whether the gas conforms with the standards prescribed by the regulations¹²;
- 1645 (b) for requiring such tests to be carried out on the basis of samples taken by persons so appointed or by gas transporters¹³;
- 1646 (c) for requiring samples of gas taken under head (b) above to be provided by gas transporters for the purpose of carrying out such tests¹⁴;
- 1647 (d) for requiring such premises, apparatus and equipment as the Authority may direct to be provided and maintained by gas transporters for the purpose of carrying out tests required under head (a) above¹⁵;
- 1648 (e) for requiring tests of apparatus and equipment so provided to be carried out by persons appointed¹⁶ by the Authority¹⁷;
- 1649 (f) for requiring gas transporters to carry out tests of apparatus and equipment so provided and maintained by them¹⁸;
- 1650 (g) as to the places or premises and the times at which, and the manner in which, tests under these provisions are to be carried out, samples of gas are to be taken and provided under these provisions and results of tests under these provisions are to be notified or made available¹⁹;

- 1651 (h) for the Authority to require by direction any matter which may be required by regulations by virtue of head (g) above²⁰;
- 1652 (i) for persons representing the gas transporter concerned to be present during the carrying out of any tests carried out by persons appointed²¹ by the Authority²²;
- 1653 (j) for the results of tests under these provisions to be made available to other licence holders²³ and to the public²⁴;
- 1654 (k) for requiring gas transporters to notify the results of such tests carried out by them to the Authority or to any person appointed²⁵ by the Authority²⁶;
- 1655 (l) for conferring powers of entry on property owned or occupied by gas transporters for the purpose of carrying out tests under these provisions and otherwise for the purposes of the regulations²⁷.

The Authority must appoint competent and impartial persons for the purpose of:

- 1656 (i) carrying out tests of gas, apparatus or equipment in accordance with regulations under these provisions; and
- 1657 (ii) assisting the Authority in exercising functions under these provisions and regulations made under them²⁸.

Every person who is a gas transporter during any period must pay to the Authority such proportion as the Authority may determine of such part of its expenses for that period as the Authority may determine to be attributable to its functions in connection with the testing of gas for these purposes²⁹. It is the duty of every gas transporter to conduct his business in such a way as can reasonably be expected to secure compliance with the standards set under heads (1) and (2) above³⁰.

UPDATE

899 Power to prescribe standards of gas quality

NOTES--Certain functions under provisions mentioned in this paragraph are 'relevant functions' for the purposes of the Regulatory Enforcement and Sanctions Act 2008 s 4, Sch 3, see LOCAL GOVERNMENT vol 69 (2009) PARA 733.

Halsbury's Laws of England/FUEL AND ENERGY (VOLUME 19(1) (2007 REISSUE) PARAS 601-775; VOLUME 19(2) (2007 REISSUE) PARAS 776-1328); VOLUME 19(3) (2007 REISSUE) PARAS 1329-1927)/3. PARTICULAR PROVISIONS RELATING TO GAS/(5) SUPPLY AND USE OF GAS/(v) Gas Standards and Safety/B. RIGHTS OF ENTRY FOR GAS SAFETY PURPOSES/900. Gas safety regulations.

B. RIGHTS OF ENTRY FOR GAS SAFETY PURPOSES

900. Gas safety regulations.

The Secretary of State¹ may make provision by regulations for empowering any officer² authorised by the relevant authority³:

- 1658 (1) to enter any premises in which there is a service pipe⁴ connected with a gas main, for the purpose of inspecting any gas fitting⁵ on the premises, any flue or means of ventilation used in connection with any such gas fitting, or any part of the gas system on the premises, that is to say any service pipe or other apparatus (not being a gas fitting) which is on the premises and is used for the conveyance or supply of gas⁶ or is connected with a gas main⁷;
- 1659 (2) where he so enters any such premises, to examine or apply any test to any such object as is mentioned in head (1) above and, where that object is a gas fitting, to verify what supply of air is available for it⁸; and
- 1660 (3) where in his opinion it is necessary to do so for the purpose of averting danger to life or property, and notwithstanding any contract previously existing, to disconnect and seal off any gas fitting or any part of the gas system on the premises, or disconnect the premises or, if the premises are not connected, to signify the refusal of the relevant authority to convey gas or, as the case may be, allow gas to be conveyed to the premises⁹.

Such regulations may also make provision for prohibiting any person, except with the consent of the relevant authority or in pursuance of any directions¹⁰ given by the Secretary of State, from:

- 1661 (a) reconnecting any gas fitting or any part of any gas system which has been disconnected by or on behalf of the relevant authority in exercise of a power conferred by the regulations¹¹; or
- 1662 (b) reconnecting any premises which have been disconnected by or on behalf of the relevant authority in the exercise of any such power¹²; or
- 1663 (c) causing gas from a gas main to be conveyed to any premises where in pursuance of the regulations the refusal of the relevant authority to convey gas or, as the case may be, allow gas to be conveyed to those premises has been signified and that refusal has not been withdrawn¹³.

Any person contravening or failing to comply with any provision of the regulations so made¹⁴ is guilty of an offence and liable on summary conviction to a fine not exceeding level 5 on the standard scale¹⁵.

Where in pursuance of any powers conferred by regulations made under heads (1) to (3) above, entry is made on any premises by an officer authorised by the relevant authority, the officer must ensure that the premises are left no less secure by reason of the entry and the relevant authority must make good, or pay compensation for, any damage caused by the officer, or by any person accompanying him in entering the premises¹⁶, in taking any action therein authorised by the regulations, or in making the premises secure¹⁷.

If any person intentionally obstructs any officer exercising powers of entry conferred by regulations so made, he is guilty of an offence and liable on summary conviction to a fine not exceeding level 3 on the standard scale¹⁸.

The Rights of Entry (Gas and Electricity Boards) Act 1954, which restricts rights of entry to premises, except in a case of emergency, so that either the occupier's consent or a justice's warrant is required¹⁹, applies in relation to any powers of entry conferred by regulations made under heads (1) to (3) above as if any reference to a gas operator were a reference to the relevant authority²⁰.

1 As to the Secretary of State see PARA 601 note 1 ante.

2 For the meaning of 'officer' see PARA 867 note 1 ante; and see also PARA 867 note 2 ante. In the Gas Safety (Rights of Entry) Regulations 1996, SI 1996/2535 (as amended) (see notes 7-9, 11-13 infra; the text and notes 14-15 infra; and PARAS 901-902 post), any reference to an officer authorised by a gas transporter and, where the relevant authority is a gas transporter, any reference to an officer authorised by such authority, includes a reference to any officer authorised by another such transporter with whom the transporter or authority has made arrangements for officers authorised by the other transporter to discharge any functions under those regulations of officers authorised by the transporter or authority: reg 2(1) (amended by virtue of the Utilities Act 2000 s 76(7)).

3 For these purposes, 'the relevant authority' (1) in relation to dangers arising from the conveyance of gas by a gas transporter, or from the use of gas conveyed by such a transporter, means that transporter; and (2) in relation to dangers arising from the conveyance of gas by a person other than a gas transporter, or from the use of gas conveyed by such a person, means the Secretary of State: Gas Act 1986 s 18(9) (s 18(9) substituted, and s 18(10)-(11) added, by the Gas Act 1995 s 10(1), Sch 3 para 14(4); amended by the Utilities Act 2000 s 108, Sch 6 Pt I paras 1, 2(1)). This definition is applied by the Gas Safety (Rights of Entry) Regulations 1996, SI 1996/2535, reg 2(1). Where the relevant authority is a gas transporter, any reference in the Gas Act 1986 s 18 (as amended) to any officer authorised by the authority includes a reference to any officer authorised by another such transporter with whom the authority has made arrangements for officers authorised by the other transporter to discharge any functions of the authority under s 18 (as amended): s 18(10) (as so added and amended). Except in cases of emergency, no officer must be authorised by a gas transporter to exercise any powers of entry conferred by regulations under s 18 (as amended) unless the transporter has taken all reasonable steps to ensure that he is a fit and proper person to exercise those powers: s 18(11) (as so added and amended). As to the enforcement of this requirement see PARA 968 et seq post; and as to penalties for the contravention of this requirement see PARA 972 et seq post. For the meaning of 'gas' see PARA 802 ante.

4 For the meaning of 'service pipe' see PARA 842 note 3 ante.

Where any regulations under the Gas Act 1986 s 18(2) (as amended) confer any power in accordance with s 18(2)(c) (as so amended), they must also include provision (1) for securing that, where any such power is exercised, the consumer will be notified as to the nature of the defect or other circumstances in consequence of which it has been exercised; (2) for enabling any consumer so notified to appeal to the Secretary of State on the grounds that the defect or other circumstances in question did not constitute a danger such as to justify the action taken in the exercise of the power, or did not exist or has or have ceased to exist; and (3) for enabling the Secretary of State to give such directions as may in accordance with the regulations be determined by him to be appropriate in consequence of any such appeal: s 18(3). Where an officer authorised by the relevant authority takes any action in relation to any premises in the exercise of a power conferred by the Gas Safety (Rights of Entry) Regulations 1996, SI 1996/2535, reg 5(c), the relevant authority must, within five clear working days after the action is taken, serve on the consumer a notice in writing: (a) specifying (i) the nature of the defect or other circumstance in consequence of which the power has been exercised; and (ii) the nature of the danger in question and the action taken in the exercise of the power; and (b) stating (i) that the consumer has a right of appeal under the 1996 Regulations to the Secretary of State against the action taken in exercise of the power within the period of 21 days beginning with the date of service of the notice, or such longer period as the Secretary of State may at any time in any particular case allow; (ii) the grounds on which and the manner in which he can appeal; and (iii) the effect of regs 9 and 10 (prohibition of reconnection etc and penalties: see notes 11-13 infra, and the text and notes 14-15 infra): reg 6(1). Where an officer authorised by the relevant authority takes any action in relation to any premises in the exercise of a power conferred by reg 5(c), he must at the same time, in accordance with reg 6(3), affix prominently a notice of the effect of the relevant part of regs 9 and 10: reg 6(2). The notice so required must be affixed (A) where a gas fitting or any part of the gas system on the premises has been disconnected or sealed off, to, or to part of the premises near to, the gas fitting or part of the gas system in question; or (B) where the premises have been disconnected, to, or to a part of the premises near to, the meter nearest downstream to the point of disconnection, or, if there is no such meter, to a conspicuous part of the premises; or (C) where the relevant authority has signified its refusal to convey gas or, as the case may be, allow gas to be conveyed to the premises, to, or to a part of the premises near to, the meter nearest downstream to the point from which gas would be so conveyed, or, if there is no such meter, to a conspicuous part of the premises: reg 6(3). 'Working day' does not include a Saturday, Sunday or a bank or other public holiday: reg 2(1). As to appeals see PARA 901 post.

The prohibitions imposed by reg 9(1)(a) and (b) do not apply (1) in the course of the repairing or testing of any gas fitting or any part of a gas system; or (2) where all necessary steps have been taken to remedy and prevent a recurrence of the defect or other circumstance in respect of which the disconnection was carried out: reg 9(2).

PARTICULAR PROVISIONS RELATING TO GAS/(5) SUPPLY AND USE OF GAS/(v) Gas Standards and Safety/B. RIGHTS OF ENTRY FOR GAS SAFETY PURPOSES/901. Consumers' rights of appeal against disconnections made on entry under the safety regulations.

901. Consumers' rights of appeal against disconnections made on entry under the safety regulations.

Where an officer authorised by the relevant authority¹ has taken action to disconnect and seal off any gas fitting² or any part of the gas system on the premises, or to disconnect the premises or, if the premises are not connected, to signify the refusal of the relevant authority to convey gas or, as the case may be, allow gas to be conveyed to the premises in circumstances where in his opinion it is necessary to do so for the purpose of averting danger to life or property³, the consumer on whom the required notice following such action⁴ is served may, within the period of 21 days beginning with the date of service of the notice, or such longer period as the Secretary of State⁵ may at any time in any particular case allow, appeal to the Secretary of State against the action so taken on any of the following grounds, that is to say:

- 1664 (1) that the defect or other circumstances specified in the notice did not constitute a danger such as to justify the action taken specified in the notice;
- 1665 (2) that the defect or other circumstances so specified did not exist at the time the action was taken; or
- 1666 (3) that the defect or other circumstances so specified has or have ceased to exist⁶.

Such an appeal is of no effect unless it is made by notice in writing given to the Secretary of State for the time being discharging the relevant functions⁷ at his principal office and indicates the grounds of the appeal⁸.

On any such appeal the Secretary of State may, if either the consumer or the relevant authority so desires, afford to each of them an opportunity of appearing before, and being heard by, a person appointed by the Secretary of State for the purpose⁹.

On the determination of the appeal the Secretary of State may direct that, subject to any right of a conveyor of gas to refuse to convey gas to the premises:

- 1667 (a) any gas fitting or part of the gas system on the premises which has been disconnected under the relevant safety regulations¹⁰ is either to remain disconnected or must or may be reconnected;
- 1668 (b) any premises which have been disconnected under those regulations are either to remain disconnected or must or may be reconnected; or
- 1669 (c) where the refusal of the relevant authority to convey gas or, as the case may be, allow gas to be conveyed has been signified under those regulations, the conveyor either must not convey gas or must or may cause gas to be conveyed to the premises, and may give such supplementary directions as he considers to be appropriate in consequence of the appeal¹¹.

PARTICULAR PROVISIONS RELATING TO GAS/(5) SUPPLY AND USE OF GAS/(v) Gas Standards and Safety/B. RIGHTS OF ENTRY FOR GAS SAFETY PURPOSES/902. Gas escape regulations.

902. Gas escape regulations.

The Secretary of State¹ may by regulations make provision:

- 1670 (1) for empowering any officer² authorised by a gas transporter³, if the transporter has reasonable cause to suspect:
- 129
196. (a) that gas⁴ conveyed by the transporter is escaping, or may escape, in any premises; or
197. (b) that gas so conveyed which has escaped has entered, or may enter, any premises,
- 130
- 1671 to enter the premises, to carry out any work necessary to prevent the escape of gas and to take any other steps necessary to avert danger to life or property⁵; and
- 1672 (2) for empowering any officer so authorised, if the transporter has reasonable cause to suspect:
- 131
198. (a) that gas conveyed through pipes⁶ by some other person is escaping, or may escape, in any premises; or
199. (b) that gas so conveyed which has escaped has entered, or may enter, any premises,
- 132
- 1673 to enter the premises and take any steps necessary to avert danger to life or property⁷.

The right of entry conferred by the regulations made in pursuance of head (2) above is not exercisable otherwise than in respect of:

- 1674 (i) premises within an authorised area⁸ of the gas transporter in question; or
- 1675 (ii) premises which that gas transporter reasonably believed to be in such an area at the time when he first had cause to suspect an escape of gas⁹.

Where in pursuance of any powers conferred by regulations made under heads (1) and (2) above, entry is made on any premises by an officer authorised by a gas transporter, the officer must ensure that the premises are left no less secure by reason of the entry and the gas transporter must make good, or pay compensation for, any damage caused by the officer, or by any person accompanying him in entering the premises¹⁰, in taking any action therein authorised by the regulations, or in making the premises secure¹¹.

If any person intentionally obstructs any officer exercising powers of entry conferred by regulations so made, he is guilty of an offence and liable on summary conviction to a fine not exceeding level 3 on the standard scale¹².

The Rights of Entry (Gas and Electricity Boards) Act 1954, which restricts rights of entry to premises, except in a case of emergency, so that either the occupier's consent or a justice's warrant is required¹³, applies in relation to any powers of entry conferred by regulations made under heads (1) and (2) above¹⁴.

1 As to the Secretary of State see PARA 601 note 1 ante.

2 For the meaning of 'officer' see PARA 867 note 1 ante.

3 For the meaning of 'gas transporter' see PARA 805 ante. Any reference for these purposes to any officer authorised by a gas transporter includes a reference to any officer authorised by another such transporter with whom the transporter has made arrangements for officers authorised by the other transporter to discharge any functions under the Gas Act 1986 s 18A (as added and amended) of officers authorised by the transporter: s 18A(4) (s 18A added by the Gas Act 1995 s 10(1), Sch 3 para 15; amended by the Utilities Act 2000 s 108, Sch 6 Pt I paras 1, 2(1)). See also PARA 900 note 2 ante.

Except in cases of emergency, no officer must be authorised by a gas transporter to exercise any powers of entry conferred by regulations under s 18A (as added and amended) unless the transporter has taken all reasonable steps to ensure that he is a fit and proper person to exercise those powers: s 18(11) (added by the Gas Act 1995 Sch 3 para 14(4); amended by the Utilities Act 2000 Sch 6 Pt I paras 1, 2(1); applied with modifications by the Gas Act 1986 s 18A(2) (as so added and amended)).

The Gas Safety (Rights of Entry) Regulations 1996, SI 1996/2535 (as amended), do not apply to a gas processing facility within the meaning of the Gas Safety (Management) Regulations 1996, SI 1996/551, reg 2(1) (see PARA 903 note 2 post) in respect of gas which escapes in the course of being processed or stored in connection with such process at that facility: Gas Safety (Rights of Entry) Regulations 1996, SI 1996/2535, reg 3.

Halsbury's Laws of England/FUEL AND ENERGY (VOLUME 19(1) (2007 REISSUE) PARAS 601-775; VOLUME 19(2) (2007 REISSUE) PARAS 776-1328); VOLUME 19(3) (2007 REISSUE) PARAS 1329-1927)/3. PARTICULAR PROVISIONS RELATING TO GAS/(5) SUPPLY AND USE OF GAS/(v) Gas Standards and Safety/C. SAFETY MANAGEMENT WITH REGARD TO GAS/903. Duties on persons conveying gas.

C. SAFETY MANAGEMENT WITH REGARD TO GAS

903. Duties on persons conveying gas.

No person must convey gas¹ in a network² unless:

- 1676 (1) he has prepared a safety case³ containing the prescribed particulars⁴ and that safety case has been accepted by the Health and Safety Executive⁵; and
- 1677 (2) where any other person is conveying gas in that network, there is a sole network emergency co-ordinator for the network⁶.

For these purposes, a network emergency co-ordinator is⁷ a person who has prepared a safety case containing the prescribed particulars⁸ and has had that safety case accepted by the Executive⁹; but where a network emergency co-ordinator has given written notice to the Executive and to all persons conveying gas in the network that he no longer intends to act in that capacity, he is not to be the network emergency co-ordinator for the statutory purposes from the time such notice takes effect, which must not be less than six months after it was given¹⁰.

Nothing in the relevant regulations¹¹ prevents a person who conveys gas in a network from also being the network emergency co-ordinator¹².

A fee is payable to the Executive by a person conveying gas who has prepared a safety case¹³ pursuant to the above provisions, or by a network emergency co-ordinator, for the performance by or on behalf of the Executive, or by an inspector appointed by it, of any function conferred on the Executive or the inspector by the Health and Safety at Work etc Act 1974 which relates to the enforcement of any of the relevant statutory provisions¹⁴ against one or other or both of the following:

- 1678 (a) that person in relation to the network to which the safety case relates; or
- 1679 (b) a contractor in relation to work carried out by him on or in connection with that network¹⁵, in so far as such enforcement is for the purpose of protecting persons from risks arising from the manner in which gas is conveyed or used¹⁶.

1 For these purposes, 'gas' means any substance in a gaseous state which consists wholly or mainly of methane: Gas Safety (Management) Regulations 1996, SI 1996/551, reg 2(1). Any reference for these purposes to the conveyance of gas is a reference to the conveyance of gas through pipes (reg 2(7)); and any reference to a person conveying gas is a reference to a person who does so in the course of a business or other undertaking carried on by him (reg 2(11)). 'Pipe' includes a pipeline, distribution main, service pipe and any ancillary plant connected to a pipe and used for the conveyance of gas, but it does not include a pipe downstream of an emergency control: reg 2(1). 'Distribution main' means any main through which a transporter is for the time being distributing gas and which is not being used only for the purpose of conveying gas in bulk; 'emergency control' means a valve for shutting off the supply of gas in an emergency, being a valve intended for use by a consumer of gas; and 'service pipe' means a pipe for distributing gas to premises from a distribution main, being any pipe between the distribution main and the outlet of the first emergency control downstream from the distribution main: see the Gas Safety (Installation and Use) Regulations 1998, SI 1998/2451, reg 2(1) (definitions applied by the Gas Safety (Management) Regulations 1996, SI 1996/551, reg 2(1); and by virtue of the Interpretation Act 1978 s 17(2)).

2 Any reference for these purposes to a network is, subject to the Gas Safety (Management) Regulations 1996, SI 1996/551, reg 2(3), (4), a reference to a connected network of pipes used for the conveyance of gas from a gas processing facility, a storage facility or an interconnector, except a connected network of pipes used exclusively for conveying gas to non-domestic premises: reg 2(2). A network does not include pipes upstream from a junction on a pipe used exclusively for conveying gas to an electricity generating station; and this reference to a junction on a pipe used exclusively for conveying gas to an electricity generating station is a reference to the point where the upstream end of the pipe joins a pipe used for another purpose: reg 2(3). Where gas which does not conform with the requirements referred to in reg 8(1) (see PARA 908 post) is conveyed from a gas processing facility for treatment or blending so as to bring it into conformity with those requirements, any pipes used exclusively for conveying gas from that facility to the point where the gas is treated or blended or to non-domestic premises or to both, are not to be treated as part of a network for these purposes: reg 2(4). 'Gas processing facility' means any gas processing facility which (1) blends or purifies gas, removes from gas any of its constituent gases or separates from gas any oil or water; and (2) is situated at a terminal which receives gas directly or indirectly from a gas production facility; 'gas production facility' means a facility for the extraction of gas from strata or for the manufacture of gas; and 'interconnector' means a pipeline used for the conveyance of gas to Great Britain from another country: reg 2(1). For the meaning of 'Great Britain' see PARA 602 note 7 ante.

Any reference for these purposes to conveying gas in a network includes a reference to conveying gas in any part of the network: reg 2(8).

3 Any reference for these purposes to a safety case is a reference to a document containing the particulars required by the provision of the Gas Safety (Management) Regulations 1996, SI 1996/551 (as amended), pursuant to which the safety case is prepared, and (1) in so far as the document contains other particulars it is not to be treated as part of the safety case for the purposes of those regulations; (2) nothing in those regulations requires the particulars to relate to a source of risk other than the gas itself: reg 2(5). For these purposes, any reference to a person preparing a safety case is a reference to a person who does so in the course of a business or other undertaking carried on by him: reg 2(11).

4 The particulars specified in ibid reg 3(1), Sch 1 (as amended). Those particulars are as follows (see Sch 1 (paras 1-21) (amended by SI 1999/3242), ie:

- 38 (1) general matters:
 24. (a) name and address of the person preparing the safety case ('the duty holder');
24
 25. (b) a description of the operation intended to be undertaken by the duty holder;
25
 26. (c) a general description of the plant and premises the duty holder intends to use in connection with the operation including, in particular, the geographical location where any pipes he uses joins pipes used by other persons for conveying gas;
26
 27. (d) particulars of any technical specifications and procedures or arrangements relating to operation and maintenance which the duty holder intends to follow in connection with the operation he intends to undertake in so far as they affect the health and safety of persons;

28
 29. (b) particulars to demonstrate that the management system of the duty holder is adequate to ensure that the relevant statutory provisions will (in respect of matters within his control) be complied with in relation to the operation he intends to undertake;
29
 30. (c) particulars to demonstrate that the duty holder has established adequate arrangements for ensuring the competence of his employees in health and safety matters;

- 30
31. (d) particulars to demonstrate that the duty holder has established adequate arrangements for managing work carried out by persons who are not his employees on or in relation to plant or premises which he owns or controls;
31
32. (e) particulars to demonstrate that the duty holder has established adequate arrangements for passing information relevant to health and safety to persons within his undertaking;
32
33. (f) particulars to demonstrate that the duty holder has established adequate arrangements for passing and receiving information relevant to health and safety to and from other persons who have duties under the Gas Safety (Management) Regulations 1996, SI 1996/551 (as amended);

- 41 (4) gas escapes and investigations:
35. (a) particulars of the arrangements (i) the duty holder and any emergency service provider appointed by him have established to enable him or the provider, as the case may be, to comply with reg 7(4)-(6) (see PARA 907 post); (ii) the duty holder has established to appoint emergency service providers;
35
36. (b) particulars to demonstrate that the duty holder has established adequate arrangements to enable him to comply with reg 7(12), (13), (15) and (16) (see PARA 907 post), for co-ordinating the investigations he causes to be carried out pursuant to reg 7 with other investigations carried out pursuant thereto, and for participating in such other investigations;
36
- 42 (5) content and other characteristics of gas: particulars to demonstrate that the duty holder has established adequate arrangements to ensure that all gas he conveys complies with reg 8 (see PARA 908 post);
- 43 (6) continuity of supply:

40
41. (c) without prejudice to head (a) supra, particulars of the procedures that the duty holder has established to discontinue safely supply to consumers, when it is known there is insufficient gas to satisfy demand;
41
42. (d) particulars of the procedures that the duty holder has established to restore safely the gas supply to consumers, following an interruption in supply.

42

For the purposes of Sch 1 (as amended), 'audit' means systematic assessment of the adequacy of the management system to achieve the purpose referred to in Sch 1 para 6 (see head (2)(b) supra) carried out by persons who are sufficiently independent of the system (but who may be employed by the duty holder) to ensure that such assessment is objective; 'management system' means the organisation and arrangements established by the duty holder for managing his undertaking; and any reference to an operation intended to be undertaken by the duty holder is a reference to his intended operation of conveying gas in a network: Sch 1 para 22. For the purposes of the Gas Safety (Management) Regulations 1996, SI 1996/551 (as amended), 'supply emergency' means an emergency endangering persons and arising from a loss of pressure in a network or any part thereof (reg 2(1)); and any reference, in relation to a network, to the network emergency co-ordinator is a reference to the network emergency co-ordinator who has prepared and had accepted a safety case relating to that network pursuant to reg 3(2) (see the text and notes 7-9 infra) or reg 10(4) (transitional provisions) (reg 2(10)).

5 Any reference for these purposes to the Executive accepting a safety case or revision thereof is a reference to the Executive notifying in writing the person who prepared it that it is satisfied with the case for health and safety made out in it: ibid reg 2(1). As to the Health and Safety Executive see HEALTH AND SAFETY AT WORK vol 52 (2009) PARA 361 et seq.

A person who has prepared a safety case¹ pursuant to the relevant regulations² must revise its contents whenever it is appropriate, but nothing in this provision requires him to have the revision accepted by the Health and Safety Executive³. In determining for these purposes whether a proposed revision will render the safety case materially different from the version referred to above, regard must be had to the cumulative effect of that proposed revision and any previous revisions made⁶ but not subject to that requirement of acceptance⁷.

A person who has prepared a safety case which has been accepted by the Executive⁸ must make a thorough review of its contents at least every three years⁹.

905. Duty to conform with safety case.

Where a person has prepared and has had accepted a safety case¹ pursuant to the relevant regulations² he must ensure, so long as he conveys gas³ in the network⁴ to which the safety case relates or remains a network emergency co-ordinator⁵, as the case may be, that the procedures and arrangements described in the safety case and any revision thereof are followed⁶.

In criminal proceedings for a contravention of the above provision⁷ it is, however, a defence for the accused to prove that:

- 1680 (1) in the particular circumstances of the case it was not in the best interests of health and safety to follow the procedures or arrangements concerned and there was insufficient time to revise the safety case⁸; or
- 1681 (2) the commission of the offence was due to a contravention by another person of the duty to co-operate⁹ and the accused had taken all reasonable precautions and exercised all due diligence to ensure that the procedures or arrangements were followed¹⁰.

Halsbury's Laws of England/FUEL AND ENERGY (VOLUME 19(1) (2007 REISSUE) PARAS 601-775; VOLUME 19(2) (2007 REISSUE) PARAS 776-1328); VOLUME 19(3) (2007 REISSUE) PARAS 1329-1927)/3. PARTICULAR PROVISIONS RELATING TO GAS/(5) SUPPLY AND USE OF GAS/(v) Gas Standards and Safety/C. SAFETY MANAGEMENT WITH REGARD TO GAS/906. Duty of co-operation.

906. Duty of co-operation.

Every person to whom this provision applies, namely:

- 1682 (1) a person conveying gas¹ in the network²;
- 1683 (2) an emergency service provider³;
- 1684 (3) the network emergency co-ordinator⁴ in relation to a person conveying gas;
- 1685 (4) a person conveying gas in pipes⁵ which are not part of a network⁶;
- 1686 (5) the holder of a gas supplier or gas shipper licence⁷;
- 1687 (6) a person exempted⁸ from the statutory prohibition on certain unlicensed activities⁹;
- 1688 (7) the person in control of a gas production facility¹⁰, a gas processing facility¹¹, a storage facility or an interconnector¹² supplying gas¹³ to the network, must co-operate so far as is necessary with a person conveying gas in a network and with a network emergency co-ordinator to enable them to comply with the provisions¹⁴ of the relevant regulations¹⁵.

A person conveying gas in a network may¹⁶ direct a person not to consume gas for the period specified in the direction¹⁷. Such a direction may:

- 1689 (a) only be given where it is necessary to prevent a supply emergency¹⁸ or to prevent danger arising from the use of gas not conforming with the prescribed requirements¹⁹;
- 1690 (b) be given orally or in writing and may be withdrawn at any time²⁰.

Where a direction is so given to a person, that person must comply with it during the period specified in the direction except that this does not require him to comply with a direction after it has been withdrawn²¹. In criminal proceedings for a contravention of this requirement²², it is a defence for the accused to prove that he had no knowledge of the direction²³.

A person who conveys gas in a network must, where he is requested to do so by a person proposing to carry out work in relation to a gas fitting²⁴, provide him with information about the operating pressures of the gas at the outlet of a service pipe²⁵.

UPDATE

903-910 Safety Management With Regard to Gas

Certain functions under provisions mentioned in these paragraphs are 'relevant functions' for the purposes of the Regulatory Enforcement and Sanctions Act 2008 s 4, Sch 3: see LOCAL GOVERNMENT vol 69 (2009) PARA 733.

Halsbury's Laws of England/FUEL AND ENERGY (VOLUME 19(1) (2007 REISSUE) PARAS 601-775; VOLUME 19(2) (2007 REISSUE) PARAS 776-1328); VOLUME 19(3) (2007 REISSUE) PARAS 1329-1927)/3. PARTICULAR PROVISIONS RELATING TO GAS/(5) SUPPLY AND USE OF GAS/(v) Gas Standards and Safety/C. SAFETY MANAGEMENT WITH REGARD TO GAS/907. Gas escapes and investigations.

907. Gas escapes and investigations.

It is the duty of British Gas plc to provide a continuously manned telephone service (which must be contactable within Great Britain by the use of one telephone number) for enabling persons to report an escape of gas¹ from a network² or from a gas fitting³ supplied with gas from a network⁴. Where British Gas plc is notified of such an escape of gas it must, if it is not responsible for preventing the escape⁵, report it forthwith to the person who is⁶.

A person conveying gas in the network⁷, an emergency service provider⁸, the network emergency co-ordinator⁹ in relation to a person conveying gas¹⁰ and the holder of a gas supplier licence¹¹ who discovers or is notified of any such escape of gas, other than by virtue of a report made to him pursuant to the above provision¹², must report it forthwith to British Gas plc¹³.

Where:

- 1691 (1) any gas escapes from a network, the person conveying the gas in the part of the network from which the gas escapes must, as soon as is reasonably practicable after being so informed of the escape, attend the place where the gas is escaping, and within 12 hours of being so informed of the escape, he must prevent the gas escaping¹⁴;
- 1692 (2) any gas escapes from a gas fitting supplied with gas from a network, the person conveying the gas in the part of the network immediately upstream of the emergency control¹⁵ for the supply of gas to that fitting must, as soon as is reasonably practicable after being so informed of the escape, attend the place where the gas is escaping, and within 12 hours of being so informed of the escape, he must prevent the gas escaping¹⁶;
- 1693 (3) a person conveying gas in a network has reasonable cause to suspect that gas conveyed by him which has escaped has entered, or may enter, any premises, he must, so far as is reasonably practicable, take all the steps necessary to avert danger to persons from such entry¹⁷.

A person conveying gas may appoint another person to act on his behalf to prevent an escape of gas, and where he does so in advance of discovering or being notified of such an escape, he must notify British Gas plc of the name of the person appointed¹⁸. The appointee is to be responsible, in relation to the escape, for complying with heads (1) to (3) above in substitution for the person conveying the gas, and head (3) above has effect as if the reference to the person conveying gas having reasonable cause to suspect that the gas has entered or may enter premises were a reference to the appointee having such cause¹⁹.

In any proceedings against a person for an offence consisting of a contravention of head (1) or head (2) above²⁰, in so far as the contravention is not preventing the escape of gas within the period of 12 hours referred to in those heads, it is a defence for the person to prove that it was not reasonably practicable for him effectually to prevent the gas from escaping within that period, and that he did effectually prevent the escape of gas as soon as it was reasonably practicable for him to do so²¹.

If the responsible person²² for any premises knows or has reason to suspect that gas is escaping from a gas fitting in those premises supplied with gas from a network he must immediately take all reasonable steps to cause the supply of gas to be shut off at such place as may be necessary to prevent further escape of gas²³. If gas continues to escape into those premises after the supply of gas has been shut off or when a smell of gas persists, the responsible person for the premises discovering such escape or smell must immediately give notice of the escape or smell to British Gas plc²⁴. Where an escape of gas has been stopped by shutting off the supply, no person must cause or permit the supply to be reopened, other than in the course of repair, until all necessary steps have been taken to prevent a recurrence of such escape²⁵.

Where:

- 1694 (a) an escape of gas from a gas fitting on domestic premises has resulted in a fire or explosion²⁶, the person conveying the gas in the part of the network immediately upstream of the emergency control for the supply of gas to that fitting must, as soon as is reasonably practicable after receiving notice of the fire or explosion, cause an investigation to be carried out so as to establish, so far as is reasonably practicable, whether the escape was from installation pipework²⁷ or from an appliance, and if so from which appliance²⁸;
- 1695 (b) an escape of gas from a network has or was likely to have resulted in a fire or explosion, the person conveying the gas in the part of the network where the gas escaped must, as soon as is reasonably practicable after receiving notice of the escape, cause an investigation to be carried out so as to establish the source of the escape and, so far as is reasonably practicable, the reason for it²⁹;
- 1696 (c) a notifiable incident³⁰ has arisen as a result of an escape of carbon monoxide gas from incomplete combustion of gas in a gas fitting, the person who supplied the gas³¹ must, as soon as is reasonably practicable after receiving notice of the incident, cause an investigation to be carried out so as to establish, so far as is reasonably practicable, the cause of the escape and accumulation of the carbon monoxide gas³²;
- 1697 (d) a person who conveys gas receives notice of an incident referred to in head (c) above, he must, as soon as is reasonably practicable, inform the relevant gas supplier of that fact³³.

A person who causes an investigation to be carried out pursuant to head (a), head (b) or head (c) above must:

- 1698 (i) ensure that the individuals who carry it out are competent;
- 1699 (ii) notify the Health and Safety Executive³⁴ before the investigation begins of the intention to carry it out;
- 1700 (iii) ensure that a report of the investigation is prepared and a copy of it is sent to the Executive as soon as is reasonably practicable after the investigation has been completed³⁵.

The network emergency co-ordinator⁶ may, however, where it is necessary to prevent a supply emergency⁷ and in accordance with the arrangements specified in his safety case⁸, authorise, for the period specified in the authorisation, gas not conforming with those requirements to be conveyed in the network if the gas conforms with the requirements prescribed⁹ as to its content and other characteristics in such circumstances¹⁰. Such an authorisation may be given orally or in writing and may be withdrawn at any time¹¹.

Where only one person conveys gas in a network, he may, where it is necessary to prevent a supply emergency and in accordance with the arrangements specified in his safety case¹², convey gas which does not conform with the requirements prescribed as to its content and other characteristics in normal conditions¹³ if the gas conforms with the requirements prescribed¹⁴ as to its content and other characteristics in such circumstances¹⁵.

A person who conveys gas in a network must ensure that suitable and sufficient tests are carried out to ensure that the gas conforms with whichever of the above requirements is appropriate¹⁶.

903-910 Safety Management With Regard to Gas

Certain functions under provisions mentioned in these paragraphs are 'relevant functions' for the purposes of the Regulatory Enforcement and Sanctions Act 2008 s 4, Sch 3: see LOCAL GOVERNMENT vol 69 (2009) PARA 733.

Halsbury's Laws of England/FUEL AND ENERGY (VOLUME 19(1) (2007 REISSUE) PARAS 601-775; VOLUME 19(2) (2007 REISSUE) PARAS 776-1328); VOLUME 19(3) (2007 REISSUE) PARAS 1329-1927)/3. PARTICULAR PROVISIONS RELATING TO GAS/(5) SUPPLY AND USE OF GAS/(v) Gas Standards and Safety/D. SAFE INSTALLATION AND USE OF GAS FITTINGS AND APPLIANCES/(A) In general/911. Application of safety regulations.

D. SAFE INSTALLATION AND USE OF GAS FITTINGS AND APPLIANCES

(A) IN GENERAL

911. Application of safety regulations.

The Secretary of State¹ has made health and safety regulations² governing the installation and use of gas fittings³, meters and regulators⁴, installation pipework⁵ and gas appliances⁶ and making provision with regard to maintenance⁷ and miscellaneous matters⁸.

Nothing in those regulations, however, applies in relation to:

- 1710 (1) the supply of gas to, or anything done in respect of a gas fitting on:
133
- 200. (a) a self-propelled vehicle except when such a vehicle is either hired out in the course of a business or made available to members of the public in the course of a business carried on from that vehicle;
- 201. (b) a sea-going ship;
- 202. (c) a vessel not requiring a national or international load line certificate except when such vessel is either hired out in the course of a business, made available to members of the public in the course of a business carried out from that vessel or used primarily for domestic or residential purposes;
- 203. (d) a hovercraft; or
- 204. (e) a caravan used for touring otherwise than when hired out in the course of a business⁹;
- 134
- 1711 (2) the supply of gas to the propulsion system of any vehicle or to any gas fitting forming part of such propulsion system¹⁰;
- 1712 (3) the supply of gas to, or anything done in respect of, a bunsen burner used in an educational establishment¹¹; or
- 1713 (4) work in relation to a control device on a gas appliance if the device is intended primarily for use by a consumer of gas and the work does not involve breaking into a gasway¹².

Nor do those regulations apply:

- 1714 (i) subject to certain exceptions¹³, in relation to a gas fitting used for the purpose of training gas fitting operatives in a college or other training establishment¹⁴;
- 1715 (ii) subject to certain exceptions¹⁵, in relation to a gas fitting used for the purpose of assessing the competence of a gas fitting operative at an assessment centre where such assessment is carried out for the purposes of a nationally accredited certification scheme¹⁶.

Subject to head (1) above and to the provisions set out below¹⁷, those regulations apply to or in relation to gas fittings used in connection with gas which has been conveyed to premises through a distribution main or gas conveyed from a gas storage vessel¹⁸; but subject to certain exceptions¹⁹ they do not apply in relation to the supply of gas to, or anything done in respect of a gas fitting at, the following premises, that is to say:

- 1716 (A) a mine within the meaning of the Mines and Quarries Act 1954 or any place deemed to form part of a mine for the purposes of that Act²⁰, or a quarry within the meaning of the Quarries Regulations 1999²¹ or any place deemed to form part of a quarry for the purposes of those 1999 Regulations²²;
- 1717 (B) a factory within the meaning of the Factories Act 1961²³ or any place to which any provisions of that Act apply by virtue of the specified²⁴ statutory provisions²⁵;
- 1718 (C) agricultural premises, being agricultural land, including land being or forming part of a market garden, and any building thereon which is used in connection with agricultural operations²⁶;
- 1719 (D) temporary installations used in connection with any construction work within the prescribed meaning²⁷ of that phrase²⁸;
- 1720 (E) premises used for the testing of gas fittings²⁹; or
- 1721 (F) premises used for the treatment of sewage³⁰.

Those regulations do, however, apply in relation to such premises or part thereof used for domestic or residential purposes or as sleeping accommodation³¹.

Special provisions govern the installation of supplies of gas to certain premises used in connection with the giving there of cinematographic exhibitions³², including supplies for the purposes of safety lighting³³.

1 As to the Secretary of State see PARA 601 note 1 ante.

2 I.e. the Gas Safety (Installation and Use) Regulations 1998, SI 1998/2451 (as amended), which came into force on 31 October 1998: reg 1. Those regulations are made under the Health and Safety at Work etc Act 1974 ss 15(1), (2), (3), (4)(a), (5)(b), (6)(b), 82(3)(a), Sch 3 paras 1(1)-(3), 12, 15(1), 16 (as amended) (powers to make health and safety regulations: see HEALTH AND SAFETY AT WORK vol 52 (2009) PARAS 424, 425). As to criminal proceedings for contravention of health and safety regulations see HEALTH AND SAFETY AT WORK vol 53 (2009) PARA 852 et seq.

3 See the Gas Safety (Installation and Use) Regulations 1998, SI 1998/2451, Pt B (regs 3-10); and PARA 913 et seq post. 'Gas fittings' means gas pipework, valves (other than emergency controls), regulators and meters, and fittings, apparatus and appliances designed for use by consumers of gas for heating, lighting, cooking or other purposes for which gas can be used (other than the purpose of an industrial process carried out on industrial premises), but it does not mean (1) any part of a service pipe; (2) any part of a distribution main or other pipe upstream of the service pipe; (3) a gas storage vessel; or (4) a gas cylinder or cartridge designed to be disposed of when empty: reg 2(1). 'Gas' means any substance which is or (if it were in a gaseous state) would be gas within the meaning of the Gas Act 1986 (see PARA 802 ante) except that it does not include gas consisting wholly or mainly of hydrogen when used in non-domestic premises; 'emergency control' means a valve for shutting off the supply of gas in an emergency, being a valve intended for use by a consumer of gas; 'service pipe' means a pipe for distributing gas to premises from a distribution main, being any pipe between the distribution main and the outlet of the first emergency control downstream from the distribution main; 'distribution main' means any main through which a transporter is for the time being distributing gas and which is not being used only for the purpose of conveying gas in bulk; and 'gas storage vessel' means a storage container designed to be filled or refilled with gas at the place where it is connected for use or a refillable cylinder designed to store gas, and includes the vapour valve; but it does not include a cylinder or cartridge designed to be disposed of when empty: reg 2(1). 'Refillable cylinder' means a cylinder which is filled other than at the place where it is connected for use: reg 2(1).

4 See ibid Pt C (regs 11-17); and PARA 921 et seq post.

5 See ibid Pt D (regs 18-24); and PARA 927 et seq post. 'Installation pipework' means any pipework for conveying gas for a particular consumer and any associated valve or other gas fitting including any pipework used to connect a gas appliance to other installation pipework and any shut off device at the inlet to the appliance, but it does not mean (1) a service pipe; (2) a pipe comprised in a gas appliance; (3) any valve attached to a storage container or cylinder; or (4) service pipework: reg 2(1). 'Service pipework' means a pipe for supplying gas to premises from a gas storage vessel, being any pipe between the gas storage vessel and the outlet of the emergency control: reg 2(1).

6 See ibid Pt E (regs 25-34); and PARA 934 et seq post. 'Gas appliance' means an appliance designed for use by a consumer of gas for heating, lighting, cooking or other purposes for which gas can be used but it does not include a portable or mobile appliance supplied with gas from a cylinder, or the cylinder, pipes and other fittings used for supplying gas to that appliance, save that, for the purposes of regs 3, 35 and 36 (see PARAS 913, 942-943 post), it does include a portable or mobile space heater supplied with gas from a cylinder, and the cylinder, pipes and other fittings used for supplying gas to that heater: reg 2(1).

7 See ibid Pt F (regs 35-36); and PARAS 942-943 post.

13 Ie except that ibid reg 3(1)-(5), (7) (see PARA 913 post) applies to work in relation to a gas fitting carried out by a person providing such training: see reg 2(7).

14 Ibid reg 2(7).

15 Ie except that ibid reg 3(1), (2) (see PARA 913 post) applies to work in relation to a gas fitting carried out by a person carrying out such assessment: see reg 2(8).

16 Ibid reg 2(8).

17 Ie subject to ibid reg 2(4), (5).

32 As to the premises see the Cinematograph (Safety) Regulations 1955, SI 1955/1129, reg 1. The main valves and cocks controlling the supply must, if situated within a building, be placed as near as practicable to a door on the ground floor easily accessible from outside, and if accessible to the public they must be secured against unauthorised interference: reg 13.

33 'Safety lighting' means a means of illumination adequate to enable members of the public to see their way out of the premises without assistance from the general lighting: see ibid reg 16(1) (amended by SI 1976/1315). If the safety lighting is provided by gas it must be provided from a source other than that which supplies the general lighting: see the Cinematograph (Safety) Regulations 1955, SI 1955/1129, reg 16(3). The taps of individual lamps used for safety lighting must be secured against unauthorised interference and all other taps and cocks controlling the safety lighting must be either in a place to which the public is not admitted or, if that is not practicable, similarly protected: reg 16(5)(b)(i). (B) GAS FITTINGS; GENERAL PROVISIONS

913. Qualification and supervision.

No person must carry out any work in relation to a gas fitting¹ or gas storage vessel² unless he is competent to do so³. The employer of any person carrying out such work for that employer, every other employer and self-employed person who has control to any extent of such work and every employer and self-employed person who has required such work to be carried out at any place of work under his control must ensure that this requirement is complied with in relation to such work⁴.

Without prejudice to the generality of the above provisions, no employer must⁵ allow any of his employees to carry out any work in relation to a gas fitting or service pipework⁶ and no self-employed person must carry out any such work, unless the employer or self-employed person, as the case may be, is a member of a class of persons approved for the time being by the Health and Safety Executive⁷ for these purposes⁸. These requirements do not, however, apply in respect of:

- 1724 (1) the replacement of a hose or regulator on a portable or mobile space heater; or
- 1725 (2) the replacement of a hose connecting a refillable cylinder⁹ to installation pipework¹⁰.

An approval given pursuant to the above requirements, and any withdrawal of such approval, must be in writing and notice of it must be given to such persons and in such manner as the Executive considers appropriate¹¹. No person must falsely pretend to be a member of a class of persons required to be so approved¹².

The employer of any person carrying out any work in relation to a gas fitting or gas storage vessel in the course of his employment must ensure that such of the provisions of the relevant regulations¹³ as impose duties upon that person and are for the time being in force are complied with by that person¹⁴.

Notwithstanding the general exclusion in respect of factories¹⁵, when a person is carrying out work in factory premises in relation to a gas fitting in a vehicle, vessel or caravan:

- 1726 (a) he must be competent to do so¹⁶, and certain of the duties set out above¹⁷ must be complied with as respects that work¹⁸;
- 1727 (b) he must ensure, so far as is reasonably practicable, that the installation of the gas fittings and flues¹⁹ will not contravene the provisions of the relevant regulations²⁰ when the gas fittings are connected to a gas supply²¹, except that heads (a) and (b) above do not apply where the person has reasonable grounds for believing that the vehicle, vessel or caravan will be first used for a purpose which when so used will exclude it²² from the application of those regulations²³.

1 'Work' in relation to a gas fitting, includes any of the following activities carried out by any person, whether an employee or not, that is to say: (1) installing or reconnecting the fitting; (2) maintaining, servicing, permanently adjusting, disconnecting, repairing, altering or renewing the fitting or purging it of air or gas; (3) where the fitting is not readily movable, changing its position; and (4) removing the fitting; but the expression does not include the connection or disconnection of a bayonet fitting or other self-sealing connector: Gas Safety (Installation and Use) Regulations 1998, SI 1998/2451, reg 2(1). For the meaning of 'gas fitting' see PARA 911 note 3 ante. As to criminal proceedings for contravention of health and safety regulations see HEALTH AND SAFETY AT WORK vol 53 (2009) PARA 852 et seq.

Where a landlord who was incompetent to do so installed a gas fire contrary to the Gas Safety (Installation and Use) Regulations 1998, SI 1998/2451, reg 3, and it vented into the room causing the death from carbon monoxide poisoning of two of his tenants, a sentence of five years for their manslaughter was held not to be excessive: see R v Rodgers [2004] EWCA Crim 3115, [2005] 2 Cr App Rep (S) 105, [2004] All ER (D) 369 (Nov).
